NEW ALARM IN MEXICO.

Filibusters Plan to Take Yucatan.

Rebel Junta Says the Raiders Hope to Fill Pockets With Cash.

Leaders May Make Havana a Base to Swoop Down on Merida.

Huerta Will Send a Gunboat to Bring Gen. Diaz Back in Triumph.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] According to telegrams received in this city yesterday from Washington and New Orleans it is learned the leader of the Mexican revolutionary junta in the United States has stated that a filibustering party is being organized to go to Yucatan and capture the city of Merida, where they expect to realize 4,000,000 pesos. Castillo Brito, now residing in New Orleans, received three expert American artillerymen yesterday, who offered their services in the expedition to take charge and manage three machine guns, which the junta has already bought.

The filibusters will go to Havana to consult the revolutionary leader there with the expectation of securing $100,000 on the condition that they will give one-half of the plunder secured in Merida for the advanced loan. This alarming news has been received by the government and is regarded as true. Public opinion is that the filibusters will not receive any substantial support in Yucatan on account of the flourishing condition of business in that State. Also

LOS ANGELES IS GROWING.

Twenty-three More Carriers to Be Added to Deliver Mail.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Oct. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Hardly anything could testify more strikingly to the growth of Los Angeles than the announcement of the Postmaster-General that on October 6 twenty-three mail carriers will be added to the force at the Los Angeles postoffice in order to take care of the local business.

WILSON'S AUTO STRIKES A BOY.

PRESIDENT PROMISES TO BUY HIM A NEW WHEEL.

Fifteen-Year-Old Messenger Who Swerves in Front of the Executive's Machine Is Only Slightly Injured, but His Bicycle Is Turned Into Shapeless Mass of Junk.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—While President Wilson was returning to the White House tonight from a long motor ride through Maryland, his automobile struck Robert Crawford, a 15-year-old messenger boy, slightly bruising him about the knees.

Young Crawford was taken to a hospital at once by Dr. Grayson, the President's physician. His injuries were not at all serious.

The boy was riding a bicycle and trying to dodge stones being hurled at him by another youngster, when he suddenly swerved directly in front of the President's car as it rounded a corner.

The President, who was riding in the front seat with the chauffeur, was at the boy's side in an instant, lifting him from the ground, while the secret service men disentangled the bicycle from under the automobile.

"My wheel, my wheel," whimpered the boy. "I'll have to carry the messages on foot now."

The President promptly assured him that he would buy him "a nice new wheel," and directed Dr. Grayson to attend him constantly.

FAVORITISM FOR SOUTH.

Tariff Law Boosts Cotton Belt.

Democrats Seek to Develop Industries at Expense of New England.

Sugar About Only Product of Wilson's Constituents Hit by New Bill.

Penrose Declares Act Shows Hypocrisy and Renews the Spoils System.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Oct. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Instead of New England being smugly complacent with the revision of the tariff as heretofore, it is loud in its cry of discrimination in favor of the South and West. There is some ground for its cry, but in view of the way in which it has been so long favored it is not likely to get much sympathy from the people at large. It is merely receiving a taste of the treatment which it accorded to other sections when it was in the saddle through its formidable block of twelve members of the Senate.

It is charged by Republican Senators, notably Penrose of Pennsylvania, that the South has become the stronghold of protection so far as the Underwood-Simmons bill is a protective measure.

There is some basis for this charge, for the new law seeks covertly to develop southern industries, particularly cotton manufacturers, at the expense of those which have long flourished in New England.

Senator Lippitt of Rhode Island, who controls the great Mandeville Cotton Mills, wrote Schedule I, dealing with cotton goods, of the Aldrich law. Senator Overman of North Carolina, in whose State cotton factories are developing, had a great deal to do with the formulation of the provisions of the Underwood-Simmons measure and his colleague, Senator Simmons, was chairman of the Finance Committee and leading Senatorial conferee in the latest revision of the customs duties.

TEXAS IS BENEFITTED.

Not alone in cotton has the South received consideration. The hair from "garner's goat" is protected for the benefit of Texas, while wool is transferred to the free list.

Peanut oil, which hitherto has been free, will be taxed at six cents per gallon. Rice is taxed while wheat is made conditionally free. High taxes, however, continue to be levied on tobacco and whiskies. The one great southern product which has been badly hit is sugar, but the blow also is felt by the beet sugar growers of the Middle and Far West. At the same time it must be believed that New England is left out in the cold. It still has heavy protection, more than that enjoyed by other sections, in many respects, but it is by no means as great as it enjoyed under the Aldrich and previous Republican laws.

Thus the New England States will enjoy protection on 67 per cent. of their products, while the bars are removed entirely from only 33 per cent.

The proportion of the production of the north Atlantic States which will be dutiable amounts to 58 per cent., as against 42 per cent. which will be free.

The southern tier of States reaching from Virginia to Texas is given 42 per cent. protection, the balance of its products remaining on the free list. The protection accorded to this region, however, is greater than appears on the surface, for the reason that its great staple crop—cotton—has no competition, and it forms a considerable percentage of its production.

THE MIDDLE WEST.

The Middle West will have 48 per cent. of its products on the dutiable list and 52 per cent. free. Illinois is slightly above the average with 50.5 per cent. dutiable and 49.5 per free. Iowa is under the average, with 44 per cent. dutiable and 56 per cent. free. Wisconsin, Ohio, Michigan and Indiana are the highest protected States in this region. Wisconsin having 68 per cent. of its products dutiable, Ohio, 59 per cent.; Michigan, 58 per cent. and Indiana, 54 per cent.

The lowest protection under the new law will be that received by the Intermountain and Southwestern States, which will have only 29 per cent. of their products subject to duty. The Pacific Slope States will have 44 per cent. of their products protected.

Comparing the above averages, it looks as though New England is still well taken care of. But while this is true at first glance, it nevertheless is a fact that through the arrangement of duties the South and West have been given an advantage. To what extent this is so cannot be estimated at this time.

Senator Simmons insists it is impossible for a concrete judgment.

VIEWS OF SIMMONS.

"If one is to gauge the effect of the new law broadly," he continued, "he can perhaps do so by considering the changed status of the southern and western farmer, who, under previous tariff measures, has bought largely in a protected market and sold in a free market.

"Privilege has been taken out of the tariff, the protection afforded any section of the country will hereafter be incidental to the revenue necessities of the government.

"The bulwark of protection has been

INVOLVES ANGELENO ESTATE.

New York Woman Obtains Letters of Administration for Property in California.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Oct. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Miss Grace C. Balch obtained letters of administration in the Surrogate's Court today on the estate of her mother, Mrs. Georgia C. Balch, who died September 21 at Los Angeles.

The fact that Mrs. Balch left no will bequeathing her estate to her daughter and the further fact that Miss Balch declared in her petition to the Surrogate's Court that the value of her mother's estate was only $2.50, occasioned comment in view of the bitter feeling between mother and daughter. Mrs. Balch was confined for some time in Bloomingdale Asylum. She brought proceedings for her release, declaring that her daughter had caused her to be placed in the asylum and in her absence had caused her husband, Collins L. Balch, a celluloid manufacturer, to make a death-bed will leaving his estate to Miss Balch. Mr. Balch's estate was said to be valued at about $500,000.

PRINCE INSULTS A 'PHONE GIRL.

PAYS SEVEN-DOLLAR FINE FOR A ROYAL ROAST.

Declares Service Is Poor and Office Little Better Than a Hog Pen, but Court Holds Although It Might Be So He Should Have Restrained His Temper.

[BY CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BERLIN, Oct. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Prince Charles of Wrede was fined $7 by a court-martial at Wurzburg today for insulting a telephone girl over the wire in complaining of the poor service.

The Prince admitted having said that the telephone office at Ansbach was apparently a hog pen and that the girls were evidently reading novels between the switches. He tried to excuse himself by saying he was exasperated at the bad service.

It was admitted that the service was so bad that anything he might have said about it would not have been an exaggeration, but even that did not give the Prince the right to be insulting in his remarks.

RESCUED FROM ROCK PRISON.

Centralia Miner Walks Unaided Out of Coal Mine After Eight Days Confinement.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CENTRALIA (Pa.) Oct. 4.—Thomas Toshesky, a prisoner since Friday of last week, in an abandoned chamber of the Continental mine of the Lehigh Valley Coal Company, walked into the open air a free and comparatively well man at twenty-two minutes before eight o'clock this morning. He was taken to his home and at once put to bed, apparently none the worse for his remarkable experience.

It was 7:15 o'clock when the last barrier of coal was driven away and Toshesky crawled through the opening from his prison chamber into the tunnel, which had been steadily driven toward him by eager, willing rescuers. Seven minutes later a miner crawled to the mouth of the tunnel and called to the top of the pit for blankets and hot water to be sent down.

The work of getting the man ready for his exit occupied the next few minutes and at 7:38 o'clock a file of men emerging from the heading heralded the approach of the hero of the occasion. Toshesky came from the hole with a gray blanket wrapped about his shoulders. He walked with astonishing agility considering his experience. When he stepped onto the wooden platform just outside of the mouth of the narrow tunnel, and was first able to stand upright, he paused an instant and looked upward.

Toshesky climed the path to the rim of the pit almost unaided. A stretcher had been taken to the foot and there were plenty of willing hands to carry him but he would have none of it.

Head of the Mormon Church Says Present-Day Dress Is Indecent and Abominable.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SALT LAKE CITY, Oct. 4.—The head of the Mormon Church, President Joseph F. Smith, at the opening session of the Latter Day Saints' semi-annual conference here today, condemned woman's present-day dress.

Characterizing them as "abominable, indecent fashions," President Smith declared that tight and diaphanous skirts originated among the lowest class of women in degenerate cities. He said he hoped the daughters of Latter Day Saints would avoid wearing such raiment.

The conference, which is being attended from all over the world, is the largest ever assembled here.

Rumor.

PARIS STIRRED BY REPORT PEGOUD IS ASSASSINATED.

[BY CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PARIS, Oct. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Rumors that Aviator Pegoud had been assassinated caused the greatest excitement in Paris today. The police discredit the report, but it was admitted that Pegoud has not been at his home since Friday morning. Pegoud only recently jumped into fame by "looping the loop" in a monoplane, sailing upside down and performing other daring tricks in the air.

Pegoud did not appear at the Bleriot aerodrome this afternoon and a great crowd gathered, awaiting his appearance.

LEAVES THREE MILLIONS TO HIS EMPLOYEES.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

EASTON (Pa.) Oct. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The will of Herman Simon of this city, who was the largest manufacturer of silk in the United States and who died September 27, was offered for probate this afternoon. No one knows the extent of the estate, but it is reported to be over $10,000,000.

If this be the correct estimate, Simon leaves fully $3,000,000 to employees, chiefly head men, though some of the less prominent employees are remembered. The residue of his estate is to be divided into 2000 parts as follows:

To his wife, 666 parts; to his sister, 350 parts; to the daughter of Mrs. Simon by a former husband, 307 parts; to Charles W. Muller and Edward Essers, employees, each 195 parts.

Other employees receive smaller amounts. Direction is made that the beneficiaries under the will form a corporation to be known as the R. and H. Simon Company and continue in business, each taking shares in the company in proportion to his or her bequests.

Canal Not Damaged.

ANOTHER EARTHQUAKE ON ISTHMUS OF PANAMA.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

PANAMA, Oct. 4.—Another earthquake occurred on the isthmus at 5:06 o'clock this afternoon. It was almost equal in intensity to the shock of Wednesday night, its duration being from ten to fifteen seconds. Apparently no damage was done beyond the falling of plaster and the opening of slight fissures in a few structures.

Reports from the canal zone officials indicate that neither the locks nor any part of the canal suffered any damage.

The recording instruments indicated that the shock this afternoon had about half of the intensity of that on Wednesday night and covered practically the same area, with the central point of the disturbance about 100 miles from Panama City.

The instruments further showed that a tremor also occured at 5 o'clock in the morning and that in all there were about eighteen distinct movements.

EARTHQUAKE IN ITALY.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

NAPLES, Oct. 4.—Two strong earthquake shocks occurred here tonight causing panic, though the damage was insignificant. Shocks occurred also in the nearby provinces, particularly Avinello, where the inhabitants abandoned their houses. In the Province of Foggia many of the villagers are camping in the fields.

Mountain Room in White House.

Mrs. Wilson Drapes It With Fabrics Made Only by Southern Weavers.

Plans for Her Daughter's Wedding Next Month Taking Shape.

"Nothing Startling in the Trousseau," Is the Order of the First Lady.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Oct. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Workmen left the White House this morning and turned it over to I. H. Hoover, head usher, after having spent more than six weeks in transforming parts of it into additional living-rooms for the President's family.

One of the most characteristic changes Mrs. Wilson has made since coming into the White House is in the guest chamber on the south side of the house, near the rooms occupied by the President. The large, bright chamber has received a colonial wall covering of blue and white paper, especially designed to correspond with the white and blue draperies and with upholstering material woven by the mountain women of the South. This is to be a southern mountain room, and over sixty yards of material of cotton picked, ginned, carded and woven on the plantations, even to the dyeing of the blue yarns for the double chariot wheel design, have been done in the mountain fastness.

This will be used to make cushions, upholster furniture and form the hangings. An all white cotton bedspread, with a tufted design worked out by hand and a deep-hand tied fringe, will cover the old mahogany four-poster. There are also numerous baskets, some for holding ferns, to be used in the same room. The rug is also to be the work of the mountain folk, and is woven after the pattern of the draperies, in blue and white. The decorations will arrive next week.

The furniture for this room has long been in the White House, and by Mrs. Wilson's order, Mr. Hoover has had it refinished and repaired, and some old pictures and engravings which have long lain in a dark corner of the storeroom, have been brought to light to adorn the walls. Every effort is being made to have this room, and the new chambers on the top floor ready for the finishing touches to be bestowed by Mrs. Wilson on her return to Washington.

WEDDING PLANS.

Nothing at the style show which Washington has been enjoying this week has had a tithe of the interest for modistes and all their tribe that they feel over reports from Cornish, N. H., the summer home of the President's family, that part of Miss Jessie Wilson's trousseau for her marriage to Francis B. Sayre will be bought in this city and there will be nothing startling about the fashions that will be displayed. Although it was stated by the social secretary to Mrs. Wilson that she had received no information as to the trousseau plans of the President's daughter, it is understood that Mrs. Wilson and her daughters have placed a strict ban on extreme styles, and that the gowns will be of simple taste.

Violet, the color much liked by Miss Wilson, will predominate in the bridal wardrobe, it is understood, and the more pretentious evening gowns and hats will be of this shade.

Although the wedding is but little more than a month off, no preparations have been made, it is understood, for the invitations, and that presents from foreign countries, which, in the past have formed an imposing array at the marriage of a President's daughter, have not yet begun to arrive.

In the meantime workmen at the White House are busily engaged in putting on the finishing touches in the work of remodeling and renovation. The East room, now completed, is a marvel of harmonious decorations. Cream and gold leaf predominate, and the floors, scraped and highly polished, shine like mirrors. Long before the wedding the additional guest rooms in the attic will have been completed for the entertainment of the bridesmaids and others who will attend the wedding.

"WOODROW" IS MISSING.

Monkey That Holds the Key of Solution of Rare Disease, Escapes From Laboratory.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BALTIMORE, Oct. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] "Woodrow," a monkey that held the key to solution of a rare and fatal disease, with which solution Dr. Harry Schmeisser of the pathological department of Johns Hopkins Hospital would soon possibly have startled the medical world, is missing fro his cage in the laboratory.

Dr. Schmeisser began experimenting with this strange disease, the identity of which he refuses to disclose, early in the year.

The actual value of the monkey is a trifle, but to Dr. Schmeisser it is almost priceless. He is almost sure his experiment has been successful, and that humanity would be benefited by a knowledge of one more dangerous disease, if "Woodrow" could be found.

SHIP REFUGEES BACK TO MEXICO.

American Authorities Combat Smallpox Epidemic.

Federals Promise to Accord Peons Fair Treatment.

Huerta's Artillery Reported to Be Stuck in Mud.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

EAGLE PASS (Tex.) Oct. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Despite the fact that an epidemic of smallpox has been threatened among the Mexican refugees the American authorities are now engaged in sending back to Mexico all persons having no means of support and who are likely to become a burden on the local municipal government. More than 100 refugees exposed to contagion have been corralled by the authorities and sent back regardless of any alleged danger from the Federals.

As fast as the refugees could be induced to load their effects on carts provided by the American authorities they returned to their own country where there is some assurance that they will be fed and sheltered pending the arrival of the Federal army.

Altogether 4000 peons have been induced to cross the international line since 10 o'clock this morning and Lieut.-Col. Herrera, the new jefe de armas, has given his word that the poor people will receive every consideration possible in times of warfare.

All of the railroad track leading southward from Piedras Negras has been destroyed, according to a statement made public by Superintendent Dominguez this afternoon. About twenty locomotives and nearly a hundred cars were involved in the campaign of dynamite and destruction and three of the largest bridges between Piedras Negras and the south have been blown up, according to plans made public by the Carranzistas before they abandoned the city. Reports to the effect that the artillery belonging to the Federals had been stuck in the mud on the south side of the Sabinas River have been received, but as a matter of fact is is impossible to obtain an inkling of truth regarding the future operations of the Federals.

Arturo Carranza, the son of Gen. Jesus Carranza, informed his followers this morning that the Carranzista army had been triumphant at the battle of Peyotes, but those acquainted with the inside facts are inclined to discount the alleged information.

The Carranzistas again have taken possession of Piedras Negras after the abandonment of the city and the Federal sympathisers, who had an opportunity of entering the town during the absence of the Constitutionalist leaders, are now lamenting the fact that they did not act in time.

LOSS IS HEAVY AT SANTA ROSALIA.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

EL PASO (Tex.) Oct. 4.—Meager details of the battle of Santa Rosalia in which Gen. Francisco Castro and his 4700 Federal troops succeeded in defeating and routing Francisco Villa and 4000 rebels, show the fight was a desperate one. Gen. Salazar of the Federal forces in a private telegram places his estimate of the total number of dead at 700. The casualties were mostly on the rebel side.

The loss of life among non-combatants in the town, resulting from the Federal artillery fire, was enormous, Salazar said. The principal buildings and most of the residences of the town were practically ruined.

DE LA BARRA IN PARIS.

In Presenting His Credentials He Says His Native Country Will Weather the Storm.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

PARIS, Oct. 4.—Francisco de la Barra, the new Mexican Minister to France, in presenting his credentials to President Raymond Poincare today, alluded to the civil war in Mexico in the following words:

"I bring to the French people the salutation of a brother people, which is passing through hours of trials such as those which occur in the history of all peoples.

"My country certainly will come forth strengthened from this painful crisis.

"The progress accomplished by my government in the work f pacification has been extraordinary.

"The economic vitality displayed by Mexico and the patriotism are guarantees of this happy issue."

New Alarm in Mexico.

the city of Merida has a sufficiently well-armed military force to repel any attack made on the city.

President Huerta has ordered the gunboat Bravo, the flower of the Mexican navy, to proceed to Havana, where she will wait the arrival of the Corcovado and take on board the popular candidate for the Presidency of Mexico, Felix Diaz, and bring him to Mexico. This courtesy on the part of President Huerta demonstrates the cordial feelings existing between him and Felix Diaz.

Tomorrow the third anniversary of the republic of Portugal will be commemorated in this city by the Portuguese colony and their friends. The diplomatic representative will hold a reception tomorrow at 5 in the Portuguese Consulate on the Paseo de la Reforma.

Political newspapers are springing up like mushrooms all over the republic, according to statistics in the Postoffice Department. Three hundred rebels, who abandoned Porfirio Diaz two day ago, have returned to that city. The main body of the rebels is at Peyotes, a short distance south, awaiting the advance of Gen. Maas, Jr., who is steadily advancing. Last night he was within fourteen kilometers of Peyotes and it is said the attack was made today on the main rebel body. It is calculated 10,000 persons crossed the international bridge at Eagle Pass during the past week, taking refuge in the United States. The Mexican Ambassador in Washington has asked the American government to investigate the incident that occurred on the border at San Elizario between American patrolmen and Mexicans, who exchanged shots.

ALL-DAY BATTLE AT SINALOA.

REBELS AND FEDERALS CLASH IN FIERCE STRUGGLE.

Fighting Is Still in Progress, in Which Two Thousand Constitutionalists Are Contending for the Possession of the City—Gunboats Sent to Reinforce the Garrison.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

DOUGLAS (Ariz.) Oct. 4.—Constitutionalists and Federals clashed in an all-day battle at the city of Sinaloa today, according to tonight's rebel advices, which also contained the assertion that the insurgents had the advantage although the fighting was still in progress.

The number of Federals engaged in the battle was not stated in the dispatches, but the Constitutionalist troops were said to total 2000. They were commanded by Gen. Iturbe.

Two Federal gunboats, stationed in Guaymas harbor for a considerable time, were said to have been ordered south with troops to reinforce the Sinaloa garrison.

In the last week the Federals repaired the railroad between Empalme and Cruz de Piedra, but the Constitutionalists again put it out of commission by dynamiting the trackage.

American Consul Simpich arrived here today from Cumpas, Sonora, after having accomplished the release of James Bennett and his son, who had been held at Santiago on charges of having fomented political disorders.

Three hundred of Pancho Villa's command, who had been in Agua Prieta for some time, left today to rejoin that leader's troops in Chihuahua. They carried a large quantity of ammunition and a larger quantity of clothing and shoes for the rebel soldiers.

Man Whose Name Is on the New Tariff Law Desires to Be a United States Senator.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Congressman Underwood will enter the Democratic primaries in Alabama next spring for the United States Senate, his opponents including Representatives Henry D. Clayton and Richmond Pearson Hobson. It is understood also that Representatives James Thomas Heflinnay will be a candidate. "With the enactment of the tariff bill," Underwood said today, "I have completed the work in the House that has been my ambition to accomplish. Before retiring from public life, I should like to have the honor of representing the people of the State of Alabama in the Senate of the United States."

Representative Clayton was appointed by Gov. O'Neal to fill out Senator Johnston's unexpired term, but his credentials never have been passed upon by the Senate, and for weeks it has been practically certain they would not be accepted. The Democratic leaders in the Senate are almost unanimous in the opinion that Gov. O'Neal had no authority to make the appointment in the absence of action by the Legislature.

BONDED WAREHOUSES DISGORGE THEIR IMPORTS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Ot. 4.—New York bonded warehouses, jammed to capacity with imports roughly valued at $70,000,000, began today to disgorge themselves as importers released their products under the reduced rates of the new tariff law.

The New York custom-house opened an hour before the usual time and with fifteen additional clerks pressed into service, was to remain open till midnight. Duties will be assessed on the basis of the Payne-Aldrich act, but refunds, where necessary, will be made when official copies of the new laws were received.

The situation confronting importers today was the reverse of what it was four years ago when the Payne-Aldrich law became effective. Then, instead of holding goods in bond and releasing them at reduced rates, steamships raced to port with commodities on which higher duty was to be charged.

Several vast consignments came in just in the nick of time. Huge shipments will soon begin to arrive from abroad. More than sixty brokers were in line when the customs-house opened.

It was estimated that 5000 separate shipments would be withdrawn during the day, instead of the usual 600.

After the warehouse had closed it was announced that receipts for the day amounted to $920,000, a sum representing an approximate increase of 100 per cent. over the average Saturday receipts on bonded warehouse withdrawals. During the day there were about 4000 withdrawals.

Favoritism for South.

taken from the New England States and redistributed in proportion to the value and number of manufacturing interests located in New England, as compared with other sections.

"The farmer has sold on a free market, he will continue to do so. But realizing this, the authors of this bill have made agricultural implements free, have placed lumber on the free list and reduced the tariff on wire and tools.

"The tariff on sugar and other commodities the farmer buys, has been reduced. So far as his woolen and cotton clothing are concerned, we have not been able to place them on the free list, but we have cut the rates enormously and when the farmer pays a tariff on these articles, he is paying a revenue duty and not a protective duty.

"Cotton goods are manufactured in the South as well as in the North. There has been tremendous development in the South in recent years. Just to the degree, however, that the ultimate consumer has been compelled to buy in the protected market of New England to the exclusion of the remainder of the country, will New England be compelled to relax its privilege.

"To further equalize the burdens imposed upon the country by taxation, we have exempted the poor man from paying an income tax and have taxed the wealthy men, many of whom undoubtedly owe their commercial supremacy to the tariff privileges to which they have been accustomed. The tariff is a consumption tax; the poor man pays nearly as much as the rich man. The income tax is laid upon the shoulders best able to bear it."

PENROSE'S REJOINDER.

Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania asserted today that the Republican party never had treated the tariff from a sectional point of view, and he illustrated his contention by recalling that the sugar growers of Louisiana always received generous consideration from Republican Presidents and Republican leaders in Congress without expectation of political return for such consideration.

"In the present bill," he said, "there is a distinct note of sectionalism. The heaviest cuts are in the metal schedule, where article after article is placed on the free list and on other articles duties have been reduced radically. The metal industry is distinctly a northern one.

"In the cotton schedule the reductions are made most unequally as between the lower grades of manufacture in the South and the very high-class articles made in New England. Burlaps, which are used in the South, are on the free list, while a duty of 10 per cent. ad valorem is put on grain bags used by farmers all over the Northwest. The granges in grain districts, especially on the Pacific Coast, universally condemn this 10 per cent. on grain bags, while cotton bagging is free.

"A duty of 1 cent per pound is placed on rice, a southern product, while wheat is put on the free list. With the machinery now used rice can be produced as cheaply in Arkansas as wheat in Minnesota, with the added cost of flooding the rice fields by pumping. This cost is only a small fraction, anyhow, of the 60 cents per bushel on rice.

"Wool is placed on the free list, while goat hair, which has always heretofore been classed as wool, gets a duty of 15 per cent. Goats are raised in Texas and wool in the Northern States principally.

"That the civil service promises and proclamations of the administration prior to election have been largely abandoned is shown by the amendment in the tariff bill, which has aroused civil service reformers all over the country. It opens the way for about 1000 employees in control of the administration of the income tax to have permanent work in violation of the civil service law and is legislated so that the appropriation can be increased any year, thereby increasing the number, and the conference agreement actually provides that these men eventually may take the places of other employees in the internal revenue office when not engaged in their own work.

"Thus sectionalism and the spoils system seem to be combined in the bill."

TARIFF MAKES JOBS.

Fifteen Extra Men Employed in New York Customhouse on Account of New Duties.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—The first effect of the new tariff to which President Wilson's signature was written last night was seen early today when the clerical force at the customhouse was increased by fifteen men in anticipation of one of the busiest days in the history of this port.

In no customs district in the country will there be greater activity during the first few days of the new tariff than at the port of New York, for in the forty-eight bonded warehouses there is over $70,000,000 worth of goods awaiting withdrawal. Importers have been impatient to get their goods on the market, and it was expected they would attempt to withdraw more than one-half of this great store at once.

Germans Growl Because Their Country Is Not Included in Five Per Cent Reduction Clause.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

BERLIN, Oct. 4.—In commenting on the new American tariff act, the Taegleiche Rundschau today demands that the German government protest most forcibly and decisively against any attempt to deprive imports carried to the United States in German ships of the 5 per cent reduction.

"Americans," says the newspaper, "must be treated in such matters with an iron hand."

The other newspapers don't comment on the new tariff.

The Foreign Office insists that the guarantees of the "most favored nation" treatment contained in the old Prussian-American treaty is applicable in this case, but no special statement in regard to the matter will be made until the matter has been investigated further.

PROMISED BLISS AGAIN DELAYED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Those who expect to find American stores immediately cutting prices because of the new tariff law will be disappointed, in the opinion of Representative Underwood, one of its authors. It will be many months, Mr. Underwood believes, before the effect of the new tariff bill becomes apparent to the consumer.

"It is only competition, caused by the new law, that is going to reduce prices," said Mr. Underwood today. "It will be several months before the effect of the new tariff on commodities is felt and in many cases it may be a year. The effect on wool probably will not show until next spring, the full effect on sugar not for several years."

FISHERMAN'S LUCK.

The Gloucester Fellows Got in a Little Too Soon to Enjoy Favor of the New Tariff.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

GLOUCESTER (Mass.) Oct. 4.—The owners of two fishing schooners, which reached port yesterday from the Grand Banks are lamenting that the skippers did not delay a day in bringing home their fares. Had they waited until today the vessel owners, under the new tariff law, would have saved $5000, which they were obliged to pay in duties on the 650,000 pounds of fish.

Fair Sex in French Capital Have Adopted One More Custom From the Men.

[BY CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PARIS, Oct. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The fair sex has adopted a new fashion and has taken away another of the privileges of men. Many are now seen on the Bois de Boulogne and the boulevards carrying canes with elaborately carved handles. It is too late for sunshades and too early for umbrellas, so what is more logical, argues one of the introducers of the new mode, than for the women to carry canes.

RELIGIOUS LIBERTY IN PERU.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

LIMA (Peru) Oct. 4.—Peru in future is to enjoy religious tolerance. Heretofore the exercise of any religion other than the Roman Catholic has been prohibited.

The Chamber of Deputies today adopted by sixty-six votes to four an amendment to the Constitution dealing with this subject. The amendment had been approved already by the Senate.

In spite of the Constitutional prohibition the government some times permitted the building of a number of Protestant churches and mission schools in various parts of the country.

Activity.

BRYAN PRAISES THE TARIFF ACT.

Declares It's Best Passed Since the Civil War.

Bangor (Pa.) Man May Head Income Tax Division.

Officials Say Revenue Will Be Sufficient.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—With the Democratic tariff law consummated, activity today was transferred from the halls of Congress to the treasury department, where Secretary McAdoo and Assistant Secretary Hamlin began the development of a plan of enforcement.

Treasury officials declared that the new act will be the lowest tariff law in the history of the country, with the possible exception of the Walker tariff of 1846 and its amendatory tariff of 1857. With President Wilson and the Congressional framers of the law, they declared it was a "competitive tariff," and freely expressed the conviction that business would be invigorated and sustained through its operation.

Officials were equally confident that it would afford the government ample revenue.

It is roughly estimated that $100,000,000 worth of merchandise, held in bond, soon will be withdrawn and payment of duty made under the new law. Compared with the Payne-Aldrich act, this will mean a loss of $10,000,000 to the government. Treasury officials maintained that these withdrawals would have no perceptible effect on the business of the country.

THE INCOME TAX.

The most difficult administrative feature of the new act is the income tax provision. This entirely new venture will require the work of experts to draft a workable plan that will insure the government receiving its lawful dues from every taxable citizen.

William Osborne, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, today began the task of formulating as simple a plan as possible.

While no official announcement has has been made, it is believed L. F. Speer of Bangor, Pa., at present chief of the corporation tax division of the Treasury Department, will be appointed deputy commissioner of internal revenue in immediate charge of the income tax.

BRYAN'S STATEMENT.

Secretary Bryan today indorsed the new law as the best tariff measure since the Civil War, and predicted the early passage of the currency bill. Mr. Bryan issued this statement:

"The tariff law that went into force last night is the best tariff measure since the war and all who have taken part in preparing and passing it are entitled to great credit. It is a better bill than we were able to pass twenty years ago and I rejoice that political conditions are such as to make the present law possible.

"The Wilson bill was compelled to carry a burden that will not fall on the present law and ought not to have fallen on that law. The Wilson law called for an income tax, which was held unconstitutional by a divided vote, the one majority having been secured by a change of opinion on the part of one judge between the two hearings of the case.

"The nullification of the income tax portion of the Wilson law reduced the government's income until it would not meet the expenses of the government and this compelled an increase of indebtedness that threw on the bill an undeserved odium which, together with the fact that the Senate deprived the bill of some of its best features, robbed the party of the benefit which would ordinarily have come to it from a reduction in import duties. Then, too, it went into operation at a time when financial conditions were bad and many attributed to the law the defects for which it was not at all repsonsible.

"I mentioned the law of nineteen years ago because it is the only thing since the war with which we can compare the present law. Both economic as well as political conditions make it possible to do now what could not be done then. We have too, at this time, a united party, which is a great asset. The President and the Democrats of the House and Senate have been found in full sympathy and have worked unitedly in the accomplishment of this important work. They share the honors together and the honors are sufficient to give distinction to all who have participated.

"October 3 marks an important epoch in the economic history of the generation, and I am confident that it will not be long before the country will be able to celebrate a second triumph for the President, Congress, the party and the country when the new currency bill passes and receives the President's signature."

TWO BARKENTINES LOST.

Mariners Believe That Like the Amaranth the Americana Went Down Off Jarvis Island.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 4.—Last night's cable from Honolulu giving details of the wreck on Jarvis Island in the South Seas of the American barkentine Amaranth was interpreted today by mariners as almost sure proof that the barkentine Americana, also reported wrecked on Jarvis Island, is lost with all hands.

The Americana sailed from the Columbia River for Sydney with lumber March 3, and has never been spoken since. Then came word, early this week, that she had gone on the reefs of Jarvis Island, but that her captain and crew were saved and had been taken to Tutila. The following day brought similar reports of the Amaranth.

Latest word is that fourteen of the Amaranth crew are on their way to San Francisco aboard the Ventura, which picked them up at Pago Pago. On Jarvis Island they found no signs of recent occupation and no wreckage from the Americana. It is thought therefor that there must have been a confusion in the transmission of the ships' names and that the Americana still should stand on Lloyd's list as "missing."

STEAMER SPOKANE SAFE; REACHES SEATTLE TODAY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SEATTLE (Wash.) Oct. 4.—The steamer Spokane, which went ashore on the coast of Vancouver Island last night and got off this morning, will arrive here tomorrow morning at 1:30. She is steaming slowly. Her double bottom saved the boat. The extent of the damage probably will not be known until she is docked here.

The Pacific Coast Steamship Company has received the following wireless message from the purser of the Spokane:

"La Touche transferred passengers back to Spokane, which is proceeding to sea under her own steam."

The Spokane from Southwestern and Southeastern Alaska for Seattle, with 110 passengers and 16,000 cases of salmon, went aground on the east shore of Vancouver Island, on the inside passage, fifteen miles north of Cape Lazo at 9 o'clock last night, presumably in a fog or a snowstorm.

When the ship struck, her wireless operator sent out the distress call, which was picked up by ships and stations all along the coast. The freight steamer La Touche was first of the relief ships to reach the Spokane. She took on board seventy-nine passengers from the Spokane, the transfer being made in small boats.

Forty or more passengers of the Spokane refused to leave their comfortable quarters for others on the freight boat. Later the seventy-nine passengers were returned to their quarters on the passenger vessel. The salvage steamer Salver went from Victoria, B. C., to assist the Spokane early this morning.

WILL AMEND CHURCH LAW.

Convention of Episcopalians Begins Wednesday.

Delegates Doubt New Name Will Be Adopted.

Test of Strength on the First Day Likely.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—The next three weeks will witness the making of ecclesiastical history here by the triennial general convention of the Episcopal Church. Beginning Wednesday, October 8, 116 bishops, [illegible] clerical and 305 lay delegates will meet at the cathedral of St. John the Divine to hold daily sessions until October 24.

The House of Bishops and the House of Deputies will discuss amendments to the church constitution.

No provision has been made for representing to the convention the question of changing the corporate name of the denomination. Churchmen and laymen of high church tendencies have suggested that the present name "The Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States of America and its Tributaries Beyond the Seas," be replaced by "American Catholic Church." Delegates already here, expressed the opinion, however, that the low church party would be in the majority in the convention and those who favored another name did not wish to risk defeat at this convention.

The question of the remarriage of divorced persons may be forced upon the convention by individual delegates, but no provision has been made for its formal presentation. A sentiment has existed in favor of changing the constitution so that Episcopal clergymen may be permitted to perform the marriage ceremony of the innocent party to a divorce. At present, the church does not sanction the remarriage of divorced persons.

The relative strength of the high and low church sentiment may be tested on the opening day when the House of Deputies elects its presiding officer. The two leading candidates are the Rev. William F. Manning, D.D. of Trinity Church, New York, and the Rev. Alexander Mann, D.D. of Trinity Church, Boston. Dr. Manning is one of the high church leaders. Dr. Mann is well known for his low church tendencies.

A committee that has investigated a pension system will recommend that at the age of 65, clergymen may retire and receive thereafter one-half their average salary since they entered the church service. The report provides that widows of clergymen shall receive yearly pensions of one-half the average salary of their husbands received during the years of their marriage. It will be proposed that the children of deceased clergymen shall receive for educational purposes $100 a year between the ages of 4 and 7, $200 a year between the ages of 7 and 14, and $300 a year between the ages of 14 and 21 during dependency.

Convincing Testimony

You have followed, day by day, our "Talks on Teeth," and we know that you have more than once made up your mind to call and see us; yet, just at this time your skepticism about our making good our claims has kept you back. We now ask you to call and let us go into this method so thoroughly with you that, after having seen this work, all doubts as to our ability to make good in this remarkable work will be dissipated from your mind.

If you are fair-minded you must appreciate what it means when a man or woman tells you, either by letter or personally, what satisfaction they have gotten after months of experience, and testimony of this kind must be available to you if you are suffering with your teeth or have lost most of them. You can better afford to do without most anything in life rather than your teeth, for a day must come, sooner or later, when your body will not be as strong as it is today, and, without teeth, you cannot nourish this fast-declining strength.

The testimony is before you. Satisfy yourself of its genuineness by talking with these people, and then you must act as judge and jury.

I do not claim man is superior to nature, but I do claim the teeth you made for me are better and more serviceable than those furnished me by nature.

New Immigration Commission Has Little to Go On.

Plan a State Directory for the Use of Aliens.

Job of Secretary Open, With but Few Applicants.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] S. J. Lubin, president of the New State Immigration Commission, gave out a statement tonight as to the plans and problems of the commission. He said:

"There is little doubt that the most important aspect of the immigration question is the problem of getting the newcomer completely located. It is essential that the Commission of Immigration see that the proper safeguards surround the alien, that there is brought to him opportunities for education and Americanization; but without the right kind of a job, he is likely to be more or less of a public charge for some time to come.

"Of all aspects of the immigration question, this is the most difficult of solution. But few of the aliens who come to our shores have capital sufficient to enable them to take the time to make a careful study of the situation; most of them must get work at once. With a strange training, ignorance of our language, customs and laws, satisfactory settlement is no easy thing.

"On that account, one of the first tasks the commission will have to undertake is the preparation of a comprehensive survey of the State, showing the location of the foreigners already here, with the agricultural and industrial opportunities, and the social, educational and religious environment. In making such a survey, the commission must obtain the co-operation of the Federal government, the various departments of the State, the universities, chambers of commerces and similar organizations.

"With this information at hand, always kept as nearly up-to-date as possible, the immigrant will be in a position to get more information than is available today. It is likely that the gathering of much of the data must be left to other institutions; but it will be the work of the commission to select, putting its stamp of approval upon that which it believes to be accurate and helpful.

"The compiling of this perpetual State directory for aliens and the task of using it properly and wisely will require the services of a man of sound judgment, broad experience and considerable executive ability. These will form a portion of the duties of the executive secretary. The Commission of Immigration is now looking for the proper man to take up this work."

The commissioner also pointed out that the man required for this work must be a broad gauge expert who will work for less money than he is worth. He must really carry the heavy work of the commission. The members of the board serve without salary and can give only a limited amount of time to the work. They hope that every man in the State who thinks he can fill the bill will apply for the secretary's place. The appointment is in the hands of the commission, not the Governor.

JURY FAILS TO AGREE.

Chauffeur's Suit Against N. J. McNamara Reports Its Inability to Reach a Verdict.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

REDWOOD CITY (Cal.) Oct. 4.—After being out for five hours the jury in the $25,000 damage suit brought by Fred Pattison, a chauffeur, against his former employer, N. J. McNamara, failed to agree last night and was discharged.

The suit grew out of a motor trip to New York last year of Mrs. McNamara and Mrs. Cora Perkins with Pattison as driver. McNamara obtained indictments here charging Mrs. Perkins and Pattison with having stolen his automobile.

Pattison in his suit for alleged damages charged McNamara with having sworn falsely. He claimed that while incarcerated for nineteen days in a New York jail, he contracted tuberculosis.

Another $25,000 suit, brought by Mrs. Perkins against McNamara, is now pending.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO (Cal.) Oct. 4.—State Controller John S. Chambers left this afternoon for Los Angeles, where he will seek to force an increased appraisement in the estate of the late Ida Hancock Ross. The Ross estate has been appraised at about $4,500,000, but from reports made to the Controller by special agents, he believes this appraisement should be raised from $2,000,000 to $3,000,000, which would mean a big additional inheritance tax to be paid the State.

Two Male Election Officers at San Francisco Replaced by Women at Instance of Republican Committee.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 4.—Two male election officers were removed today by Registrar Zemansky, and women substituted in their places, at the instance of the County Republican Committee, which reported complaints that the men had used foul language at the polling places.

"The committee," said Chairman Forbes, "is heartily in favor of the employment of women in every precinct polling place. Their presence prevents just such incidents as this, and makes the polls much more inviting to women voters. It is our wish to have two women on every board."

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

OAKLAND, Oct. 4.—Personal property belonging to the $500,000 estate of Alexandre Duvall at the noted Chateau Belivieu in the Livermore Hills was sold at public auction today because Mrs. Amelia Stevens, who married against her father's will failed to appear and prevent its disposition. When she married Thaddeus Stevens ten years ago, her father, who died more than a year ago, disowned her. Her whereabouts is unknown. The sale was held by a representative of the public administrator, to place the estate in shape so that it can be handled by the county. Unless the daughter appears the lands and houses will pass into the hands of the State.

GIRLS! GIRLS! YOU MUST TRY THIS! DOUBLES BEAUTY OF YOUR HAIR.

For 25 cents you can make your hair lustrous, fluffy, and abundant.

Immediate?—Yes! Certain?—that's the joy of it. Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a Danderine hair cleanse. Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or excessive oil, and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair. A delightful surprise awaits those whose hair has been neglected or is scraggy, faded, dry, brittle or thin. Besides beautifying the hair, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair, and lots of it, surely get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and just try it.—[Advertisement.

PRUNES AT HIGHEST PRICE FOR LAST TWENTY YEARS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN JOSE, Oct. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] At the top of a climbing market, prunes broke the records of twenty years in the Santa Clara Valley during the week when they sold at a seven-cent basis to the pound, according to sellers today. It is stated that seven cents is being offered with no prunes to be purchased at that figure and that the market is likely to reach seven and a half the coming month.

Although there were reports that packers have been offering seven and a half no holders of prunes could be found today who have received the offers. A short crop partly ruined by adverse weather conditions caught many packers short on stock, according to reports, and several have been forced to buy the product of the Napa Valley. The fruit obtainable there is cheaper but of poorer quality, the local growers declare, and while packers can buy at about two cents less they are not going out of the local market as long as fruit can be had.

Growers who have been in the business here all their lives say that prunes are bringing better prices than ever in the history of the industry.

ESPEE SNOWSHEDS BURN.

Twenty Thousand Dollars Damage Done By Fire Which Breaks Out Near Truckee.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

RENO, Oct. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Fire which broke out early this morning in the snowsheds of the Southern Pacific in the high Sierras between Truckee and Colfax, Cal., damaged the sheds to the extent of $20,000 before being extinguished. Five hundred feet of the wooden track covering were burned before the blaze was put out by the combined efforts of citizens from Truckee and Colfax and four train crews.

Southern Pacific trains six and ten from San Francisco, due in Reno at 8:40 and 12:30 o'clock, were delayed until late today due to the fact that the tracks were found to be warped and twisted by the heat for a distance of 400 feet. Two hundred workmen were rushed to the spot to make the track safe for travel. For a distance of forty miles near the summit of the Sierras on the Nevada side of the mountains the snowsheds make continuous travel possible during the heavy snows of winter.

BURNS BRING TETANUS.

Superintendent of Indian Service Dies at San Francisco as Result of Gasoline Explosion.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Oct. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] As a result of burns received at Sausalito last Sunday when taking a supply of gasoline on his motor boat, Page Collier, superintendent of the United States Indian Service, died yesterday at the Hahnemann Hospital. Hope for his recovery was abandoned on Wednesday, when tetanus set in.

The accident that caused Collier's death occurred just as he was starting out on an all-day trip. For several years he has been accustomed to spend every Sunday in riding around in the boat.

Someone standing near him when he was taking on his gasoline lighted a match, causing an explosion in which Collier was severely burned on the face and shoulders.

He was rushed at once across the bay to the Hahnemann Hospital, where it was at first thought that he had a good chance for recovery.

Collier, who was 42 years old, was the son of Capt. William B. Collier. His mother, who was a leader in the exclusive southern set of San Francisco, died about five years ago. The decedent was a brother of William Bell Collier, Jr., and of Mmes. Atherton Macoundray, Roy MacDonald, Bergie Beckett and Misses Dorothy and Sara Collier.

For several years Page Collier was engaged in business with his brother, William Collier, at Clear Lake, where the Collier family has extensive holdings. About two years ago he returned to San Francisco. He was unmarried.

Spokane Hotel Man Divorces Wife in Los Angeles Whom He Calls a Suffragist.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SPOKANE, Oct. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Albert Baker, husband of Helen Lareine Baker, now in California, obtained a divorce from her before Superior Judge Sullivan today on the grounds of desertion.

Mr. Baker is rich and interested in the mining and hotel business in Spokane, and lives at the Ridpath.

"Mrs. Baker and I virtually separated four years ago," Mr. Baker testified. "She went to Europe and stayed two and a half years against my wishes, and when she returned to Spokane we did not live together, although we boarded at the same hotel. At that time I told her if she went away any more it would be for good, and that if she wanted to be my wife she would have to live with me."

Mr. Baker said shortly afterwards his wife went to Portland and that, while he has had two letters from her, not another word passed between them.

Baker says she is a suffragist.

When Judge Sullivan asked Baker if he understood that he could not remarry within six months after getting the divorce, he said, "I hope I will never get married again."

The Bakers have no children. Mrs. Baker is now believed to be in Los Angeles or San Francisco.

So He Will Run on a Platform of His Own.

Will Do the Foss Act in Old Bay State.

Conventions of Two Parties Held in Massachusetts.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BOSTON (Mass.) Oct. 4.—Congressman August P. Gardner, who had before repudiated the State committee, declared at the end of a sharp fight in the Republican State convention today that he would run for Governor on a platform of his own. He would fulfill, he said, his promises to the 40,000 people who choose him at the primaries, despite his obligation to the party as represented the majority of delegates present.

This new turn in the political situation followed the defeat of four successive attempts to amend the resolutions so as to make the platform square with his assertions on the stump.

When the fight was ended, Gardner figuratively tore up his prepared speech of acceptance and substituted a three-minute talk on "Progressive Republicanism."

"I am not unmindful," he said, "of the duty which I owe to the other candidates, or the duty I owe to this convention, but there are committed from this platform four of the principal issues upon which I have been waging my campaign. Now I know that my duty to the other candidates conflicts with my duty to the 46,000 or whatever the number was, who nominated me. I went throughout the length and breadth of this commonwealth, and I advocated the real restriction of immigration. I advocated a minimum wage for women. I advocated the use of the State credit to assist suburban homeseekers, and relieve the congestion in the cities. I advocated the compulsory publicity of the facts in important labor disputes and to all these things I am committed, gentlemen, and I cannot consent to go before the people of this commonwealth and take one position before I am nominated, and another position after I am nominated.

"I regret very much that I must make a campaign before the people of the commonwealth, asking them to support me in putting through certain measures."

The Committee on Resolutions report was:

"We believe that some system should be devised whereby undesirable aliens should be entirely excluded and that desirable aliens should be more carefully distributed throughout the country."

Gardner favored a direct declaration in favor of restriction, but was overwhelmingly beaten in his attempt to substitute another plank for that of the committee on the subject of immigration.

The committee also rejected Gardner's amendment to the committee's plank favoring the establishment of a minimum wage scheme. Gardner wished to extend the system to women and to enlarge the powers of the minimum wage committee.

Two other planks offered by Gardner were rejected by the convention. Gardner after the fight mounted the platform and expressed his disappointment. Holding aloft his prepared speech, he said it would not be delivered, as its four cardinal features had been eliminated by action of the convention.

"If the Republican party becomes stagnant, the Progressives are bound to succeed," he said. "If the party cannot liberalize itself, I shall leave public life, but I shall leave it as a Republican, for I have no sympathy with those who have fed at our board and are now howling at the heels of wounded greatness.

"If the Republican party stands for liberalism and progressiveness, it will win, and the Progressives will go into oblivion."

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BOSTON, Oct. 4.—Without a discordant note on any topic, the Democratic State convention in Faneuil Hall unanimously adopted today the platform prepared by the Resolutions Committee and indorsed the State ticket headed by Lieut.-Gov. David I. Walsh, which was nominated in the recent primaries.

The resolutions contain the planks designed to hold party candidates close to the platform. One urges that provision be made for having the platform passed on by the voters in the primaries, and the other favors having candidates for nomination file with the Secretary of State an affirmation of their substantial agreement with the party platform.

Grinnings of Death's Skull in the Certificates Countersigned by Physicians of Madison, Wis.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

"Died suddenly at the age of 103. To this time he bid fair to reach a ripe old age."

"Deceased had never been fatally sick."

"Died a mere child," (an infant of one-half year.)

"Last illness caused by chronic rheumatism, but was cured before death."

SULZER PLANS TO ESCAPE FROM CROSS EXAMINERS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ALBANY, Oct. 4.—Gov. Sulzer was said tonight to have perfected a plan for getting his whole story before the public and at the same time escaping cross-examination on more than a part of it.

It was generally reported that if his attorneys continued to insist on his curtailing his sworn testimony—as they are said to be doing—he would abide by their demands, but issue a statement to the newspapers on taking the stand containing that part of his narrative barred by his legal advisers. He will give out the statement on taking the witness stand, it is reported.

One thing the Governor has told many callers and maintained in talking with counsel, is that the people are entitled to know everything that he does about the inner workings of political organizations in the State. His attorneys have pointed out repeatedly that if he lets his anxiety for divulging information carry him too far he will open the way for the severest cross-examination for counsel for the Board of Managers.

Counsel for the board make no secret of their hopes that the testimony of Sulzer will open the way for introduction of much new evidence which they cannot introduce if he fails to testify or only denies briefly stories told by witnesses for the managers last week.

The Governor's eagerness to make public what his statement is expected to contain if it is issued, has caused endless argument between him and his counsel. More than two weeks ago it is said he planned an expose of 3500 words and was ready to give it to the newspapers when his counsel checked him.

PREDICTS NEW OUTBREAK IN THE PHILIPPINES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Trouble with the Filipinos unless there is some declaration soon, of the purpose of the United States to confer independence on the archipelago, is predicted in the annual report of Maj. H. H. Bandholtz, director of the Philippine constabulary. The report, made public today, says that while the Filipinos would rather have the United States dominate the affairs of the island than any other power, they want their freedom and already there have been many rumors of an uprising such as always in the past preceded actual outbreaks.

Members of the House received from Manila today a statement by W. Cameron Forbes, former Governor-General of the Philippines, replying to charges that his administration was inefficient and recklessly extravagant, made some time ago in a speech by Representative Jones of Virginia, chairman of the House Insular Affairs Committee. Forbes denied the charges in detail, accused Jones of "malicious and reckless slander," and of being "a willing and credulous listener to soreheads."

FIRST CHINESE PUZZLE OF THE NEW TARIFF LAW.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Officials of the Treasury Department are at sea to know what Congress actually meant by the provision of the new tariff law allowing a 5 per cent. reduction of duties on goods imported in American ships, with the condition that the differential should not be construed to abrogate or impair any existing treaty between the United States and a foreign nation.

Literally interpreted it is declared the provision would give a 5 per cent. decrease to goods in American bottoms and automatically grant the same privilege to the same ships of the many nations whose treaties with the United States guarantee no discrimination between their vessels and those of America. This construction, which would be a horizontal reduction of 5 per cent. in the tariff for importation from most of the great countries of the world, involves probably ten millions in revenue for the government creating a deficit instead of a surplus in the treasury, has been estimated by the tariff framers.

The question undoubtedly will be referred to President Wilson and Atty.-Gen. McReynolds, and ultimately will reach the United States Supreme Court.

Avoiding a literal construction, some officials contend that Congress meant the reduction should be allowed only in cases where the United States did not have a treaty which would interfere.

Other serious questions arise as to twenty-three nations whose treaties with this country do not guard against discrimination. These are Brazil, Chile, China, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, France, Germany, German Empire (except several German States,) Greece, Guatemala, Haiti, Mexico, Nicaragua, Panama, Persia, Peru, Portugal, Russia, Salvador, Siam, Switzerland, Turkey, Uruguay and Venezuela. Tlso the treatty with Great Britain does not guarantee equality of treatment for vessels of her colonies such as Canada and Australia.

Mrs. Pankhurst's Fees Low, Her Daughter Says.

Declares the Ballot Is Well Worth the Cost.

Overloaded With Invitations, Cristabel Declares.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

PARIS, Oct. 4.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, after reading the dispatches from New York today, reporting the commotion among the American suffragettes caused by the large fees which the suffragette leader is to receive for her lectures, commissioned her daughter, Christabel, to explain her point of view.

"The women's movement is an international one," said Miss Pankhurst, "consequently anything contributed by Americans to help to win the woman suffrage campaign in England will help the cause throughout the world. England is more conservative than any other country.

"If woman suffrage should be obtained there, it will be easier to win elsewhere."

Miss Christabel says that Miss Jean Wickham of the Women's Social and Political Union, who is arranging Mrs. Pankhurst's tour, is receiving more invitations than it is possible for Mrs. Pankhurst to accept, in spite of the fee asked. She adds that Mrs. Pankhurst has no doubt she will be freely admitted by the immigration authorities.

Militants in England Apply the Torch to a House, But They Still Lack the Vote.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Oct. 4.—Militant suffragettes this morning set fire to a large unoccupied riverside house at Hampton-on-Thames, a few miles above London. Two women were arrested on suspicion. A large quantity of suffragette literature was found strewn about the grounds.

The women were identified in police court as Miss May Richardson and Miss Rachel Peace. Miss Richardson, who was recently released from prison, admitted that she had set fire to the house and hoped she had made a good job of it.

The women were remanded for further hearing without bail.

German Who Says He Understands Continental Methods Asks Permission of State Board of Health to Open Up a Plant on a Large Scale in California.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A man whose name is withheld, but who says he is a German, applied to the State Board of Health today for permission to start a factory in or near Oakland for the purpose of converting horseflesh into food. This is the first application of this nature ever made to the California health authorities.

The applicant states that he desires to engage in the State of California, in the city of Oakland or Richmond, in the business of slaughtering horses for the sale of horse meat as food and to convert horse meat into sausage. He states that he has been engaged in the horse meat business for many years in Germany, where the industry is carried on on a large scale, and is experienced in the manner of sanitary slaughter of horses and preparation of such meat for consumption.

The application was referred to the Committee on Food Inspection Decisions, composed of M. E. Jaffa, director of the pure food laboratory at Berkeley; Attorney L. H. Roseberry of Los Angeles, attorney for the board, and Dr. W. F. Snow, secretary of the board.

Dr. Snow said yesterday that three puzzling questions will form the basis of the investigation of the proposition:

Whether there are any State laws to prohibit the use of horsemeat for food; what labeling limitations can be placed on the finished product, and what system of inspection can be followed in the plant.

THE WEALTH OF A SOCIALIST.

Bebel's Estate Is Worth a Hundred Thousand Dollars If Not in Reality a Million.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

BERLIN, Oct. 4.—An authoritative denial is issued today of published statements that the late August Bebel, the Socialist leader, was a millionaire. His estate is valued at about $100,000 of hich he bequeathed $5000 to the Social Democratic party and $2500 to the labor party. It had been reported that he left half of his estate to the party.

An accusation that Bebel was a tax dodger and had invested his property abroad in order to escape German assessments also is denied. It is declared that he made his annual returns to the tax officers with minute accuracy.

CAMINETTI IS "TRUE TO POLL."

Will Stick Behind Duckworth to Bitter End.

Says He Indorses When He Indorses.

To Come to Pacific Coast on Inspection Trip.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Oct. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] It looks very much as if there would be a real battle over that San Bernardino postoffice, which is to be ripe for plucking soon after the new year. A. Caminetti, chairman of the Executive Committee of the State Democratic Central Committee, and incidentally Commissioner-General of Immigration and referee on postmaster applicants in California, said today that he recommended T. W. Duckworth for postmaster at San Bernardino long ago, before he knew that Martin was a candidate or that Congressman Kettner had a choice for the job.

He followed the usual custom of backing the man who had the indorsement of his County Central Committee. The State Central Committee makes it a rule to take this course, but aside from that he was glad to indorse Duckworth because he had known him for fifteen or more years as a hard worker for the Democrats. Caminetti has been chairman of the Executive Committee for most of the time for fifteen or sixteen years, and he considered Duckworth one of his right hand men and a trustworthy lieutenant. He had no hesitation, therefore, when Duckworth came to him with the indorsement of the Central Committee of San Bernardino county in his pocket, in adding his own indorsement thereto. He did not know that the Democratic Congressmen from California were going to unite on another candidate but that makes no difference now. "Cam" stands pat. He's sot.

DUCKWORTH ENTITLED TO IT.

"When I give my indorsement to a man," he says, "I am not in the habit of withdrawing it. I indorsed Mr. Duckworth because he seemed to be entitled to the appointment. There was no thought at the time of any conflict with Mr. Martin or Mr. Kettner. I am too busy here with the work of my office to give much consideration to postoffice matters and the San Bernardino office will not become vacant for some months yet, but I do not see any reason why I should alter my position with respect to Mr. Duckworth."

Congressman Raker saw Caminetti this morning and had a talk with him over California postoffices, but the referee pleaded press of work and pointed to correspondence piled high on his desk, awaiting his consideration. He said he would do something just as soon as his official duties would permit him to give time to the importunities of the California seekers after postoffice appointments. F. W. Shelly, representing the County Central Committee of Los Angeles county, has also been to call on Caminetti, but he found the referee too busy to give much thought to postoffice matters.

COMING TO COAST.

Caminetti is also working on his itinerary for the tour of inspection of immigration stations he intends to make. He has not yet been able to fix a date for his departure on the trip which he would probably have undertaken ere this but for the demands of his work here and the frequent calls of Congressmen on public business. While he feels the necessity of visiting all of the stations, his intinerary at this time will probably include only those on the Pacific Coast.

Neither Raker nor Church had any comment to make today regarding the appointment of California postmasters. They seem to take the position that they have secured all the appointments that are coming to them in their districts and they seem unwilling to be drawn into any public controversy over those in other districts.

Virginia Pedagogues Organize Successful Summer School Among Isolated Mountaineers.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—After twenty-one teachers had refused to teach the regular school at Irish Creek Hollow, in the mountains of Rock Bridge county, Virginia, two county school teachers invaded the district with a camping outfit and organized a summer school and an evening school which were both better attended than any school in past years. Officials of the United States Bureau of Education having learned of this successful experiment, say they will work to have other isolated communities handled in the same way.

"All attempts to get a regular teacher having failed," said A. C. Monahan, rural school specialist of the bureau of education, "the county superintendent persuaded two experienced teachers to go to Irish Creek Hollow after their own schools had closed. They opened the summer school. They took with them tents to live in, provisions and cooking utensils. The attendance exceeded all expectations. Eighty children joined the morning classes and thirty or forty adults the afternoon and evening classes, among them old women and women with grandchildren in the morning school. Virginia has taken a valuable step toward benefiting one of our most neglected classes."

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Shortage of from 10 to 15 per cent. of drained oyster meat, was discovered by the National Board of Food and Drug Inspection in its examination of samples of oysters put up during the season of 1912-13. This shortage was general, says an official statement, in cans of all sizes except packing selects and extra-select oysters. The officials express the opinion that this was "not intentional but due rather to the fact that the packers made insufficient allowance for loss of weight of oysters through "processing."

All oyster canners from Maryland to Louisiana, however, have been notified what amount of oyster meat various sizes of can must contain.

Democrats Force Employers Without Pay to Collect Income Tax.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Collectors of internal revenue were instructed today by Commissioner Osborn to warn all employers, charged by the new income tax law to withhold the normal income tax of 1 per cent. at its source to pay it to the government and that if they failed they will be liable for the amount. This provision becomes effective November 1. "As the law does not specify in what manner the taxes shall be withheld," said Mr. Osborn, "it would appear that such means may be adopted as will be best adapted to the particular business affected." The commissioner said he would prepare licenses and regulations as soon as possible to enforce the provision, which requires the licensing of persons, firms or corporations, undertaking the collection of foreign interest payments, by means of coupons, checks or bills of exchange. An application for such license filed with a collector of internal revenue, he announced, would be considered sufficient compliance with the law until the license and regulation can be issued.

DEFICIENCY BILL PASSES.

Abolishes Commerce Court and Carries Appropriation for Transporting Americans Out of Mexico.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—With a voting quorum present by a narrow margin, the Senate today passed the urgent deficiency appropriation bill, carrying the House provision abolishing the Commerce Court. An amendment retaining the five Commerce Court judges on the Circuit Court bench until they resign or retire, was added to the provision, however, following a filibuster by supporters of the amendment.

The bill also carried, as finally passed, an amendment proposed by the Senate Appropriations Committee exempting Deputy United States marshals and deputy internal revenue collectors from the classified civil service. This provision was strongly opposed by the Senate Republicans.

About $5,000,000 of appropriations are carried by the bill, including $100,000 for the use of the State Department in moving Americans out of Mexico.

Secretary Daniels Hears Officers on Cruise Are Also Addicted to Snobbishness.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Oct. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Charges of gambling on board the cruisers Denver and Yorktown were laid before Secretary Daniels today by former Assistant Paymaster Arthur Middleton of this city, who resigned, he said, because of snobbishness among the officers in the service.

Middleton has been asked by Secretary Daniels to appear before him again next week to give further evidence in support of his charges. Mr. Middleton explained to the Secretary that he did not wish his charges to be taken as applying to the navy generally.

The Secretary is determined to run down the snobbery charges. He has given repeated exhibitions of his own democratic beliefs and he wants to make the navy more agreeable for the enlisted men.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—A filibuster prevented action in the Senate today on the House bill granting the city of San Francisco the right to establish a water supply system in the Hetch-Hetchy Valley. Senator Pittman of Nevada, leading the supporters of the bill, was unable to keep a quorum on hand, and objections forced an adjournment after a debate of several hours. The bill will be taken up again Tuesday.

Senators Gronna, Borah and Poindexter delayed consideration of the measure, objecting to many of its provisions. Senator Gronna declared the project would destroy the natural beauty of the valley and interfere with the water rights of irrigation farmers in the vicinity.

RENEW ATTACK ON LOWER FARE.

Arizona Attorney-General Is Foiled by Decision.

Fight Against Three-Cent Rate in Full Swing.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Oct. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] By a decision handed from the bench of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals this morning by Circuit Judges Morrow, Ross and Gilbert, sitting en banc, the motion on the part of Attorney-General Bullard of Arizona, to strike out the supplemental showings made by the Southern Pacific, Santa Fe, El Paso and Southwestern, New Mexico, and Arizona and Morenci Railroads in their attack on the constitutionality of the new three-cent fare law in Arizona, was denied and with it Bullard's attempt to knock out the new base of the carriers' attack failed.

The importance to the railroads of the denial of the motion is found in the fact that had it been granted fares on all railroads in Arizona would have been automatically reduced at once from four and five cents to a three-cent per mile basis, entailing a loss in railroad revenues in that State of millions of dollars a year.

As the case now stands, the railroads are permitted to make other showings against the validity of the law than that of confiscation, the latter ground for attack having been touched upon in the Minnesota rate case so vigorously by the United States Supreme Court.

When the three-cent law was passed in Arizona, the railroads immediately appealed to the highest Federal tribunal, claiming the law to be confiscatory. Before the Supreme Court rendered a decision the Minnesota rate case was decided and with it the definition of confiscation was announced.

The announcement necessitated an immediate change of attack on the railroads' part, and they filed supplemental basis for attack on the law. These Bullard sought to have eliminated by his motion, and E. W. Kemp and Judge Kent, representing the Santa Fe, and Henley C. Booth, representing the Southern Pacific, El Paso and Southwestern, Morenci Southern and the New Mexico and Arizona railroads, made a vigorous argument to prevent the automatic dismissal of the cases.

Upon the denial of his motion, Bullard got an order from the court to cause the five railroads to put up bonds to insure the protection of railroad passengers in Arizona should the three-cent fare law be held valid. Pending the court's decision, the four and five-cent rates are in effect. If the law is upheld the railroads must pay back to passengers the difference between three cents and five and four cents per mile, as charged now.

The amount of the bonds was tentatively agreed upon today at a conference in the Federal building between the rail attorneys and Bullard. The Santa Fe and Southern Pacific will be required to put up $75,000 bonds each; the El Paso and Southwestern, $50,000; and the Morenci Southern and New Mexico and Arizona, $40,000 each, or a total of $280,000.

The effect upon the carriers' revenues if the law stands is a vital one, according to the rail attorneys' contentions. The circuit judges were informed today that the law would cut a $200,000 hole in the Santa Fe's revenue; $200,000 in the Southern Pacific's; $75,000 in the El Paso and Southwestern's, and $25,000 each in the Morenci Southern and New Mexico and Arizona's.

The five roads are making the fight on behalf of all the railroads operating in Arizona.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

GAINESVILLE (Ga.) Oct. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Miss L. A. Morrill of Gainesville, Ga., was happily instrumental in bringing together in friendship after fifty years two soldiers of the Civil War. Chancing to see a notice in the Confederate Veteran of a Union soldier living in Los Angeles, who wished to learn some news of a young Confederate captain, who had befriended him during the war when he was wounded at the battle of Franklin, Tenn., by timely attention to his helpless condition. Believing she had a clue to the whereabouts of the Confederate captain, Miss Morrill wrote to Gen. A. J. West of Atlanta. Her surmises were confirmed, he proving to be the hero of the incident. Mr. Walter R. Savage was the Union soldier.

EAT NEW BREAD, CABBAGE, SAUSAGE AND DIGEST IT. "PAPE'S DIAPEPSIN."

No indigestion, no sour, gassy stomach or dyspepsia. Try it!

Do some foods you eat hit back—taste good, but work badly; ferment into stubborn lumps and cause a sick, sour, gassy stomach? Now, Mr. or Mrs. Dyspeptic, jot this down: Pape's Diapepsin digests everything, leaving nothing to sour and upset you. No difference how badly your stomach is disordered, you get happy relief in five minutes, but what pleases you most is that it strengthens and regulates your stomach so you can eat your favorite foods without fear. Most remedies give you relief sometimes—they are slow, but not sure. Diapepsin is quick, positive and puts your stomach in a healthy condition so the misery won't come back.

You feel different as soon as Pape's Diapepsin comes in contact with the stomach—distress just vanishes—your stomach gets sweet, no gases, no belching, no eructations of undigested food, your head clears and you feel fine.

Put an end to stomach trouble by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder.—[Advertisement.

SPELLS OF WEAK KIDNEYS READ AND SEE WHY

Some People Have Trouble With the Kidneys Every Autumn. They Become Frightened When the Symptoms Appear. There is a Reason. It Can Be Avoided.

During the month of October the kidneys are especially liable to become deranged.

The perspiration that has been going on freely during the previous months is at least partially stopped during October. The skin and the kidneys are very similar in their action. They both eliminate from the blood, poisons. As is well known, the skin can act in place of the kidneys in a small degree, and vice versa. When one is affected the other is apt to be.

The sudden checking of perspiration during the month of October throws upon the kidneys the extra work of eliminating the blood poisons. This concentrates the poisons in the urine, which may set up an irritable condition in the kidneys. The concentrated acidity of the urine irritates the whole tract.

The crisp weather of October naturally increases the appetite. It requires some self-control not to over eat during the first cold days. During the hot weather previously the amount of food consumed is much less than the appetite craves during October. This also tends to produce irritation of the kidneys by the excess of material in the blood.

Peruna is a gentle diuretic. It assists the kidneys in meeting the extra burden thrown upon them through October weather. It is well to take it, according to the directions on the bottle, during the whole month.

Those who object to liquid medicines can now procure Peruna Tablets.—[Adevtrisement.

HAS TWO NARROW ESCAPES.

Assistant School Superintendent in San Francisco Has Close Calls in an Auto.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Oct. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Two escapes from death or serious injury within an hour, and both of them in auto mishaps, marked the trip of Frank M. Carr, Assistant Superintendent of Schools of Alameda county, from his home in Haywards to Oakland this morning.

Carr was driving his auto toward Oakland when it was struck at First avenue and East Twelfth street by an auto truck driven by Phillip Recht. The force of the impact threw Carr twenty-five feet and wrecked his machine. Despite his fall, he picked himself up.

Carr then jumped into a passing machine and rode to a garage, where he engaged two mechanicians and started with them for the scene of the wreck. Arriving there, they took the wrecked auto in tow and started once more for Oakland.

They had not gone very far when a motor police patrol ran into the towing machine at Thirteenth and Fallon streets. Carr was hurled thirty feet over a barbed-wire fence and the two mechanicians, Fred Beddie and Michael Decaire, were thrown to the ground. Both were slightly hurt, but Carr again was uninjured.

GRABS RIVAL BY HER HAIR.

Disguised as an Old Woman, San Francisco Wife Nails Husband in Unexpected Manner.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Oct. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Hearing a winsome young woman say to her husband: "Why, dear, you're later than usual tonight," was too much for Mrs. Carmelita Thayer, wife of Clifford S. Thayer, a wealthy garage owner of San Rafael, and she promptly opened hostilities. Sinking her fingers into the other woman's hair, she dragged her nearly a block before letting go and now is preparing to sue for divorce.

Mrs. Thayer has been studying for the stage, and thus was able effectually to disguise herself as an old woman.

Mrs. Thayer's disguise was effectual. she says, and she followed the pair a long way without any suspicion being aroused. She had already heard whispers about her husband, and so she decided it would be wise to watch his movements. The last whisper of "dear, you're late," confirmed her suspicions and precipitated trouble.

The young woman with her husband, Mrs. Thayer says, was Miss Minnie Knowles, a petite and charming telephone operator.

As the first result of the affair, Miss Knowles has lost her position, but that isn't the only thing that has happened. Mrs. Thayer says she will consult her attorney Monday, with a view toward a divorce suit, and declares that she will undoubtedly name Miss Knowles as co-respondent.

WANTS A NEW COUNTY.

Property Owners in the Delta Region Complain of the Neglect of the Present Government.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 4.—Aroused by what is termed glaring neglect of property owners interests in the Delta region by the governments of Sacramento, San Joaquin, Contra Costa and Solano counties, the California Delta Association has started a campaign to form a new county at the point where the four counties adjoin.

The territory involved and which it is proposed to bring together a new county, includes 200,000 acres in San Joaquin county, 100,000 acres in Sacramento county, 70,000 in Contra Costa, and 50,000 in Solano. Rio Vista, Antioch or Byron, it is said, have been mentioned for a county seat.

The property owners say they have not been given good roads, bridges or police protection by the four counties.

PLAYER FINDS TROUSSEAU.

Picks up Dresses and Other Things Lost by Careless Bride in Street of Oakland.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Oct. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Mrs. William Fitzhugh Lee Simpson is happy today in the knowledge that her costly wedding trousseau, which was lost in Oakland in a mysterious manner, Wednesday evening, a few minutes after her marriage in San Francisco, has been found.

The $1000 gown was picked up at Fourteenth and Harrison streets, Oakland, late Wednesday night by W. A. Eames, a 'cello player, in the Hotel Oakland.

Eames was riding his bicycle home when he almost ran over a gown spread out in the street, around which lay scattered silk stockings, a pair of dainty slippers, a veil and other feminine finery. He bundled up the trousseau and took it home.

Eames told of his strange find to Miss Albina Paramino, a singer at the Hotel Oakland, who communicated with Mrs. John R. Aitken, mother of the bride, with the result that Mrs. Simpson was notified of the recovery of her gown.

The bride's family says that it was not so much the value of the trousseau that worried her, but that she considered its loss an ill omen.

How the gown came to be lying in the street is still as much of a mystery as how it came to be lost.

Mrs. Simpson is at present on her honeymoon in the East.

TO DEPORT MAN FOR CONTEMPT

Judge Humphries Complains to U. S. Authorities.

County Jail Still Filled With Defiant "Reds."

Seattle Municipal League Asks Investigation.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SEATTLE (Wash.) Oct. 4.—Thirty-eight persons—six women and thirty-two men—are still in the County Jail for refusal to pay fines imposed upon them for contempt of court by Superior Judge John Humphries. One man grew weary of his cell today and paid the $100 fine assessed against him. The women in jail are Mrs. Minnie E. Parkes, who told Judge Humphries that the "resolutions of defiance" she signed were not half strong enough to express her contempt for him; Mrs. Mary Jarvis, Mrs. Ella Price, Mrs. L. Freed, Mrs. Catherine Stirtan and Mrs. Hannah Anderson.

At tomorrow night's meeting called by the Free Speech Defense League, a resolution will be presented asking Gov. Lister to pardon the persons convicted by Judge Humphries.

The Seattle Municipal League instructed its Committee on County Affairs today to investigate the administration of justice in King county courts.

ONLY ONE IN COURT.

When Judge Humphries's court opened this morning there was only one contempt of court case on the docket, that against Mrs. A. J. Allen, who had spent almost two whole days in the courtroom awaiting trial and then had gone outside of the room shortly before her case was called yesterday. The judge ordered her bail bond forfeited.

Except for notices of appeal to the Supreme Court, Mrs. Allen's case will conclude the contempt of court proceedings in Humphries's chamber. Some of the defendants who went to jail rather than pay $2.10 costs were released last night and others who were taxed nominal costs and refused to pay will be out tonight. Those who were assessed $5 and costs will be kept in jail over Sunday. It is intended by the Free Speech Defense League to appeal all the cases where heavy fines or terms of imprisonment were imposed.

TO DISCUSS JUDGE.

The Free Speech Defense League has called a meeting in a large hall Sunday night to discuss Judge Humphries. More than 500 signatures to the "resolutions of defiance" have been ignored by the judge. As the three street speakers in whose behalf the resolutions were drawn have been discharged, circulation of the resolution has been discontinued.

Thomas Wadum, a Scandinavian who signed the resolutions, testified yesterday that he was not a citizen. He was ordered locked up in the County Jail with a view to deportation by the United States authorities, to whom his offense was ordered reported. There is no charge against him except contempt of court.

Mrs. Allen was fined $10 and costs, which she paid. The court then took up cases on the civil calendar.

SACRAMENTO (Cal.) Oct. 4.—[By A. P. Night Wire.] Edgar A. Matthews of San Francisco was appointed today by Gov. Johnson a member of the State Board of Architecture to succeed Lionel Deane, resigned.

The two faces of little make-believe Priscilla Kimmis, the amazing check forger, who is a child one minute and a worldly-wise grown-up the next. Bonnie Glessner finds her far from subtle.

A Study.

CHILD FORGER AN ACTRESS.

Much of the Make-Believe in Her Make-up.

Her Story a Stage Setting to Fit the Play.

Young and Old Alternately, Yet Not Subtle.

BY BONNIE GLESSNER.

Every woman, especially if she is an imaginative one, spends part of her life making believe, yet rarely is this feminine trait manifest so early in life as in the case of Priscilla Kimmis, the 12-year-old girl implicated in the numerous forgery charges for which her father, Dr. Bruce Kimmis, is now held in the City Jail.

Just a pretty pretender who can no more help acting than the silly peacock can help strutting and preening when the sun slants on its gorgeous plumage.

A child's face is Priscilla's, without a line of age traced on the smooth oval of her cheek, yet the dark lashes that shade her appealing blue eyes, droop or sweep frankly upward with all the age-old wisdom of a court dame. The brown curls that cling about her forehead and ears are the soft ringlets of childhood, yet when she talks Priscilla never forgets the effect of these curls and fluffs them about her eyes in just the way girls many years her senior do, with just the same effect.

FANCIFUL LIFE.

Just as other youngsters play house with packing boxes, white rocks and bits of glass, so does this slip of a girl lead a fanciful life. No doubt she sees herself as a demure child who was willing to shoulder the stigma of the forgery to save her father, yet she told when questioned that she first thought of forging checks when she read in a paper several months ago how easy Western merchants were in cashing checks.

With a tremble in her voice worthy of an emotional actress she whispered that she made out the first check because her father was ill and her little brother really hungry, yet only a few hours before she had heard her father confess to these forgeries, and had admitted to the detectives that she had lied from the first.

Priscilla would be a wonderful study for a psychologist. With her frank, unassuming manner she won the hearts of the attendants at the jail. To all she encountered she was a winsome, demure girl who had allowed her love for her father to lead her astray. Just as an older flirt plies her wiles on young and old alike, Priscilla smiled her way into the hearts of men and women alike, yet in her case there was none of the elements of sex that the seasoned flirt knows so well how to use. With Priscilla it was just a make-believe game.

One minute a pretty child, the next a worldly-wise woman, dodging the questioning of the detectives with rare skill. At times a little mother when petting her small brother, in the next breath pouting because the pictures printed of her in the papers "looked like frights." The girl is a queer paradox.

THE OTHER SIDE.

Just as one who listens closely hears the echo of eternal mirth behind every human endeavor, so does one catch a glimpse of the other side of this girl's character when in rare moments she forgets to make-believe. A roll of green cigar coupons like so many bills, idly tossed on a table, fell in the child's range of vision. The blue eyes became points of light and her hands closed swiftly over the package.

"Gee, I wish that was money," was what she said, then her eyes grew dreamy again as she finished, "I'd buy a nice home far away from the city where there are not so many things to tempt girls."

Temptation! Priscilla Kimmis is of strong enough fiber to withstand temptation, but she is made of just the sort of material to be led by her heart into any depths.

A mind capable of such wonderful understanding of the facts as this girl's has a splendid future before it if it is led along the trail that leads to right living, always of course allowing for a great deal of romantic make-believe.

DANIEL TURNER PASSES.

Half-Breed Indian, Who Was One Hundred and Seven Years Old, Dies at Soldiers' Home.

SANTA MONICA, Oct. 4.—Daniel Turner, oldest resident of this section, a half-breed Indian, who trapped beaver on the Sacramento River long before Fremont made his expedition of exploration in California, died at the Soldiers' Home last night. Turner counted himself 107 years of age, but records at the home say he was 93 years of age. He was probably the last survivor of the battle of New Orleans in 1812, firing a gun at the enemy behind breastworks while his father held the weapon for him.

For twenty years Turner had made his home in this city, having a residence at the corner of Lake and Hill streets. His mental faculties were unusually active in his last days. Last Monday he became ill and went to the Soldiers' Home for treatment. He will be buried in Sunnyside Cemetery.

Turner was born on a farm near Macon, Ga., in 1805. His father was a Cherokee Indian, his mother a Creek. His father was on Gen. Jackson's staff in the war against the English in 1812. He ran away from home in New Orleans and joined his father at the front, the little Indian boy being given a loaded gun and placed behind the breastworks.

His recollections of the year when he came to California were vague, but he thought to the last that it was during the Spanish occupation. He established a teepee on the Lower Sacramento River, where he trapped and hunted for a living long before the gold rush, the pueblo of Sacramento consisting merely of a collection of adobe houses at that time.

When Gen. Fremont appeared on the Coast, Turner went north to join his expedition, meeting him at Jacksonville, Or. He visited Southern California with Fremont, and years after enlisted in Capt. Barcelou's company of light artillery, stationed at San Francisco, serving one year, then reenlisting in Battery H, Second California Heavy Artillery, serving five years in the Civil War.

SAN PEDRO IS ELIMINATED.

Harvard and Yale Will Make San Diego Headquarters and Stop at Redondo Beach.

REDONDO BEACH, Oct. 4.—The Pacific Navigation Company's steamship Harvard will come here Monday that the technical staff may secure measurements of Wharf No. 3 and observations to ascertain what changes are necessary for the docking of the big vessels, the Harvard and Yale

It is stated unofficially that the company plans to make San Diego the home port instead of San Pedro and to make Redondo Beach the port of call for Los Angeles passengers. The boats will make four trips a week between San Francisco and San Diego. About three hours on the southern trip and two hours on the northern trip will be saved by this change.

At the meeting of the Redondo Beach Realty Board and the Redondo Beach Municipal and Industrial League it was decided to have the members and the citizens of the town, as far as possible, meet the Harvard at the dock Monday to show their appreciation of the change of ports.

Commencing October 24 the Pacific Coast Steamship Company's vessels Governor and President will cease to call here, the Queen being the only vessel of the line to stop here.

NEWS BRIEFS.

During the month of September 9,750,000 feet of lumber were received here, which is quite an increase over the lumber shipments of August. There were sixty-three ships in the port with a net tonnage of 57,545 and the merchandise shipments were 3475 tons. The oil shipments were 240,000 barrels and the number of passengers arriving were 3750.

Jack Torrence, Harold Bell, Ruth Lane and Bess Wall, all of Los Angeles, were arrested here last night by Officer Beryle, while on a joy ride in a stolen automobile. The officer noticed that the number on the big Premier Six machine had been changed, and while looking at it a friend of the owner told Beryle the machine had been stolen from C. Chapman of the Chapman Fertilizer Company of Los Angeles. The machine and the occupants were turned over to Los Angeles officers. The joy riders took the machine from Sixth and Los Angeles streets about noon.

Will Simpson, a colored comedian, who has been entertaining at the Lightning Racer, was interrupted in his stunts last evening by the police, who arrested him on the order of Sheriff Hammel. Simpson, it is alleged, had failed to provide for his wife and family and will be tried Monday.

GLEN RIDGE (N. J.) Oct. 4.—[By A. P. Night Wire.] Harlan Page Lloyd, who for many years was a law partner of William H. Taft, in Cincinnati, died here yesterday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Rufus B. Cowing, Jr. Prior to his law connection with the former President, he was associated with Taft's father. Lloyd was 75 years old and a veteran of the Civil War.

SURROUND CHINESE BANDITS.

Machine Guns Primed for the Brigands Holding American Missionaries for Ransom.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

PEKING, Oct. 4.—The American missionaries at Fan Cheng, in reply to an inquiry from Edward T. Williams, American Charge d'Affaires, telegraphed here that the amount of the ransom demanded by the Chinese brigands at Tsao Yang for the release of the American and Norwegian missionaries in captivity is not yet known. The Rev. C. Stokstad and the Rev. Mr. Johnson, who went toward Tsao Yang to communicate with the brigands, have not returned to Fang Cheng.

A dispatch from Hankow says that the brigands at Tsao Yang number 2000, and the government troops surrounding them total 3000 men. Gen. Li Yuen Heng, Vice-President of the Chinese republic, believes his force will be sufficient as the brigands are undisciplined and poorly organized. The government troops are equipped with a battery of machine guns.

Don't Neglect the Kidneys

The subtle and delusive character of kidney disease is well known. The patient and even the doctor often fail to recognize its existence until the disease has become well established, little thinking the backache, headache, indigestion, weakness of heart, loss of appetite and that tired feeling is caused from kidney trouble; the kidneys failing to perform their function of removing the poisonous matter from the blood.

"Raising the Dust"

H. R. BOYNTON COMPANY LOS ANGELES
B
This Label Is a Guarantee of Highest Quality.

In an article on "Raising the Dust," in a popular magazine, a prominent writer makes the following interesting remarks:

"It passes all ordinary male understanding how an apparently sane and—let us even say—apparently intelligent person, of the opposite sex can, day after day, go through the exceedingly foolish and exceedingly abortive rites of Sweeping and Dusting, as they are ordinarily performed. The dust in the carpet is usually jerked out with a vicious side swipe of the broom, as if the wielder had her errant husband in mind. In dusting, the woman, be she maid, wife or widow, dabs with a parti-colored woolly whisk brooms at the 'articles of bigotry and virtu,' as if she was powdering a berouged cheek.

"* * * The greatest medical discovery that will be made in this century will be dust. It takes at least two hours in fresh open air each day to counteract the effects of the dust we inhale, without estimating the wear and tear of the tissues due to nature's excretory effort to intercept this terrible enemy. If we would evade this death-dealing dust, the cause alike of consumption, sore throat, cold in the head and pneumonia, it is essential to betake ourselves to parks and open-air spaces, green fields and country lanes.

"* * * However, the Vacuum Cleaner is the best of all."

No two ways out of it—in sanitarily equipped homes the Vacuum Cleaner has supplanted the broom. The question nowadays is not, "Shall I have a Vacuum Cleaner?" but, "Which Vacuum Cleaner shall I have?"

The "Boynton Invincible" Vacuum Cleaner Is Best

It is sanitary and efficient, yet withal the easiest operated Cleaner on the market. No heavy mechanism to carry from room to room. Only a simple connection with a plug in the baseboard. Powerful suction drives every atom of dust and disease-laden germs into a large receptacle in the basement.

You'll never realize the wonderful power of a Perfect Vacuum Cleaner, until you've investigated the "Boynton Invincible." See it any day at our Display Rooms.

"El Caravan."

NOBLE NEOPHYTES LAY TRAIL IN DESERT SAND.

Four Hundred Follow Ritual Into the Mystic Shrine Through Beautiful Ceremonial—Banquet Follows Arrival at Oasis, Where the Visiting Delegations Are Royally Entertained—Parade Impresses Populace.

MORE than 2000 Nobles of the Mystic Shrine from every quarter of California gathered last night in the Shrine Auditorium to witness the stupendous ceremonial which was put on by Al Malaikah Temple of Los Angeles. Nearly 400 neophytes were received into the order during the ritualistic portion of "El Caravan," the title by which the ceremonial is known.

The show was followed by a banquet at which the members of Al Malaikah Temple played royal hosts to the visitors who came from Islam Temple, San Francisco; Aahmes Temple, Oakland, and Al Bahr Temple, San Diego.

The banquet was one of the most elaborate ever spread in the southern part of this State. Not only did this gathering of the Nobles from the four temples of California serve to make a rapt audience at the exercises last night at the Shrine Auditorium, but it marked also the first amalgamation of the four bands and four patrols of the State, an aggregation which, beginning the 21st inst., will start on a concert tour throughout the State.

Under the leadership of George Bennett of Islam Temple, the combined bands yesterday played their first tune together. For the first time in several months the patrols under Col.-Commander George E. Filmer drilled in unison.

PRAISE EL CARAVAN.

At the close of the ceremonial last night the visiting Nobles declared that Al Malaikah had given them a great piece of instructive and entertaining work. "El Caravan" was written by Bernal Dyas, who spent six months on the construction of the story.

Noble Dyas first laid out his plot and then built the scenic effects in which he employed 200 small iron soldiers as dummies to represent the actors he purposed to put into his ceremonial. Every move of "El Caravan" was followed closely by the author. On a miniature stage he moved these dummies about, forming every picture which was shown, from the opening of the pageant in the morning light until storm and darkness closed it from view.

With the aid of Fred Bradley, master of mechanics and scenic effects, and Charles Giblyn, stage director, Noble Dyas consummated the inspiring pageant.

The noon hour gave to the people of Los Angeles a mere flash of what the 1915 Shrine concert tour company will be. With Al Bahr Temple's delegation absent and many members of the bands and patrols of Al Malaikah, Aahmes and Islam not in the ranks, a parade held attention on the streets.

Headed by the combined bands, the patrols marched up from the Salt Lake depot, where the Oakland contingent and the Los Angeles hosts met the men of Islam, who came from the north aboard the steamer Yale. Another delegation of San Franciscans preceded their marine brothers, arriving over the lines of the Southern Pacific and Santa Fe.

The parade moved up First street until it reached the Times Office, where the band and patrols halted and, under the leadership of George Bennett of Islam Patrol, pieces of brass, the clarionet and drum, and cymbals blazed out "I Love You California," the song which will be carried in the "Hands Around the State" concert tour, and which will be used next May as a battle hymn on the march to Atlanta, where California hopes to land the 1915 session of the Imperial Council of the Mystic Shrine for San Francisco.

DOWN BROADWAY.

From the Times Office the parade moved down Broadway and was stopped at other vantage points until it reached the Los Angeles Athletic Club building, where the marchers disbanded.

Al Malaikahans led the visiting bands and patrols to a string of fifty automobiles, in which the wanderers from afar were whirled to Ocean Park. An elaborate luncheon was served in the Cafe Nat Goodwin, and then the Nobles were permitted to wander at will over the sands. The return to the city was made in motor cars.

Al Bahr Temple reached Los Angeles last evening on a special train and then was made up for the first time the great "Hands Around the State" Concert Company.

The playing of the bands apparently was without flaw. The volume of sound was something the equal of which has never been heard within the Shrine Auditorium. When the company starts on the 21st inst., it will carry the largest band ever transported on a road tour in the United States.

There is not a salaried man in the band. It is made up of Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, and it might well be called "The Ten Million Dollar Band, for, footing up the fortunes of its members, the above figure would be reached with ease.

HIGHLY INSTRUMENTAL.

Al Malaikah's band has a cornetist whose fortune, conservatively, is estimated at $750,000. Aahmes Temple has a clarionet player whose fortune is $500,000. Islam Temple has in its ranks of bandsmen two of the most successful physicians of the State. San Diego is able to point to two bankers who when not engaged in the intricate financial problems, blow horns in their Shrine band.

And all of these men will, the latter part of this month, give up for two weeks their homes, business and comfort, to go on the road and make a series of one-night stands throughout the State to show that they are patriotic Californians and willing to undergo hardships to help the State.

This tour will be carried out under a slogan of "Hands Around the State." Its purpose is to raise a fund to equip the Shriners' boosting train to travel through the East next May. In the concourse of men from all sections of the State yesterday, the slogan of "Hands Around the State," was typified in the kindly feeling which existed.

EVERYBODY TO HELP.

Wild enthusiasm greeted the mention "Hands Around the State Concert Tour," at Shrine Auditorium last night. Every Shriner in the State, judging from expressions heard last night, is out to help his State, not solely as a Shriner, but as a Californian. It is purposed to bring within the borders of the State nearly 1,000,000 persons, Shriners, their friends and families.

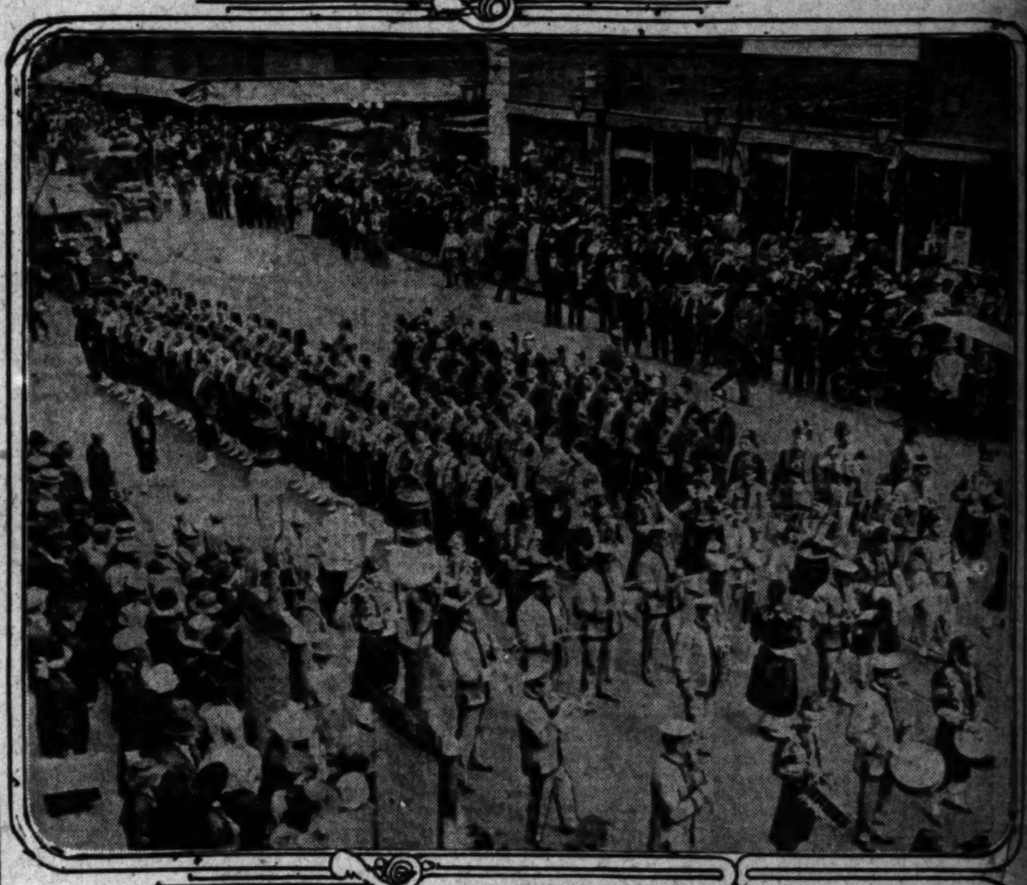
Illustrious Potentate Leo V. Youngworth of Al Malaikah Temple, went about yesterday and last evening surcharged with that kindly feeling which makes of the stranger a brother. His ready smile and hearty handclasp made the Nobles who had come from afar feel that they had reached an oasis of kindliness.

Illustrious Potentate William H. Hendricks of Islam, San Francisco; Illustrious Potentate L. S. McLure of Al Bahr Temple, San Diego; and Chief Rabban Matthews of Aahmes Temple, Oakland, joined hands at the railway station in the representation of the Shriners now well-known slogan "Hands Around the State."

Prominent in greeting the 2000 Nobles in the city yesterday was Frank B. Silverwood, known to the Shriners of North America and to his thousands of friends, as "Daddy" Silverwood, the author of "I Love You California."

Los Angeles harbor yesterday morning became a gala sight as the Yale came in, decked with flags from stem to stern, and Islam's band on the fo'c's'le head playing "I Love You California." The crowds along the docks cheered the big white ship as she crept alongside the dolphins. When the first of San Francisco's 267 representatives came up the gangway, he was greeted with cheers.

Shining in uniforms of red and green, Alexander Woodside as First Lieutenant, marched down the dock giving a touch of the military to the scene. In addition to the band of twenty-eight pieces and the patrol of twenty-five men, the officers of Islam Temple came down aboard the Yale.



The Arab patrols on the streets yesterday.

What Is Home Without An Appetite?

Many a Miserable Dyspeptic Can Quickly Enjoy a Good Appetite Using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

There is nothing so deplorable as a home where at every meal one member of the family sits in silence eating a special diet while others are partaking of the regular food.

Not only does this condition become almost unbearable to the dyspeptic, but it throws anything but a joyous spirit over the rest of the family.

The Child—"Please eat some nice chicken, papa."
The Father—"No, Buster, daddy don't feel like eating."

The presence of dishes before him that a stomach sufferer cannot eat, makes him sick at his stomach and he is actually doing himself an injury when he eats at such a table.

A Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet taken after each meal will excite appetite and in a short time one will find the sight of food becoming less and less repugnant until after a few meals one will take courage enough to join with the family in the regular fare.

As soon as this is done and there follows no evil effects then by continuing the use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets you will soon be restored to your normal, healthy and vigorous appetite.

One of the real pleasures of eating is the joy of smelling and seeing food. These qualities are essential to the normal digestion for they excite the flow of saliva in the mouth, and the gastric juices in the stomach and thus make ready the digestive apparatus for the food when it is eaten.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets contain ingredients that every system needs. Weakened fluids of nature used in digestion are quickly restored to their normal proportion, and in a short time are so evenly balanced that the system can manufacture its own pepsin and hydrochloric acid as it should.

VENTURA ASSOCIATION.

Merrymakers Meet in Sycamore Park and Spend Happy Day—Unveil Portrait of Dr. Bard.

Over 100 former residents of Ventura county gathered in Sycamore Park yesterday, on the occasion of the semi-annual meeting of their association. A large percentage of the 100 are descendants of the Spanish pioneers who settled in Ventura county. The old-fashioned basket picnic was marked by the usual American menu on such occasions, supplemented by a number of Spanish dishes.

The memory of Dr. C. L. Bard, who looms large in the history of Ventura county, was honored by giving a large framed portrait of the doctor a prominent place, suspended from one of the many sycamores in the park. The picture was furnished by Mrs. Linda T. Gray. A poetical tribute to the humble hero by William Riley was attached to the picture. From the tribute and from additional testimony by old residents, it would seem that Barrie might well have secured material for his splendid character, William McClure, in "Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush." Dr. Bard had the reputation of riding his horse, "Kit Carson," far and wide, to answer calls of rich and poor alike, "through windstorm and rain at any hour of day or night." He was a brother of former United States Senator Thomas R. Bard, and died several years ago. He was county physician for over thirty years.

The officers of the Ventura County Association of Los Angeles county are Nathan Shaw, president; E. M. Selby, vice-president; Mrs. Linda T. Gray, secretary; L. A. Bell, treasurer, and A. P. Walbridge, historian. Impromptu speeches were delivered by a number of the merrymakers.

FACE SERIOUS CHARGES.

Bridegroom-Conductor and His Crew-Partner Accused of Enticing Young Girl.

Three days after his marriage to a school-day sweetheart, who came from the interior of Illinois to become his wife, P. J. Moore, a street car motorman, living at No. 2906 Jeffries street, was arrested yesterday by Probation Officer Marden. L. L. Robinson, a conductor working with Moore, was arrested at the same time. Both men are facing serious charges. Miss Lillian Preebe, 16 years old, who living at No. 419 South Avenue Nineteen, is held at the Juvenile Hall as a witness and a delinquent minor.

According to information furnished the probation officers, the street car men had on numerous occasions induced the young girl to ride with them to the end of the North Main street line. Many complaints have come to the officers relatively to the alleged conduct of certain street car employees and an investigation will be made.

Mrs. Moore, the pretty bride of the motorman now held at the City Jail, said last night that she will plead with the court for her husband's release.

BONDS ARE SUPPORTED.

Mass Meeting at Pasadena Attended by Many Persons, Wholly in Favor of Proposed Issue.

SOUTH PASADENA, Oct. 4.—C. S. Crouch was the principal speaker last evening at the meeting at the High School, which was held by the Chamber of Commerce for the discussion of the proposed bond issue. He made a favorable impression on his audience. He renewed his offer to contract for the disposal of the sewage of South Pasadena and he promised to erect a perfectly sanitary and unobjectionable plant for this purpose. In this connection letters were read from the Board of Trustees of Alhambra and the City Commission of Pasadena, as follows:

"To the Board of Trustees of South Pasadena:

"We note from the daily papers that you have called an election to vote upon the proposition of issuing bonds to construct a sewer system, to be built in connection with a similar system in Alhambra, and to join with the city of Pasadena in a common outfall and purification plant in the vicinity of the Whittier Narrows where delivery of the combined sewage of the three cities will be made to the Crouch company for disposal.

"We desire at this time to state that in the event your bonds carry, we will in accordance with our agreement, call an election in Alhambra to vote upon the necessary bonds to provide funds to carry out our part of the understanding." Signed individually by the Trustees.

From the City Commission of Pasadena:

"We desire that there shall be no misunderstanding with reference to our attitude on the proposition to co-operate with South Pasadena and Alhambra in the disposal of sewage for those two cities and Pasadena.

"Referring to our communication to you, dated August 15, 1913, in which we agree to co-operate with South Pasadena and Alhambra in the disposal of sewage in some such manner as proposed by Crouch, we reaffirm that statement and stand ready to take such action as be necessary to assume our proportionate share of the expense of said undertaking as soon as South Pasadena shall have voted bonds for the sewage project."

Campaign to Improve Moral Tone Is Launched.

University of California day was observed yesterday with the Methodist conference in session at Long Beach and the morning session was devoted to a discussion of the educational needs of the Methodist youth. Half a dozen men of prominence in the affairs of the university presented the matter in such a manner that without dissent the conference went on record as favoring a broader and higher training for the ministry, and launched a campaign for a half-million-dollar endowment for the Southern California Methodist Church.

The discussion was dramatic at times, enlivened by a bit of comedy, when Dr. Alexander Hardie of Escondido, formerly a professor in the [illegible] school of theology, a department of the college, started to speak in favor of the proposition of endowment and urged examination of all applicants for positions for professorships, insisting upon the selection of only Christian men.

In making his point he used so many historical allusions to old Greek sages and philosophers, of whom he talked as familiarly as if they were his present chums, that Dr. [illegible] Hughes voiced a mild protest that "these reports of the old Greeks be postponed until reports of the [illegible] university officers were heard." Dr. Hardie thought Dr. Hughes discourteous and, although Dr. Knighton also rose to make a motion, continued his address amid much laughter after the bishop ruled that he had the floor.

REPORT ON SCHOOL.

Dr. Matt Hughes, as chairman of the board of education of the conference, reported that U.S.C. now has [illegible] students in the college of liberal arts and that this will be increased to 1000 before the end of the year. There are 333 in the summer school, while the professional departments of the college maintain their high mark. The educational committee reported the continuance of the present apportionment rate per member for the university and that two-sevenths of this be applied to the Maclay school, and that the proceeds from tuition in this department be used for the strengthening of its work. He then launched the committee plan of a three-year campaign to raise an endowment of $500,000, one-fifth of which is to go to the theological school, and asked the bishop to confirm the appointment of Field Secretary Coyne, who is to have charge of the campaign.

Others who spoke are President Bovard of the university, Dr. Alfred Inwood, Rev. J. A. Geissinger, Dr. Fletcher Homan, George I. Cochrane, Lieut.-Gov. Wallace and Robert J. Cunn.

URGE BIG FUND.

Lieut.-Gov. Wallace urged that the half-million be raised at once and that an additional half-million be secured. He thought five or six men in the conference would give $50,000, which would be a good start.

Bishop Hughes remarked that it grieved him much during the past year to see that Allegheny, Cornell, Chattanooga, Ohio, Wesleyan and De Pauw had gone ahead of U.S.C. in endowments and he wanted to see a halt called.

As a clincher of the action of the conference Dr. Hughes moved that for this year the campaign for the endowment of the university shall have the right of way in the Southern California conference, and this was adopted.

J. E. Carr of Los Angeles presented the matter of the Rescue Mission to the conference and the bishop was empowered to appoint a committee to confer with Dr. Carr regarding the continuance of the work and an estimate of the money needed. The committee consists of Revs. F. M. Larkin, H. S. Rasmus, E. P. Ryland, E. W. Peck, C. H. Scott, C. W. Locke and Clyde Crist.

Prof. Parker of Pasadena extended to the conference the greetings of the [illegible] Association. The report of the Methodist hospital is made a special order of the day Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

TO IMPROVE MORALS.

At the afternoon session Dr. E. P. Ryland presented the report of the committee on Public Morals. Among things brought out was that the political awakening was a significant indication of the thoughtful consideration of the public, the need of vigilance over public schools where non-Christian influence was dominant and moral instruction neglected for manual training, and that extremes in dress and extravagance of Christian women were as bad today as when the Methodist ritual was adopted.

Pastors were urged to place petitions before their charges asking that the prize fight law be submitted to the ballot. The report favored the State convention of Pacific Coast Christians and John Oliver and W. E. [illegible] were appointed delegates.

The report advised against any State-wide prohibition movement, but suggested that the bishop appoint delegates to a convention on the subject.

The trouble between the Methodist Church and the Anti-saloon League was brought up by a resolution that when the church is given an equal representation in the councils of the league the church will then be thrown open for anti-saloon contributions.

The plan to organize a California State church federation was indorsed and E. P. Ryland, A. W. Cummings, E. [illegible] and C. B. Cliff appointed a committee to confer with the northern conference.

The conference passed Harold J. [illegible], William Kahler, Don S. Ford and Howard D. Clark to elder's orders and Gov. A. Porter as a deacon. They will be ordained today. The report of the Committee on Conference Relations was submitted by [illegible] Geissinger and adopted.

MINISTERS' WIVES MEET.

In the afternoon the Ministers' Wives' Association held their annual session, with Mrs. E. H. Fritz of Alhambra presiding. The special business was the matter of the endowment by the association of a room in the new Methodist hospital for the use of ministers' wives.

Addresses were made by Mrs. Thomas Hughes, the venerable mother of the bishop, on "Fifty Years in the Itinerary;" Mrs. Bayley, on "The New Methodist Hospital," and Mrs. Edwin H. Hughes, wife of the bishop, on general subjects. Misses Charlotte Holman and Celeste Eastman, returned missionaries from India, also made short talks. Music was furnished by Miss Stover and Mrs. Van Orman.

Election of officers resulted: President, Mrs. Charles Edward Locke of Los Angeles; vice-president, Mrs. John Oliver of Fresno; Mrs. B. H. Wilson, Los Angeles, secretary, and Mrs. C. M. Crist, Los Angeles, treasurer.

This morning at 10:30 Bishop Hughes will deliver the conference sermon at the First Methodist Episcopal Church and in the afternoon will ordain the young ministers taken in Friday. At the beginning of the ordination service he will baptize any children who may be presented.

The sessions of the conference are supposed to close Monday, but there is so much business to be attended to that the session will probably lap over into Tuesday, as it did last year.

ANOTHER DEATH MYSTERY.

Seventh Body of the Year Found in the Surf Near Malibu—Sheriff Will Investigate.

SANTA MONICA, Oct. 4.—Another Malibu coast death mystery, the seventh this year, was unearthed early today, when Walter Bergman, chef of the Zuma ranch, sixteen miles up the coast, and Henry Balzhauser, a blacksmith employed at the ranch, came across the body of an aged negro, clothed in the garb of a minister. The body was pounding in the surf when the men came across it. A. F. Filbert, a deputy sheriff, was placed to watch the body while Bergman and Balzhauser came here and reported the find. The police sent the Bresee ambulance after the body.

The description given by the two men is that the body is that of a negro partially bald, with gray hair, weighing 190 pounds, and of medium height. Black clothes, a black shirt and white collar such as is worn by priests or ministers were upon the body. No marks of violence could be found by a superficial inspection.

The Sheriff's office will investigate the circumstances surrounding the finding of so many bodies on that part of the coast. A week ago an unidentified body was found near Escondido Canyon. How the men came to their death is a mystery, for travel along the coast is usually very light this time of year.

CROSS, FEVERISH SICK CHILDREN NEED "CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS."

A coated tongue means sluggish liver and bowels—Listen, mother!

Your child isn't naturally cross and peevish. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels need a cleansing at once.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has sour stomach, diarrhoea, remember a gentle liver and bowel cleansing should always be the first treatment given.

Nothing equals "California Syrup of Figs" for children's ills. Give a teaspoonful and in just a few hours all the foul waste, sour bile and fermenting food, clogged in the bowels, passes out of the system and you have a well and playful child again. All children love this harmless fruit laxative and it never fails to effect a good "inside" cleansing. Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are plainly on each bottle.

Mother, keep it handy in your home. A little given today saves a sick child tomorrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs." Then look and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." We make no cheaper size. Don't be fooled.

I TREAT NO DISEASES EXCEPT THOSE OF THE RECTUM AND BOWELS.

I cure without surgery and my patients are never confined in bed and never lose a moment's time from their business.

My method is not a "home cure" or a "correspondence treatment," but it is an application of skilled treatments administered under the most rigid antiseptic condition in my office.

Watch this ad for following testimonials, of which I have dozens from men and women.

WELL KNOWN SANTA MONICA MINISTER CURED.

This is to certify that Dr. C. H. White has cured me of a distressing hemorrhoidal ailment of 25 years' duration. His method of treatment is effective, but not severe. He has the appliances, the knowledge and the skill born of many years of specialization in this fruitful source of physical disease. He accomplishes all he claims in his advertising, and at reasonable expense.

I take pleasure in heartily commending the man and his methods.

WESLEY K. BEANS, Pastor First Methodist Episcopal Church, Santa Monica, Cal.

After suffering for years with the worst form of Hemorrhoids, Dr. C. H. White cured me without pain and without detaining me from my work. I desire to commend him to all rectal sufferers.

REV. E. H. BROOKS, 2812 Menlo Ave., L. A.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE SUPERINTENDENT CURED.

My Dear Dr White: I am thankful for the privilege of bearing witness to your ability to treat, without pain, and with success, the delicate and disabling diseases which result from sedentary work. Dr. C. H. White, with his dissolvent method, has entirely cured me, and I am as well as I ever was in my life. I desire to say to all sufferers that Dr. White is a skillful physician and is doing grand, good work for humanity in the curing of diseases of the lower bowels.

DR. R. K. DUNN, Dentist, Sawtelle, Cal.

White of Los Angeles has completely cured me by a process that was painless and rapid, and I desire to go on record as recommending the Doctor in diseases in his specialty.

THOMAS NEWLIN, President Whittier College.

Esteemed Doctor: I cannot refrain from congratulating you and myself on a complete cure of Hemorrhoids, with which I have been afflicted for more than twenty years, and for the past year have been practically incapacitated from attending to business. The treatment is such that no one need fear, no knife or operation being employed, and the result being certain and positive. I will be pleased to have you refer anyone to me and I will never be too busy to answer any inquiry.

Riverside.

BEDECKED FOR NOTABLE WEEK.

Riverside Ready for the Odd Fellows' Encampment.

Grand Ball at Glenwood Inn Is Closing Event.

David Harum Sued for Untrue Representations.

RIVERSIDE, Oct. 4.—The city is bedecked in its prettiest today in anticipation of the most notable week, perhaps, in its history. The six days beginning October 7 will see the staging of the most ambitious festival in the way of a county fair Southern California has yet produced, while a counter attraction that will not in the least detract from the fair is the I.O.O.F. State Encampment.

Today was observed as "clean-up day," citizens co-operating with the street, park, fire and police departments in brightening up streets, alleys, lawns and parkings. Flags, pennants and encampment insignia are flying from buildings, guy wires and flag-poles.

White Park is given over to the Odd Fellows, whose white tents comprise what is known as Camp Ritter, and special wiring by the city makes possible an effective electrical display for the unique camping ground.

Features of the fair will be the agricultural and live stock exhibits, poultry and auto shows and Indian pageant, the latter promising to be one of the most spectacular and impressive ceremonies of the kind ever attempted in the West.

Special preparations are being made for the reception of the special train load of Angelenos which will arrive on Thursday under the tutelage of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce.

Following is a summary of the distinguishing features of the events of fair week:

Tuesday afternoon—Free acts by high-salaried performers and programme of track events participated in by the grammar schools of the city.

Wednesday—San Bernardino and Orange counties day. Matinee driving races in which some of the fastest horses in the Southland are entered.

Thursday—Odd Fellows' day. Exhibition drills and parade of live-stock.

Friday—Indian day. Grand pageant by Sherman Institute; native tribal dances by Yaquis and Hopis.

Saturday—Riverside county day. Motorcycle races, automobile obstacle races and other amusements features.

ENCAMPMENT SCHEDULE.

The week for the I.O.O.F. State Encampment is a full one. The principal events for Monday will be the prize contest in the patriarchal degree in the Women's Clubhouse at [illegible] p.m., and the general reception at Patriarch Militant headquarters.

The grand encampment opening exercises will take place at 9 a. m., preceded by the ceremony of raising the colors at headquarters, participated in by the entire brigade under command of regimental officers and school children. There will be a brigade formation and review of Patriarchs Militant at 3 p.m., and at 8 p.m. will be held the reception to Grand Patriarch Davis and other grand officers.

The feature of Wednesday's exercises will be the competitive drill by Cantons at Evans' Athletic Park at 2:30 p.m. The forenoon will be given over to automobile trips over the city and valley, and the delegates will spend the evening at the county fair grounds, it being "Odd Fellows' night."

The first grand encampment session will occur on Thursday at 9 a.m., followed by a grand street parade. The evening will be given over to a band concert at Camp Ritter and exemplification of the Rebekah degree at the Woman's Clubhouse.

The sessions will close on Friday when the decoration of chivalry will be conferred on the Courthouse grounds, and the prizes will be awarded. The day's events will close with a grand ball in the Glenwood Mission Inn and the Woman's Clubhouse.

The applications of the Riverside Water Company, the Riverside Artesia Water Company and H. P. Kyes for permission to transfer their systems to the city was heard today in this city by Commissioner Max Thelen. The transfer has already taken place, the applications being tardy in reaching the commission, and the hearing was quite formal. The total amount paid by the city for the three systems was $785,000. Testimony was also taken in connection with the hearing of the application of the Hemet-San Jacinto Gas Company to issue bonds in the amount of $3000.

REPENTS HORSE TRADE.

A local horse-trader thinks he has run up against a veritable David Harum when it comes to clever dealing in quadrupeds. William D. Bethel has filed suit against D. C. McLarty asking for the return of $500 which was paid four months ago for a team of mares. Among other causes of action, plaintiff alleges that the defendant declared the animals were without blemish or fault, and that one of them developed a pronounced case of "wind-break" shortly after the purchase.

A motion for a new trial in the matter of the inheritance tax of the estate of the late George N. Reynolds, pioneer merchant, has been denied in Judge Densmore's court. Attorney W. J. McIntyre, representing the estate, says the case will be taken to the Appellate Court.

PRESBYTERIANS CONVENE.

Forty Delegates From Riverside County Presbytery Meet at Ontario for Interesting Convention.

ONTARIO, Oct. 4.—Forty delegates from the churches of the Riverside District Presbytery assembled yesterday at the Westminster Presbyterian Church, this city, for the semi-annual convention of the Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Society of that church.

The greater part of the morning was given over to routine business and secretaries' reports and Mrs. Alvah Grant Fessenden of San Bernardino gave a talk, "Echoes From the General Assembly." At the noon hour, the women of the local society, headed by Mrs. Willard D. Ball, served luncheon to the visitors in the church dining-room.

The principal speakers of the afternoon session were Mrs. L. F. Jones, who has spent twenty-one years in Alaska, and Rev. M. Hager, a Chinese missionary. Mrs. R. C. Clelland of Los Angeles and Mrs. A. Aldrich of San Francisco, synodical officers, also gave interesting talks. Vocal numbers were rendered by Miss Muriel Hamilton and Mrs. Leonard Baugh Fowler, accompanied by Miss Ala Ballou on the pipe organ.

The convention closed with a supper and young people's rally in the evening. Rev. Hager delivered another address in the evening.

NEWS BRIEFS.

J. C. Payne, colored, a member of the California Jubilee Quartette, is at liberty today with a thirty-days' suspended sentence hanging over his head, as a result of his alleged theft of two books from a second-hand store on South Euclid avenue. Payne and his fellow-singers were heard by a large audience at the auditorium of the First Methodist Episcopal Church. They were brought here by the Epworth League of the church. Payne was caught in the act of stealing the books by Patrolman Arthur Axley and at once placed under arrest. When taken before Judge J. R. Pollock he pleaded guilty. In addition to the suspended sentence, the man was fined $10.

A large delegation from this city, headed by Mrs. Lewis Hugo Mertz, who is president of the organization, today attended the convention of the San Bernardino County Federation of Parent-Teacher Associations at Bloomington. Mrs. C. C. Noble of Los Angeles and County Superintendent of Schools A. S. McPherron were the principal speakers of the day.

Four Ontario residents, whose ages total 356 years, 4 months and 27 days, have been laid to rest in less than a week, according to Undertaker J. B. Draper, who handled all four cases. The ages of three were over 89 years and of one 82 years. They include Mrs. J. S. Lee, Mrs. Margaret Partridge, D. N. Bacon and John T. Carson.

DELEGATES ARRIVE.

Representatives of Various Cities to Municipal Convention Land at Venice. Will Give Them Buttermilk.

VENICE, Oct. 4.—Delegates are beginning to arrive for the joint convention of the League of California Municipalities and the State, County and City health officers, which begins Monday afternoon and continues until Saturday. The Auditorium, pier and center of Windward avenue is being occupied with scores of booths, which will be used by exhibitors of materials and appliances used by cities in fighting fire and disease, and in lighting and paving streets.

Mayors, councilmen and trustees, city clerks and other city officials will gather here by the score tomorrow and Monday to join those already here in a study of how to conduct cities more efficiently. In a separate body the health officers will meet and discuss problems in their section. Headquarters for both organizations will be in the Auditorium.

The convention will be opened Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock by an address of welcome by Mayor Mott, of Oakland. A response will come from C. W. Holbrook, president of the Venice Board of Trustees. A roll of cities will be called, and each delegate will be expected to tell the most important improvement achieved by his municipality in the past year. An informal reception will be held after the roll call. Tuesday morning the sessions will be begun in earnest, and will continue, with intermissions for sight-seeing trips, until Saturday afternoon.

BUTTERMILK CURE.

Capt. Cavanaugh, of the local police, will ask the Venice trustees Monday for authority to buy a quantity of buttermilk every morning for the inebriates who are jailed the night before, in order to test a theory evolved by him that buttermilk is a cure for drunkenness. Give the lacteal liquid in large quantities while the "dark brown taste" is in the mouths of those in the drunk tanks, Cavanaugh is sure that none will return to trouble the police.

CARPINTERIA.

CARPINTERIA, Oct. 4.—A large quantity of dynamite, fuse and caps were stolen from the warehouse of the Fish Seed Company here during the night by robbers who broke in. This is the second time recently that a large amount of explosive has been stolen from the warehouse. Sheriff Stewart is of the opinion that the explosive is probably wanted for blowing out rocks and stumps in land clearing, or in driving tunnels for water. No clew has been found to the robbers.

YOUNG ACTOR DISAPPEARS.

Benjamin Scovell, of the Scovell Juvenile Stock Company, at the Gamut Club, is short a leading "man," 13 years old, and is much worried. Scovell stated last night that the boy, Carl Teschan, son of Louis A. Teschan of the Teschan Copper Works, No. 1005 North Alameda street, and who lives in Eagle Rock Valley, went riding on his pony Wednesday evening. The pony was found at the back of the home at 10 o'clock that night, peacefully grazing. The boy has been playing "Pygmalion" in "His Masterpiece," and also "David Garrick." The boy's disappearance was not reported to the police for some time.

FIND FOOT IN GARBAGE.

Mexicans Find Fragment of a Human Being in the Hog Food—Short News Stories.

COVINA, Oct. 4.—Constable Saunders was summoned yesterday to the big hog farm at the San Gabriel River to viewa grewsome find in the garbage. It was a human foot found by a Mexican laborer who was emptying one of the cars of garbage that comes from Los Angeles.

No other human remains were uncovered. The laborers did not seem to attach any particular importance to the find, and gave the officer the impression that the finding of human feet and limbs was not an uncommon thing. The idea seems to prevail at the hog ranch that the collections of human debris come from hospitals, that have no further use for feet and arms that have been amputated for the general good of the patients. The huge piles of filth fed to the hogs contain many curious finds.

BAD CHECK ARTIST.

The District Attorney's office has been notified of the passing of two bad checks here, made payable to E. J. Hanna, and drawn on a fictitious person, named as "J. A. Hobrook," of Baldwin Park. The firms victimized are the Warner Whitsel Company, and Clapp's drug store. Thirty dollars was received in one case, and $17 in the other. Constable Saunders has discovered that E. J. Hanna was recently discharged from the Los Angeles Fire Department for drunkenness, and that a person of that name has recently completed a term in San Quentin for fictitious check-passing. The checks were tendered in payment of old debts and the man received real money in change.

Ellen Beach Yaw, the famous concert singer, whose home is here, has circulated a petition for the macadamizing of Cypress avenue, and has succeeded in getting the name of every property holder on the street. Another petition for the macadamizing of Ctirus avenue from the city limits on the south to the foothills, is being circulated by Jerome Reynolds, secretary of the Covina Valley Farmers' Club.

NEWS BRIEFS.

The removal of two passenger trains from service on the Southern Pacific line through Covina is looked upon as the preliminary movement toward electrizing the entire line this winter. Part of the line is already under an electric system.

Rev. S. J. McConnell, pastor of the First Methodist Church, is slated to return to this pastorate for another year.

L. T. Graves, owner of Glen Crest ranch, has returned this week from a journey of 6000 miles in a Hudson "thirty." With his wife and son, Arthur, he made the trip to St. Paul, Minn., going by the northern route through Tonapah, Salt Lake and Southern Wyoming, and returning through Arizona and New Mexico.

ELKS GET SPECIAL WIRE.

The Elks Club has arranged, with the Western Union Telegraph Company for a special wire to the club's dining-room, during the playing of the world's series on Tuesday.

BUST DEVELOPED ONE OUNCE A DAY

A New Simple Easy Home Method That Gives Quick And Permanent Success

Judge from my picture as to the truth of what I say to you—that the crowning feminine attribute is a bust of beautiful proportions, firmness and exquisite development. Then ask yourself how much you would like to have such a photograph of yourself, showing the glory of womanhood with its lines of infinite charm and grace. It would be worth far more than a two-cent stamp, would it not? Then let me give you my message—let me tell you of what I have learned and let me give you recent pictures of myself to prove what I say—for if you will write me today

I Will Tell You How FREE

I will tell you gladly and willingly. Why should any woman neglect an opportunity to escape the pain and heartache of being skinny, scrawny, angular and un-attractive in body? Misery is not our heritage. Nature planned that you—a woman—should have the rich, pulsing lines of warm, living flesh molded after the mother of us all, the description of whom, perfumes our sacred literature with love and admiration for the divinity of woman's form. For why should there be that pitiful aspect—the face of a woman and the form of a man.

Write To Me Today

I don't care how fallen, or flaccid, or undeveloped your bust now is—I want to tell you of a simple home method—I want to tell you how you can gain perfect development one ounce a day. No physical culture—no massage, foolish baths or paste—no plasters, masks or injurious injections—I want to tell you of an absolutely new method, never before offered or told about—insuring immediate success and permanent beauty.

Send No Money

Just write me a letter—address it to me personally—that's all. I will answer it by return mail—and you can develop your bust one ounce a day—you can be what you want to be. Believe me when I say that you will bless me through years of happiness for pointing the way to you and telling you what I know. Please send your letter today to the following address:

To learn about this hear and see the illustrated lectures every morning at 10:30 o'clock, and Friday evening at 8 o'clock at the House of the Little Landers, 929 South Figueroa Street.

For those who do not already know about Los Terrenitos (City of the Little Lands,) it is in the Vale of Monte Vista, 16 miles northwest of Los Angeles, 2050 feet above the sea, at the rim rock base of the Sierra Madre Mountains. Six months ago it was a sagebrush waste. Today scores of families have their homes there, street and water systems are in, beautiful stone clubhouse with public library, is open for the colony's daily use, co-operative store enables Little Landers to buy at lowest cost.

And best of all, they have become their own bosses and are beginning to make their living and win their independence from the land.

The daily morning lecture by Mr. Smythe, founder of the movement, tells of all this. It is illustrated.

Then, after you have heard the lecture, take the Little Landers' autos direct from headquarters at 12:30 daily for Los Terrenitos AND SEE FOR YOURSELF. Back at 5:30. Round trip fare $1.

Pasadena.

ANGELENO IS FATALLY HURT.

Real Estate Man Injured in Automobile Accident.

Pasadena W.C.T.U. Frowns on the Slit Skirt.

Crown City Wants Proposed Experiment Station.

PASADENA, Oct. 5.—John M. Hines of No. 5944 Maplewood street, Los Angeles, a well-known real estate man, is at the Pasadena Hospital, perhaps fatally injured, as the result of an automobile accident on the Foothill boulevard, near the start of the Mt. Wilson toll road, late yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Leonard Snow, also of Los Angeles, who was another member of the party, sustained a broken leg. She was taken to Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. Hines and Mr. and Mrs. Snow were riding in a large passenger car. Hines was driving. He was unfamiliar with the curves in the road and was traveling at high speed. When he went to take a left-hand curve the car skidded to the edge of the road and turned bottom side up.

All four passengers were pinned under the heavy machine. Hines, upon whom it bore down the hardest, was for a time believed by the others to be dead. Mrs. Hines and Snow were so caught that they were not hurt, but they were unable to get out from under the car.

In this predicament they remained for nearly five minutes, when several automobilists came along and rushed to their relief. A. L. May of Claremont, who had just descended Mt. Wilson in an automobile and turned out into the boulevard, was the first to reach them, and S. B. Ross, manager of the Mt. Wilson toll road and hotel, who was at the tollhouse at the time, was the next to come. Together they lifted up the car so that the uninjured passengers could crawl out from under it, and they in turn helped to remove Mrs. Snow and Hines.

Hines was hurried to the Receiving Hospital, where he was attended by Police Surgeon Coates. His injuries were found to be so severe that he was at once removed to the Pasadena Hospital. Mrs. Hines accompanied him there.

Mrs. Snow refused to be taken to a hospital, declaring that she wanted to go to her home. Those who had reached the unfortunate automobilists did what they could for her and she was placed in one of the Mt. Wilson automobiles and taken to Los Angeles.

Hines was evidently driving the car at so great a speed that it literally slid off the road when he attempted to make the turn.

Late last night it was reported at the Pasadena Hospital that Hines's injuries are limited largely to bruises on the head. Whether he had sustained a fracture of the skull could not then be told.

SLIT SKIRT IS TABOO.

The Pasadena Woman's Christian Temperance Union has formally frowned upon the slit skirt. The following resolutions have been adopted:

"Whereas the Pasadena Federation of Woman's Christian Temperance Unions deeply deplores the prevailing extreme styles in woman's dress, believing that immodesty in dress is often the cause of immorality in conduct, therefore be it

"Resolved, that we urge upon the women of our city the necessity of due care in this matter, and that we recommend that dress be not only pleasing in appearance but pure in its influence.

"Resolved, that we suggest to all mothers that example is better than precept in this respect. This day comes not again, but what we do lives on."

WANTS THE STATION.

Pasadena has determined to make a bid for the proposed State Citrus Experiment Station. Tomorrow a number of the State Horticultural Association will arrive in the city and will be waited on by a committee of members of the Board of Trade and shown a number of good sites near Pasadena where such an establishment might well be maintained.

This citrus station, it is considered by many, will be one of the most important of State institutions and Pasadena feels that if it can land it it will be a big feather in its cap.

MUNICIPAL FLOWERS.

In order that there may be no lack of flowers for the New Year's Tournament of Roses, the city will take time by the forelock and plant a large crop of quick-growing flowers. These will be set out in the parks this week.

Park Superintendent Albrecht yesterday was instructed by the City Commission to set out sweet peas and marigolds in abundance, and to plant whatever may be used, wherever there is room for it.

Heretofore the Tournament of Roses Association has depended on independent contributions, made a few days before the tournament, for its supply of flowers, and while they have always been liberal, and carloads of flowers have been collected, it is planned this year to have blooms in a profusion never before known.

FIFTH OF A CENTURY.

Police Sergeant A. O. Bristol, who was the first man who came to the city which is now Pasadena to live, and whose old house still stands as the first house built here, yesterday rounded out his twentieth year of service on the city police force. He has been a member of the police department just half of the time he has lived in the city, as he numbers his years of residence here at forty.

For many years Sergeant Bristol was not only a member of the police force, but he was himself the whole police department, and several times he alone managed the Tournament of Roses crowds, for which now half of the police force of Los Angeles is enlisted.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Armstrong, the latter of whom before her marriage was Miss Lucille Cary, daughter of Mrs. I. M. Burnes, wife of the late [illegible] millionaire, celebrated the [illegible] anniversary of their wedding at the Burnes residence, No. 1289 South [illegible] avenue, with a dinner last [illegible] night. About twelve friends were present.

The dining-room was gorgeously decorated. On the table was a centerpiece of pale pink carnations, while overhead was suspended a canopy of pink carnations and asparagus ferns. Many carnations were used in other parts of the house in carrying out the dainty effect.

Mrs. Armstrong's marriage was the culmination of a romance. She was about to return to school in the East when she suddenly declared her intention of laying her books aside and getting married.

Mrs. Burnes is now in the East.

POMONA, Oct. 4.—Superintendent of Schools Murphy reports that there are 2444 pupils registered in all departments of the local public schools and of this number 1653 are attending the grammar grades and 481 are in the High School. The present senior class in the High School has a membership of eighty-seven and it is thought that the class will have ninety-five members for graduation in June. There are sixteen students pursuing post-graduate work in the local High School. With the continued increase in attendance, the present force of teachers is having all it can do to take care of the large classes.

Several hundred members of the Pomona Valley Kansas Association are arranging to hold their first annual reunion and picnic at Ganesha Park next Saturday, October 11. GOVERNOR HI WAS THERE.

Fresno Fair Attracts Distinguished Guests Who Will Then Pay Southland a Visit.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

FRESNO, Oct. 4.—Gov. Hiram Johnson and party, consisting of Mayor Rolph of San Francisco, Matt Sullivan, Theo Roche and Eustace Cullinan, were guests at the Fresno District Fair today, "Governors day." The party inspected the various exhibits this morning. After taking lunch in town the party returned to the grounds and witnessed the automobile races during the afternoon. They will leave tomorrow morning for Southern California.

Gov. Johnson was greatly interested in the exposition and expressed himself as immensely pleased with the display of the valley's agricultural resources.

Fifteen thousand persons attended the fair today.

DOG HAD HYDROPHOBIA.

Four Persons Bit by Rabid Animal at Oxnard Rushed to Los Angeles for Treatment.

OXNARD, Oct. 4.—That the dog which bit several persons here Tuesday was rabid, is the report of the Pasteur division of the State hygienic laboratory at Berkeley, where the dog's head was sent for examination.

Mrs. Sylvia Sparta, Joy Griffith, Clyde Burnham and Clarence Barnes, all of whom were bitten by the dog, have been rushed to Los Angeles for Pasteur treatment. Several other dogs bitten by the rabid animal have been killed. This is the first case of rabies in Ventura county. Charts of the Bureau of Hygiene show the disease in all surrounding counties, and in every county in Southern California except three, Ventura being one of the three.

ROUTE NOT SELECTED.

The deed to the State highway route from the Newbury Park schoolhouse to the foot of the Conejo grade is complete. C. J. Elliott of the Chamber of Commerce, and W. L. Clark, division engineer, have returned from Los Angeles, where they secured the last of the necessary signatures.

The route to be taken through Ventura county is the next question, the debated point being whether the route shall go through El Rio direct to Ventura, or detour a short distance, through Oxnard. The new route through the Conejo shortens the highway in the county by two miles, which is the length of the extra distance if the road comes through Oxnard.

FALLS DEAD IN STREET.

Cigar Maker Seized with Heart Attack Expires in Few Minutes in Hollywood.

Afflicted with heart trouble, a man supposed to be Francisco Guiperez, a cigar maker, fell dead in front of a drug store at No. 5800 Hollywood boulevard last night. The man's address is not known to the police.

Persons in the vicinity saw the stricken man walk to a bench at the edge of the sidewalk and sit down, apparently in great pain. A few minutes later he grasped at his heart with both hands and fell from the bench. He was dead when picked up.

Long Beach.

FOUR YOUNG PEOPLE HURT.

Automobile Accident Results in Injury to Quartette.

Pasadena Woman Loses Valuables at Long Beach.

Three-Day Carnival Planned by Pike Concessionaires.

LONG BEACH, Oct. 4.—Four young people are patients at the Seaside Hospital, victims of an auto accident at 3 o'clock this morning on the Long Beach end of the boulevard. The injured are George Hebard, manager of the Majestic pavilion, his assistant, Miss Nellie Rector, and Joseph Cush and Dr. Rogas, a young South American physician. The latter is the worst injured, having a slight concussion and a fracture of the right forearm. The others are suffering from bruises and shock. The auto, a $5000 Locomobile, owned by A. K. Goodhue, is not badly damaged, although it turned over twice in the wreck.

Hebard borrowed the auto yesterday afternoon for a business and social trip to Los Angeles, and was en route home this morning when, at the corner of Twentieth and American avenue, the machine skidded on the wet boulevard, crashed against the curb and then turned over twice, landing right side up. The occupants were thrown in every direction and were in a dazed condition, when the crew of a P. E. work train, who witnessed the accident, reached the scene. Rogas was placed on the work car and rushed to the hospital, the others following in an auto. All were given medical attention and will be able to leave the hospital probably tomorrow.

BAGGAGE LOST.

Mrs. F. E. Fell of Pasadena, wife of a prominent business man of the Crown City, applied to the police this morning to locate her personal baggage. Mrs. Fell came down yesterday to attend the Methodist conference, and seeing a sign, "room for rent," went in and engaged the room, left her baggage, and then went to dinner, during which time she forgot the name of the street where her temporary home is situated. She remembered that the house number was 222 and that the street was somewhere between American and Magnolia and south of Tenth street. The police have been making a thorough canvass of the district, but this evening reported failure. It may be that the landlady, missing her roomer, will come to the rescue of Mrs. Fell before the conference ends.

NEWS BRIEFS.

The Long Beach Amusement Association, composed of Pike concessionaires, are planning a three days' carnival for Thanksgiving week and will invite the co-operation of the booster clubs of Southern California, the Chamber of Commerce, Manufacturers' Association. The dates fixed are November 27, 28, 29, and a programme of sports, amusements and several spectacular parades are planned by the Committee on Arrangements—R. E. Fisher, P. J. Richards, and J. H. Woollbrinck.

Long Beach city officials have all been named by the City Council as delegates to the annual convention of municipalities which convenes at Venice on Monday and continues all week. The local officials will have quarters at St. Mark's Hotel. City Clerk Riley has been selected to present to the convention the details of the past year's activities in Long Beach.

The board of directors of the Long Beach Assembly held their first business session last night at the Y.M.C.A. rooms, with President J. Whitcomb Brougher presiding. The report of Secretary-Manager Ward, showing the financial success of the last assembly, with a balance of $300 in the treasury, was received with satisfaction. On motion, the directors decided that for the continued success of the annual gathering more attention must be paid to the annual programme and so Manager Ward was placed on salary with instructions to give his full time hereafter to the assembly business.

Heavy ground swells were running today, making the landing of boats at the outer wharf a matter of danger and difficulty. The fishing launches went out from the wharf this morning, but this afternoon were compelled to take their passengers to the inner harbor for disembarkation.

WEALTHY MAN ENDS LIFE.

Coroner's Jury Declares That Orange Grower Shot Himself While Temporarily Insane.

PORTERVILLE, Oct. 4.—"Death from a gunshot wound, inflicted by his own hand while temporarily insane," was the verdict rendered by the Coroner's jury called in this city today, to inquire into the death of H. E. Peery, wealthy Sunnyside avenue orange grower who shot and killed himself at his country place last night.

Dr. Austin Miller, Peery's family physician; H. C. Carr, Peery's banker; W. L. Hemphill, a neighboring orange grower, and others, were called to testify and gave evidence which showed that Peery's mental condition yesterday was such as to indicate that he was temporarily insane when he took his own life.

The body was sent this evening to Peery's former home in Ogden, Utah, and was accompanied by Mrs. Peery, and her four small children. She will be met at Oakland by Harold and Louis Peery, brothers of the deceased, who will accompany her home from there.

RECALL ELECTION.

J. L. Hahen, a Second-street business man, and W. E. Premo, an alfalfa rancher and realty broker, were announced today as candidates to oppose Anton Konda at the recall election which is to be held October 25 to decide whether Konda will be retained as a member of the City Council.

The contest promises to be a spirited one and already a few shots have been fired in the campaign. Konda's friends claim the campaign is one of spite work, fathered by those who have axes of their own to grind. The recall advocates have urged, in print, on the other hand, that Konda is unfitted intellectually, morally, and ethically, to fill an office of public trust.

APPROVE LIBRARY PLANS.

Beaumont Trustees Agree on Design for Proposed Carnegie Library. Short News Stories.

BEAUMONT, Oct. 4.—At a meeting of the trustees of the Beaumont library district, held last night, plans were approved for the $10,000 Carnegie library building to be erected in this city. E. L. Hopkins, of Los Angeles submitted the successful plans and has been employed as supervising architect of the building. The library will be of the classic type of architecture and will be constructed of reinforced concrete. Two reading porches and a basement auditorium with a seating capacity of 300 are features of the building.

NEWS BRIEFS.

Work was started this week under the direction of the City Council on extensive street improvements in Beaumont. The route of the Ocean-to-Ocean Highway through this city is being first improved, work having been started on Eighth street at California avenue, which will be extended to the east city limits. The streets, now surfaced with oil and gravel, will be plowed, graded, regraveled and rolled, making a smooth and durable thoroughfare.

Preliminary steps for the formation of the Beaumont Fruit Growers' Association were taken at a meeting held at the Cherry Valley schoolhouse, three miles north of this city. L. B. Storer presided over the meeting and about fifty orchardists were present. The organization will be perfected at a meeting to be held on October 13. The objects of the association are to secure uniform packing and grading and to provide a better market for the increasing amount of local fruit products.

The Railroad Commission has notified the local water companies and other interested persons here, that the rehearing in the cases of the two companies, which was to have been held in San Bernardino on October 7, has been postponed until November 25. This action is necessary on account of the rush of other business before the commission.

As a result of a publicity campaign recently inaugurated by the Beaumont Board of Trade, Secretary W. L. Percy is receiving many letters daily from homeseekers and other prospective settlers in this locality. The influx of colonists to Southern California is also being felt in Beaumont and indications are for much activity in real estate. Deeds were recorded yesterday for the following transfers: C. W. Irwin to Robert Young, lot 2, block 137, Beaumont; Beaumont Land and Water Company to J. Drew Funk, lot 7, block 4, and lot 2, block 5, Apple Valley.

An apple tree in the yard of Mrs. B. Stokely on Fifth street is doing double duty this year. It bore one crop earlier in the season. A few weeks ago, it came in bloom again and there are now a large number of small apples on the tree. The second crop is expected to come to maturity before it is damaged by frost.

ESCONDIDO.

ESCONDIDO, Oct. 4.—George F. Johnston, the Etiwanda grape grower and shipper, has completed the shipment of muscat grapes from the vineyards which he has under lease in the Escondido Valley. The crop is less than half that of last year, on account of the dry season and the failure of the vineyardists to develop water for irrigation. All of the shipments by Johnston were to the eastern market. The harvest of the wine grapes is now in progress, ten more days being required for its completion.

C. A. Stevens of San Diego succeeds W. W. Culbertson as local manager of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company. Culbertson will devote his attention to ranching at Valley Center.

Under direction of James G. Owen, Deputy Grand Chancellor, forty new members have been secured the past week for Themis Lodge, Knights of Pythias.

San Bernardino.

NOTABLE CASE NOT SETTLED.

San Bernardino Jury Fails to Convict Woman.

Police Department Will Ask for New Trial.

Matrimony Will Save Man from Jail Sentence.

SAN BERNARDINO, Oct. 4.—The trial of Grace McCullom on a charge of running a disorderly house, which has been on in the police court the past two days, resulted in a disagreement, the jury standing nine for acquittal and two for conviction, though at the outset the jury stood six to five for conviction.

The statement is made by the police department and the City Attorney that the case will be tried again and an effort made to convict the woman.

In a degree the case is a test of whether convictions can be secured by the jury route in cases of this type. And in this the heads of the present city administration are said to be not entirely agreed and the forcing of the trial has engendered some feeling between the heads.

The case has attracted a vast deal of attention because of the differences within and without the administration, and its final outcome may have an important bearing on the future policy of the present administration in matters of that sort.

William Roby, charged in the courts here with failure to provide for his children, is the center of a rather remarkable tale of a dual life which he is alleged to have led. He deserted a wife and children in this city, went east and married and is said to have brought his second wife and baby to Long Beach. He wrote his wife here that he had divorced her, but the evidence is now said to point to the contrary.

NEWS BRIEFS.

The beginning of the second year of the pastorate of Rev. A. F. Roadhouse of the First Christian Church will be celebrated by his congregation Sunday with an all-day service beginning at 9:45 in the morning with Sunday-school. At noon there will be a basket dinner, a business meeting in the afternoon, of which a feature will be the burning of the church mortgage, and again in the evening a musical programme.

Co. K has received a temporary supply of guns and ammunition for target work from Co. G of Redlands, and will resume target work Sunday. The company will receive its complete equipment in about two weeks to replace that destroyed by fire recently.

If Ida Baker and Wolfe Sternbaum are married within thirty days the former will be saved the serving of a jail sentence of six months for illicit sale of liquor. When the woman plead guilty Judge Heap announced the sentence. Then the woman's suitor entered a plea for her, declaring he loved her and was willing to marry her. The woman announced to the court that she was willing to wed, whereupon Judge Heap announced that if they wed within thirty days the jail portion of the sentence would be suspended.

A petition has made its appearance asking the Supervisors to retain the Home telephones in the county offices. In a recent fit of economy the board voted to cut out the Home phones October 1, but owing to the large number of Home phones in use all over the county, a loud protest is to be made. It is possible the order may be rescinded.

BUILDING PROSPECTS BRIGHT.

Santa Ana Faces One of the Most Profitable Periods in the History of the City.

SANTA ANA, Oct. 4.—Not in years have prospects for a busy winter among builders and contractors been brighter in Santa Ana than they are right now. With a $55,000 County Hospital and a $45,000 church for the First Baptists and other big jobs under way, there are many improvements projected in the way of street work, new residences, new store fronts and brick buildings.

R. L. Bisby, manager of the Spurgeon Realty Company, is busy going over plans for the four-story brick building that his company is going to build at the corner of Fourth and Sycamore street. The company this week completed the brick work on a new two-story brick at the corner of Third and Sycamore, and within two months the postoffice will move from its present location into that building.

Santa Ana.

INDIAN GIRLS STORY HAS STRANGE FEATURES.

SANTA ANA, Oct. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Indian girl, Mrs. Robert J. Keith at San Diego who has created much interest in herself by her claim that she is a daughter of Sitting Bull may be an imposter. If she is the Indian girl who married Robert J. Keith, the moving-picture cowboy in Santa Ana on May 31, her story as now told in San Diego is strangely different from the statistics given by her when she was with Keith getting a marriage license.

The girl who married Keith gave her name as Princeton Davis. The San Diego officers have been instructed by Gen. L. W. Colby of Beatrice, Neb., to care for her, Gen. Colby declaring that she is the daughter of Black Fox, a medicine man, who is credited with having started the battle of Wounded Knee. Gen. Colby stated that after the battle he found the baby girl strapped to the back of her dead mother and that he raised the girl at his home. Gen. Colby says that the girl married A. H. Chalevas, a magazine writer at Portland, Or., three years ago after a few hours acquaintance.

A dispatch this morning stated that the girl who is now employed by the Ammex Moving Picture Company at San Diego, declares that she is Mrs. Robert J. Keith and that she divorced Chalevax in 1910. She stoutly maintains that she is Sitting Bull's daughter.

On the night of May 31 County Clerk Williams issued a marriage license to and Rev. Paul E. Wright married Robert J. Keith, 23, and Princeton Davis, 23. The girl was an Indian and said she was born in South Dakota. She put "Not known" as the answer given by her to the questions as to the names and birthplaces of her father and mother. She gave her occupation as a "moving picture." Keith is a Texas cowboy with the Pathe Company in Santiago Canyon and it is reported today that his wife is not now with him.

Growing! Growing! Forever Southwest

The Present Is Almost the Last Opportunity In Beautiful Arlington Square

Go and see for yourself why the people have flocked into Arlington Square and the district surrounding. Take any one of the four car lines. Ride through the handsome residential streets. Ask yourself why such costly municipal improvements as Manual Arts High School, Exposition Park and two fine Grammar Schools were built there if the district was not considered the most beautiful portion of the whole southwest. I foresaw this development when I secured the land long ago, when it was an alfalfa field. Now I can sell improved lots for much less than surrounding values.

Without An Operation
Wonderful Healing of Rupture
How a New Jersey Man Got Rid of a Severe, Obstinate, Right Inguinal Hernia Without the Slightest Trouble.
Below is a picture of Eugene M. Pullen, a well-known carpenter of Manasquan, New Jersey. If you could see him at his work, particularly when he handles heavy timber, jumps and climbs around like a youth, you would scarcely imagine that he had formerly been afflicted with a rupture.

Ruptured in Right Side.
At an early age, Eugene Pullen was an express driver. He handled railroad baggage. One day after delivering a heavy trunk on an upper floor he felt a pain in the right groin. The suffering increased and it was not long before the young man noticed the swelling.
The doctor told young Pullen that he was ruptured and that he must either wear a truss throughout life or submit to a drastic operation. All surgeons know that hernia operations, with anaesthetics, etc., are dangerous; they may end fatally. Moreover, it is a well established fact that many rupture operations are not successful; the bowel soon breaks through the sewed-up opening and protrudes worse than ever.
Afraid of Operation.
Like most others, Mr. Pullen declined to take the risks of an operation; the expense and loss of time had to be considered, too. Hoping he might get a little better encouragement, he went to another physician, who, to his sorrow, gave him even less hope. It was pointed out to the young man that unless the rupture were perfectly held all the time or the surgeon's knife successfully used, he might expect an increase or doubling in the rupture with further complications, or the dreaded strangulated hernia which kills so many ruptured people.
Victim of Trusses.
The victim bought a truss, a hard, spring-like affair, the best he could get. It tortured him. He tried another—still no relief. He was compelled to give up his express business. The hard tasks of ordinary men were forbidden him. He became an insurance agent, in which position he did not need to do bodily work.
For six years Mr. Pullen dragged around, using various trusses, hard, elastic, etc., with never any contentment. One day his mother told him something she had just found out. It was a simple and easy thing for him to do. He lost no time.
Discarded His Truss.
Relief came at once; he almost forgot that he had any rupture. Afterward came a cure—a complete healing—and, although years have passed and Mr. Pullen is an energetic carpenter, working on buildings, climbing over roofs, lifting lumber and such like, he is absolutely free from the old hernia. He knows he is completely, lastingly cured. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble—comfort and contentment from the very outset. He is a strong, cheerful-minded man.
Valuable Information Free.
The valuable information which Mrs. Pullen read in a newspaper many years ago and gave to her son, together with further important facts, will be sent free to any reader of this who writes to Eugene M. Pullen, 223 Marcellus avenue, Manasquan, N. J., enclosing a stamp for reply. Mention the kind of rupture you have, whether on right or left side and what you have already done in your effort to cure it. A legion of cases of all kinds of rupture in men and women, including inguinal (groin), femoral, navel, scrotal, etc., have been reported completely healed. Age seems to make no difference.—[Advertisement.

LOS ANGELES PIVOT OF GREAT EXPOSITION WAY.

Purpose of Commission to Rush State Highway Between Coast Cities.

Section of Interior Trunk Line May Also Be Built from This City North in Time for Fairs — To Make This Programme Possible Bonds Must Be Sold in Local Communities that Will Derive Direct Benefit.

IF BONDS can be sold to provide the necessary funds, it is the purpose of the State Highway Commission to have that part of the oCast trunk-line connecting Los Angeles, San Francisco and San Diego completed in time for the 1915 expositions. An effort will also be made to complete a part of the interior trunk line from this city north, so exposition visitors may have a choice of two routes, this city being the center of both.

With a magnificent highway traversing the Coast line from San Francisco to San Diego, many thousands of visitors from the East will bring their automobiles with them. The picturesque, level way between the mountains and the sea, enabling them to visit either exposition city at will, and the convenience of using Los Angeles as headquarters will provide one of the greatest of the many attractions that will bring hundreds of thousands of people to this State in 1915.

When those who can reconcile themselves to live again in less favored communities have returned home, one of the chief of the glories of California they will recount in every quarter of the country, will be the splendid system of paved highways being perfected by State and counties and ramifying to connect all the principal centers.

The programme adopted by California for a public highway system is one of the most excellent and most elaborate ever undertaken by any State. The State will spend $18,000,000 in building two great trunk lines from north to south, one along the coast and the other bisecting the populous valleys of the interior.

COUNTIES EQUAL STATE.

The State appropriation is further intended to provide for several important laterals to connect the trunk lines with county seats. The complete system of a great net of paved high-

California's great highway system, projected and under contract.

The map shows, by dotted lines, the complete system of trunk lines and laterals determined by the State Highway Commission. This system will be augmented by about an equal number of miles to be built by counties. The black lines show those portions of the State highway already completed or under contract. The views were taken at various places on the State road extending west from Hollywood where seven miles has been completed and about twenty miles more is constructed.

WRIGHT STAYS RIGHT HERE.

NOVELIST BUYS A HOME SITE IN CHARMED VALLEY.

San Fernando's Lure Wins Him from Imperial—Wooded Canyons and Picturesque Hillside Will Form Setting for Magnificent Country House of His Own Design.

With the intention of establishing one of the most picturesquely beautiful foothill homes in California, Harold Bell Wright, famous novelist and the man who put the Imperial Valley into American literature, has just concluded the purchase of a sightly tract of 300 acres in the San Fernando Valley. The author of "The Winning of Barbara Worth" has thus signalized his intention of remaining near the scene of his greatest literary triumph and has effectively set at rest various rumors that he was intending to take up his permanent residence in an Eastern State.

The property Wright has selected for his future home lies to the south of Van Nuys and comprises several wooded canyons, together with a sweep of hillside extending to the skyline of the ridge which marks the valley's edge at this point. The land adjoins the canyon in which is situated the attractive country place of Gen. M. H. Sherman. It was formerly a part of the holdings of the Los Angeles Suburban Homes Company and was chosen from ten or more similarly beautiful plots of ground in the same vicinity and which the novelist had recently been considering purchasing. The ground selected is regarded as the most inviting of all the suburban canyon sites of the district.

Wright, after settling certain business affairs in the Imperial Valley, where he at present lives and where he has large interests, will at once begin upon the extensive landscaping work contemplated in his plans for his valley home. The ground scheme of his place, already partially worked out in his mind, will call for a large amount of grading and terracing in portions of the property. In this process, however, there will be no disturbing of the many naturally beautiful features of the holding. The sturdy trees which line the canyons will be untouched.

The novelist expects to build a house planned along free and artistic lines, embodying his own ideals of home architecture and arrangement rather than those of the conventional designer. It will be his aim to make this home fit into the site and conform to the natural setting and topography. Some distance back of the house itself, and well up a densely shaded canyon, he will build a small and comfortable study for his own use while writing. Here in the leafy stillness of an ideal retreat he expects to create his future "best sellers."

CHARGED WITH FELONY.

Real Estate Men Placed Under Bail to Answer to Misrepresenting Value of Property.

Carl D. Fredericks and L. W. Collins were arrested yesterday on a felony warrant, charging them with obtaining money under false pretenses. Robert W. Reed accuses them in his complaint of sharp practice in a trade for some real estate, in which an automobile was introduced as "boot" in the transfer. Reed alleges that the value of the property was misrepresented. The two men were released on bail of $1000 each.

American-Hawaiian Company Signs Contract.

Important Deal Closed by Harbor Commission.

Docks Will Soon Yield Big Annual Revenue.

The most important move yet made by the Harbor Commission for the development of commerce for the municipal wharves at the harbor was brought to a successful head yesterday, when permit No. 9 for berthing and docking the vessels of the American-Hawaiian Steamship Company at the Mormon Island Channel wharf was granted.

The company's acceptance of this permit was filed immediately after the board's action was taken, and the deal is closed. As soon as the Harbor Commission makes the necessary additions to the facilities to meet the requirements of the American-Hawaiian Company's vessels, the company will begin actual business at the municipal wharf and a substantial increase in the harbor revenues will begin.

The American-Hawaiian Steamship Company is the largest ship concern flying the American flag. It proposes to send vessels into the Los Angeles Harbor from New York every three days, and to return them on a similar schedule. This means that practically all of the time ships of this line will be lying in the harbor, discharging and taking on cargoes.

The permit is made under the provisions of the recent charter amendment providing for berthing and landing privileges on city wharves. Its term of tenure is fifteen years. The company is to guarantee a minimum annual payment to the city of $15,000. It will be charged full rates for wharfing and handling, but will provide the crews and equipment for freight handling and in compensation therefor is to receive 20 per cent. of the charges made under the Harbor Commission's schedule for wharfage and handling.

MEANS BIG DEVELOPMENT.

The statement was made yesterday by those who have given the subject careful study, that it is reasonable to

CONTINENT SHORTENED.

New Schedule Cuts Three Hours from Running Time to New York and Chicago.

When the Los Angeles Limited pulled out of the Salt Lake station at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon a chain of events was set in motion by which this city is brought three hours nearer both Chicago and New York. Precisely, the running time between the big city of the West Coast and the biggest city of the country is reduced from ninety-two hours and forty-five minutes to eighty-nine hours and forty minutes.

The cut in time is affected by eliminating three hours from the running time between Las Vegas and Chicago. This puts it in the Windy City at 11:30 a.m., thus affording direct connections with Big Four No. 18, the Twentieth Century Limited on the Lake Shore, the Pennsylvania's Broadway Limited and the Wabash's Continental Limited. Before these were made New York passengers had to wait at Chicago until mid-afternoon.

George A. Blair, assistant freight traffic manager of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, is due here today, accompanied by his wife, for a stay of two or three days. Blair was formerly general traffic manager of the Alton, but is perhaps best known to fame as a toastmaster whose abilities are recognized throughout the Middle West.

Sir James Silverwright, member of Parliament from Scotland, and a rich land owner, is expected here from the Yosemite at 8:15 o'clock tomorrow morning over the Southern Pacific for a stay of a few days. Silverwright, according to a dispatch received yesterday by General Passenger Agent Batturs of the Southern Pacific from Passenger Traffic Manager Fee, is making a leisurely tour of the country and is especially interested in industrial and agricultural development. He is to stop at the Alexandria.

BULLOCK'S TEA ROOM.

Boston Expert Establishes New Service for Patrons of Big Department Store.

Bullock's Department Store opened a new tea room yesterday, elegant in appointments, on the eighth floor of the building. The dining-room, which has a seating capacity of 400, will be open from 10:30 a.m. to 5:15 p.m.

One of the special features of the new establishment is an afternoon tea with a musicale from 3 to 5 o'clock. There are private dining-rooms for luncheon and afternoon tea parties. Patrons will have the services of pages to locate friends, deliver messages or arrange for telephone calls. A color scheme in French gray and rose is restful and attractively harmonious. Mrs. Margaret Purdy, an expert from Boston, established the service and arranged for the opening.

Fifteen Thousand Colonists Arrive in Week.

Canadian Northern Plans Great Coastwise Service.

Other Maritime Concerns Show Varied Activity.

With the arrival of colonists in the Southland totaling 15,450 persons in seven days and the selling season just half over, railroad men believe that the final total will be 20,000 or better. This is 5000 over preliminary estimates.

During the past week the daily arrivals ranged from 1000 persons to 1800. In other words, a mean average of 1250 arrivals daily was registered throughout the week. Another interesting feature that furnishes reason for believing that the daily arrivals will be consistent throughout the season is furnished by the Santa Fe. Four days last week the arrival of extra cars was respectively, twenty-eight one day, twenty-five the next, thirty-two the third day and twenty-seven the fourth day.

So far the main contributions to the mounting population of the Southland have been through the Middle Western gateways, Omaha, Chicago, Kansas City and St. Louis, with New Orleans falling below previous averages in routing to the land of heart's desire. From this, the conclusion is drawn that it is to be the Middle Westerner who is to continue to predominate in this portion of the Southwest.

Advance reservations of cars promise a big rush to this part of the country Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, the concluding three sale days of the season. Because of the heavy travel, the Santa Fe and the Salt Lake expect to handle a number of special colonist trains in here. So far, the specials have been confined to the ones the Santa Fe has been running in here daily as the second section of one of its fast trains.

TURBINERS ORDERED. FLOUR ONE WAY; FRUIT OTHER.

Two twenty-knot turbiners, for service between Port Mann and San Pedro and San Diego, have been ordered by the Canadian Northern Railway from the Fairfield Shipbuilding Company of Glasgow, according to maritime construction lists. Port Mann is the Pacific terminus of the new Canadian railroad and expects to develop a rich traffic in flour and grain with Southern California, as well as with San Francisco. The new vessels, which will be named the Duke of Connaught and the Duke of Clarence, will naturally be barred from the canal, but as many grain producers and merchants of Alberta and Saskatchewan spend the winter in Southern California, it is believed that a rich trade in grain and flour one way and fruit the other can be worked up. The boats are to be ready for service in 1915.

WILL BURN OIL. SAVES MONEY AND SPACE.

Bowing to the might of oil as the fuel which assures economic operation on the West Coast, W. R. Grace & Co., announced yesterday through its local agent, that the steamer Cusco, formerly in service between California ports and England, is now laid up at Southampton for equipping as an oil-burner. It will be the first of the old British steamers plying into this port to be equipped for the consumption of the fluid.

By the change—and perhaps most important of all—the Cuzco will acquire no less than 1000 tons measured space for freight, as the oil will be carried between the double bottoms and in a deep tank amidship.

Raising Schooner Santa Cruz.

To the click of the motion-pictures camera, the International Marine Salvage Company of this city started the work yesterday of removing the schooner Santa Cruz from the rocks on the line of Santa Barbara and Ventura counties, where she went ashore ten days ago. As soon as the little boat—she is of forty-five tons net—is removed from the rocks, it will be towed to the Craig yard at Long Beach for repairs. The Grant flexible pontoons are being used to lift the vessel and will be used to tow her in here. The pictures of the raising of the ship from the nest of rocks where she went aground are to be used in connection with an advertising campaign that the salvage company expects to launch.

First Vessel Coming Soon.

George W. Grayson, president and general manager of the Panama Navigation and Commercial Company, stated yesterday that the company expects to dock the first vessel of its proposed Los Angeles-New Orleans service at this port about November 1. In all, six ships of from 15,000 to 18,000 tons' capacity, with passenger accommodations for from seventy-five to 100 persons, are to be assigned to the company's service, which will be from this port to Mazatlan, until the canal opens. Grayson, as well as Alex Braydon, the vice-president of the company, and T. B. Ross, the treasurer, are heavily interested in various industries along the Mexican west coast and the new line is to provide additional access to them.

Needs Money for Construction.

To secure additional money for the construction of an interurban railway from Fresno to Selma, and to retire an old bond issue of $93,000, the Fresno, Hanford and Summit Lake Interurban Railway Company, whose projected lines honeycomb the San Joaquin Valley, has applied to the State Railroad Commission for permission to issue $225,000 of preferred stock. The necessity of starting work before the winter opens is urged by the company as one of the reasons for issuing preferred stock at this time.

To Transfer Plant.

Authority has been granted A. A. Weber by the State Railroad Commission to sell to the Alta District Gas Company, the plant serving the cities of Dinuba, and Reedley. As part of the same decision, the gas company is authorized to operate under franchises granted by the counties of Tulare and Fresno and to issue promissory notes in the sum of $26,000 to complete the deal with Weber.

STEVENSON EVENING.

South Pasadena Church Will Give Series of Concerts Devoted to Works of Local Composers.

An evening of music, during which only compositions of Prof. Frederick Stevenson, the local composer, will be produced, will be given by the choir of Calvary Presbyterian Church, South Pasadena, on Friday evening next. The choir consists of Miss Zoa McClure, soprano; Mrs. C. W. Rohrer, contralto; O. F. Tallman, tenor; O. P. Donnell, bass, and Miss Claire Wilde, accompanist. They will be assisted by Mrs. Harriet Vail Tussing, soprano; Mrs. J. V. Sweetser, contralto; J. V. Sweetser, tenor; E. R. Buck bass, each of whom will sing a solo of Prof. Stevenson's composition, and they will also participate in the ensemble numbers. The concert is under the supervision of O. F. Tallman, director of the choir, and is the first of a series of concerts devoted to the works of local composers, to be given during the winter. All lovers of music are invited.

HERDING OF THE MOOSE.

Will Gather From All Over Southern California to Celebrate Initiation of Mayor of Los Angeles.

The occasion of the initiation of Mayor Rose as a member of the local lodge of the Order of Moose, on Wednesday, is to be marked by a great Moose celebration. All the lodges in Southern California will be represented and a reception and jubilee concert will be given in the auditorium.

There will be speeches by the Mayor, Rev. Baker P. Lee and Webster Davis, representing Southern California, and by E. J. Henning, A. J. Morganstern and G. A. A. McGee, representing the Supreme Lodge. The Festival Choir of 300 voices and the Imperial Concert Quartette will sing, accompanied by Charles H. Demorest on the great organ. There will also be an orchestra of forty pieces under the direction of N. Banks Cregier. The initiation will take place in the Moose Hall in the evening.

After Him.

HONEYMOON ENDS; TRIAL BEGINS.

YOUNG FERRIS ON DEFENSE THE SECOND TIME.

Charged With Manslaughter Because Ran Down and Killed Little Boy With His Automobile—Defendant Notorious Speeder and Son of Former Wealthy Wyoming Man.

For a second time Ralph Sterling Ferris, violator of the State speeding laws and an inmate of the County Jail for about a month following one of his exploits with his racing machine, will face a jury tomorrow on the charge of killing 2-year-old Michael Wiestorek, the child of poor Polish parents.

At the first trial the jurors disagreed. Since then every legitimate effort has been made to have the District Attorney dismiss the case. He has refused and in a published statement declared that sons of millionaires must obey the law just like other persons. Mrs. Julia Ferris Miller, mother of the boy, is rich. Her first husband was reputed to be worth more than $1,000,000.

She arrived in the city yesterday to confer with Schenck & Citron, counsel for the accused. Her son will reach here today. He has been on a honeymoon. His bride was formerly Fay Postern of the Ferris Hartman Opera Company.

In civil action brought against Ferris, a judgment of $10,000 was given. However, as the young man lives on an allowance given by his mother the judgment may not be collected for many years.

The killing occurred February 12. Ferris was speeding along East Ninth street and in that vicinity swerved to one side to avoid a collision and mashed the toddler under the heavy car. Death was instantaneous.

Ferris was arrested and released on bonds. Later he was arrested for speeding and given a jail sentence by Justice Young. This was remitted at the urgent pleading of the mother. Not profiting by his previous experience, Ferris was again caught by the county motorcycle officers. When arrested he gave an assumed name.

He was placed under $5000 bond and lay in jail a month before his mother got a surety company to go on the bond.

CRITICISES Y.M.C.A.

Secretary of American Missionary Association Hands a Jolt to Organization in the Canal Zone.

In his address before the Brotherhood of the First Congregational Church, night before last, Dr. Paul H. Douglass of New York, secretary of the American Missionary Association, criticised the Y.M.C.A. of the canal zone because it was formed for the white American residents there. "Why 'white Americans?'" he questioned, "when the population of Panama is chiefly neither white nor American. A volcanic protest should go up concerning this unjust discrimination."

Dr. Douglass's address took up the natural history of prejudice and in no uncertain terms he decried that race prejudice which finds expression in epithets—that calls the Italian the "dago," the Mexican "the greaser," and the colored man the "nigger" and such vituperative vocabulary of insult as is often applied to foreigners. His talk along this line was quite in accord with that of Bishop Edwin Hughes, who gave utterance to a similar protest in a sermon preached at the First Methodist Church not long ago.

"Our Anglo-Saxon impudence," said Dr. Douglass in the course of his address before the Brotherhood, "is imperious. The other day up in Montana an Indian boy said he wanted to be an American citizen so he could have half the road. They have a habit in Montana—our good American citizens—of crowding an Indian off the road when they meet him, just to make him feel his inferiority."

The address was listened to with great interest by a hundred leading men of the church and the suggestion was made by the pastor, Dr. William Horace Day that members be privileged to bring their sons to these monthly gatherings of the Brotherhood and thus gather into the social church fellowship the older boys and young men of the congregation.

Under the splendid leadership of the president, A. P. Watts, the Brotherhood gatherings and the monthly suppers have come to be a fine feature of the church life and the enrollment of members is rapidly increasing.

LOS ANGELES STOCK EXCHANGE.

Market Is Dull and Uninteresting. New Capital Is Being Interested in California Mills.

The market was a dull and listless affair yesterday morning, with a few trades in Los Angeles Investment about the only and very slight approach to an enlivening feature. The stock was weak. Changes in other issues were nominal, in almost every case; the tendency of the market might be described as easy.

The recent activity of California Hills mining stock is explained by the presence in Los Angeles of George R. Stone of Boston, accompanied by a party of Eastern capitalists, who are completing an examination of oil and mining lands in which the California Hills Company is interested. It is said that $75,000 has been pledged for development of the most important holdings as a result of the investigation. Fifteen were in the party. They left for the East last night.

AFTER ALLEGED EMBEZZLER.

Constable Woodbury left for Point Richmond yesterday, where Mrs. Abbey Lockett of Ocean Park is under arrest charged with embezzling the furniture of a rooming-house and some jewelry, the property of J. W. Jeffries. The complaint was issued by Deputy District Attorney Richardson.

New Bank

being organized in town close to Los Angeles, looking for reliable and experienced cashier with $12,000. Can also let in a few more small stockholders. Address P.F., Box 384, Times Branch Office.

LOS ANGELES-SAN FRANCISCO-PORTLAND

THREE Busy Baker Stores in Los Angeles

BAKER'S SPRING STREET STORE WILL HAVE NEW LOCATION

Original Baker Store in Los Angeles Will Move About Oct. 20 to 253 South Spring Street—Five Doors South of Present Location!

For nearly twenty years Baker Store No. 1 has occupied its original home at 239 South Spring street. On or about October 20 it will be moved into its new quarters at 253 South Spring street, just five doors nearer Third street and next to Desmond's.

In this move Baker patrons will recognize a distinct advance in store service, as these new quarters will be fitted up in the latest and most approved fashion for shoe stores. Nothing that can add to the comfort or convenience of Baker patrons will be omitted.

We will ask you to bear this change of location in mind—after October 20 Baker Store No. 1, now at 239 South Spring street, will be located at 253 South Spring street, next door to Desmond's.

"The Goal of Yesterday Will Be the Starting Point of Tomorrow"

Progress

We regard our earned reputation as "The Progressive Shoe Stores" as an asset. We take pride in starting each new season with the previous season's realized ambitions as a starting point.

Some of our last season's "Goals" that furnish a starting point for this season are a Million and One-fourth Dollar Shoe business, a new Baker store in Portland [making in all nine Baker stores on the coast], and general satisfaction with Baker Shoes and Baker Methods as expressed by a generous increase in patronage.—

This year our goal is again far out in advance, but we will make it. The shoe values we are offering for your consideration make failure impossible.

We are beginning this season with the most comprehensive stock of dependable footwear we have ever shown. The style and quality of Baker shoes will compare favorably with those of the most "exclusive" shoe houses in Los Angeles, while Baker prices, because of our tremendous buying and distributing power, place these superior shoes within the reach of ALL.

Our ambition for this season is to number YOU among the thousands of satisfied Baker shoe wearers in Los Angeles and vicinity.

NEW BAKER SHOE STORE FOR PORTLAND

Baker Shoe Store No. 9 Opened in Portland, Ore., October 1st.

PORTLAND (Or.) Oct. 1.—Baker Shoe Store No. 9 was opened here today. This makes the third Baker store for Portland and the ninth on the Pacific Coast, the remaining six Baker Stores being divided equally between Los Angeles and San Francisco.

The ever-increasing business of the Baker Stores in Portland made this increase in store service imperative.

The addition of this new store to the great chain of Baker Stores on the Coast will add materially to the already tremendous buying strength of this great shoe house and a resultant increase in values will be noticeable in Baker Stores wherever located.

Store service is a matter of great concern with us. We give that subject much thought and attention. We aim to please, and should we fail we should consider it a great favor if the fact be called to our notice by the patron.

20th Anniversary

317-325 SO. BROADWAY 312-322 SO. HILL STREET

A. FUSENOT CO.

The VILLE de PARIS celebrates the twentieth anniversary of its establishment tomorrow. In October 1893, Mr. A. Fusenot, who at that time was engaged in the dry goods business in San Francisco, opened the pioneer Dry Goods Store of Broadway at No 223, in a small room with but twenty-seven feet frontage.

The rapid increase of business soon demanded more room and additional space was secured adjoining the initial location. In October 1905, the "VILLE" removed to its present location in the Laughlin Building, 319 to 325 S. Broadway, extending through to Hill Street. It is with justifiable pride the management take a reflective view of the history and growth of this establishment.

We recognize the success attained—during the fifth of a century—has been due to the public's generous support, and take this opportunity to express our appreciation to all patrons.

As in the past, our future aim will be courteous and efficient service, dependable merchandise, justly priced and truthfully advertised.

LOS ANGELES (Loce Ahng-hayl-ais)

Entered at the Postoffice as mail matter of Class II.

AUTUMN.
Chrysanthemum weather has arrived. Saturday brought us its first breath. It contained the true tang of October.

BUT THEY DON'T.
The rebel forces have decided to make a final stand against the Federals advancing on a Mexican city. Nothing is quite so indefinite as Mexican finality.

A NATIONAL CRISIS.
Miss Eleanora Sears has been successfully fined $25 at Salem, Mass., for operating Harold Vanderbilt's automobile faster than a walk. The tariff bill has been signed. Now let Harry Thaw decide what he wants to do and the country may have peace.

MISSOURI.
St. Louis is out there. Indeed, it is the commercial capital of that foreign country. Right now it is closing all the social and athletic clubs because they serve liquor. The people are right half way. Liquor is not athletic, but heaven knows it is sociable until it gets to the fighting stage.

THE COMMON COMPLAINT.
It is not getting yours which keeps you up at nights and which eats your heart out in the day and makes you old before your time. It is this worrying after the thing that is not yours and never should be which keeps you on the edge of perdition. You are much obliged to us for telling you so, and you will not act any differently.

THE JOINERS.
They are having a lot of trouble up at Dinuba on account of the Raisin Association. Several persons, who are members by daylight, haul their stuff to town at night and sell their goods to independent concerns. They are in wrong on the union principle. They are making it force and not co-operation. The man who joins things ought to keep a tight grip on his individual liberty, for he is in danger of losing either his freedom or his honesty, and maybe both.

THE FREE LANCE.
Dr. Branner has been inaugurated as Stanford University's second president. Dr. David Starr Jordan, who has held down the job for twenty-two years and who is now chancellor of the University, will hardly enjoy Branner's recommendation that he be allowed to retire in 1915. Jordan is retiring by extending his activity to the rest of the universe, and we have no quarrel with his ability to spread it on thick.

THE CONVENTIONAL THING.
A railroad official is quoted in Thursday morning's Times as saying: "The Southern Pacific did not hand the Rock Island 339 miles of additional haul without something in return." Then he proceeds to figure that this return is a promise that the Rock Island will not invade California. Railroads have a way of appreciating what they do for each other. Everybody has that. But conditions are always confronting people which seem to outlaw gratitude and every other consideration. That will happen in the best-regulated of railroad families, and no big transcontinental company can really cross continents and not come to California. Neither can any arrangement with one State permanently meet the demands and duties of a railroad in all the other States it touches. The Rock Island may not get here at once. It looks so reasonable that it would come as close as Benson, Ariz., and stop there. Benson looks like the natural destination of one of the biggest railroads in the world, doesn't it?

PIOUS HARRISON.
Gov. Francis Burton Harrison, who by this time has reached the Philippines, before he left San Francisco promised several clergymen, representing religious bodies maintaining missionary stations in the Philippines, that he would do what he could to aid them. If he labors as actively and as efficiently in disseminating the truths of revealed religion in the islands as he did to serve the dago fruit importers of New York City to counteract the evil effects to them of the growth of the California citrus-fruit industry, he may help to save some Filipino souls.

Under the new tariff Sicilian lemons will be landed in Atlantic ports at a freight cost of about one-fourth of 1 cent per pound, and a tariff cost of one-half of 1 cent per pound, in all three-quarters of a cent, while the freight cost to New York on California fruit, with the utmost reduction that can be expected from the Interstate Commerce Commission, will be 1 cent per pound.

That gives the foreign lemon growers $5 per ton the best of Californians, besides the difference in the wages paid to the workers in the orchards, which wages in California are three times as great as in Sicily.

Our orchardists will not ply the ax in their groves, for there will be an election next year and a chance to knock the Democratic majority in Congress "galley west," as the Bull Moose slang-slinger might remark. But there will be no more young lemon trees planted in California for the present.

THE SPECTER OF A BEEF FAMINE.
The meat packers of the United States are sounding a warning to rouse the nation from its apparent apathy as to the present condition of our cattle and live-stock supplies. For more than a decade we have been steadily drifting toward a meat famine. So far neither the government, the State nor the individual farmer has taken any purposeful steps to prevent this threatened evil.

Wages have increased, money has been easy, and while considerable grumbling has been caused by the monthly butcher bills, the trouble has been attributed to the "trust evil," excessive railroad rates, to the toll taken by the big packers, to the protective tariff—to everything, in fact, except the real cause. We have been misled by the muckrakers.

For it is as plain as the nose upon one's face—any blue book issued by the Department of Agriculture will prove it—that the real and only cause of the big increase in the price of meat is the correspondingly big decrease in the supply of cattle.

To hold the meat packers responsible for this unfortunate showing is absurd. A plentiful supply of live stock, a lower price, an increased consumption and their plants running to their maximum capacity is for the packers the most desirable state of affairs. The increase in price has made money for nobody; not for the farmers, who have only one steer to market where formerly they had half a dozen; not for the railroads, which have so much less freight to carry; nor for the packers, running their plants to only half their capacity.

When the dollar-beef famine strikes us, as it will do unless we stir ourselves and take some decisive action, we shall have only our own apathy and extravagance to thank for so dangerous a disaster.

If the people are wise they will pay immediate heed to the warning uttered deliberately by men who know every detail of the subject on which they are speaking. These specialists all insist on three main points. The small farmer must be encouraged to pay more attention to cattle raising, since the big ranges have been mostly cut up and subdivided. More land in the West must be brought into use for pasture and stock feed. The slaughter of heifer calves must cease. We protect our wild animal life in the mountains and forests; why not our domestic cattle on the ranch and the farm?

A campaign of education, and co-operation among the small cattlemen—such as we already have among our citrus-fruit growers—will help to restock many parts of the country at present almost void of animal life. Irrigation and development are already opening up much new territory in the West, and fresh opportunities for making new cattle ranges out of the so-called desert are being constantly offered to ambitious workers. But these efforts will prove abortive unless by restrictive legislation or a system of bounties we prevent the wholesale slaughter of young animal life. This is the only effective plan for making the increase in live stock in any way proportionate to the increase in population.

Napoleon once said that he cared little for foreign armies so long as the people in Paris had plenty to eat. A meat famine would be a national disaster. It would be a fruitful cause of discontent. Professional agitators would seize upon it as a pretext for stirring up strife. They would divide the population into two parts, the meat-eating classes and the cereal-starved masses. They would misrepresent the conditions and blame "big business" and "predatory wealth." And of course "predatory wealth" would have no more to do with it than a Sahara sandstorm has to do with affecting the formation of icebergs.

"Big business" wants to see our meat supply made adequate to the needs of the people, just as earnestly as do the people themselves. It is so-called big business that is even now trying to stir up the nation to the haunting possibility of dollar beef.

If we killed off 75 per cent. of our children before adolescence, we should quickly depopulate the world. Yet this is how we are treating our lambs and heifers. We spend millions to decrease infant mortality and wastefully slaughter the supplies on which these saved children must depend for food.

Every heifer calf killed today means thousands of pounds less beef for the children we are so carefully rearing. One dish of tender veal cutlets indulged in today means thousands of pounds of beef cut off from the tables of our children when they attain maturity. Do we love them well enough to protect their meat supply?

Unless we wish the American people to become a slothful, inert race of orientals, subsisting on rice and noodles—and using opium to satisfy the craving produced by a deficiency of good meat stimulant in the blood—we must put a stop to the indiscriminate slaughter of heifers and young animals, and use them for restocking the ranges—to supply the future brain and brawn necessary for the preservation of any dominant world-power.

SAVE THE FASHION SHOWS.
An ordinance that would prohibit the holding of the semi-annual fashion shows, now so popular in this city, will be introduced at the Council meeting tomorrow. The purpose of the ordinance is to prevent congestion on the streets; its effect will be, not only to remove permanently the pleasing and attractive displays of fashions that the merchants, with difficulty and expense, collect and present every six months, but to restrain and discourage them from making interesting displays at all times.

Undoubtedly, excellent intentions are responsible for the ordinance, but, unfortunately, intentions do not control the effects of legislation.

The terms of the ordinance are such that no merchant, firm, or corporation may make a display of any kind in the hallway, lobby, entrance of vestibule of any building "or in any show or display window, on any premises immediately abutting upon any public sidewalk, street, or other public place, which is designed, or intended to, or which, as a matter of fact, does collect, attract or cause to be attracted a sufficient number of people to interfere with the passage of the public along such public sidewalks, streets or other public places, or to cause a partial or complete congestion of travel thereon."

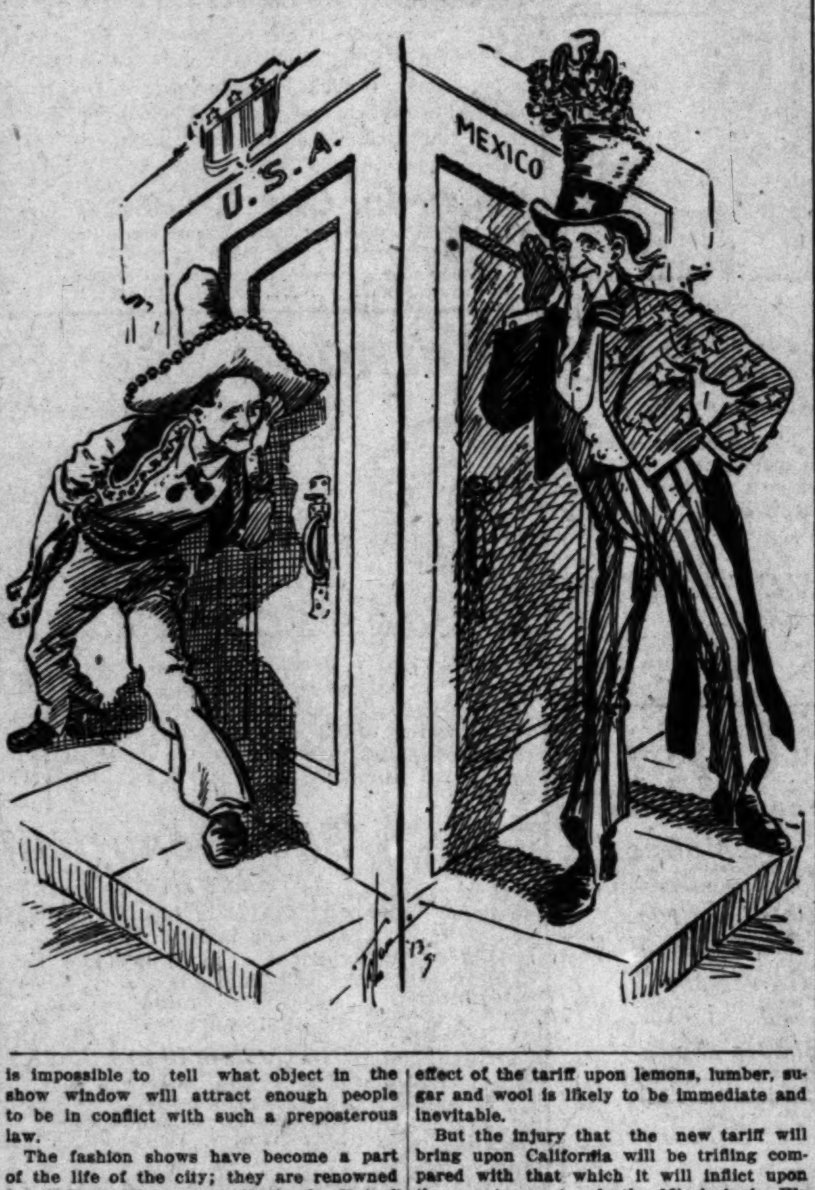
With that ordinance in effect, the merchants would do well to pull down their blinds, and keep them down, for public taste is so variegated and uncertain that it is impossible to tell what object in the show window will attract enough people to be in conflict with such a preposterous law.

The fashion shows have become a part of the life of the city; they are renowned for their excellence; no city in the United States—not even excepting New York—has more elegant and stylish displays than the energetic and enterprising merchants of Los Angeles present. And that the streets are crowded at such times is a credit to them and a credit to the city; it is a high testimonial of their excellence, for if they were mediocre or inferior no one would give them more than passing attention.

The effect of so ill-advised an ordinance will be to discourage enterprise, for the merchant will be committing a misdemeanor who displays anything of interest, or makes an effort to attract customers by the novelty or quality of his goods. That Los Angeles, of all the cities on earth, should seek to suppress the activity of the merchants by legislation is paradoxical.

One of the inevitable conditions that any city must expect, and learn to tolerate with good grace, is crowds on the streets. If they were deserted, even Los Angeles would be a poor place for most of us to make our home. The Times is confident that the Councilmen will relegate so ridiculous an ordinance to the waste basket.

Not a Sound.



FOREIGNERS EXULT.
There is rejoicing this morning in London, and Paris, and Brussels, and Berlin, and Vienna, and Rome, and Madrid, and Lisbon, and Buenos Aires, and Melbourne, and Shanghai, and Yokohama, because a large portion of over three thousand millions of dollars hitherto paid annually to producers in the United States will now go to the people of Europe, and Asia, and South America, and the Antipodes.

The directors of the American Sugar Refineries companies and the New York owners of Cuban plantations are holding high jinks over the prospective removal of the competition of the beet-sugar factories.

The dago lemon importers are exultant over the prospect that they will be no longer troubled over the growth of the citrus industry in California.

The Argentine and Australian sheep barons are saying: "Hereafter the Yankee factories will have to come to us for their wool, for the western sheep raisers who have been paying their herders and shearers $30 a month cannot compete with us who pay our men only $7 a month."

And the English, and French, and German, and Belgian, and Austrian, and Italian, and Spanish, and Portuguese factory lords are saying: "Now is our chance to rush the products of our looms and furnaces and forges and factories into the American market, for it will be some time before the Yankee workmen will get down to the methods of living which we force our operatives to accept."

Continued discussion of the new tariff act would, for the present, be profitless. The Times will not bewail the inevitable or idly lock the stable door after the horse is stolen. With the help of the Progressive Senators the Wilson Underwood tariff has become a law. The outrage is perpetrated, and it remains only for the manufacturers and farmers of the country to take the medicine which Democracy has presented to their lips.

The beet-sugar growers and makers of California are allowed three years in which to close up their business, dismantle their factories, and change their beet fields into alfalfa pastures. Louisiana planters can change from cane to cotton, and Hawaiian and Porto Rican planters will have time to plant coffee, sisal and pineapples. The California wool growers can do nothing except to drive their flocks to the mutton factories. The lumber men can take down their mills and ship them to British Columbia, where cheap Hindu and Chinese labor will be available.

The citrus orchardists will be hurt the worst. They cannot graft their trees for apples, or peaches, or pears. They will have only the limited market for oranges and lemons afforded by the Pacific States, and with the Panama Canal completed the Sicilian growers will give them a sharp competition here.

So far as California is concerned, the effect of the tariff upon lemons, lumber, sugar and wool is likely to be immediate and inevitable.

But the injury that the new tariff will bring upon California will be trifling compared with that which it will inflict upon the country east of the Mississippi. We have no great factory centers for the manufacture of textiles. We have no cities where furnaces for the fashioning of iron and steel goods make lurid the night, and, except for agricultural products which must seek a market in the East, our farmers are to a certain extent protected by transportation rates in raising potatoes and grain and hay and dairy products.

It is remotely possible that such industrial changes have taken place in the last twenty years that the Wilson tariff of 1913 will not work as much mischief or the same kind of mischief as did the Wilson tariff of 1894. Time will tell. In the meantime, all that each can do individually is to put his house in order and prepare for the storm.

OWNING THINGS.
John D. Rockefeller owns more personal property than any other man in New York. It is assessed at $5,000,000. Considering his billions, this is not a large sum. Among all the other millionaires and billionaires of New York, only one other, outside of Rockefeller's own son, has as much as half a million dollars invested in personal belongings, while such assets are usually far below a quarter of a million. The enormous fortunes of rich men have very little to do with their personal lives. A good beefsteak costs just about the same for everybody, although, as a usual thing, the man with the price hasn't the appetite and the man with the appetite could not afford the steak. It is the irony of life that men who are swinging picks and shovels often see other men taking a walk, a ride or playing tennis or golf, in order to work up an appetite for their dinners. Living, for the body, consists of food, clothing and shelter, and all of us have that or we would not be alive. We can give it all the frills we please and tip the waiters more or less, but there is not a great deal of difference between the rich and the poor. Rockefeller would give all his billions for a good stomach and every rich man in the world would give what he has for love and peace. They can spend very little money on themselves and their families. The rest goes to keep up the game so that we, the people, may ride on street cars eighteen miles for a nickel or may go on a long railroad journey for a little more than our share of the operating expenses of a company in which we are all members without actually owning any stock. Money runs itself and its owners. Those who have it, get a small amount of benefit from it and its other proceeds spill over on everybody else. The most that rich people generally get out of their fortunes is worry and hard work.

Jerome, his gripsacks stuffed with law, keeps on the trail of Harry Thaw. Whenever Harry flees the coop, Jerome lets out a mighty whoop, and chucks some statutes in his grip, and goes upon a flying trip. No other aim in life has he than just to chase poor Harry T., and legislate him into jail whenever he has hit the trail. When Thaw is safe in donjon keep, Jerome drops out and goes to sleep, remaining torpid in his den till Harry Thaw cuts loose again. We never hear of Bill Jerome at other times—he stays at home; of neither good nor ill report, he cuts no ice in camp or court. One aim alone in life is his—to rip around and make things whiz, and spring law to a fare-you-well whenever Harry jumps his cell. The most of us must toil and plan, and bear the ancient curse of man, to gain the things we eat and wear, the midnight couch, the evening chair, and dreary is the path we wend, with little largess in the end. But this Jerome, who does not toil, who does not burn the midnight oil, who does not reap or thresh the straw, but merely chases Harry Thaw, in royal purple he is dressed, and has large diamonds on his chest. Our toil is all of small avail! Let's quit, and camp on Harry's trail!

WALT MASON.

However, Secretary Bryan should be excused for not telling where the money goes. But few of us can.

IT IS TO LAUGH.

But You Must Laugh by Rule and Reason.

It takes a great man to do little things greatly and well. Only a most efficient and clear-headed mathematician could have written "Alice in Wonderland." For the really great mind has ever a child-like quality, to which the shallower mentality never attains.

A great man has just dissected a butterfly, and he has done it well. It is, to my thinking, a much better piece of work than the reconstruction of a mastodon, or even Jones's prehistoric man, celebrated in the annals of the "Scientific Society upon the Stanislaus."

Boris Sidis, M.A.,Ph.D.,M.D., of Sidis Psychotherapeutic Institute, professor of psychology of Harvard University, has just written a book on "The Psychology of Laughter." It sounds like a rather ponderous equipment for the study of the most lightsome thing in the world. But sometimes one must know a great deal to be able to tell clearly and entertainingly about very little things. And Prof. Sidis uses his intellectual equipment on the butterfly quite as effectively as he has done in his "Psychopathological Researches" and "Multiple Personality." And indeed it is a far more difficult subject.

I suppose the butterfly is worth the trouble of dissecting. I have seen cases of beautiful butterflies exquisitely mounted. But, after all, they do not look like butterflies. They look like colored engravings. I can't remember ever to have seen a living butterfly perfectly still. I have seen it on a blossom, like one of its petals. But the instant I looked at it, it flew away. It is no easy matter to set up the skeleton of a chuckle and make it look like a laugh. A giggle, mounted in colors, is but a poor imitation of a giggle, after all. Even painted laughter is only petrified laughter. I have often been puzzled to know whether the expression on the face of "Mona Lisa" was really an "inscrutable smile" or whether she was just sucking her teeth, or merely had that kind of a mouth, and naturally looked that way. Evidently, there is something the matter with her, and "inscrutable smile" is as good a name for it as any. Schuyler Colfax had one very much like it, with whiskers on.

Did you ever see a humming bird mounted by a skillful taxidermist? And did it look like a humming bird—that quivering little soul of beauty and daintiness—a blossom of iridescent gems, a miracle of motion in the sunshine? Well, far less does the psychology of laughter resemble laughter.

Now This Is the Law of the Chuckle.

All my life have I eaten my bread in the smiles of my audiences. But never until these days of psychological investigation and revelation did I realize that my mission, which I had always considered so light and slight as to be unworthy of any serious study, was fairly ponderous with profound earnestness; that laughter was founded upon principles as firm and unchangeable as the multiplication table; that it was girt about by rules and laws such as govern the movements of the planets. It is a serious, solemn thing to laugh, and men should not enter into the enjoyment of a joke, much less perpetuate one, without due and thoughtful consideration. A joke, like the bond of matrimony, is not to be entered into hastily or thoughtlessly, but advisedly and with all discretion and forethought.

The first law of laughter laid down by the wise men who know so well how it should be done, but do so little of it, is "that all unrestrained spontaneous activities of normal functions give rise to the emotion of joy with its expression of smiles and laughter." It is a "manifestation of the instinct of the play—activity." That's why we "laugh in play." Also, at times, in "meeting."

"If an act is carried out in a playful way, the more difficulties that playful act embodies, the more intense will be the psychomotor reactions, and the more will the manifestations of merriment and laughter appear."

A Steam Engine of Power.

The earnestness and power of laughter are in evidenced in the universal fear of ridicule. It is a law of laughter that "man is more afraid of social ridicule than of severe punishment." "Society can thus kill innovations, deviations, variations and mutations without any severity, without shedding of blood; it can smother all newfangled things, and have its fun beside. Why punish, then; why not laugh? But to make ridicule effective a bond of sympathy must be established between the audience and the person who ridicules, else is the attempt at ridicule a failure. The slightest sympathy for the object of ridicule will also destroy its success. All the merits, virtues and suffering of the butt of ridicule must be forgotten, utterly ignored; the ridicule must be pitiless to brutality, if it would be highly successful, and the audience must be in full agreement with it. Joking is a mighty serious matter when it touches on facts.

The perspicacious Dr. Hobbes—comical old josher, Dr. Hobbes—says that "Laughter is a sudden glory arising from sudden conceptions of some eminency in ourselves by comparison with the infirmity of others." That's what made Dr. Hobbes laugh. I don't know at what. He doesn't say, himself.

Yet another law of laughter, according to the philosophers and wise men, is that "any release of reserve energy is the source of all laughter." "What the joker, the comic writer does is to release sources of reserve energy." His humor is the latent water power in the reservoir or the well-filled aqueduct. When he lets it loose—ha, ha; ho, ho; te-he. It must not be stinted, for it is another law that "laughter comes not out of economy, but out of abundance." Very beautifully does Prof. Sidis illustrate this. "They who sow in tears shall reap in joy," sings the Psalmist, "weeping walks he who draws the burdens, but he comes singing who carries the sheaves." The economy of sowing is sad, but the lavishness of the harvest is full of mirth, joy and laughter.

Another law of laughter is, "We laugh from strength and we laugh at weakness. We laugh from the consciousness of our superiority."

"And Then You Can't Do It."

Oh, there are a score more of laws. Now, commit to memory all these laws, and keep them in mind for use at the proper time, and you will know all about laughter, how it is caused, what are its proper ingredients, and how to do it.

And then, to save your soul, you can't make people laugh.

What is the psychology of the psychology of laughter, anyhow?

PAWNS PROTECT RAILWAY KINGS.

Intricate Game of Traffic Absorbs Players.

Men of the Road Depended Upon for Safety.

Expert's School on Wheels Is Here to Instruct.

"Railroading is a game of chess, played with thinking pawns. Educate these pawns to spur-of-the-moment knowledge of the game and you put the emergency down hard on the death claims."

With these prefatory words, William Nichols, old-time dispatcher and present chairman of the Southern Pacific's examining board, sat in the company's instruction car yesterday and explained the system by which the railroad school's grown-ups are taught to play "safe" against the death angel.

Teaching railroad men to play "safe" with their trains.

William Nichols, above, head of a school whose purpose is the conservation of human life, says "accurate thinking prevents railroad wrecks." Below is an interior view of the car, now here, where ten thousand men are instructed annually.

In passing, it should be said that Nichols heads a university of thoroughly practical instruction to which 10,000 men go each year, and that the administration building is an ordinary coach which keeps up an intermittent migration from station to station on the 6500 miles of track which comprise the Southern Pacific system.

"A train leaves terminals," continued Nichols, "and thereby becomes a pawn in an intricate game which the dispatcher plays against unheard circumstances and the weather, a game in which he is aided by the book of rules, a time card, train orders, block signals, and, possibly by the men directly in charge of the train.

"We want to make the men aids, hence our instruction course, for they are the thinking pawns in the dispatcher's chess game and on their accuracy of movement depends the safety of passengers and the safe-handling of freight.

"In railroading, as in chess, the man who thinks accurately and is drilled in the rules of the game is the master player. Accurate thinking, quick thinking—these are what we seek to teach."

While Nichols's car is in Southern California it will entertain 1400 pupils, dispatchers, engineers, conductors, brakemen, firemen, telegraph operators, hostlers, yardmasters and trainmen. Each of these men will, on a designated day, present himself before the instructors and, with a score of others, go through a grueling cross-examination of seven hours. In these seven hours some 3000 questions will be asked by Nichols or his assistants, J. S. Moore, an old engineer, or H. W. Brydges, an old conductor.

"It will be a cross-examination, but it will be something more, an opportunity for each man to have pointed out to him some possible misunderstanding of the rules. Perhaps he will be letter perfect, perhaps not. If not, he will go home and study a bit, and he does study, too, for the lack of a "passing card" from the examiners will mean that he will be put out of service.

"If he is a road man, that is, a man connected with the operation of trains, he will be taken through a course of examination on the time-card and train rules, then will mount, in imagination, a train being propelled over a 6-mile stretch of track. He has three stations to pass, and the track is cluttered up with traffic.

"The mounting of the train will be imaginary, but the track will not, for the most interesting feature of the instruction car is a cunning model showing a standardly-blocked stretch of track six miles in length. Back and forth over this track the pupil propels himself, while trains turn up unexpectedly and the semaphores swing to danger, safe or caution in response to the electric manipulation of the instructor. If in imagination he runs a block, he has to do it over again until he is letter perfect.

"If the trains opposing him were all of equal time-card rights, all would be simple, but the instructors see to it that now and then a second-class train gets a "nineteen" order and is clothed with rights over anything else, or that a first-class train, a heavy freight, deteriorates into a drag, with less rights than a pedestrian on the highway.

"Then he will have to be careful not to allow a pawn to take a queen in the greatest of all chess games, in which lives and freight are the stakes.

"These are the fundamentals, but other classes of employees, according to their duties, will be led through a labyrinth of other questions. Perhaps it is the dispatchers who are most thoroughly quizzed, for theirs are the master minds which direct the simultaneous movement of chessmen over many miles of track. They are the men who see in their mind's eye as reflected by the dispatching sheet, one train here and one circumstance there, perhaps the movement of this train in that way, another in some other way, and a third in between. It is like the skilled chessman playing simultaneously a score of games against the most cunning of adversaries, chance and human frailties."

But Soon.

TARIFF NOT YET IN FORCE HERE.

LOCAL OFFICIALS AWAIT ATTESTED COPY.

Goods in Bonded Warehouses Are Taxable in Meantime on Basis of Old Law, With Refund Proviso. Increased Business May Require Additional Force of Clerks.

Collector of Customs pro tem Frank B. Cretcher received telegraphic advices from Washington yesterday advising him of the signing of the tariff bill by President Wilson, and that the measure would go into effect immediately.

An attested copy of the new law has not been received, and until it arrives, goods entered will be classified and taxed under the Payne tariff law, and the same rule will apply to goods already imported but now in the two big bonded warehouses, sought to be withdrawn, with the proviso that a refund will be allowed later upon the receipt of the copy of the new law, provided there is a decrease in the tariff.

It is believed there will be no entries nor withdrawals, pending official information as to classification and schedules. Dutiable goods have been piling up in the warehouses for several months, in anticipation of reduced duties under the new law, and a delay of a few days will work no harm or hardship.

Collector Cretcher gave it as his opinion that it would be necessary to add to the force handling imported merchandise in the office, if there is to be a big increase in the shipments from foreign ports. This will mean that while the expense of conducting the affairs of the local office will be appreciably enlarged, the receipts will be cut in two, a condition that may be of benefit to some one but certainly not to the government.

While there is no exact basis upon which to estimate the amount that the monthly figures will be reduced, on account of the lower tariff rates and additions to the free list, it is believed that it will show a cut of not less than 33 per cent. with a corresponding increase in the monthly expense of the office, if additions are made to the force.

At the office of Collector Carter, the new features of the internal revenue collections are being discussed, as they appear in the tariff law. The new provision recites that all persons, firms or corporations undertaking as a matter of business for profit the collection of foreign payments by means of coupons, checks or bills of exchange, shall obtain a license from the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, and shall be subject to such regulations enabling the government to ascertain and verify the due withholding and payment of the income tax required to be withheld and paid as the Commissioner of the Internal Revenue shall prescribe. Any person who shall undertake to collect such payments without having obtained a license therefor, or without complying with such regulations, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and for each offense be fined a sum not exceeding $5000 or imprisoned for a term not exceeding one year. There is no charge for the license.

The employees in the office of the Collector of Internal Revenue are just now interested in the Senate rider to the urgent deficiency bill that has just passed that body, withdrawing all deputy collectors of internal revenue from the classified service. Under the rules that have heretofore prevailed, every employee in the office of Collector Carter at this time, with two exceptions, is designated as a deputy collector, and if the House should agree to the Senate rider, it means that just that many more Democrats will have an opportunity to secure office.

The returns of those compelled to pay the income tax must be made before March 1, 1914, and will become delinquent if unpaid by June 30 of that year.

Big Ones Dock Here.

expect a development within three years of a business by this line at the Mormon Island Channel wharves of fully $300,000 a year. The income from the wharfage and handling fees on such a business would be highly profitable for the city.

The permit just granted is for the use of the south 800 feet of the Mormon Island Channel wharf and 400 feet in addition that is to be constructed just south of it. The present wharf is 1600 feet long and fifty feet wide. The permit also includes the use of a transit shed 600 feet long and 100 feet wide, for which a contract has been awarded, and in addition to this the city is to construct 400 feet more of transit shed to be used by the steamship company.

It is also to provide two depressed tracks at the rear of these sheds and there is to be a railway along the entire front of the wharf, 600 feet of which is already constructed. This trackage connects with the Southern Pacific and can be connected readily with the Pacific Electric trackage or any other lines that may reach the harbor district.

TO DEEPEN CHANNEL.

The permit will also require the deepening of the channel. This is now thirty feet in depth, but the American-Hawaiian vessels draw thirty-one feet of water. The incoming of this traffic will make it imperative for the government to proceed with the deepening of the turning basin and other channels.

Paved streets to connect with the wharf are also imperative, and the Harbor Commission wants to secure as speedily as possible paved connections with First street, Wilmington, and a sixty-foot-wide paved area along the wharf, and the necessary railroad trackage. Under the terms of the permit, this must be ready by January 1, 1914.

The ships of the company will be passing through the Panama Canal by the first of March, and by that time the 400-foot addition to the wharf and the additional transit sheds must be ready for use.

The Harbor Commission estimates that it will need $200,000 to carry these improvements through at the earliest possible date. In this connection, the commission urges the necessity for immediate completion of the first unit in the raising of Timm's Point and construction of a ramp to give direct access to Municipal Dock No. 1.

It recommends ordering the printing of the $2,500,000 issue of harbor bonds, in units of $1000 each. There are now subscriptions for harbor bonds amounting to $133,000. Probably $30,000 of these subscriptions are for bonds in small denominations, that cannot be issued under the charter provisions, but at least $100,000 of the subscriptions are for amounts where the $1000 units can be used.

ONE SOURCE OF REVENUE.

As a result of the conference between Mayor Rose and members of the City Council Finance Committee with President Shoup of the Pacific Electric, there is good prospect of the Pacific Electric Company granting to the city an extension of one year's time for the payment of the $247,000 which the city must pay for the construction of the San Pedro-street electric line.

If this agreement is secured, then there is a tacit understanding that this money will be allowed the Harbor Commission, in order to give it immediate funds for the forwarding of the work made necessary by the granting of the permit to the American-Hawaiian Company.

A clear indication of the extent of the business proposed to be brought to the Los Angeles Harbor by this company, and also its needs in order to advantageously use the Mormon Island Channel wharf, is shown in the following letter, sent by C. W. Cook, Pacific Coast manager of the American-Hawaiian Company. In this letter Cook says:

"Referring to negotiations now being carried on between us, we are very much disappointed to find that there will be only 800 feet of wharf ready for us early next year.

"We have information that it is probable that the Panama Canal will be ready for use by our steamers in March, 1914, and we are making up our schedule with this end in view. We intend to have a sailing from New York every three days, which will, of course, mean an arrival at San Pedro every three days; and the vessels going back on the same schedule will make it necessary for us to have at least 1200 feet of wharf not later than April 1, 1914. To use this wharf we will, of course, have to use the turning basin and the channel from the turning basin to the Pacific Ocean.

"Our ships, when loaded to their maximum draft, draw thirty-one feet of water, and your channel and the turning basin should be dredged to preferably forty feet, although we can safely use these channels if a depth of thirty-five feet is maintained. As the commerce of the port grows, and more vessels are using this channel, it will be imperative that the channel be widened, and it should be not less than 1000 feet wide; particularly if vessels are to lie on each side, and thereby decrease the navigable width by the sum of the width of these vessels.

"Of course, you understand that this wharf is of no use to us unless railroad tracks and paved streets connect with it, and the freight sheds are completed. The 800 feet above referred to, with approaches, railroad tracks and sheds, must be completed by January 1, 1914."

The American-Hawaiian Steamship Company now has twenty-three vessels in commission, and in its operation between San Pedro and New York, using the Tehauntepec Railroad, has made a record of twenty-one days for the trip. With the use of the Panama Canal, this time will be cut down.

It is now building six refrigerator vessels for the especial purpose of handling Southern California citrus fruits and laying them down in the New York market, as well as other lines of perishable products from this territory. While not conducting an extensive passenger business, its vessels have accommodations for a limited number, and this branch of its traffic may be more fully developed.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

Civil Service Commissioner Evans Objects to the Classification of His Chief Examiner.

The question of passing an ordinance awarding back salary to Prof. Doty, chief examiner of the County Civil Service Commission, will come up before the Board of Supervisors tomorrow.

In order to make the ordinance valid the recipient of salary must be designated as efficiency clerk or commissioner, according to a legal opinion rendered by County Counsel Hill. He will also be subject to the orders of the Supervisors.

The ordinance would have been passed last week so Doty could get his back pay December 1, but Evans's objections will postpone payment until January 1.

Evans will probably tell the board tomorrow what he wants done. In the interests of harmony the Supervisors will perhaps do as the chairman of the Civil Service Commission dictates.

"DROWNED" MAN UNDER CLOUD.

SUPPOSED LOST IN THE SURF, NOW ARRESTED.

Officer Adams, Who Says He's Not Afraid of Ghosts, Gone to El Centro for Alleged Bogus Check-Passer—Takes Rabbit's Foot Along for Luck.

Deputy Constable Jack Adams left for El Centro yesterday to bring back H. B. Strong, who is wanted here on a charge of having passed worthless checks. Constable Thomas says he has received many complaints concerning the man.

The queer part of the transaction is that Strong was supposedly drowned in the surf at Long Beach two years ago. His near-widow did not go into mourning, however. She said she was like the proverbial bad penny. sure that her husband would turn up.

Strong left a suit of clothes and underwear in the bathhouse and never returned to his room. It is supposed he carried a spare suit with him in a suit case and that after leaving the water he put on the suit in some retired spot and boarded a car for this city.

Adams, who knows the man, declares that the simulated drowning was for the purpose of getting rid of importunate creditors. Thomas has been waiting to hear from Strong for a year or more. He says several checks were cashed by merchants and others which he says Strong passed when he did not have a dollar in the banks.

"The man is a slippery customer," said Adams. "I will keep awake all the time I am with him. I will have the rabbit's foot in my pocket. I am not afraid of ghosts."

RIDING-STABLE MAN FINED.

J. P. Kerner, keeper of the Fashion Riding Stables, No. 1663 West Washington street, was fined $50 yesterday by Police Judge White for renting horses without a city license. The case will be appealed. By the finding of the court Kerner is guilty of renting horses from his stables. Kerner insisted in his arguments that he was conducting a riding academy, and that when his pupils were sufficiently advanced to take their mounts on the street, he let them go from the stable. For many years Kerner has been conducting his stables there, and has had a fashionable clientele. It has always been the custom, he maintains, to give horses to his pupils for practice, and will fight the livery stable charge in the Supreme Court.

LETTERS TO "THE TIMES."

[The Times invites strong, clear, bright expression of opinion on current subjects, timely, pertinent and popular. Brevity should be kept in sight. Essays eschewed. Religious and personal controversies are tabu. Value is added to such letters by the signing of the writer's true name, which will be either published or withheld at the owner's request. All letters offered for publication should be in "parliamentary" language, and are subject to editorial supervision.]

The County Charter.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 4.—[To the Edtior of The Times:] The Supervisors should know, for they have easy and abundant ways of learning, that the people who voted for the county charter thought that if any portion of it was in conflict with the constitution it would not be operative.

That court clerks, librarians, county counsel, treasurer's clerks and all others to hold county positions (with the exception of those stated in the charter,) were to be compelled to pass examinations before being appointed, just as the poor girl applicants for $75.00 jobs and the temporary 60-day clerks were.

That if there were any incompetents in the service they would be removed therefrom—not that a lot more incompetents would be slipped into it under the six months clause. They thought that any reliable, competent and honest citizen would be able to enter any competitive examination for any position in the classified service, however high, and, if they obtained a position would be able to advance in salary and position as their worth and efficiency were established; not that, however superior and capable he might be, he must enter at the lowest grade and remain there, like Poe's raven "Evermore."

If the system of promotions as proposed by the commission had been in effect in the religious, military, business and civic world in their respective times, Christ would have died a carpenter; Confucius a plowboy; Mohammed a camel driver; Mrs. Eddy an unknown; Napoleon a private; Grant an nonentity; Morgan a subordinate; Rockefeller a cheap clerk; Mulholland a laborer, and the names of Norton, Bridham, Manning, Evans and Doty would be in obscurity.

If the statement is true that Mr. Pridham "will do everything in his power to carry out the spirit of the charter," why not try to "see the spirit" in article 2, section 4, in regard to his board? "They shall devote all their time during business hours to the faithful service of the people."

Did the Supervisors take oath to support the constitution or the charter? Which? Did they vote a salary of $4000 to Mr. Hill in order to disregard his opinions? If his legal opinions are right can he defend actions against the board after they have acted contrary thereto, and if wrong is he an "efficient" counsel? "Let the people rule!" but shall it be by the constitution or by the charter, or indeed by Mr. Evans.

P. G. DANIELS.

A Girl in Mexico Asks "Why?"

CITY OF MEXICO, Sept. 24.—[To the Editor of The Times:] There are 15,000 to 20,000 Americans and foreigners in the republic of Mexico, and the query on the lips of at least 99 per cent. of them is why? They are all desirous of knowing why the President of the United States issued an order for all Americans in the republic to leave at once.

The order came as a shock. There was no shadow of a doubt as to its meaning. "At once" can be construed to mean but one thing—immediately, now.

On interviewing the Consul-General in Mexico City, he was very insistent that the order be obeyed. "Do not stop to dispose of anything," he urged, "but go home and pack up your clothes and if possible go tonight, do not wait until tomorrow."

In Mexico, the all-absorbing topic of conversation for the past three years has been, and for that matter still is, "intervention by the United States." Naturally, when this warning came for everybody to "beat it" at once, we could think only one thing—intervention, at last.

The men, as a rule, gave little heed to the warning as far as themselves were concerned, but feared for the women, whom we all admit might fare badly were intervention actually to come. Consequently many women and children were packed up within a few hours, and hustled to Vera Cruz or Manzanillo. Some of them are still there, paying the exorbitant prices charged by the hotels (boosted out of all reason on account of the influx of Americans;) others left on the first Ward liner for the States, and others, tiring of the unbearable heat of the tropics in midsummer, the unspeakable food served in the port cities, the inferior accommodations at the hotels, and the outrageous prices charged, returned within a week or so to Mexico City, where they are again in their own homes and enjoying life after their mad escape—from what?

Some of the business men of the capital, frightened by the per-emptory order, gave up splendid positions, paying them from $100 to $225 gold a month, and obeyed the "blind" call of the United States. They are now in the United States, without positions, most of them, and clamoring to be back in Mexico. And if they had their rights the government of the United States should be made to pay their way back, and the salaries for the time they have been gone and out of employment.

And, as a fitting climax, our government offered third-class passage to those desiring to return to the States. Imagine! Third-class passage for decent, respectable American citizens. The Mexican government offered to make up the difference between third and first-class passage for the Americans desiring to go, in order that they "might travel in the comfort to which they are accustomed." A slap in the face? Well, rather!

And still we are all asking each other, why?

Is the United States trying to evade its moral responsibility? Are the United States authorities trying to get all the Americans out of Mexico so that there will be less risk of anything happening which might lead to a cause for intervention?

Do they think that it is an easy matter for several thousands of people, many established in this country for twenty odd years, to give up their work, their business, their homes, their all, to obey an absurd call of the President of the United States to return?

Is not this order to return rather "previous?"

Would it not have been better to offer some little explanation as to why he wanted us all to go back?

Many of us, including the writer, have lived in Mexico for years, and have enjoyed the hospitality of this sunny land and its people, and are earning for ourselves a much better livelihood than we could, under the same circumstances, and with the same qualifications, earn in the United States. The writer, for instance, was never able to earn more than $75 in the United States per month, as a stenographer, while here in Mexico City, for much easier work and shorter hours, she is paid $125 gold. Living is not as high as in the United States (or at least in that part from which the writer hails.) Why, then, should she be chased out of her position, where she is happy and contented, to obey an "exodus" order from the President of the United States? An order which seems to have back of it no more than a desire to be rid of the responsibility of protecting its citizens down here, providing always that they need protection?

Do not think we are not loyal to the United States. Such is not the case; and we have had many chances lately to prove our loyalty by "fighting," not literally, but figuratively, for our country. But we are all asking the same question and we think we have a right to be answered: Why should we all be ordered back to the United States?

NORMA G. BERRYMAN.

Voted for "Divers."

[London Globe:] There was recently a municipal election in the Quartier Saint Fargeau of the twentieth Arrondissement, Paris. That fact probably will not interest your readers greatly, but the result may amuse them; 2937 electors recorded their votes, and the official return is as follows:

MM. Paul Virot, Radical Socialist, 1509 votes; Fribourg, Unified Socialist, 1426 votes; Divers, 2 votes.

Whole sermons on vanity and disappointed ambition might be written on the text of that "Divers."

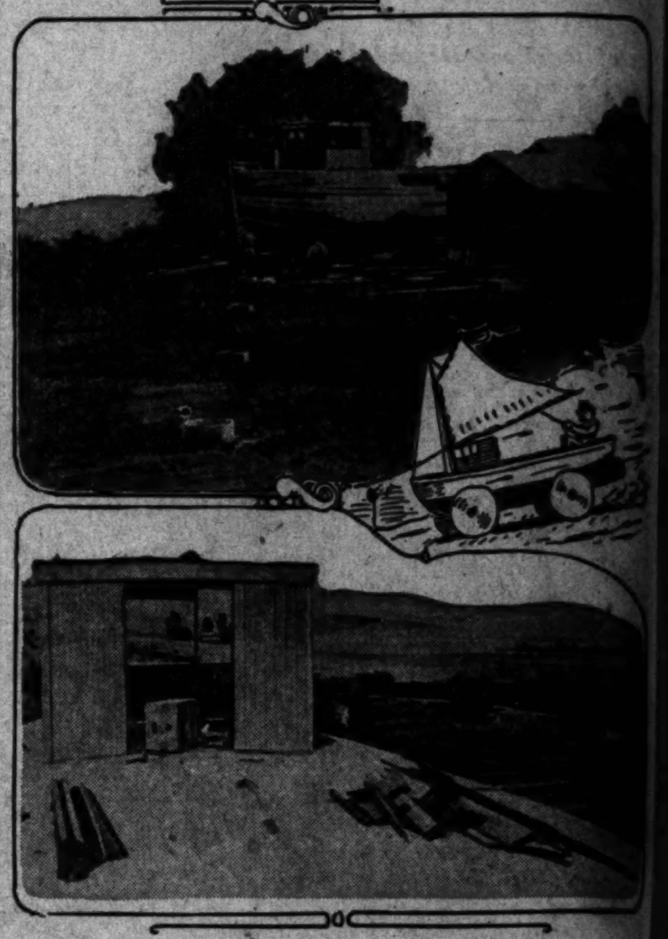
BUILDING OCEAN SHIP FAR FROM THE DEEP.



Unique work in "Mountain Shipyard."

IN A more or less mountainous ranching district forty miles from the sea coast, a man in Southern California is building a boat to make a unique expedition around the world.

The ship is sixty-two feet long and contains six large cabins. It will have storage tanks for 2500 gallons of gasoline and 1000 gallons of fresh water. It will also have a sea-water distilling apparatus, a high power electric generator for a lighting system, one mounted machine gun, and large boxes of earth for growing green vegetables while on a voyage.

When completed the boat will be transported, as a whole, to the coast on two caterpillar engines and its gas engine power plant will be installed after launching. The ship will cost about $7000 to construct.

The owner of the "mountain shipyard" is George Trissel, a rancher living at La Habra, who originally came from Dixon on the Rock River of Illinois. He has planned an expedition similar to that of Jack London. The London expedition, which was undertaken about eight years ago, was overwhelmed by an epide scurvy and abandoned. Trissel made provisions against scurvy providing conveniences to grow tables at sea.

Trissel and six companions tempt the trip around the world the purpose of contributing articles to a magazine and photographs for a motion concern. Trissel says he has fered $100,000 to make the voyage.

The craft will be launched It is planned to take it thro Panama Canal to New Orl the Mississippi and Rock Dixon, where Trissel will say "hello" to some of his chums at his old home. He sail back down the Mississ start round the world.

The craft will be named La which in Spanish means Valley" and is the name orange-ranching district where boat is being built.

On the fore deck of the La there will be mounted a looking automatic machine sel intends to land on some islands and will go prepared tile natives.

GLIMPSES OF SAN FRANCISCO.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 3.—It afforded us great pleasure to read that the State was worth over $3,000,000,000. It was not so pleasant to learn that valuations in Los Angeles county were $804,111,796, while our county totalled but $624,182,130. When not accustomed to playing second fiddle, it is hard to smile. Anyway we are ahead of Alameda county with its $256,363,895, but perhaps after all we may as well consider that as virtually our own.

We may be second to Los Angeles in wealth, but we are the first city in this country in the matter of suicides. San Diego is second, Sacramento third, Hoboken fourth, and Los Angeles is fifth. Poor old Chicago is twenty-seventh, and Washington fiftieth. So anyone can see that we are not so slow after all. Perhaps we will get richer and have fewer self-murders now that the Barbary Coast has been abolished.

The purification of the pesthole on Pacific street, known as the Barbary Coast, started a bitter dispute between the Rev. Aked and the Rev. Stitt Wilson. The latter insists that the capitalistic system causes prostitution and he calls his opponent an obscure paron. Dr. Aked chides Dr. Wilson for sneering at God's work and with Christian forbearance writes: "And the only decent persons in San Francisco are Mr. Stitt Wilson and the prostitutes." Both gentlemen are in the limelight and they propose to keep there.

Police Chief White firmly put a crusher on the plan of the divekeepers to keep their resorts profitable. They proposed to operate "straight" saloons with dance hall attachments next door. For the benefit of the unsophisticated be it known that a "straight" saloon is for men only. The males could get as drunk as they liked and then dance all they wanted to with the females in the adjoining den. So far there is nothing doing in this convenient arrangement.

Mrs. Doolittle of the Alpha Neighborhood Club is fighting the extreme fashions of her sex. She would substitute art for freakiness. Most of the ladies will not aid her and for that matter neither will the men.

There has been such a variety of excitement along sociological lines, that people hardly realized the happening of a municipal election. There were ninety-three patriots eager to sacrifice themselves for fifteen jobs. They all promised a lot, from the man who went to the bat for Tax Collector on the platform of Abe Ruef's freedom to the publicist who shouted equal justice to all and special privileges to none, the latter gentleman being unaware that he was guilty of redundancy. Six offices were filled, but we will have to wait until November before saying "I told you so" about the other nine.

In voting next month for nine Supervisors we must remember that eight incumbents, candidates for reelection, saved this country from an international war. A grateful ought to return them to their ly salaries of $200 per. They $5 to the Greek Consul which paid the poundman for his dogs. He kindly accepted our and leashed the dogs of war.

Wires Carry News of Tariff Changes to Dealers.

Sugar Slumps Instanter and Butter Is Tottering.

Beet Industry's Threatened by Cuban Product.

Within twenty-four hours of the passage of the new tariff law Los Angeles is decidedly feeling the direct effect in a number of commodities and products. The first startling development comes in sugar, which in a few days has dropped 30 points on the wholesale price and yesterday was quoted at $5.35 a barrel for standard cane, the lowest quotation in ten years.

Beet sugar dropped to $5.15, which enables grocers to sell nearly twenty-five pounds for $1. Last year at this time cane sugar was quoted at [illegible] and the year previous at $7.85. Nor do dealers consider this the end of the decline. Great quantities of Cuban sugar are waiting to come in after the 35 per cent. reduction goes at this time and when the commodity is placed on the free list May 1, 1916, all beet sugar factories will be seriously affected.

As a consequence of the slump in sugar there is little heavy buying, dealers figuring that there will be further declines. It is demoralizing to the industry and ultimately may mean its complete destruction, according to J. Ross Clark, one of the heavy stockholders in the American Beet Sugar Company. "No factory in the United States can compete with Cuba on a free basis," he declared.

ON ITS WAY.

Another commodity that may be quickly affected is butter. Nearly two and a half carloads of New Zealand butter are on their way to Los Angeles. In pounds this would amount to about 140,000, which come in on a 2½-cent duty against a former 6-cent duty. It is possible that this will cause a reduction on the price of second-grade butter, but may have little effect on California creamery extra. This is not the only butter which is coming this way, a large shipment being reported en route from Siberia.

Two large warehouses in the wholesale district of the city began to disgorge some of their stored woolens yesterday. The fabrics and dress materials were shipped here under bond and were held awaiting the signature of President Wilson reducing the tariff practically 75 per cent. on these things. There are about $300,000 worth of goods that will be released as rapidly as it is possible for Customs Collector Frank B. Crutcher and his staff of clerks to move them.

The only immediate effect of the law on the citrus growers and shippers was a heavy veil of gloom. Under the old duty of 1 cent a pound the foreign growers had an advantage of nearly 70 cents a box. Cutting the duty in two they will be able to flood the eastern market with their fruit and practically destroy the business of the Southern California producers. Not only will it hurt the lemon business, but Italy and Spain will be able to ship oranges, something that has not been done in the past and something that is already taking place, according to advices from New York, where several heavy shipments of this fruit were reported in bond until the reduction should go into effect.

AUSTRALIAN BEEF.

Australian meat is already on the way here from San Francisco, where [illegible] beeves were held in bond until meat should be placed on the free list, where formerly a duty of 10 per cent. was charged. At least six or eight cars of this beef are on the way here and this will have some effect on the prices of local meats, cutting down that much on consumption of home produced beef. The imported beef will sell about 20 per cent. below the cost of the local product.

There was some talk of a reduction in flour and wheat products generally when it was discovered that foreign shipments of wheat are on their way here. There was a former duty of 25 cents a bushel on foreign wheat, but this has been entirely removed, placing wheat on the free list. Flour is also free and a decided reduction is expected as a result of this portion of the tariff law going into operation.

The shipments from Canada are not expected to increase rapidly until the Canadian government shows a reciprocal removal of the duty, which may come shortly, according to well-informed Canadians who are arriving in Los Angeles already, for the winter months.

No line of local business has seriously felt the tariff as yet, dealers in those lines effected having arranged their purchases and handled their stocks with a view of meeting emergencies arising from the changes.

STEALS YOUNG BRIDE.

TULARE, Oct. 4.—Ray Hodgert, a wealthy cattle buyer of this city, aged [illegible], and Miss Helen Hahefy, a High School girl just past 18 years of age, eloped to Fresno yesterday afternoon, where they were secretly married. The bride is the daughter of one of the wealthy ranchers of this district, who has expressed himself forcibly as having been opposed to the attentions of Hodgert and in consequence the parental blessing has been held in abeyance up to this time. Night before last the girl packed her personal belongings in a suit case, which she hid beneath the porch of her country home. Late at night Hodgert drove to the house in a fast auto and they sped away to Fresno. On account of the prominence of the bride and groom, as well as the disparity in their ages, the elopement created something of a sensation.

TRIVIAL CASE DISMISSED.

GLENDALE, Oct. 4.—On June 30, [illegible] Mrs. Inez Crocker of this place was convicted of running a blind-pig, under the ridiculous ordinance that makes it illegal for a resident to serve liquors to guests at her table. An appeal was taken to the Superior Court, which reached Judge Willis but a few days ago and was dismissed without motion or argument. Judge Willis looked at the papers in the case and dismissed it with the remark that "this court has no time to devote to such a trivial case." This statement is due to Mrs. Crocker, as much publicity had been given to the action of the [illegible].

SURPRISED IN GERMANY.

Found Two Things to Astonish Him—People From Los Angeles and the Spirit of Progress.

Dr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Kurtz, who returned yesterday from a six months' visit to Europe, tell of a pleasant surprise experienced one night in August when they met thirty-eight acquaintances from Los Angeles at a presentation of Wagner's opera, "The Meistersingers," in Munich.

"We certainly were surprised and delighted to see so many of the home folks on one occasion," Dr. Kurtz said. "No doubt there were more than thirty-eight persons at the opera from Los Angeles. We counted that many whom we knew personally. During the summer in Germany I saw about sixty acquaintances from Los Angeles.

"I noted many remarkable changes in the Fatherland since my last visit there ten years ago. It is wonderful what progress has been made. The cities seem to be growing and developing along all lines just as they are in America, and people are getting rich there in the real estate business.

"In my native city of Mainz I saw many new streets, new parks and other evidences of progress. The building there, and, in fact, in all parts of the empire, is very extensive. The structures in Mainz are limited to five stories in height. In the last decade many large, fine hotels have been built. Germany is famous for the number of its small inns, but the large hotel, operated on the American plan, was practically unknown there until about five years ago."

Dr. Kurtz has lived in Los Angeles since 1868 and he has a very wide acquaintance here. He has visited Germany three times since he left there in 1862 and came to America.

Los Angeles Is Pivot.

ways is made possible by the expressed purpose of the counties to augment the State roads with connecting roads. It is now practically certain that the counties will spend more in the next few years than the amount of the State appropriation, so the complete road system now determined upon represents an expenditure of nearly $40,000,000.

In surveying and selecting routes the commission has been wise and consistent from the beginning. Fortified by the terms of the legislative enabling act and its interpretation by the Attorney-General, they have decided to carry the long trunk lines over the shortest and most direct practicable routes.

Specifications for all roads have called for the best of construction, durable and lasting. The first obstacle to menace the speedy fulfillment of the wish of the people to have the highways constructed without delay was presented by the tightening of the money market and resulting inability to place the bonds in the East.

ALL QUESTION OF MONEY.

Under the law, no limit is placed on the amount of work that can be done in one year, the only restriction in that respect being that all the work must be done within the appropriation of $18,000,000.

The bonds are in denominations of $1000, maturing annually from 1916 to 1961, and bear 4 per cent. interest. They cannot be sold, under the law, at less than par.

Of the $18,000,000 issue, about $4,000,000 worth has been sold. Part of this has been used for surveys and preliminary work and in building comparatively short stretches in various parts of the State. To date, more miles of road have been completed in the northern part of the State, but contracts already let will soon result in a preponderance for Southern California.

Since it became evident that the bonds could not be sold in blocks in eastern markets, the commission has adopted the policy of offering them in small lots to business men and financiers in California, agreeing that all the money received from such sales shall be expended in the community putting up the money.

LOCAL PRIDE BIG FACTOR.

It becomes a matter of local pride, therefore, whether or not the work of building the highways can be accomplished as rapidly as intended. Part of the money necessary to build the roads in this county has been made available because a few leading bankers of this city subscribed for a big block of the bonds.

To complete the highway between the exposition cities will require about $2,500,000 in addition to the amount now available. An organized effort by leading business men and automobile owners will be made in this city to arrange for an additional sale of bonds and other communities along the route are expected to materially assist in the movement.

If the desired amount of the bonds can be sold soon the coast highway from San Francisco to San Diego can be completed early in 1915 and a portion of the interior trunk line from Los Angeles north can be ready for use soon afterward. This would give autoists an opportunity to make the trip by either of two splendid routes, touching this city en route both ways.

Other roads, which it is planned to build as soon as possible are the Tejon Pass route connecting this city with Bakersfield and the Rincon road. The latter is about thirteen miles long and will probably be begun soon.

BUILDING NEAR HOME.

An excellent example of the type of highway constructed by the commission is afforded by the work on the county road through Cahuenga Pass between Hollywood and Calabasas. Just west of Hollywood seven miles of highway has been completed by Rogers Bros. Beyond that is another stretch now being built by the Metropolitan Construction Company, John D. Marsh, president. Farther west two other stretches of road extend toward Calabasas, some of it involving heavy construction.

The total system contemplated comprises 2760 miles. Most of the surveying work on the trunk lines has been accomplished. Within a few months all the surveys preliminary to letting contracts on trunk lines and laterals will be complete. About 500 miles has been completed or is under contract and as much more will be undertaken if plans for selling bonds are consummated before the end of this year.

For a large portion of the roads the commission has adopted a pavement consisting of a Portland cement concrete base of a minimum thickness of four inches and fifteen feet wide with shoulders at least three feet wide on each side of the concrete. The concrete base is covered with a thin coating of asphaltic oil of special quality and stone screenings, forming bituminous carpet from three-eighths to one-half inch in thickness to serve as a wearing surface and to protect the concrete.

While the bulk of the mileage now under contract is being built according to the general specifications, in the environs of the big cities thicker bases and thicker wearing surfaces are specified.

STRATHMORE.

STRATHMORE, Oct. 4.—Levi Wheeler, bookkeeper for a local lumber company, and owner of a ranch near the city limits, was thrown from his carriage while crossing the Southern Pacific Railroad right of way last evening and, striking headlong on a rail, received injuries which have confined him to a hospital. Wheeler's feet became entangled in the lines in some manner and when the horse started to run away he was dragged from the carriage. He was removed to Lindsay for surgical treatment. A gash in his scalp required fourteen stitches and there is a possible slight fracture of the skull.

THE "JUST AS GOOD" KIND A FAILURE ALIKE TO BUYER AND SELLER

HERPICIDE

Miss Daisy Hight, Box 202, Perry, N. Y., in a recent letter to the Herpicide Co., says: "I have used your hair remedy, Herpicide, and prefer it to any other, but the druggists here have other hair tonics they want to sell, and it is hard to get Herpicide when I want it. One druggist got me to try ——— but it is not as good as Herpicide. I would like to buy your Herpicide in larger quantities direct from the company if you will send it to me."

GOING! GOING!! GONE!!!

It is the same old story. The dealer in his greed for a few extra pennies induces the customer to buy something else—result—the customer loses the money and the dealer loses the customer. Whenever a dealer suggests a substitute for some standard article the safest thing to do is to walk out of the store.

Fortunately there are but few dealers like those described in Miss Hight's letter. The dealer who tries to sell you an off brand when you ask for Newbro's Herpicide thinks more of a dime than of the real good of his customer.

Newbro's Herpicide is compounded in harmony with the germ theory of dandruff. It is put up in 50 cent and $1.00 sizes and is guaranteed to satisfy. If troubled with dandruff, falling hair and itching scalp, the benefits to be experienced from the intelligent use of Newbro's Herpicide are frequently of an astonishing nature.

Your money refunded if the condition of your hair and scalp is not improved by the first bottle. Herpicide does what it promises to do and what you expect it to do. There is no logic in buying the "just as good" kind, when the genuine costs no more.

Upon receipt of ten cents in postage or silver the Herpicide Co., Dept. S, Detroit, Mich., will send postage paid a trial size bottle of Herpicide and a booklet on the care of the hair to any address. Sold everywhere. Applications at the better barber shops and beauty parlors. The Sun Drug Co.—16 Stores—Special Agents.

THE YOUNG OLD FOLKS' PICNIC.

HALF-THOUSAND GATHER UNDER THE SYCAMORES.

Living Demonstration that Southern California Is the Paradise of the Aged and the Land of Perpetual Youth—Many Couples Who Have Traveled the Way Together.

The statement that Southern California is the land of perpetual youth receives so many and frequent proofs, that it long ago has lost its novelty and belongs in the category of truisms. Overwhelming evidence of its certainty was furnished at Sycamore Park yesterday, when fully 500 persons over 70 years of age attended the outing and old-fashioned basket picnic given by the Old Folks Picnic Association. Of the 500, fifty were over 80 years old and six had attained the age of 90. Twenty couples present had been married fifty years, and two couples had traveled life's pathway together for sixty years. These latter were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Prine, No. 3928 Arlington avenue, married nearly sixty-one years, and Mr. and Mrs. Reitz and W. H. Todd and wife of Pasadena, with a record of fifty-five years of married life, were also present.

Mrs. Laura Barnaby of Pasadena, who is still young at 93, was presented with a bouquet of California roses in token of her being the senior in years of those present.

A direct link with revolutionary days was furnished in the presence of L. P. Phillips, 82, whose father fought in the war for American independence. Daniel Dwight of Spokane, was present as a visitor. He was born in Dudley, Mass., in 1818, and is therefore 95. He has forsaken the frigid north and is living in Los Angeles and San Diego, in order that he may attain to a ripe old age.

Dr. H. S. Tanner, who in 1877 and 1880 filled the papers with accounts of his famous forty-days fast at Minneapolis and New York, respectively, and who now is hale and hearty at 85, was called to the platform and reiterated his pet hobby that if the nation would eat one-third less food it would be possible to give the doctors a furlough for life. "The ministers say," said the doctor, "'the Lord hath taken away,' which isn't so; the Lord wants us to live as long as we can, but we dig our graves with our teeth."

Dr. James M. Peebles of Highland Park, gave his formula for long living. It includes abstinence from animal food, and in its stead a diet of eggs, milk, butter, cream, vegetables, fruit and cereals—"and work, the whirling grindstone which puts an edge on the steel of humanity."

During the past year, N. R. Knox of this city, the originator of the old folks' picnics, died, and recently H. L. Canfield, secretary, was called to Ohio. New officers were elected to fill the vacancies. Dr. William M. Brooks, No. 810 North Bonnie Brae street, this city, was chosen president, and Col. F. W. Hart of Highland Park, secretary.

PETITION IN BANKRUPTCY.

Edward Brundige, an insurance solicitor of this city, filed a petition in bankruptcy in the United States District Court yesterday. He scheduled his liabilities at $22,079.89, and his assets at $13,000. The latter includes household goods that are alleged to be exempt, and land in Glendale, covered for almost its full value with a mortgage and a trust deed.

Check the Symtoms of Lung Trouble

One of the many reasons why Lung Trouble is so difficult to fight is because the disease is often of a very flattering nature. The patient may look well, but in reality is fast losing strength by continued night sweats, fever and cough. These symptoms should be checked as quickly as possible. Eckman's Alterative is beneficial in checking fever and night sweats and it has brought about many complete recoveries. Read this case:—

305 W. 36th St., New York.

"Gentlemen:—I am writing you this testimonial that others may know what your Alterative has done for me. Since I was a very young woman I was a sufferer from Bronchitis. I tried doctor after doctor, getting little or no benefit. Finally I had night sweats, weak spells and lost rapidly in weight and my doctor told me if they were not checked I would have Lung Trouble. Miss Mary Korhamer, who is a friend of mine, recovered after taking your Alterative and insisted that I try it. I am now, after two years, perfectly well, strong and healthy."

Eckman's Alterative has been proven by many years' test to be most efficacious for severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Stubborn Colds and in upbuilding the system. Contains no narcotics, poisons or habit-forming drugs. Sold by The Owl Drug Co., and leading druggists. Write the Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for booklet telling of recoveries and additional evidence.

Public Service: City Hall, Courts

SUMMARY OF THE DAY.

The Mayor yesterday issued a proclamation asking all citizens to join in a demonstration of joy when the dike of the Culebra Cut is blown out of the Panama Canal next Friday.

The City Council, after a personal inspection of Sunset boulevard yesterday, agreed that the proceedings for improvement between Main and Marion ought not to be abandoned. The Council will have a public hearing this week.

Abandonment of two Hammon Act street improvement proceedings was provided for by the Council yesterday and it recommended that similar action be taken in other cases where the bonds have not been sold.

The Mayor has declared that he would be pleased if City Tax and License Collector Taggart resigned, but Taggart says his commission is good until January 1, 1916, and that he sees no reason for getting out.

PROCLAMATION: CANAL OPENING.

MAYOR ASKS CITIZENS TO JOIN IN DEMONSTRATION.

Requests that Flags Be Displayed and Bells and Whistles Welcome Hour When Dike of Culebra Cut, Panama Canal, Is Blown Out and World History Is Made.

The combined welcome of the city's bells and whistles, with an abundant display of the American flag, is the programme for welcoming the hour when the Culebra cut on the Panama Canal is blown out with dynamite and the waters of the Atlantic and Pacific may rush together, thus opening the way for a vast expansion of traffic on the Pacific Coast.

The Mayor yesterday issued a proclamation in which he says:

"Friday, October 10, 1913, the date the dike in the Culebra cut on the Panama Canal is scheduled to be destroyed by dynamite, will form an epoch mark in the history of the world, particularly in the United States, and a never-to-be-forgotten day in Los Angeles and vicinity—this because of what it means to the citizens of the great Southwest in a commercial way and protection for the Pacific Coast.

"The Chamber of Commerce of Los Angeles and other civic and commercial bodies have undertaken to provide for a celebration to be held that day in appreciation of the fact that the Panama Canal is almost completed, and ask that all patriotic citizens join in observing this memorable occasion in a manner that will fittingly demonstrate their interest.

"Therefore, I, as Mayor of Los Angeles, call upon the patriotic residents of our city to display flags on that date from their homes, stores, shops and factories; and at the proper time—watch the newspapers for the hour—blow whistles, sound automobile horns, ring bells and make such other demonstration as will be within the law and ordinances in celebrating this event.

"Also, I respectfully suggest that the Board of Education arrange for a special programme in the schools that date so that our boys and girls may be fully informed of the importance of the day in the world's history."

THEY ALL AGREE. SAY WORK SHOULD PROCEED.

Six members of the City Council after adjournment of the session yesterday made a personal inspection of Sunset boulevard, between Main and Marion streets—the district where the Board of Public Works recommends that present improvement proceedings be abandoned and new ones be started that will not requrie the cuts and fills proposed under the existing plans. The entire six members were of the opinion that there should be no abandonment of proceedings, but that the project should be pushed forward with the utmost vigor, as this is the connecting link between the downtown district and the paved section of the boulevard.

It is probable, however, that both sides of the proposition will be given a public hearing before the Council prior to final action upon the recommendations of the Board of Public Works for abandonment of the present proceedings.

WOULD RETURN MONEY. MAY ABANDON PROCEEDINGS.

The Council took action yesterday that opens the way for abandonment of numerous street improvement proceedings under the Hammon act, wherein property owners have had their money tied up for months and in some cases almost two years, without getting any work started towards the improvement of their streets.

The Council adopted the report of the Finance Committee, recommending that the proceedings for the improvement of Bellevue avenue, from Reno to Dillon streets, and Allesandro avenue, from Angelica to Reservoir streets, be abandoned and the money paid into the City Treasury therefor be returned to the property owners who paid cash direct instead of allowing their property to go under bond. The report also recommended that similar proceedings be taken in all other similar cases, where possible, and the bonds for the work have not been sold.

While this will clear up the difficulties in various street proceedings where the property owners demand that the work be done or their money be refunded, it still leaves a mix-up in cases where portions of the bonds have been sold but the remainder are unsold. The law required that all money for the proposed improvement must be in the hands of the City Treasurer before the work on the street is started by the contractor. In the case of East First street and several others a portion of the bonds for the improvement have been sold, while the balance remain unsold. These bonds are bearing interest, and just what steps can be taken to abandon these proceedings is an unsettled question.

WILL TAGGART RESIGN? IT WOULD PLEASE MAYOR.

Will City Tax and License Collector Taggart send to Mayor Rose his resignation, in compliance with the expressed wish of the Mayor? This is a question that is being asked at the City Hall.

Taggart says that he sees no reason why he should resign; that his appointment to the office runs to January 1, 1916. But the Mayor has plenty of hungry patriots that would not be averse to taking Taggart's place in the tax collector's office.

Yesterday Mayor Rose sent to Thomas Foss, president of the Independent Civic League, a reply to inquiries about the tax collector's office, in which he says:

"Replying to your letter of inquiry of the 3d inst., will say that I have no means of knowing whether or not there has been a grand jury investigation of the tax collector's office. This office has not received a report of the grand jury work and does not know that any official investigation was made. This information may be obtained from the District Attorney's office.

"If the City Auditor is in possession of a report concerning the condition of the tax collector's office, I do not know it, and suggest that you apply to Auditor Myers for this information.

"Concerning my utterances about the City Tax Collector resigning his position, I have stated that I would be pleased if he did resign."

Approves the Transfer.

The Public Utilities Committee of the City Council yesterday recommended that the Council give its formal approval to the transfer from Henry M. Dennison to the City Railway Company of the franchise for a double-track street railway in Main street, from Thirty-sixth place to Slauson avenue. Dennison secured the franchise on behalf of the property owners who wanted the line extended on South Main street, and then transferred it so that the road could be built.

Bulkhead Straightened.

The work of straightening about 100 feet of the bulkhead on the Mormon Island channel wharf was completed yesterday. When the fill back of this bulkhead was made it was subjected to an immense pressure from the mass of dredgings so placed, and that portion of the bulkhead along the old creek channel, which had a base of silt eventually bowed out about eighteen inches. Cables were attached to the concrete wall and to "dead men" back in the fill and the wall was gradually forced back into true line.

Will Ask for Bids.

The City Council yesterday authorized the Board of Public Works to advertise for bids for street lighting for a period of two years from the first of next January, with the provision that the city may take over the contract at any time after one year; and providing that the power company securing the contract shall install during 1914 equipment for 550 lights, which the city is to pay for when the contract expires.

UNIQUE SITUATION IN SILVER LAKE PARK CASE.

Decision in Favor of the City May Kill Pacific Electric Railway Project to Build Subway—Traffic Demands Its Construction, Says Shoup on Stand.

The city is in the unique position of opposing the Pacific Electric, which is fighting in Judge Works's court for the right to build a subway through the land sought to be condemned for the Silver Lake Park improvement, while at the same time favoring the subway and hoping the law can be interpreted to permit it to be done. City Attorney Stephens stated to the court yesterday, after it was agreed to permit President Shoup of the Pacific Electric to take the witness stand and explain why it was imperative the subway should be allowed to proceed, that it was the policy of his office to favor the subway and he would not be aggrieved if the law could be found in favor of the corporation.

The court will determine, after hearing Shoup, whether or not the circumstances show that the subway had so far progressed that it could be called a public use. The new city charter stands in the way, as it provides in so many words that a public park shall be used for park purposes only. This seems to include the surface as well as underneath the ground. A fine point of law has been raised. If it is decided in favor of the city, it will kill the subway project. Judge Works stated he would rule regardless of whom it hit, but at the same time he said he was in favor of a great public improvement such as the subway promises to be.

Shoup testified that the increase in the traffic will justify the construction of the subway. The work ought to be started as soon as it is practicable to finance the operation, he said, and he expressed the opinion that by the time the subway is completed, it will justify the great need for it. The land was deeded to the corporation by Hulda Smith under the agreement that the subway was to commence and be completed within a certain time, otherwise the property was to be deeded back to the owner. The objections of the city to Shoup's evidence for purposes of appeal were overruled.

JAYNES WILL FILED. ESTATE IN EQUAL SHARES.

The petition for the probate of the will of James Jaynes was filed for probate yesterday, showing an estate valued at $90,881.98. Real estate on Wall street, near Fifth, is valued at $24,000, and on Sixth street near San Julian at $65,000. The estate is divided under the will into forty-eight equal shares, the widow, Mrs. Mary O. Jaynes, and the two sons, James A. and Isaac D. Jaynes, each receiving twelve shares, and the grandsons, Raymond Pruden, Romain and Rollo Wilson and Glen C. Jaynes, three shares each.

Jaynes reserved a fund of $500 from the income of the estate to pay the taxes, improvements and repairs. If any of the heirs contest the will, they are to forfeit their shares and to receive $1 each. Their shares will be divided among the other heirs. The wife is to use the home place at No. 319 East Sixth street during life, or until the estate is settled.

THREE DAMAGE SUITS. FOR ALLEGED INJURIES.

Three damage suits of $25,000 each were filed yesterday. Harvey E. Carpenter alleges that while boarding a street car at Main and Fifteenth streets May 2 last, he was struck and injured by a machine driven by J. V. Elliott.

Frank B. Churchill alleges he was struck by a Pacific Electric car while crossing the track at Twenty-sixth and South Main streets, August 15 last.

H. G. Bodlin, administrator of the estate of Frederick A. Veltz, alleges the Puente Mercantile Company is responsible for the death of Veltz while riding a motorcycle near E lake Park October 21, 1912, struck by the concerrn's auto, by W. D. Cross.

ADVENTURES OF A REFORMED EDITOR.

BY EUGENE BROWN.

In the transition from swaddling clothes to top boots, each little community has that period when nothing can satisfy local pride save the organization of a brass band.

In our dainty hamlet of Eagledale we are now in that interesting and exciting stage.

I fancy that the neighbors figure that it is better and less boistiferous for the musicians to be tooting together and at one time, rather than drawing it out through the twenty-four hours of the day and night, with individual efforts on a variety of instruments—mostly of torture.

For instance, Pericles Higgins, who works on a morning paper, insists on blowing a few bars on the K-flat cornet before he retires, which is about 3 a.m. The blare not only shatters the dreams of Mrs. Cynthia Pillsbury, but starts off a battery of Plymouth Rock roosters, who add their lusty voices to the desecration of the dawn.

On the other hand, there is Jasper Waterbury, who comes out on his porch at 5 o'clock in the afternoon with his pipe and tuba and takes alternate whiffs on the two tools of disturbance.

Therefore, under the circumstances, it was natural that the neighborhood should encourage a fusion of forces, and, accordingly, I was invited to put the Eagledale cornet band on the musical map.

This leading in brass is a new business to me. I remember back East the "leedle Cherman band" was always the earliest evidence of the coming of spring. In fact, it would show up on the street while winter still had its grip on the world, and I have seen the shivering musicians spieling on mornings so bitter cold that the notes would freeze in the air. They would thaw out when the sun was high, so that you would hear the music two or three hours after the band had disappeared.

The leader, or kapellmeister, was a flaxen-haired runt about thirteen hands high, who wore a flat cap with a military visor. He had ear-muffs attached to it and they were always down while the band was playing. I think this was for the purpose of shutting off some of the racket. But when the music ceased he would raise his muffs so that he might hear the faintest call to refreshment.

This leader was the only man I ever knew who could wear yarn mittens and play the piccolo at the same time. The band usually numbered five pieces, and his associates in crime were heard on the cornet, the trombone, the tuba and the fife. When they took up a collection they would always send two on the mission, to make sure of a return. When the morning lunch hour came around the Teuton troubadours would draw up in front of some wienerwurst emporium and soulfully blow their lungs away until the proprietor would offer them hospitality in self-defense. Then they would come out with the foam congealed on their lips and would cheerfully toot "Oh, Where, Oh, Where, Has My Little Dog Gone?" as a farewell. This touching ballad was, in fact, a favorite of the band, and when we heard it from the street on a frosty March morning as we were thawing out the furnace, we could smile genially at one another and murmur: "Spring has indeed came."

But out here there are no seasons, and the band can cut loose most any day. So our bunch of welkin-ringers are looking for a busy year, and we will practice up preparatory to entertaining the Panama exposition.

In casting the roles in our band the members gave me a trick part that will keep me from sleeping on the job. I am assigned to play the slide trombone with my hands and face and the bass drum, cymbals and triangle with my hind legs.

You remember the old-fashioned one-man band, with his nerve-wracking battery of tools?

Well, I'm to be it.

Our band meets wherever the big pitcher happens to be. We were at my house last night and when we had spat on our hands and prepared for the fray, I called for the execution of No. 13 of our music-book. I use the word "execution" advisedly, because the selection was not only executed, but was butchered in the doing. No. 13 is "The Last Rose of Summer," and is something I am very fond of weeping over ever since I paid $6 to hear Mme. Patti sing it.

Well, we apparently got off all right at the first score and kept pretty well together until the first turn. About seven bars from the plate there seemed to be a little split up and the ensemble sounded like the wild man of Borneo working overtime at riveting boilers.

I waved my arm in anger and called for a fresh start. This time we rounded the first buoy and were coming up on the green with a delightful pianissimo passage when Waterbury's tuba suddenly burst forth in a long wail that sounded like a couple of hyenas dying together. At the same time some of the neighbors began to rally in front and fire rocks at the windows.

I ardently motioned for a halt.

"Somebody is off the key," I remarked, sternly, looking at Waterbury.

"What are you fellows playing, anyhow?" asked Waterbury, truculently.

"No. 13," said I.

"Sure," retorted Waterbury, "but what is it?"

"Why, it's 'The Last Rosy Posy of Somewhere,' you numskull."

"No such thing," shouted Waterbury, triumphantly; "you fellows are all off."

And with great cheerfulness he produced his book in which No. 13 was "Say Au Revoir, But Not Good-by."

And all the time he had been wearing out the life of that woeful ballad with his ponderous instrument. It appeared that his book was numbered differently from the rest.

After we had pacified the neighbors we were allowed to proceed with the rehearsal.

There's a vast difference in tastes when music is concerned. Personally, I like such safe and sane fragments as "Sweet Alice Ben Bolt," "Kathleen Mavourneen" and "Silver Threads Among the Gold," but Bud Moore, who has a phonograph, and also plays the clarinet, is crazy for such stuff as "I'm Your Woolly Babe" and "Come to My Double-Decked Harem." He says that only jays and relics of Rameses will stand for my line of goods and the only real things are the ragtime and tango stuff.

We have to scrap about it every time we meet and he has got several of the band boys to his way of thinking.

But I won't stand for it.

When the Eagledale cornet band goes to the Panama exposition we will march to the station to the sweet but inspiring notes of "My Old Kentucky Home," or else there will be a civil war and internecine conflict that will knock the spots out of Spottsylvania.

Famous Shoes at Panic Prices

Believing the time has come when the insistent demand of the consumer alone will force regular retail stores to carry their shoes or lose business, both the "Queen Quality" and "Bostonian" organizations now consider it unnecessary to conduct retail stores of their own and will hereafter concentrate all of their energy in production alone. They know the merit of their shoes and understand human nature well enough to trust the consumer's judgment. They know that any man who once wears "Bostonians" or any woman who once wears "Queen Quality" cannot be easily persuaded to buy other brands. These two famous brands so far out-class all other shoes that increasing demand is absolutely as certain as the law of gravitation.

Important Find.

THREE MILLION YEARS OF AGE.

Skeleton of Ectoconus Unearthed in Mexico.

The Mastodon a Youngster Compared by Ages.

Lived in a Little-Known Period of the Earth.

The mammal in question is known as an ectoconus, an herbivorous creature that lived 3,000,000 years ago. In fact, in geological time it is thousands of years older than any other mammal skeleton discovered up to now. Only in Northern France and in Belgium have any fragmentary evidences of mammals nearly that old been found. The 200 specimens collected by the museum's party in New Mexico include a complete skeleton of the ectoconus, which will take its place in the mammalian hall as one of the museum's most treasured possessions.

Prof. Osborn, who has just returned from a two months' visit to three regions in the West where museum expeditions are at work, was greatly gratified by the find. He said that Dr. Walter Granger, who had found the complete skeleton of the four-toed horse some years ago, had also been at the head of this expedition in New Mexico.

"The ectoconus," said Prof. Osborn, "dates from the very beginning of the age of mammals. The skeleton was discovered in a stratum not far removed from that in which the remains of the dinosaur of the reptilian period were found. It showed that the ectoconus followed shortly after the reptilian period came to a close. The discovery rounds out a very little known period in the world's history. It is of great significance, and high praise should be given the men who discovered it."

Prof. Osborn said the ectoconus, judging by its skeleton, somewhat resembled the wolf in size and contour and was peculiar to the North American continent, and was of a type no longer existing.

The skeleton was discovered 2000 feet below the surface of the earth. It was found on the side of a bluff. Remains of the nearest existing mammals have in the past been found at 1200 feet.

The present arid region where the important discovery was made at the time of the ectoconus was traversed by a stream somewhat in size and shape like the Orinoco River of South America. The ectoconus lived in large numbers in this land of plenty at that time.

Prof. J. H. Sinclair of Princeton University was one of Dr. Granger's expedition.

The discovery about completes the museum's work in that part of the country, where excavations have been conducted for three or four years. All the specimens have come to the museum.

Prof. Osborn also visited the Niobrara region in Western Nebraska, where a museum party under Albert Thompson has been at work. He was shown the bottom of an old stream which was exposed through the use by the expedition of 500 pounds of nitroglycerine. Here had been discovered skeletons of the morpus, an herbivorous animal larger than the rhino, and specimens of the pygmy rhino. They existed in a period midway between the mastodon and the ectoconus. Three of each will be exhibited in a group to go in the center of the mammalian hall.

Mrs. Kline, the wife of the new Mayor of New York, is an "old-fashioned woman." She believes that the charm of modesty and the dignity of womanhood are not appreciated as much as they should be, and she also believes that the place for a woman "is in her home."

Eat and Get Thin

This is turning an old phrase face about, but modern methods of reducing fat have made this revision possible.

If you are overfat and also averse to physical exertion and likewise fond of the table and still want to reduce your excess flesh several pounds, do this: Go to your druggist (or write the Marmola Co., Farmer Building, Detroit, Mich.) and give him (or send them) 75 cents. For this modest amount of money the druggist will put you in the way of satisfying your ambition for a nice, trim, slim figure. He will hand you a large case of Marmola Prescription Tablets (compounded in accordance with the famous Marmola Prescription), one of which you must take after each meal and at bedtime until you begin to lose your fat at the rate of 12 to 16 ounces a day. That is all. Just go on eating what you like, leave exercising to the athletes, but take your little tablet faithfully and without a doubt that flabby flesh will quickly take unto itself wings, leaving behind it your natural self neatly clothed in firm flesh and trim muscles.

BRAVERY LEADS TO CAPTAINCY.

YOUNG ANGELENO GOES UP IN THE BALKANS.

Leaves Position as Pressman Here and With Other Greek Patriots Fights Valiantly for His Native Country—Now Preparing to Return to This City.

From a position in The Times pressroom to captain of a company in the Balkans within a few months is the history of Photis Gkonos, who was one of the first members of the local Greek colony to hear the call for volunteers from his native land and respond to it with true patriotism.

Capt. Gkonos is preparing to return to this city in the belief that trouble in the turbulent Balkan states is practically at an end. When he marched down the street with several hundred of his Greek friends less than a year ago he marched as a private. A few more than 100 Greeks left this city then for their native land. They were needed and within two or three days of their disembarkment at Corfu they were facing the enemy and getting their blood baptism.

At first Gkonos was in service with the united Balkans against the Turkish foe. In a battle near Salonika he received his first wound, a rifle ball through the left shoulder. His fearless energy in battle, his desperate courage in a charge and his resignation to the dictates of fate stamped him as more than an ordinary soldier and he received his first promotion to sergeant.

He was in the battle at Lilas Bourgas, faced the Turks at Tchataldje and when, with the fall of Scutari, the war was considered almost over and his period of enlistment at an end, planned to return to America. Then came the trouble with the Bulgars, and he remained.

Twice in the ensuing encounters he was wounded, once in the thigh and once in the foot, the first wound inflicted on a scouting expedition near Bielarlokshka and the second near his home, Karkoure.

When this wound had healed, about two months ago, he found himself carrying the title of captain, and in command of the company he started with as a private. The company was mustered out several weeks ago and the soldiers were planning to return to their homes when the order came from the government not to leave.

Capt. Gkonos and the majority of the Los Angeles contingent of volunteers are still waiting for the next turn of the wheel in the lottery of war. Of the group that left here, about fifteen have been killed and the majority have received wounds that will mark them during the remainder of their lives as veterans of a great struggle.

According to letters written by Capt. Gkonos to some of his relatives in this city, he would like to return here immediately, but, placing country before home and friends, he is determined to remain until the final signature has been attached to the peace treaty. He anticipates little more fighting in the Balkans and mentions the fact that several thousand soldiers, who enlisted in America, have already returned, while others will do so as soon as possible.

According to John Lopizich, president of the International Bank, a number of Servian and Bulgarian volunteers have also returned to this city, among them Bozo Sentich, who prior to leaving Los Angeles was in business here for twelve years, and who headed the local group of Servians who answered the call.

Boy, Finding Valuable Package of Securities, Amuses Himself by Cutting Out King's Head From Them.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

ROME, Sept. 21.—Some weeks ago Signor Vitali, a rent collector at Stradella, near Pavia, gave the driver of a carrier's cart a packet wrapped in a newspaper, requesting him to hand it in at a bank in the latter town. The packet contained $200,000 worth of bonds.

The driver forgot all about the commission, nor did Vitali trouble himself further till the other day when he went to the bank to draw the interest—nearly $2000.

Today the mystery was solved, when a man living at Pavia brought a box of paper snippings to the local municipality, explaining that he found them under the mattress in his son's bedroom. The boy had picked up the packet on the road on his way home from school, and, not realizing its value, had been going through the bundle cutting out the head of the King of Italy from the stamps.

UNABLE TO FIX GAS RATE NOW.

Utilities Board Reports to City Council.

More Time Required to Secure Necessary Data.

May Be Ready When Wholesale Price Is Made.

Declaring that it will probably be impossible to get the data for its tabulations on the subject of natural gas rate-fixing before October 25, and that by that time the State Railroad Commission may have made its announcement of rates for delivery of gas to the city limits, the Public Utilities Commission yesterday completed its report to the City Council in reply to questions propounded by the Council.

The report, which will be presented to the Council tomorrow, asks that [illegible] for some definite conclusions on their part, and declares that a rate [illegible] now would be in force for one full year. The report says:

"In compliance with a resolution [illegible] by your honorable body on [illegible] 3, 1913, we submit the following data in reply to the three definite questions contained in said resolution:

"First—Has the said board data at hand upon which it can fix a rate for the distribution of natural gas?

"Second—If it has not, when in its judgment can it be in possession of sufficient knowledge to do so?

"We have not, at this time, what we deem sufficient data to fix a rate for natural gas service to consumers in Los Angeles. We have a valuable [illegible] of the property of the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation, both manufacturing plant and distributing system, based upon an inventory of the property as in existence on December 31, 1910, to which has been added the actual additions and extensions to the property made during the years of 1911 and 1912; which gives us a complete schedule of the property making up the system to December 31, 1912.

"A valuation placed on this property as to date December 31, 1912, plus the operating expense, and also considering the operating revenue for the year 1912, was used by this board as the basis for making the rate for the year beginning July 1, 1913, and ending June 30, 1914.

RATE IMPOSSIBLE NOW.

"To make a rate for gas service at this time, it will be necessary to bring the valuation of the property down to date, by adding extensions made during the present year. This has made it necessary for us to do a great deal of additional work on account of the fact that heretofore it has been the practice to make a statement covering additions to the property once each year, and that at the end of the calendar year.

"To bring the valuation down to date of October 1, 1913, the date which we have set for closing this inventory, it is necessary for us to make up schedule of the additions to the property, and gather data relative to operating expense and revenue to that date instead of at the end of the year.

"It will probably be impossible for us to get a complete statement of additions and operative results to October 1 into our tabulations and calculations before the 25th day of October. For the reason that the results of the operation of the plant for the month of September are not fully tabulated by the gas company prior to the 20th day of October, which will be the earliest day on which this necessary data will be available for our use and consideration.

"It has been our idea that we would be in possession of all necessary data by the time the State Railroad Commission has announced a decision as to the wholesale rate for gas at our city limits, based upon the hearing of this matter to be held on October [illegible], 1913.

"We have been working for some time gathering and tabulating data which we have deemed it necessary we should have upon which to base a rate with the idea that it was advisable, if not absolutely necessary, for us to have the wholesale rate which is to be established by the Railroad Commission, to use as a basis for the retail rate here.

"There are but fifteen working days between this date and the day set for the hearing before the Railroad Commission, and we cannot close up our inventory and valuation before that date, as we have arranged our plans for this work upon the basis of being ready with our part of the rate immediately upon the announcing of the wholesale rate by the Commission, which we have every reason to believe we can accomplish if we are not hindered by too many interruptions.

ASK COUNCIL'S ADVICE.

"Third: Is there any assistance which the Council can furnish that will enable the board to more promptly proceed to fix such rate?

"There are some phases of the matter of fixing a rate for natural gas service at this time upon which we would like to have the advice of the Council, viz:

"Is it the desire of the Council that a rate should be made upon the basis of the present mixture of natural and artificial gas?

"If so, should we arrange to fix a rate based upon a sliding scale to accommodate the percentage of natural gas introduced into the service from time to time?

"Or, is it the desire of the Council that the rate to be fixed at this time shall be based upon a service to be [illegible] of natural gas?

"It is our understanding that a rate [illegible] for any given commodity must [illegible] for not less than one year. [illegible], if this understanding be correct, it might be that a rate for gas service fixed at this time would [illegible] to the disadvantage of the [illegible] or rate payers before the expiration of one year.

"What is the desire of the Council as to how this feature of the situation should be taken care of in a rate to be made at this time?

"We assure you that there is no [illegible] upon the part of this board to [illegible] the fixing of a rate for natural gas service longer than is actually necessary or advisable, and that we will appreciate any assistance or advice which you can give in the matter."

FOR WOMEN AND MEN.

Facts, Features and Fancies.

BY OLIVE GRAY.

DAILY BEAUTY HINT: Before you decide in regard to the face-powder that you use, daily, let some good beauty specialist take stock of your complexion and decide for you just which tint you shall adopt. I know a girl whose appearance was greatly improved by a change from white to brunettte powder. Another who had been using a deep flesh tint which gave her a too florid appearance, was a different looking person when she wore pure white.

"This is the day of innuendo!" said the faultfinder. "Innuendo in speech, upon the stage and in dress."

Rather a startling statement, this, but as he explained his views I was inclined to agree with him.

"The most innocent today," he proceeded, "discuss every hidden topic with gusto and sangfroid, and it has become the fashion for even the most modest of womankind to speak in parlance risque."

He was an elderly beau and so was himself allowed especial latitude of speech.

He continued critically: "Time was when a lady of the fashionable world would have scorned to have her portrait appear upon the adjacent page, or even in the same publication with a celebrated actress, but now you cannot tell, as you glance over the columns of any popular magazine or paper, whether this one be an actress or the hostess at the latest society function."

"Well?" I asked.

"It is not," he proceeded still more critically, "that the stage has become so elevated—on the contrary, I blame the stage for much of the laxity in speech and in morals, as well as dress."

His criticisms were becoming caustic.

"Time was when a woman was ready to resent any intimation that she stepped outside the beaten track, the most conventional of rules, in any way, but now she rather encourages the idea that she is—well—at least as the saying goes, 'a good sport.' Just how much or how little this may mean, she and she alone can know."

He sighed in conclusion to his harangue, and added as an afterthought: "Why, innuendo extends even to the matter of women's clothes. Really Priscilla-like dames are unblushing in allowing the simulation of undress in the flesh-colored linings of their waists and the glimpses of petticoats which look like less than they really are. I sympathize with my friend from the Wyoming wilds who said, when spending the winter here, that he felt like dirking these fashionable women who allowed themselves to seem so much worse than they were."

Men's Gifties.

If you are looking for a gift for him, you can do no better than to search among the new card cases in one of the Broadway jewelry establishments where a large line of novelties is carried.

One need no longer confine one's selection to cases of plain leather, since all the newest tints are to be obtained, purple being especially popular. In finest quality and enhanced by corner tips of gold or silver, these cases are extremely handsome. There are letter cases, to carry in the pocket, which come also in the colored leathers, with gold or silver tips. Any of these would make a useful gift.

Leather Novelties.

Still other novelties in leather are travel maps, which are encased in fine morocco and which fold up so thin that they would scarcely be noticeable in one's traveling bag, and thin books, under title of "My Ocean Voyage," allow one to "reminisce" in brief. There are also sets of handsomely-bound books for containing the lists of books comprised in one's library; sets for expenses, both personal and household; list books for the gifts of the bride, and others for the luxurious naming of the jewels owned by Milady. The motor record is another book which will become valuable as time passes, and you wish to recall the meanderings of your motor life.

Must Have One.

"Oh, I just must have one!" exclaimed the smartly-dressed girl, as she looked into the window of a leading jeweler.

"One what?" asked her companion, trying to follow the direction of the youthful gaze.

"A monocle!"

"No wonder that you said one. What in heaven's name will you do with it?"

"Why, wear it, of course! Upon one of those adorable ribbons, black with a tiny edge of white. All the best-dressed girls are wearing them."

"But do you need an eyeglass with which to see?" asked the companion quizzically.

"Of course not! If I did I could not wear one of those. They're just for smartness," a trifle disgustedly at the density of the elderly one.

Not a Kneesy Way.

"Wait a minute until I see the time," said one girl to another, as they walked along Broadway.

"On the other side of the street we can see The Times tower," her friend suggested; but no! Girl No. 1, was maneuvering to seclude herself in such a way that she could manage, through the slit in one side of her skirt to glimpse the watch worn bracelet-wise upon her knee.

For the Good Housekeeper.

This is the week when the Good Housekeeper will start out bright and early to secure the bargains offered at one of the big Broadway stores, in the way of bedding. There are wool blankets for ever so much less than usual in price; silk comforts, lamb's-wool lined, for fully half; motoring rugs, which are usable for many household purposes on sale for almost half; and, in fact, worthy bargains all along the line just when the family bedding most needs all furnishing.

Adorable Hose.

Of white silk, are they, with pompadour floral effects woven in the natural colorings of the roses and their leaves. Simply charming for party use, with any one of the pompadour panniered dancing frocks!

I saw them in a local shop.

For Less Millinery.

Dressy hats which look as though they were at least twice as much in price as they really are: This is the offering of one of the Broadway stores which has an extremely popular millinery department.

Hats with ostrich bands and upshoots of ostrich upon velvet shapes; others trimmed with ostrich fancies; and, in fact, all the most wanted styles and trims, for so little in price that you will wonder when you see them.

At the same place there is an offering of paradise for less in price than you or I have ever seen them.

For Christmas.

One of the popular stores has a full line of felt Juliets for holiday gifts, all encased in gay holly-printed boxes. The shoes come in every popular tint and in either the high or low cut. The prices also are cut to a fraction less than usual. These warm footeries are acceptable for both old and young, men and women.

Beautiful Neckwear.

"I am told," said the buyer for a neckwear department in one of the big Broadway stores, "that in Paris now, people are compelled to wait their turn, and are given tickets as they stand in line to obtain the plaiting of fine net which is such a fad for neckwear of all kinds."

There is a craze for fichus of net; and almost without exception, these are edged with plaited frills of the same net; and these plaited frills adorn both sleeves and collars of house clothes and garments for street use.

By the way, I have not seen elsewhere so fine a line and at prices so reasonable as at the store mentiond above.

Fashion's Score Card.

Sleeves are fuller about the shoulder, and they are long and close fitting.

Novelty in gowns is gained by the combination of daring colors and materials.

There are quantities of brilliants used in the evening costumes for the older women.

Skirts have either wired tunics or tiers of trimming emphasizing the width of the hips.

Stiff-boned corsets are not worn, as the new gowns show every curve of the natural figure.

The popular corsage ornament is a single flower, measuring five or six inches in diameter.

Long scarfs of brocaded velvet or satin, bordered with bands of fur, are worn with afternoon costumes.

The upstanding collar of lace or pleated frill of tulle, lace or mousseline de soie is in high favor.

The present peg-top silhouette, which is distinctly fashionable, is adhered to in the new evening wraps.

Evening gowns for older women are made of brocade, metal, lace and velvet and show the high waist line.

NEEDY MAN IS GIVEN CHANCE.

DEPUTY DISTRICT ATTORNEY HALTS AN ARREST.

Makes Good the Amount of a Bad Check Out of Own Pocket and Borrows Dollar to Give Unfortunate Person at Least—Three Substantial Meals.

A young accountant whose name may be given as John Johnson for the purposes of the narrative was saved from a felon's cell yesterday through the kindness of Deputy District Attorney Graham. The prosecutor made good the amount of the bad check, which was for $5, and finding that he was lacking change, borrowed a dollar from Deputy Joos to keep the young fellow from starving. The story comes from Joos.

Desperate through inability to secure work and having gone without food for a day, Johnson drew a check for $5 on a local bank and through his acquaintance at a downtown hotel was able to get it cashed.

Stricken with remorse at what he says is his first crime, the young fellow offered to give himself up and be punished. Graham, who talked with the man for nearly an hour, came to the conclusion that imprisonment would not subserve the ends of justice. He told the conscience-stricken Johnson to return.

Yesterday the hotel clerk and Johnson appeared at Graham's office. The young man said he was perfectly willing to be prosecuted. The clerk hesitated because the loss came upon him. Graham looked at his bank book. His account showed he was $5.10 to the good. He wrote out a check for $5 in favor of the clerk.

The latter took it reluctantly and after shaking hands with the man who victimized him, said warmly: "I do hope you will make good."

Johnson looked pale and worn. For two days he had not eaten a substantial meal. Graham fished around in his pockets and found he too was without funds. But pay day comes tomorrow. He borrowed a dollar from Deputy Joos and told him the really pitiful story.

Now Graham is anxious to get a job for Johnson. The man is of good family, clean in his manner of life but unfortunate, he says. He has excellent letters of recommendation and is familiar with all kinds of clerical business. Through accepting a position with a firm in Manila, P. I., the young fellow got out of touch with things here and after pawning all his spare clothes and watch fell into temptation.

PITZERS HELD FOR JURY.

The four members of the Pitzer family, who purport to have much authority over the spirits of the departed, were in the police court yesterday. Judge Frederickson bound them over to a jury trial and fixed the bail for each at $100. Two boys, Lemuel and Henry, are charged with having stolen a motorcycle in Sisson, and will be taken to that town to face prosecution.

ARDENT LOVE REPULSED.

Enough of Good Thing Borders on Too Much for Matinee Idol Aided by Police.

Mrs. Alice Price Logan, a matinee woman of Oakland, was counseled yesterday not to be too aggressive in her love making to Franklin Underwood, a temperamental actor at the Morosco Theater. And the poor woman was advised by the City Prosecutor, because Underwood had appealed for protection against the ardent messages of the woman, who had made of him a matinee idol.

Mrs. Logan was so astounded that Underwood should be appealing for protection that she sat aghast while he related his worries. Having a temperament that was susceptible to the slightest unpleasant influence, he said, he could not endure having Mrs. Logan sit in the front row of the pit each night and admire him through a pair of opera glasses.

Indeed, she sent him dainty bouquets and pretty flowers with cunning little sentimental ballads tucked away in their folds, and for months this footlight romance progressed.

It began in Oakland, but when Underwood came to Los Angeles, Mrs. Logan came also. Mrs. Logan had read somewhere that actors were fickle, but she could not believe such things and thought that as long as the stage endured, her idol would endure as such in her eyes.

Underwood wanted less affection, so Mrs. Logan has promised to withdraw from a paid seat in the pit and confine her messages to glances and their meeting place to the streets.

Mrs. Logan, living at the Pickwick apartments, will be employed in a local theatrical office Monday.

FRUIT PEDDLER CROOKS.

Black Deed of White and Hays, Who Spotted Valuables by Day and Stole Them by Night.

By day George White and James Hayes would stalk through the streets of the city singing the praise of their peaches and their melons. By night they would stalk again, but in selected places. While they were putting forth the praises of "cling-stone peaches, nice fresh peaches, five pounds for a nickel," they would be estimating to a $10 limit the amount of valuables in a place and the ease with which they could be reached.

One of the easy places they picked out for a late visit was the home of Lustin E. Martindale, No. 121 Castro street, Bairdstown. Through it they seized upon several hundred dollars in silverware and jewels.

Then they could not find a suitable "fence"—that wonderful institution of commerce that charges all but 10 per cent. of the value to dispose of the goods. It is the highest-priced brokerage institution in the world. Even then, White and Hayes couldn't find a suitable one, so they tucked their loot under the mounds of melons and grapes in their fruit wagon, and continued their stroll by day and their prowl by night.

Yesterday, detectives, suspecting them, stopped the wagon, interrupted the praise of fruit, and uprooted the loot from its toothsome grave. Both tried to get away, then came back laughing. They are charged with burglary.

HIS LIFE-WORK HERE.

Death Cuts Down Arthur Harris at Height of Career as Decorative Artist.

The late Arthur W. Harris was one of the best known decorative designers in the city, his two works of note being designing and building the altar furniture for the First Presbyterian Church at Pasadena, and the cases and furniture in the Exposition building at Exposition Park, all of which he turned out from his workshop near his home, No. 1165 East Twenty-third street.

Harris was born at Hanover, Ind., July 26, 1867, and came to Los Angeles in December, 1901. He was with the Los Angeles Furniture Company here for four years and later with the California Furniture Company.

Seven years ago he started in business for himself as designer and builder of special furniture and interior decorations, often sending abroad to have his designs and colors carried out in rugs, curtains and draperies to match furniture and woodwork.

Harris leaves a widow and four daughters and many friends. Miss Nema, the oldest daughter, was called home from Portland, Or., to attend the funeral. Harris met his death a week ago in an auto accident.

FRIEDMAN'S DICTAGRAPH.

Sensitive Tailor Declares He Introduced Scientific Methods to Clinch Language of Irate Customer.

By the records of the City Prosecutor's office, Ralph Leavitt, a real estate man, had trouble with his tailor. S. Friedman was the maker of the clothes.

When Leavitt received his new fall garments, he was displeased. He called Friedman over the telephone to suggest what he thought of Friedman's art as an architect of nifty garments. Friedman thought the words uncomplimentary—nay, insulting.

Several times the conversation occurred. Each time, says Friedman, Leavitt would grow more wroth in his manners. He would say cruel things, Friedman asserts, uncomplimentary things, even offensive things. To make sure of his conclusions, Friedman had an extension phone introduced into his office, and on each of the three extensions he stationed young women with shorthand accomplishments to take down the remarks that came from Leavitt. On the strength of the effective dictagraph, City Prosecutor Nimmo advanced a complaint against Leavitt and a warrant for his arrest will follow.

GLOATS OVER KILLING.

Woman Slayer of Former Husband Unrepentant of Violent Deed Alleged Retribution.

Without a cent in her purse nor a friend to aid her, Mrs. Edith Ivy is gloating in the Central Police Station over the death of her former husband, Frank Ivy, whom she shot Wednesday at his home. Not the slightest regret, not the shadow of penitence has come to her as she sits ready for any prosecution that may come.

She invites prosecution, does this strange mad woman, who believes that her life mission has been fulfilled by the mere taking of her husband's life. Years ago, she says, she made up her mind that but one retribution could come to Frank Ivy, and that was death. So she usurped the role of Providence and made his end untimely.

There is nothing for her to live for from now on, she says. She does not desire a home, nor work, nor friends, nor happiness, nor wealth, nor books, nor anything that makes life bearable for most persons. She wants solitude and her own gloating thoughts, she says, and such she is getting.

No one in the woman's ward of the City Jail talks to her. She does not invite conversation. Yesterday she even refused to tell one of the unfortunate young girls there how to stir a batch of biscuits.

She is unsociable and suspicious. What to do with such a woman is still a matter to perplex the police. Of course she will be charged with murder, but it is practically certain that she will be placed in some asylum.

SEE THE LIGHT DE LUXE.

Reluctant to Leave Mexico Former Angeleno Is Escorted Out in Style by Uncle Sam.

The United States government was especially considerate of W. A. Benson, a hotel owner, who, with his wife and three employees, made a spectacular departure recently from Chihuahua. Uncle Sam furnished a special train to carry his subjects as far as El Paso and bought first-class tickets for them from that city to Los Angeles and gave each $20. The Bensons arrived at the Hollenbeck yesterday.

"The American Consul came to me at midnight and told me that a special train would be at our disposal at 8 o'clock the next morning," said Benson. "We spent the rest of the night making hurried preparations for our departure. During the eight hours we not only packed our belongings but took an inventory of the furnishings of the hotel.

"I had not heeded the warning given to Americans to leave Mexico for the reason that I had a five-year lease on the building of 100 rooms and was enjoying a big business. I thought that I could not afford to obey my government and leave. There are very few Americans left in the district where I lived."

Benson went to Mexico from Los Angeles four years ago. He formerly was a grading contractor here.

LEATHER-PAPER COMPLAINT.

M. Berman, a merchant, was arrested on a warrant charging him with selling a paper suitcase as a full leather article. The complaint recites that Berman represented his goods to be all lineal descendants of pure leather, and that as a matter of fact his goods could all claim the forest and the fields as forebears. If Berman is convicted in the courts, all other dealers in cheap traveling bags, who are having "cheap sales," will be investigated and arrested if found to be misrepresenting their wares.

POLITICAL TIPS.

Ohio Republicans are reported to be growing confident of a sweeping victory in the election next fall. They expect to elect their candidate for Governor and also regain many seats in Congress which have been lost to the Democrats. And all of this, too, in face of the alliance between the Democratic and Progressive bosses of Ohio. The latter have agreed to place a ticket in the field in the hope of keeping the Republican party split, in return for a liberal outlay of political jobs, dispensed by Gov. Cox and the Democratic organization.

James Boyle, private secretary to William McKinley when he was Governor of Ohio, and later Consul to Liverpool, has made a tour of Central Ohio and he is convinced that unity is returning. Mr. Boyle said that he found that the people are talking politics and that there has been a wonderful and gratifying revival of Republican spirit, coupled with complete optimism. Quietly the two factions are wiping out the line that separated them last fall; two members of the same family are breaking bread together again, and they intend to take back this year what they gave the Democrats last fall through a party schism, Mr. Boyle says.

There are now three candidates for the Republican gubernatorial nomination in Ohio—former Gov. Myron T. Herrick, now Ambassador to France; Congressman Frank B. Willis of the Eighth District, and Congressman Simeon D. Fess of the Sixth District, who seems to be the favorite. He has taught law and history and a few other things in Ohio Northern University and the University of Chicago, and has been president of Antioch College at Yellow Springs since 1907. He put life into that institution and once declined a call to a more pretentious college at a much higher salary because he believed his path of duty lay among the hills and the trees of Antioch. He was one of the very few Republicans sent to Congress last fall from this State. He is in demand as lecturer and political speaker and it is said nothing can resist him when he gets out on a platform, whether he is addressing business men, educators or the plain common folk, day laborers and farmers.

A peculiar story comes out of Washington regarding ex-Speaker Cannon. It is said that he will be the Bull Moose candidate for Congress to succeed Representative Frank T. O'Hair, Democrat, in the Eighteenth Illinois District. It is explained that the Bull Moose party in the Danville district is in the hands of a coterie of disgruntled Republicans who are, nevertheless, friendly to Cannon, and have made overtures to him to become their candidate for Congress in that district. The ex-Speaker will have the support of the stand-pat Republicans and with the additional support of the Bull Moosers, he might possibly be elected. Otherwise a Democrat will represent the district.

Representative Hobson of Alabama, of kissing fame, has been an announced candidate for Senatorial honors for the past year, and was campaigning against Senator Johnston at the time of the latter's death a few weeks ago. Representative Underwood also proposes to be a candidate for the Senate, which is said to mean a bitter contest in Alabama and a serious disruption of the delegation from that State in the House. Mr. Clayton, who was appointed by the Governor to fill out Senator Johnston's unexpired term, will also be in the race and he is already saying that Underwood's candidacy is not fair to their mutual friends, who have been offering him their support.

Secretary Bryan is not afraid of the thirteen hoodoo. With thirteen letter in his name he left Washington on September 13 for his thirteenth lecture engagement. At the same time a public conveyance was standing at the door of the State Department bearing the number thirteen.

Indictments will be returned in wholesale quantities during the next few weeks by the special grand jury which is investigating election frauds in Chicago. Thirty-nine indictments have already been returned, and it is expected that more than 700 will have been voted before the grand jury concludes its work. A thousand special blanks have been printed with spaces for writing in the names of persons who figure in each special case.

Representative Bailey of Pennsylvania, who helped draft the Baltimore platform, lectures his party on the subject of economy. He fears that it may prove to be as extravagant in office as the Republicans were. And yet in its platform it denounced the Republicans on that score. In calling attention to the matter, Mr. Bailey says that the country took the economy pledge seriously, and declares that unless the President and the Congress make good on it, "we shall be called upon to pay a pretty price next year for our perfidy." Note that word "perfidy." Mr. Cleveland applied it to his party for its refusal to meet his ideas as to tariff revision, and a bitter row resulted. Mr. Bailey is not as powerful a man as Mr. Cleveland was, but perfidy is a strong word coming from any source, and if it is introduced in the debates when Congress reaches the supply bills a commotion may be caused, says the Washington Star.

Congressman Rogers, Democrat, of the Fifth Massachusetts District, has been called down by the Postoffice Department for attempting to use the postoffices of his district as political headquarters where he could meet and confer with his supporters. His request that the department grant him this privilege was refused in unmistakable language.

The State election in New Jersey this year will be watched with great interest because, as was the case a year ago, there is a three-sided fight, the Democrats, the Republicans and the Progressives each having a ticket in the field, says the New York Herald. At the primaries Gov. Fielder was nominated by the Democrats, E. C. Stokes, formerly Governor of the State, by the Republicans, and Everett Colby by the Progressives. Now we shall see whether New Jersey stands as stanchly Democratic as it did a year ago and whether the Republicans are to repeat their performance in the Maine election by practically destroying the Progressive following.

How great a political volcano exists in Tennessee ready to break into deadly eruption is evidenced by the scenes connected with the meeting of the Legislature on September 23. Eighteen men from the mountains of East Tennessee, employed at the penitentiary as guards, stood behind the legislative friends of Gov. Hooper, the first Republican Executive of Tennessee for thirty years. Looking daggers at these men from the mountains were eighteen detectives of the city of Nashville, armed heavily, and there, so they said, "on a mission of peace."

When it was learned early during the morning that two suit cases, said to be full of revolvers, had been carried to the Capitol and locked in a room for the use of the penitentiary guards, the fun started in the House of Representatives. A leading Democratic member moved to investigate the presence of the guards and the contents of the suit cases locked in the office of the superintendent of the capitol.

A storm of protests came from the fusion element of the House that aroused the gunmen, and a riot and probably bloodshed only was prevented by hasty adjournment of the body by Speaker Stanton.

The cause of the array of gunmen was the threat of the Democrats to unseat eight Fusion members for alleged complicity in fire marshal grafe while they were serving as members of the Legislature and the threat of the Fusion gunmen to take the lives of three members of the House.

Judge W. W. Graves of the Missouri Supreme Court is expected to become a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Senator against Senator William Joel Stone. Graves is classed as a member of the Folk wing of the Democratic party, although many of the old guard politicians will support him. He was appointed to the Supreme bench by Folk as a result of having backed him for the gubernatorial nomination and election. The apparent elimination of Joseph W. Folk by appointment to a Federal position clears the boards for Graves, it is thought, and paves the way for a straight-out fight between Stone and Graves for the nomination.

By the publication of "The Two Great Republics—Rome and the United States," a book that contains 304 pages and weighs one pound, Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois has broken into the ranks of Senate authors. While he describes the main purpose of the book to be the comparison of events as they transpired in the one republic and the other, he has put in some choice denunciations of demagogues. One of the causes cited for the fall of Rome was "the influence of a large and constantly increasing class of demagogues, possessed by knowledge of human nature and endowed with skill in the management of men, yet entirely lacking in principle, patriotism or any sense of public obligation." Of their work he also says: "There are limitations to what government can accomplish; there are no limitations to what a demogague can promise."

The election system of Louisiana needs revision, according to the Washington Herald, which says: "To fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Garland, Representative from St. Landry parish, cost the taxpayers over $700. A regular election had to be held for the purpose. There was no opposing candidate, neither was there any other office to be filled. There is but one party in this section of the State and after candidates have been selected there ought to be no need of the force of having an election. Th system does not show ordinary business sense. No wonder the State is almost irretrievably in debt. How long is it to continue? So long as the voters submit and do not try to seek a solution. Where there is but one party and that party selects its candidate from several aspirants, then at that time should the law declare the same persons elected, without the nonsense of having an election."

ANGLIN TALKS TO L.A. GIRLS.

Star Now at Mason Offers Sage Advice.

Stage Too Commercial to Foster Art.

But Reward Comes Quickly After Success.

Since Margaret Anglin's appearance in the "Electra" of Sophocles at the Greek Theater of the University of California, a month ago, and during her engagement in Shakespeare in San Francisco, she has been flooded with applications from young women desirous of taking up the stage as a vocation. A large number of these applications have come from young women in Los Angeles, and in view of such, the following article by Miss Anglin on "The Stage as a Vocation" was secured by The Times. Miss Anglin begins a Shakespearean engagement at the Mason tomorrow night.

BY MARGARET ANGLIN.

There are many reasons why acting is a desirable profession for women. There are just as many reasons why it is not. As a rule the actress receives quicker and more profitable returns for her work than do the women of other professions. Given one opportunity of playing a part, a good part, and being successful in it before a metropolitan audience, and if the actress shows talent at all, her position is, in a measure, assured.

Painters and writers may labor for years before they are known or taste of the sweets of success. They may be casting their best efforts before the public, and die heart-broken failures, leaving behind them mighty creations that slumber unnoted until chance turns the eye of posterity to their hiding place and discovers a priceless canvas or volume.

It is different with the actor. In this, perhaps, lies his greatest compensation. What he accomplishes is done today — now — while his heart beats and the joy of living is his. Afterward he becomes a tradition, a bygone, an unreality and it is not often the public strews his grave with leaves or roses.

PUBLIC IS FICKLE.

And your public is so fickle. It places an idol on a pedestal today, and tomorrow it lies in atoms under its feet. Then the heartbreaks which so often come to an actress. Fame, money, everything the world counts as success, cannot atone for the inevitable end, when that same public seeks out new faces and forgets the old ones.

The writer creates his books as long as imagination holds its seat and he is able to wield his pen. The public cares nothing about his gray hairs, his palsied hand, or his stooped shoulders. And so with the painter. The public studies the great work of a writer, and gazes unraptured on the canvas of a great artist and not at the personalities of their creators; but the actor is himself the picture, which cannot in too great a degree depart from his personality.

There are, of course, exceptions—the truly great people of the stage who hold the esteem and love of their audiences and the public until the very end. These, however, are not the ones in the ranks, but the commanding officers. The profession cannot be judged by their success.

SOME TOUCH THE HEART.

It is within the experience of every votary of the theater that some players touch the heart, illumine the imagination and cast a magical charm over life, so their images linger in memory from youth to age, and are cherished with a kind of worship. The venerable Mr. Fladgate, father of the Garrick Club in London, exalted in this sort of remembrance of John Phillip Kemble. There are still persons who speak tenderly of the greatness of Helen Faucit, John McCullough, Edwin Forrest, Edwin Booth and the classic Rachel, "that white marble statue, veined with fire," and of Mme. Modjeska and Richard Mansfield.

That the standard of acting has retrograded, I doubt. Though the public may have no such ideals to adhere to now as in former days. This, in itself, is discouraging to the ambitious and enthusiastic aspirant to the stage. All the talk of the "old school" and the "new school" of acting is absurd. There is only one "school," and that is the "school" of good acting. To become a pupil in that school, brainwork, enthusiasm, honest endeavor, integrity of purpose and the "straight road" are necessary qualifications. And these are not all. Inside must gleam a light—a flaming torch—the glow of something called talent and personality. Without these, the footlights but emphasize the darkness of the theater.

THEATER TOO COMMERCIAL.

A very serious drawback to the dramatic art of this country is the fact that the theater is on a purely commercial basis. Dollars and advertising frequently bring success to an actor, which he could not obtain on actual merit. For the lack of this commercial advantage the genius of a poorer brother may be buried and lost. And I am afraid that this condition will always prevail, until this country, like Europe, has its subsidized or national theater.

Another unpleasant and unjust custom on the part of some managers is that of not giving straightforward advice, opinions and answers to young aspirants to the stage. This lack of sincerity is cruel, particularly to a young woman.

Of course, we all know that talent often lives and dies undiscovered. The profession is overcrowded. Only so many can find desirable positions.

My advice to the young woman who wishes to take up the stage as a career (I mean, of course, the dramatic stage,) is to ask herself seriously whether she has the courage and the will to meet and surmount the many obstacles which she must be prepared to endure during her curriculum. Then, too, she should be morally sure there is a little lamp burning inside, and then finally ask herself "if the game is worth the candle."

Margaret Anglin,

The talented actress now appearing in Shakespearean roles and who begins an engagement at the Mason tomorrow night. The smaller picture shows Miss Anglin at home deep in the study of costumes for her next season's productions.

THE UNREST OF WOMEN.

Does the Stage Reach Either Cause or Cure?

BY HENRY CHRISTEEN WARNACK.

A MAN may grow gracefully old, wear a double chin, side whiskers and a high silk hat. He may then parade down Broadway with a grand air and a walking cane, the imposing guardian of a long line of shining memories. A woman may not—that is, excepting the double chin. This may be the cause of her unrest, or perhaps the trouble lies deeper and she is inconsolable because she will never be a great-grandfather.

Woman, the mother of man, has neither trouble nor fear, but women as stray types, as individuals and, perhaps I should dare say, as sometimes hertics of nature, are much perplexed about what to do with themselves, since so many of them no longer want a man to do for them.

Nine-tenths of the twaddle about the unrest of women is plain foolishness. We cannot turn nature upside down, not even for Mrs. Pankhurst or the woman president of an American college. The farther we get from the simple standards of nature the farther we will have to travel in order to return to them. Life, however, changes its aspect for humanity at large in every age, and these changes must affect women as well as men.

I was strong for woman's suffrage when I heard about it, and I like what I have seen of it since California made it a law. When it comes to what they call the feminist movement I am disgusted with the idea and the fact. I have no grave apprehension, however, that we are rushing headlong into a feminized world. As far as I can see now the old superstition that "male and female, created He them," had more or less significance a long time ago and there are signs to indicate that this influence will be felt for some little time to come.

Henrik Ibsen started the stage in this direction. Ibsen was always hunting for some disease so that he could make a dramatic diagnosis of the difficulty. At that, I don't think he was a pessimist. It strikes me that he simply wanted to know the root of the troubles of humanity so that men would know where to apply the surgeon's knife. When you are looking at a cause you are generally looking for a cure. Ibsen's optimism, however, is never to be found in any one play. He spent all of his life almost telling us what is wrong and it was not until the very last years that he began to intimate that he possessed a few nostrums. Well, that is much farther than most of us ever get.

Some woman, who had more money and time than she had brains, crossed the ocean to ask Ibsen what became of Nora.

"I don't know," he replied, "she went away."

I think I know and Ibsen's ghost will not return to confound my assumption.

Nora married again and the next time she got a man who could hold her, either by loving or hurting her enough.

People seldom run away from a condition which has been imposed without taking on a very similar condition voluntarily. We almost never like what life sends, so we hurry ahead in order to get something a little worse for ourselves. Nobody walks out into the dawn, feeling sure that the sun will find him because he is a part of the blazing day. No, we all start straight for the sun and want it for our exclusive property. If we got a single ray of it we would have

The Week.

NEW KOLKER PLAY TODAY.

"The Survivors" Has Plot Out of Ordinary.

Margaret Anglin Opens at Mason Tomorrow.

Dillon and King at Lyceum in Girl Show.

Henry Kolker and William Vaughan Pettit's new drama, "The Survivors," will be given its first production on any stage, at the Morosco Theater this week, beginning with the matinee today.

In "The Survivors" Mr. Kolker and Mr. Pettit bring forth a new and daring idea based upon the present day mode of living as indulged in by the millions of persons who form the population of New York, London, Paris and other big centers.

In an extremely interesting, but powerfully dramatic way Mr. Kolker argues that a person living in this "speedy age" cannot long exist, and while this is principally the theme of his play, he has cleverly disguised it with a story that cannot fail to convince, so tremendous its situations, so forceful its lines and so sensational its climaxes.

In writing "The Survivors" Mr. Kolker and Mr. Pettit have practically disregarded all rules, or at least the majority of them, followed by our more modern dramatists, and it is the daring originality of the play, if nothing else, that should make it the biggest of the present day successes.

In one scene alone in the first act the audience is thrilled by the situation between three men, all partners in business, about to face bankruptcy, but who find a way around it by two of the partners arguing the third into committing suicide.

Mr. Kolker will, of course, be seen in the chief role of Wainright Cruger, a part which will give him the best opportunity he has enjoyed since coming to the Morosco. Frances Slosson, one of the most popular leading women on the Pacific Coast, will make her first local appearance in the chief feminine role of Helen Cruger; and Franklin Underwood will make his first appearance on the Morosco stage in the important role of Herbert Caldwell; Harrison Hunter returns to the Morosco cast as Cuthbert Poole; James K. Appleby will be seen as Col. Silas Butterworth; and Florence Oberle and the others of the Morosco organization will be seen in the supporting roles.

The action of the play takes place in New York City at the present day, and the three acts will reveal the best efforts of Scenic Artist Collette.

Mason.

Margaret Anglin will inaugurate the formal opening of the regular season of the Mason Operahouse tomorrow night, when she will make her initial local appearance in Shakespeare as Katharina in an elaborate revival of "The Taming of the Shrew," which will be repeated on Thursday and Saturday nights.

On Tuesday and Friday nights and Wednesday matinee Miss Anglin will be seen as Viola in "Twelfth Night" and on Wednesday night and Saturday matinee as Rosalind in "As You Like It." Miss Anglin has devoted over six months to the preparation of her present revivals and began her present touring season in San Francisco two weeks ago, where all three plays in her repertoire were presented at the Columbia Theater and received the highest critical praise and substantial support of discriminating playgoers.

Each of the plays named will call for the full strength of Miss Anglin's splendid Shakespearean organization, which includes some of the best known classic actors on the American stage. A distinctive novelty in connection with the opening bill—"The Taming of the Shrew"—is that it will be done in its entirety, which means that the "Induction" scene will be presented here for the first time since Augustin Daly's revival nearly a quarter of a century ago, and will introduce the character of old Christopher Sly, the Tinker, one of the most quaint and rollicking characters in all Shakespeare. The role of Sly will be played by Fuller Mellish, who will also be cast for the eccentric characters in the other plays.

The remainder of the personnel of Miss Anglin's organization includes Ian MacLaren, Eric Blind, Ruth Holt-Boucicault, Sidney Greenstreet, Max Montesole, E. Y. Backus, Lillian Thurgate, Wallace Widdecombe, Florence Wolersen, Harry Barfoot, Max Fisher, George Currie, Harrison Carter, Sally Williams, Roy Porter, Brandon Peters and others.

Majestic.

No written word can convey the meaning, the tragedies, the joys and the marvels of the ill-fated Capt. Scott expedition to the Antarctic as do the marvelous motion pictures that will be shown at the Majestic for a week, beginning tomorrow afternoon. Those who have been thrilled by the words of Capt. Scott as recorded in his famous diary and which has appeared in magazines and newspapers, will all the more realize the wonders of that memorable affair when the pictures are once seen.

The pictures to be shown at the Majestic are the only authentic ones. They are exploited by the British Antarctic Expedition Association for the express benefit of the widows and orphans of the gallant men that lost their lives in this endeavor to add to the sum of human knowledge. The films were made by Herbert G. Ponting, a world-famous photographer, and who was selected among all the camera experts of the world to act officially as the photographer of the expedition. These are no mere chance snapshots; motion photography was a part of this extensive scientific expedition.

Assisted by others of the expedition, Mr. Ponting has penned a graphic and wonderfully interesting lecture to be delivered in connection with the exhibition of the films and this lecture will be given here by Charles B. Hanford, well-known as an Evening Near the Sea.

Light ebbs from off the earth; the fields are strange,
Dark, trackless, tenantless; now the mute sky
Resigns itself to night and memory,
  And no wind will yon sunken clouds derange,
No glory enrapture them; from cot or grange
The rare voice ceases; one long-breathed sigh,
And steeped in summer sleep the world must lie;
All things are acquiescing in the change.
Hush! While the vaulted hollow of the night
Deepens, what voice is this the sea sends forth,
Disconsolate iterance, a passionless
  moan?
Ah! Now the day is gone, and tyrranous light
And the calm presence of fruit-bearing earth,
Cry, sea! It is thy hour; thou art alone.

Under a White Umbrella.

If you think the life of the successful landscape painter is one long paeon of joy, prepare to modify your opinion.

Tradition and logic are on your side, of course. From your own limited experience of outdoor life—your two-weeks vacation, perhaps, or your Saturday at fishing—you jump to the very natural conclusion that nothing could be more delightful than the spending of a lifetime there, working every day at the fascinating game of painting pictures. To sit hour after hour under a white umbrella, gazing at the beauties of nature and busily recording them—what supreme human felicity! You envy the lot of the landscape painter, and not without cause.

But temper your envy with discretion. Look for the flaw in the painter's crystal of content, the wasp in his honey, the tacks in his tire. You will find them all, with dozens of other discomforts that are ever unforeseen and unexpected. I grant you that his life flows more ideally than yours and mine, but nevertheless he is a mere man, and therefore "born to trouble as the sparks fly upward."

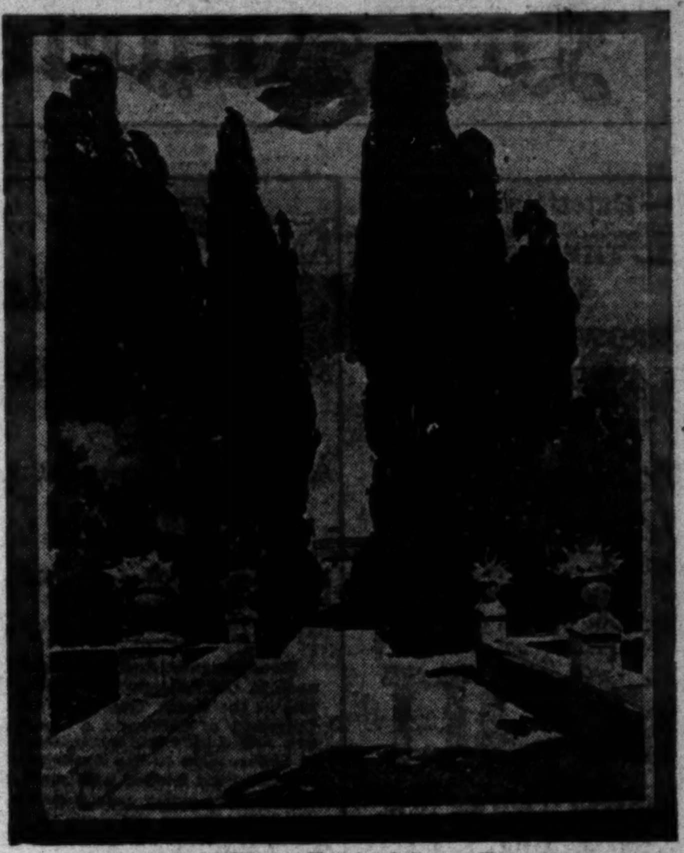
You think, madam, that painting is play. It was, in boarding school, where you sat serenely and tickled a piece of paper with a camel's-hair brush. But hog's-hair and gunny-sack are different. The real painter must dig for his living, using all there is of him in brawn and brain, strength and subtlety, courage and caution. He must forget what he knew of the gentle art of tickling.

Every landscape painter must prepare to be a pack mule—strong, stubborn, unbreakable as to arms, legs and back. Consider the things he must carry, under a broiling sun, three, six or even nine miles, up hill and down dale, through brier and bush, over rattlesnakes and tarantulas. A huge stretched canvas, a big easel, a bigger umbrella, a heavy box of paints, many brushes, a palette, a lunch box, a canteen, a bottle of oil, a bottle of turpentine, a palette knife, paint rags, etc., etc., etc. A freight handler would balk at such heavy miscellaneous cartage. The painter shoulders it without a murmur, and after three hours of tramping sits joyfully down, unfurls his white umbrella and proceeds to paint a masterpiece, or something not quite so good. I tell you, our landscape painters are our true heroes, our men of iron!

He is tired, sweaty, dusty, disheveled, but he calmly proceeds to paint. Suddenly a sibilant hiss warns him that a rattler has taken exception to his method of plying the brush. The snake must be killed that the picture may go on. The dark deed is done, and, somewhat shaken by the encounter, he picks up his brushes again. Then the buzzy mosquitoes assail him in swarms. They are not so easily annihilated as the rattler, and he must barricade himself against their vicious onslaughts by wrapping rags around his neck and face till only eyes, nose and mouth are exposed. This done, he proceeds again to paint.

The wind becomes mischievous and frisky, snatching his canvas from its easel, hurling sand, dust and leaves on to the freshly painted surface, and turning his umbrella inside out. Or a shower of rain hurries his way, drenching him to the skin before he has time to collect his traps, and driving him from his point of vantage to the shelter of the nearest tree, where he fumes and frets and bites his nails for the rest of the day. Or a bull may gallop up and smash his belongings to smithereens. Or people may saunter his way, innocent inquirers who are amazed to find a fellow mortal so bereft of good sense as to want to spend a whole afternoon daubing greasy paints on a canvas. These are more maddening than the bull, the breeze, the shower and the snake combined, for they ask questions calculated to drive the artistic temperament to murder. Also, they persist in standing between the painter and the landscape, and are sorely wounded by expostulation.

Does all this sound like wilful exaggeration on my part? It is the plain, unvarnished truth. A rattler once lodged in Carl Oscar Borg's color box, refusing to budge under the most eloquent entreaty. William Wendt has just returned from eight weeks of sketching on Mt. Ranier, where for the first three weeks it rained cats and dogs incessantly. Clinton Conner, painting a pepper tree half a mile away, naturally saw purple in it, but a young farmer journeyed to the tree and brought back a twig to convince the painter that the pepper was green, not purple! These are but random samples of the landscape painter's every-day experiences.



Villa d'Este. By Carl Oscar Borg.

Are there, then, no rays of sunshine in the life of the painter? Plenty of them—so many, in fact, that he is often blinded by the reflections they cast up all around him, giving him headache and nausea, and compelling him to quit work for the day. Sometimes, indeed, the light, in conjunction with his extreme concentration, hypnotizes him, raising him into such a transport that he thinks he is painting his very ideal on canvas, when in reality the work is "simply rotten." Imagine his utter discouragement the next day, the dream being over, the vision past.

And yet, he had the vision and the dream, and while they lasted he was numbered among the blest. I, for one, do not pity him, for he was mazed with beauty. Rather, I pity the man who never knew the vision of perfection. You were quite right when you envied the artist—any artist—for his life, take it all in all, is indeed enviable.

He has his daily fights, to be sure—with unfeeling nature, with the ignorant public, with unartistic framers (who also have a nasty habit of bill-collecting,) with rapacious dealers, with carping critics—but these are no worse than the tribulations common to all mankind. His work is a constant joy. Ours is, generally speaking, just endurable.

You are asked to temper your envy of the artist with discretion—but not too much.

ART NOTES.

A handsome art gallery will be installed in the Egan building, now in course of erection on Figueroa street. The gallery will be on the third floor and its main room will be some 30x60 feet in dimensions. The first exhibition will be held early in December, when choice pictures belonging to local art collectors will be shown. Other special exhibitions will be given from time to time. The gallery will be in charge of J. Allan Harvey.

The fourth annual exhibition of the California Art Club will be held in the Blanchard gallery, open to the general public from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., October 21 to November 1. The gallery will be closed on Sundays. Press view, October 18 and 20. Private view and reception, October 20, at 8 p.m. Each member of the club is permitted to show three works in sculpture, oil, water-color or pastel. The following men comprise the jury of selection: Franz A. Bischoff, Benjamin Chambers Brown, Edgar Keller, Aaron E. Kilpatrick, Hanson Puthuff, Jean Mannheim, Jack W. Smith and Karl Yens.

At a meeting of the Press Art Club on Thursday these officers were elected for the ensuing year: George Parmenter, president; E. W. Gale, Jr., vice-president; J. D. Johnson, secretary and treasurer. The Press Art Club is unique among the art classes of the city in that its membership consists almost wholly of well-known local newspaper artists and cartoonists, and fortunate in that it has secured the services of Jean Mannheim, who directs the destinies of the advanced class in painting. The club meets at studio 400, No. 431 South Hill street.

The formal opening of the museum in Exposition Park will be simultaneous with the aqueduct celebration. The exhibition by contemporary American painters has been postponed. A loan collection of pictures, including the work of many of our home artists, will be placed in the art gallery.

The art gallery on the mezzanine floor of Hotel Alexandria will remain open every Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m. Pictures by well-known painters of Southern California are shown, among the exhibitors being William Wendt, recently returned from a sketching trip on Mt. Rainier, and Carl Oscar Borg, who at present has a studio in Rome. Wendt is showing landscapes from Mt. Rainier, all new work; Borg has sent to Los Angeles water-color studies of Rome and its environs.

Martin J. Jackson is off on a sketching trip to Monterey, Del Monte, Pacific Grove, Carmel and Point Lobos. He writes jubilantly that the tourists are gone and that he can now paint in this "artist's paradise" without being annoyed by the foolish questions of idle onlookers.

FAMOUS PAINTER HERE.

First Sent to Pasadena on an Interesting Errand—Four Portraits of a Portland Banker.

The arrival in Los Angeles of Mr. Frederick Webster, well-known portrait painter of Chicago, will prove an event of interest to local patrons of art.

A year ago the Woman's Club of Evanston, Ill., sent Webster to Pasadena to execute an important commission. The founder of the Evanston Club is Mrs. Elizabeth Boynton Harbert, now a well-known and beloved resident of California, and prominent member of the Shakespeare Club of Pasadena. Webster painted Mrs. Harbert's portrait in October of last year, and immediately won for himself an enviable reputation as a portrait painter. More than 400 guests were present at the reception given for Mr. and Mrs. Webster at the Shakespeare Club when Mrs. Harbert's portrait was exhibited, before it was taken back to Chicago and hung in the place of honor in the clubhouse of the Women's Club of Evanston.

Webster's career as a portrait and miniature painter is interesting to follow. After preliminary work in the art schools of this country, he spent a number of years at the Royal Academy of Munich, where for a time he occupied a studio with Burbank, the famous Indian painter. Still retaining his identity with the Royal Academy, Webster returned to America to paint portraits of several well-known Chicago people, his subjects being some of the most prominent society women of Chicago and Evanston. While Webster has achieved a high degree of success in his oil and pastel portraits of women and children, many of his interesting portrayals have been in the form of miniatures, the most interesting, perhaps, being that of Portia Bartlett, the small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Bartlett of Chicago. In this picture Webster has caught the winsome charm of childhood and preserved it in a portrait that is rarely beautiful, both as a work of art and as a striking likeness of the young girl.

So interested did Webster become in the Coast country, that while here to execute the portrait of Mrs. Harbrt of Pasadena, he remained long enough to paint twenty-seven other portraits before returning to the East. In Portland, Or., he painted four portraits of the same man—a pioneer banker of Portland and Salem, catching in each portrait a different mood, in one depicting the "humorist," in the second the "philosopher," in the third the "banker," and fourth the "host." Each picture is a wonderful portrayal of the character of the man.

Perhaps one of the most interesting subjects Webster has painted in this part of the country is D. C. Jackling, the copper king. Not only did he paint the portrait of Jackling, but he also received the commission to paint portraits of Jackling's father and mother in Salt Lake City.

Southern California has an especial appeal for the painter, and although Webster will go to Europe this fall for an extended sojourn in Paris and Versailles, he is so enamored of the beauty of Los Angeles that he plans to return here later and perhaps build a studio in the foothills.

THE UNCHLOROFORMED.

For a man of his age Dr. R. C. Buckner of Dallas, Tex., has just completed the most remarkable missionary trip ever undertaken. Though more than 80 years old he made a journey around the world.

Mrs. M. T. Elam of Americus, Ga., is 85 years old and the oldest active milliner in the world. On the occasion of her 100th millinery opening last year, a silver loving cup was given her by five millinery supply-houses which she had patronized.

Mrs. Clementina Butler, known through the Christian world as the Mother of Missions, died at Newton Center, Mass., last week, aged 93. She and her husband went to India during the Sepoy rebellion and afterwards established missions at Lucknow and other places. Later they established missions in Mexico. Mrs. Butler was the founder of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, which she and seven other women organized in 1869.

George Banks of Bangor, Mich., is 115 years old, as near as it can be figured out. He was born a slave on a Kentucky plantation, but escaped about 1827, and fought on the Union side, during the Civil War. In 1846 he built himself a little log house near Bangor, where he still lives with a grand-daughter, who takes care of him.

BITS OF VERSE.

Summer Twilight.

Mocking bird perched in a tree
High in the air as the last grew,
Trying his harp on the melody
  That springtime wrote in the of dew.
Drifting mists of the heat and Fireflies lighting the halls of

Then, from the dusk of the woods
The poignant note of the thrush,
Making you think of the moods
Of a quiet pool in a far-off
Crickets explaining to man and Why they keep chirping down in the sod.

Purple martins on graceful wing
  Sweeping the meadows beyond the barn;
A bull frog trying his best to sing
  On a slimy log at the edge of the tarn.
Miss Katydid in her very best Saying just nothing for something to say.

Beautiful blue of the far-off sky,
  With one green star on the rim;
A Junebug buzzing and lumbering by,
  The moon just out of a swim.
A yeoman singing across the
And summer the same old charm still.
—[Baltimore Sun.

Memory.

The years are sped! For me the is low,
The shadows lengthen and the
  is near,
Yet kind is nature, for I do fear,
And nothing now can stir my slow.

Only within the garden now then
When comes the scent of box
  marigold,
Or when I hear some tune I of old,
Or children clamber to my again,

For one brief instant something drous bright
Lights in my soul and folds fragile wings
As though to stay, and all my
  ing sings,
Fulfilled, content, forgetful of night.

Only an instant and again 'tis
  The singing passes and a falls,
Yet, deep within, an echo beats calls
And faint vibrations murmur and on.

Just as some bright bird, lighting
  a tree,
Pours forth its soul among branches old,
Then winging onward toward western gold,
It leaves them, quivering still,
  memory.

IN THE LIMELIGHT.

Gov. Lister of Washington has appointed four women to make up the Industrial Welfare Commission.

Henry Lane Wilson, former ambassador to Mexico, expects to the lecture platform in a discussion of Mexican affairs. His talks will be academic, he says, and in no sense an attack on the administration policy. Asked to comment on the Mexican situation as it stands he replied: "It speaks for itself."

Rev. Frederick S. Atwood, grand chancellor of the Knights of Pythias of Minnesota, is blind, having lost his sight several years ago. Despite this handicap, he has continued in active work for the order and is now serving his second term as grand chancellor. He travels extensively and generally alone. To enable him to attend to his voluminous correspondence he uses a special make of typewriter.

Prof. Paul Munroe of Columbia University, who has recently returned from a visit to the Philippines, China and Japan, says: "What American schools and American influences have done in the Philippines is wonderful. In the last ten years American influence has increased the number of English-speaking people by several millions. That is more than the English have done in India in 150 years. Training in athletics has almost blotted out class distinction. In most of the schools 90 per cent. of the pupils take part in athletics. One result is that the children of well-to-do citizens, who, ten years ago would have had a servant carry their books to schol, now not only carry their own books, but may be found with the other pupils working with pick and spade preparing athletic grounds or even on a schoolhouse yard. The American government in the Philippines is doing a work of civilization the importance of which is little realized in this country."

Just before his departure from Manila, Gov. W. Cameron Forbes was presented a loving cup and eulogistic resolutions by the Manila Merchants' Association. On the day that he sailed from the islands the crowd at the pier, to bid him good-by, was so large as to give the impression that business had been suspended in his honor.

Father Jose Algue, director of the Philippine Weather Bureau, is the inventor of a wonderful weather indicator, the barocyclometer, which indicates the direction in which the vortex of a cyclone or typhoon is moving.

FREAKS OF FORTUNE.

Because a page in a hotel brought him a telegram which did not belong to him, F. C. Waldman of Sydney, Australia, looked up the man whose name resembled his. He found that it belonged to his brother, who had been given up as dead many years before.

Mrs. Charles Andrews, Zanesville, O.; Mrs. Stella Caldwell, Pittsburgh, and Mrs. Mamie Paul, Martins Ferry, O., sisters, met at Martins Ferry for the first time in forty years, and it was the first time in their lives all have been together.

While Frederick Spohn, Sr., was standing at the corner of Main and Butler avenues, at Ambler, Pa., he was approached by a stranger, who asked the location of a certain street in the borough. Spohn told the man that no street in Ambler had borne that name within the last decade. The stranger seemed disappointed and told Spohn that he had come to Ambler to look up his brother, Fred, whom he had not seen in twenty-eight years. It developed that the stranger was George Spohn, and of Williamson Bridge, N. Y., and the man from whom he asked the information, was the brother whom he had not seen since 1885. A happy reunion followed.

actor of Shakespearean and other classic roles.

Mr. Ponting set his cameras to work immediately that the sturdy little whaling vessel, the "Terra Nova," cast free her lines at Port Chalmers, New Zealand, and poked her nose into that great, vast and frigid unknown. You see the ship rolling in a great Antarctic gale, and those who read Capt. Scott's description of this storm that nearly brought destruction to all at the very outset, will get a better idea of it, as they actually see the mountainous waves rolling over the ship.

The approach and hazardous journey through the great ice pack is clearly illustrated; the first sight of great icebergs, the bleakness of the barren icy waste and the scientific work done as soon as the ship was moored to the ice-bound bluffs.

Mr. Ponting accompanied Capt. Scott and his intrepid companions on their final dash to the Pole, and only left them at a point beyond which no such heavy apparatus as he carried could be transported. Everything had to give way for food on that last battle with death and Mr. Ponting parted company with the gallant five within but twelve degrees of the actual Pole. He was able, however, to show in motion photography all that these men did, how they battled and suffered, for he himself suffered with them. The five heroes who perished are shown pitching their tent, cooking a meal, and putting up for the night in the very tent that was destined to become their tomb, and crawling into the very reindeer sleeping bags that eventually became their shrouds.

Lyceum.

"Society Fads," the new musical comedy that is to be presented at the Lyceum, beginning with matinee today by Dillon and King, with Maude Amber and the Ginger Girls, should prove one of the prettiest and daintiest bits of pleasantry with which Los Angeles theatergoers have been treated in many a day.

The principal comedians, Dillon and King, have chosen a splendid vehicle for the initial appearance of their company in this city. The plot is uncommonly interesting and affords the principals excellent opportunities for the display of musical and dramatic skill. The comedy is well stocked with ludicrous situations, humorous dialogue and pleasing musical interruptions.

The story the players tell in "Society Fads" has to do with the adventures of Mike Dooley and Ike Lechinski, an Irishman and a Hebrew, in good old London town. Fresh from a mining camp in America, the pair have considerable difficulty in gaining the approval of England's smart set. Caring little for the conventionalities existing within the household of their host, Mike and Ike introduce several innovations that are distinctly their own. When Ray Dooley, the Hibernian's daughter, becomes engaged to an English nobleman with a title, but sadly lacking in character, the gentleman from the land of the shamrock decides to take a hand in the deal. From this point the fun is fast and furious and involves several prominent characters, Ike Lechinski, Ned Winthrop, an American mining expert, and Dooley's suffragette sister, Aunt Priscilla.

Ben T. Dillon and Will King will appear in the leading comedy roles of Mike Dooley and Ike Lechinski, respectively. Their characterizations of the two vastly different types are distinctly original and unusually entertaining. Maude Amber, the magnetic singing comedienne, will enact the part of Aunt Priscilla, while Robert C. Ryles will interpret the leading male role, that of Winthrop, the mining expert. Others in the cast are Ernest Van Pelt, Blanche Trelease and Jack Wise.

A feature of the production will be the ensemble numbers of the chorus, composed of sixteen vivacious singing and dancing girls. The Columbia Four, a quartette of sweet harmony singers, will be heard in the latest song successes. Two shows will be given nightly, with a matinee daily. Popular prices will prevail during the Dillon and King engagement.

Orpheum.

Again the Orpheum comes to the fore with almost an entirely new bill for the week, opening Monday matinee, only two acts holding over—but they are Blanche Walsh & Co., in "The Countess Nadine," and Elsa Ruegger, the 'cellist.

It is headed by Jack Kennedy, a sterling actor and farceur, who has a delightful comedy, "A Business Proposal." Business and love are popularly not supposed to run in connection, but Mr. Kennedy, with the aid of his bright fun and complicated plot, as well as a fine company, shows how it may be done. Specially engaged are the twelve Olympia girls, who come from the music hall of that name in London. The girls are popularly rated as rivals of the recently-here Palace girls, and it will certainly be interesting to have the opportunity to compare these two best exponents of London's pony ballets. Buckley's animals represent a new development in training; one of them is a bear that skates, very naturally, if very ludicrously, and others are monkeys who do likewise. There is a conglomerate assemblage of beasts, all highly trained and most interesting.

Ethel MacDonough, first known as drummer of the famed Fadettes, and later as the diving Myrma, will now appear as a singing comedienne, in which role she has made the greatest success in her varied and unusual career.

The Juggling Millers are a team of very clever manipulators of many things; they are skilled, and while many things they do seem impossible, there is a vein of comedy through their act that takes away the seeming strain.

The Parisian street singers are a typical trio of men who were picked up in the boulevards where they wandered, singing for small coins. They bring a genuine touch of Parisian Bohemianism.

Empress.

Dorothy Rogers, one of the biggest favorites on the American vaudeville stage, and her splendid company, in the one-act musical play, "Babies a la Carte," will be the exceptionally attractive headline feature of the new Sullivan and Considine bill, opening at the Empress Theater tomorrow afternoon.

Featured among the newcomers will be the world-famous "Malvern Troupe" of whirlwind acrobats, probably the foremost exponents of this particular type of entertainment in the show world today. The Malvern Troupe has been seen here on previous occasions and are too well known to need any introduction.

Second in importance on the new bill are the Melnotte Twins, the two charming maids from Melody Land, well known to the vaudeville-going public. The Melnotte Twins come with an entirely new act of songs, new gowns; in fact, everything new but their name. "The Five Merry Youngsters" should afford one of the brightest spots on the bill with their new songs, clever parodies and novel dancing; while "Sammp Watson's Farmyard Circus" will also be in evidence to entertain and amuse the youngsters, as well as the older folks. Watson's Circus is perhaps the most famous of all animal acts and its return here will be welcomed by everyone who remembers it.

Baron Lighter, the man of the piano, and the new Keystone Comedies will complete the splendid bill.

Pantages.

Everyone loves a magician, whether he be the fabled miracle worker of fiction or the less pretentious but probably more powerful necromancer of the modern stage, whose motto is "What you know can't happen, does happen, and although you don't believe it, you see it."

If seeing is believing, one will leave Pantages next week with a queer assortment of beliefs, for we will see things that are absolutely impossible and which we know are impossible, happening before us.

For Carter is to be there with his mysteries—Carter who gave us "The Lion's Bride" last season, and before our eyes caused a monstrous lion to disappear, and himself to take its place in the steel cage, just as the ferocious beast was about to devour the beautiful but faithless bride of the Sultan.

This season Carter is devoting his talents to less grewsome deeds. No beautiful brides will be offered to tempt the appetite of roaring lions, but beauty and the beast will be there just the same. Fifteen clever assistants appear in Carter's illusions and among them the same houri who nightly risked her existence in the steel barred cage of the Nubian monster last year. She will take a prominent part in the festival of impossibilities, one of her roles being to float in mid-air without any more substantial support than the magnetism that Carter declares flows from his fingers.

"A Night in China" depicts a Chinese court scene, with the Emperor's magicians and necromancers entertaining the mandarins of the inner circle of Chinese nobility. Many clever tricks of the oriental magicians never before seen in the Occident are promised by Carter and his assistants.

Frank Mills and his players offer a playlet in which the telephone and the telephone operator are the chief agencies of fate. "Live Wires" is the appropriate title of the story, one founded on a tragic event of a few years ago. A couple of detectives and a "gentlemanly rounder" are the other characters of the playlet.

Ed Raymond and Vera Hall in songs and dances, Carmen and Roberts in novelty acrobatics, the Four Baldwins in a musical act and Baker and Adams in crossfire comedy complete the bill.

Hippodrome.

With jolly Fanny Rice in her inimitable novelty monologue and impersonation act topping the bill, patrons of the Hippodrome are insured plenty of good laughs this week, beginning with the matinee Monday. Today will mark the last appearances here of Melbourne MacDowell and his company, presenting "The Oath."

Not that the new bill will be without a big dramatic feature. It has one which promises to be even more engrossing than the MacDowell offerings. It is called "The Cross and the Dagger," and is a tense Mexican romance, beautifully staged. Harold Brown and company interpret the offering, which is declared to be one of the most satisfactory in vaudeville.

Another splendid sketch will be presented by Abram and Johns, who are each week making thousands of new friends. The name of the new playlet has not been announced, as this clever couple plan a real surprise for the audience. That it will be well liked need hardly be said, as every offering has had the hallmark of merit.

Bowen and Bowen are a smart team with a budget of new songs, up-to-date comedy and dashing dances. They bid fair to be one of the most popular numbers on the bill.

Another merry offering will be the Georgia Trio, in good old-fashioned blackface darky songs and minstrel nonsense, while a capital single is offered in Sid Stewart, who storms the audience all by his lonesome.

A late announcement is the Four Manning Sisters. Three splendid photoplays complete the bill.

Burbank.

George M. Cohan's breezy comedy "Broadway Jones," which during the past week has attracted capacity audiences to the Burbank theater, will this afternoon enter upon its second week. Nothing that the Burbank company has presented in recent months has achieved the popularity of "Broadway Jones," for it is admittedly the best effort of the prolific George M. Cohan.

"Broadway Jones" is thoroughly American from the first curtain to the last. It is written in Mr. Cohan's brightest, sleverest vein, telling the story of the experiences of young Broadway Jones, an American youth who travels the Great White Way until he is head-over-heels in debt and then proceeds to Jonesville, Ct., where he re-establishes his father's chewing gum business and proceeds to trim the trust.

Tally's Broadway.

It is a long time since picture lovers have seen Mary Pickford, the famous little Biograph girl, on the screen. During the past year she has been the leading lady in "A Good Little Devil," one of Belasco's leading New York successes. Daniel Frohman persuaded her to leave the stage long enough to take the part of Nancy in a film production of Miriam Michelson's well-known play "In the Bishop's Carriage," and the result was a moving picture which displays her charm to the best advantage.

It is a crook play, but its treatment is so artistic, so delicate, so finished, that it will please every division of society. Thrilling situations come thick and fast; the story is intensely gripping, and the acting deserves the best that can be said about it. House Peters, in the role of Obermuller, the theatrical man, makes his debut on the screen in this picture. It is a popular part, one that will carry all the way the sympathy of the observer. Mr. Peters is tall, of good figure, and altogether of pleasing personality.

George Moss, as the Bishop, wil. be enjoyed. His consternation at the discovery of a pretty young woman in his carriage makes a delightful bit of comedy. "Little Mary" is too well-known to need comment. Her charming personality is felt throughout each of the four acts in the play. The combination of famous play and famous player is indeed a worth while attraction. Tally's Broadway theater should be packed all this week.

Woodley's.

With a splendid new bill of first-run motion pictures every day, given in the most unique picture-house in Los Angeles, Manager Woodley of the theater that bears his name, is wearing a happy smile and explaining to eager patrons daily, that "in a moment there will be room for you."

The fame of the wonderful organ the new theater contains has spread all up and down the coast and people are coming miles to hear it, and marvel at the cleverness with which C. Percival Garratt handles this multiple monster which gives the sounds of every musical instrument known to man.

In connection with this organ is a really unusual story. First Mr. Garratt was hired. He in his turn told what the organ should be. Then the organ was built, and after this Mr. Woodley found a site on which to put it.

Then the order for erecting of the theater was placed, and it was built around the organ. Now that is working backwards with a vengeance. There has been one wonderful result, though, and that is, that the acoustics of Woodley's theater are perfect, for it was built to meet the requirements of the organ.

Another feature of the house is its novel lighting effects which shed an air of mystery over the spacious auditorium, the while difusing a translucent light that is indescribale. There is no stumbling over seats in the dark, at Woodley's, yet the picture screen itself stands out of inky blackness in superb contrast to the animated mutes who flit across the taut canvas.

Clune's.

There should be laughs galore at Clune's Broadway theater this week for the premier film comedy of the year is to be shown there for the first three days of next week. This is "Why Girls Leave Home," which was famous as a stage laugh producer and has been doubly humorous in the screen production. It comes in two reels teeming with fun and is a product of the Edison company. A wealth of new and original material has been added to it since it made a world-wide hit as a single reel some time ago.

A pious minister learns with horror of the coming performance of the heart rendering drama "Why Girls Leave Home." He decides to see the play in order to preach against it more effectually. His entire household decides to visit it separately—for other reasons. Complications follow which cause laugh after laugh.

"The Depth of Hate," is a film in two big thrilling, throbbing reels made by the Pathe' producers with Pearl Sindelar, Eleanor Woodruff, Margaret Risser, M. O. Penn and other big favorites in the leading roles. This is a magnificent dramatic production with a depth of feeling manifest which seldom appears in the picture plays. This will be at Clune's Fifth-street theater next week. Another special attraction will be the Vasquez seven-piece Mexican orchestra.

Make This and Try It for Coughs

This Home-Made Remedy has no Equal for Prompt Results.

Mix one pint of granulated sugar with ½ pint of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a pint bottle; then add the Sugar Syrup. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

This simple remedy takes hold of a cough more quickly than anything else you ever used. Usually conquers an ordinary cough inside of 24 hours. Splendid, too, for whooping cough, spasmodic croup and bronchitis. It stimulates the appetite and is slightly laxative, which helps end a cough.

This makes more and better cough syrup than you could buy ready made for $2.50. It keeps perfectly and tastes pleasant.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, and is rich in guaiacol and other natural pine elements which are so healing to the membranes. Other preparations will not work in this plan.

Making cough syrup with Pinex and sugar syrup (or strained honey) has proven so popular throughout the United States and Canada that it is often imitated. But the old, successful mixture has never been equaled.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. Your druggist has Pinex or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Forthcoming.

MUSIC NOTES AND COMMENT.

Geraldine Farrar to Open Musical Season.

People's Orchestra Concert This Afternoon.

The Tivoli Opera Company's First Visit.

BY HECTOR ALLIOT.

Geraldine Farrar, soprano from the Metropolitan and Berlin Royal Opera, will open the musical season in Los Angeles next Thursday evening at the Auditorium. Miss Farrar's present tour will include sixteen appearances in various large cities west of Chicago; she will have the valuable assistance of Alwin Schroeder, the eminent 'cellist, for many years identified with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and the Kneisel Quartette. The accompanist will be Arthur Rosenstein, one of the assistant conductors with the Chicago Grand Opera Company, and an acknowledged accompanist-pianist.

Just entering her thirties, Geraldine Farrar has been a reigning prima donna for twelve years. Failure has never come to her. The daughter of Sidney Farrar, well remembered as one of the best baseball players of a former generation, she was born in Melrose, Mass., living in this suburb of Boston until she went to New York at the age of 15 to continue her vocal studies.

It was on October 15, 1901, just twelve years ago, that Miss Farrar made her first appearance in opera, making her debut at the Berlin Operahouse as Marguerite in Gounod's "Faust." Her success, in spite of her inexperience, was instantaneous, she being immediately engaged for a term of years. For several seasons we find her singing in the Royal Theater in Stockholm, the Imperial Theater, Warsaw, the Prins Regenten Theater in Munich, in Monte Carlo—where she created the leading part in Mascagni's "Amica" and Margarita in Saint-Saens's "L'Ancestre"—at the Grand Opera and Opera Comique in Paris, and in other European cities. Seven years ago next month she made her initial appearance in her own country. Having become the idol of the eastern public, as she was with the Berlin public, her income is very large.

"There are persons,' she once said, "who are much addicted to lamenting the necessity of commingling art and commerce. That is all very well and good, but it seems to me that a good artist can sing as well for a large check as for a small one, or for none at all. Hold your head up in the clouds as much as you please, but do try to keep your feet on earth."

Young and strong as she is, she knows thatshe must devote her strength and her brains to her work, and except during the summer vacation her life is decidedly the "simple one." It is for this reason that on her present transcontinental tour Miss Farrar will travel in her own private car, in order that she may enjoy every minute of relaxation allowed her, and be in excellent condition for her appearance with the Metropolitan Opera Company, which this season will demand more appearances than ever before.

Roland Paul Recital.

Roland Paul, the popular tenor, will be heard in recital at the Ebell Club October 6, presenting a programme from Delibes, Brahms, Massenet, Kuester, Bemberg and Leoncavallo. On October 10 he will be heard at the Auditorium as one of the soloists at the Verdi Requiem. On the 22d of the month he will deliver a lecture on Verdi at the Ebell Club for the music section. Not many resident musicians will enjoy as busy a month, and this in addition to his teaching.

People's Orchestra.

Today's concert of the People's Orchestra will be of a more popular order than usual, including the quartette from "Rigoletto,' sung by the Imperial Quartette, consisting of Mme. Ulrich, soprano; Eva Young Zobelein, contralto; Haydn Jones, tenor, and Edwin House, baritone.

The other numbers of the programme are: "The Serenade," by Victor Herbert; "A Day in Venice," by Ethelbert Nevin; "The Dance of the Hours," from "La Giaconda," by Ponchielli; the "Bacchanal," from "The Seasons," by Glazonouw, and the "Tragic Overture," by Johannes Brahms.

Numerous composers from eastern cities have sent their more recent compositions to the People's Orchestra to be played by them the coming season, and many new works will have a speedy production. The centennial of Giuseppe Verdi's birth will be celebrated on October 12 by the People's Orchestra and the ePople's Chorus in a splendid performance of Verdi's "Requiem Mass," its first presentation in Los Angeles.

Theodore Gordohn Comes to U.S.C.

The College of Music, University of Southern California, has secured Theodore Gordohn as teacher of violin and soloist. Mr. Gordohn has had a distinguished career as a musician, being a graduate with first prize honors from the Russian Imperial Conservatory, a member at different times of the Boston, New York and Russian Symphony orchestras, and the composer of more than three hundred works.

Madame Esther Palliser

After an unusual vacation, exploring the islands and caves of the Channel Islands, with the thrilling experience of witnessing the great canyon fire at Hope ranch, Madame Esther Palliser has returned to her pupils. She is preparing for a number of recitals ad concerts, at her new studio at No. 2691 San Marino street.

Lillian Adams.

Miss Lillian Adams, pianiste, has reopened her studio in the Majestic building, after spending the summer at her seaside home, by a musicale to her students.

Tivoli Opera Company.

The wave of light opera revival which is now the vogue in London, Paris, Berlin, Vienna, New York and Chicago is serving to introduce not only the old favorites, but is calling forth the efforts on the part of modern composers to duplicate the vocal beauties of Millocker, Debussy, Gilbert and Sullivan, Lehar and Strauss.

An event of the highest interest to music lovers will be the limited engagement of the Tivoli Opera Company, direct from the Tivoli in San Francisco, which comes to the Auditorium Monday evening, October 13. This marks the first road tour of the company since its organization last May, and it is only on account of the appearance of the Western Metropolitan Grand Opera Company at the San Francisco home of music that the engagement was made possible. The Tivoli company is a distinctly California enterprise, is now the representative light opera organization of America, including a complete and perfect assembly of high-class artists of recognized ability, and unequalled singing chorus, with an orchestra entirely adequate to the demands of the composers.

A special feature of the Tivoli venture has been the young, large and splendidly voiced chorus, which has been highly praised for its work in the northern city. Scenery, costumes and accessories are all under the experienced direction of Charles H. Jones.

The prima donna soprano is Rena Vivienne, who has appeared both at home and abroad in many well-known productions and was last heard in this city as Nadina in "The Chocolate Soldier," but previously in the title role of "Madame Butterfly," when Savage first sent his production to the Coast. Miss Vivienne has a beautiful voice, a charming personality, with acting ability far above the average.

Winsome Myrtle Dingwall, whose fascinating ways and sweet mezzo voice have charmed a Los Angeles audience before, is now a leading member of this organization, having spent two years in special study of ingenue roles.

Sarah Edwards is a mezzo soprano and character woman. She was last here with Anna Held in "Miss Innocence," and is considered one of the best in her line.

Henry Santry, the baritone, is the possessor of a magnificent voice, the only singer who has ever been able to satisfactorily fill the immense New York Hippodrome, and is an excellent actor, playing his roles with the greatest enthusiasm.

John R. Phillips, the tenor of the company, is considered one of the best on the light operatic stage. Possessed of a beautiful lyric voice, combined with acting ability, he has been entrusted with the soldier part in "The Chocolate Soldier," sang here as leading tenor in "The Rose of Panama,' 'and with the all-star cast which the Aborns sent out last year in "The Bohemian Girl."

WOMEN'S WORK, WOMEN'S CLUBS

BY SYDNEY FORD.

WEDNESDAY was "opening day" at more than one club in town. The Wednesday Morning Club set the pace with a club breakfast at 12:30; the Ruskin Art and the Badger clubs opened simultaneously at 2:30, while several suburban clubs also celebrated the first day of Otcober with a club opening. Altogether it was a busy day in clubdom.

Nearly 200 members and guests sat down to the gaily-decorated tables in the auditorium of the Wednesday Morning Clubhouse at Sichel street and Avenue 23. Seated beside the president, Mrs. J. E. Brown, was the president of the Los Angeles District Federation, Mrs. W. C. Mushet, who is also ex-president of the Wednesday Morning Club. Others at the president's table included the officers of the club: Mmes. M. B. Pitkin, A. K. Smith, H. H. Curtis, F. R. Willis, W. E. Bush, Miss A. E. Pierce, Mrs. C. M. Gordon and press representatives.

Mrs. M. E. Johnson, second vice-president of the Wednesday Morning, and likewise a prominent member of the Friday Morning Club, acted as toastmistress, and her witty introductions of the various speakers added much to the gayety of the occasion. First, there was Mrs. Mushet, who was assigned the sentiment, "Vacation Echoes." Mrs. Mushet spent the summer in Connecticut, her native State, and while she is loyal to the State of her birth, it is nevertheless quite apparent that, to all intents and purposes, she is now a genuine, dyed-in-the-wool Californian, and wouldn't trade the State of her adoption for the land of steady habits and nutmegs. After some clever comparisons, she indicated that Connecticut is still in the sleepy stages, as compared with the wide-awake West. "They are not interested in the minimum wage, the servant problem, the pure food or any theory," said the district president of Los Angeles clubs, "neither do they trouble about the balance of diet, vegetarianism, suffrage or eugenics. There are no slit skirts in Connecticut, nor dresses abbreviated at either end," she went on. "I found but one suffragist in the whole State—Dotha Stone Pinneo of Norwalk—isn't that a regular Down East name? The suffrage subject was so taboo that I telephoned Dotha Stone Pinneo of Norwalk: 'Meet me at midnight—I am going to leave town, and I want a little suffrage conversation with you before I go.' Dotha Stone Pinneo met me and we discussed suffrage. 'We're going to have it here,' she said, "but, ah! they don't know it."

"There are but forty-five women's clubs in the whole State of Connecticut—and there are 100 federated clubs in Los Angeles district alone. They never had heard of federated clubs back there. The women of Connecticut have to speak figuratively, no standing—they are sitting. Our standards are entirely different. One's standing in Connecticut is rated by how early you get your wash out on the line Monday morning, and what your Sunday clothes are. Some one has said that every city becomes cosmopolitan when it reaches the point where the population has no Sunday clothes."

A round of applause greeted the brilliant talk of Mrs. Mushet, who was followed by Dr. Lettie Davidson, her sentiment being "October Morn." She considered this subject in a rhythmical forecast of what the club year would bring forth after this first of October meeting, her response being both poetical and clever, as she hit off all the various departments of the club.

Mrs. Chamberlain's response to the sentiment, "White Lies," was apt and to the point. She illustrated in humorous fashion how very disagreeable is the person who insists on always telling the truth, often to the utter undoing of all your self-esteem and ruining happiness in the illusion that you are looking your best. With Queen Elizabeth, she believes that a white lie is an intellectual way of meeting a difficulty, but she cautioned against mistaking the lie, be it ever so white, in politics.

Mrs. W. B. Tilley spoke on the subject, "The Masters of the Situation—Our Husbands," the pertinent question at once arising: Are they really the masters of the situation, since the earth fairly trembles with the tread of awakened womanhood?

One of the best responses was that of Mrs. Christy, who toasted "Our Unmarried Blessings," tossing bouquets galore to the blithe company of spinster members of the club, who, she claimed, had a tremendous advantage over their married sisters in that they have but one mind to make up, whereas the wife has two—her own and her husband's. She called attention to the fact that no member of the Wednesday Morning Club has been able to hold the office of head of the Shakespeare section and remain single and introduced several witty stories to point a moral and adorn the tale.

The last toast was given by Mrs. E. [illegible] Trisler, who gave glimpses of her summer in the Yellowstone. Miss Beulah Jonquist played several piano selections, which put a delightful musical period to the day's festivities.

Ruskin Art's Opening.

The handsome rooms which have been fitted up by the Ruskin Art Club on the fourth floor of the Blanchard building were thronged with members and guests Wednesday at their opening day. The adjoining art gallery was, for the occasion, turned into the charming little auditorium of the Ruskins, making a spacious hall, the walls hung with a collection of paintings from the brush of Los Angeles artists. After the programme was over the members and their guests gathered about the cosy tea tables in the clubroom and discussed the year's work and the delightful new quarters. The clubroom has a charming, homelike air, graced with the artistic pictures which belong to the club, the pretty cabinets and bookcases and the handsome rugs. This downtown location is so central and convenient that it is easy to prophesy a large and enthusiastic attendance throughout the year.

Hollywood Club at "The Outpost."

The Hollywood Woman's Club, through the courtesy of Gen. Harrison Gray Otis, held the opening meeting Wednesday at "The Outpost" under the giant sycamore trees of this picturesque spot. About 150 members assembled for this first gathering of the club year to whom the president, Mrs. Cassius Smith, extended greetings and briefly outlined the work of the year and the plans for a clubhouse in the near future to be built on the lot already secured. The officers and board of directors were formally presented and Mrs. H. T. Wright, first vice-president, outlined something of the programmes which will be presented.

Mrs. Jacob Stern, the second vice-president, spoke in behalf of the chrysanthemum show to be held on October 23, and Mrs. Todd of the San [illegible] club told of the success of that organization in securing its lot and clubhouse. The music by the [illegible] sisters, who were in Spanish costume, was a feature of the afternoon. Refreshments were served under the trees by Mrs. G. B. Hinckley, chairman, and her assistants. The hostesses of the afternoon were Mmes. A. J. Aicher, W. H. Davies, L. R. Brochon, C. E. Bireley, Frank Desmond, and F. E. Ferry.

The next meeting will be on Wednesday and will be in the nature of a lecture recital commemorative of the Verdi centenary programme given by Signor Pietro-Buzzi.

Montebello Flower Show.

The Thursday Afternoon Club of Montebello is perfecting plans for a flower show to be given October 17 and 18, at the Montebello High School building. The Chamber of Commerce of that town is working in concert with the club in this undertaking and professional gardeners as well as amateurs are co-operating. Mrs. R. M. Bird, chairman of the Programme Committee, has arranged an excellent programme for both evenings. Other club women who head various committees, include Mmes. J. D. Mintier, L. T. Williams, C. S. Taylor, J. Prescott, Thomas Darcy, E. P. Haskel.

Santa Maria Club Celebrates.

There is a little club away up in Santa Maria, which celebrated last Friday its sixteenth birthday. During all these years this little band of earnest women has never received an official visit from a federation representative—that is, it hadn't till last Friday, when the president of the Los Angeles district federation, Mrs. W. C. Mushet, found her way there by electric railway and brought greetings in a happy speech from the ninety and nine other clubs of the district—for it happens that there are exactly 100—with two new ones filing applications.

From Santa Maria the district president came down to Santa Barbara, where she was yesterday a guest of honor at a reception given in the pretty clubhouse by the four federated clubs of that city.

A Fly Federation.

Los Angeles district federation, by the way, is pluming its feathers on the fact that its fame as a fly catcher has gone abroad—away across the ocean to far Budapest, from whence has come a request for the exact methods followed in the fly campaign inaugurated by our district for the extinction of the little germ carriers.

A Club Octogenarian.

One of the oldest club women in Los Angeles district is Mrs. M. A. Pierce who has passed her ninetieth birthday, and is an enthusiastic and active member of the Wednesday Morning Club. When a young thing of 75 she graduated from the Shakespeare section of the club.

Federations and Sub-Federations.

The county federation is the next note in the club world. The fifteen clubs of Ventura county have formed a county federation headed by Miss Anna Pierce and fully officered on the same plan as the district federation.

Hence we now have the general federation, the State federation, and the district federation. Going on down the line, is it presumptuous to predict a still further subdivision which shall result in a city federation, a suburb federation and a ward federation?

Whittier Club Opening.

The Woman's Club of Whittier opened last week with a box luncheon which resulted in a fine spread on tables beautifully decorated with cosmos and ferns. After the feast, the vice-president, Mrs. Annie Lee Coffman, read a telegram of greeting from the president, Miss Elizabeth Lum, who is still visiting in the East. The programme of the afternoon was in charge of Mrs. A. D. Clark, who acted as toastmistress, and who gave a foreword for the year. Vacation experiences were given by Mrs. Kate C. Lindley, who spoke on Lake Tahoe; by Mrs. James Barlow, who spoke of Bear Valley, and by Mrs. R. B. Kennedy, whose subject was "A Junketing Trip." Mrs. Will A. Smith spoke for the stay-at-homes. Music was furnished for the afternoon by Miss Mae Edwards, who gave two piano numbers. The section work will be carried on for the entire year with departments of art, literature, music, civics and household economics.

A Gifted Kindergartener.

Miss Elizabeth Williams has been secured by the First Congregational Church to take charge of the kindergarten church which holds session during the public service every Sunday morning, and where children, from babies up to 7 years old, are taught and carefully looked after while the mothers are attending the regular service.

Miss Williams is an expert kindergartener and for a number of years has had charge of that department in Plymouth Congregational Church. Before that she very successfully built up a wonderful kindergarten department in the church at Avalon, where her brother, the late Rev. Charles Williams, was pastor. This gifted man, under whose ministration the Avalon church was built, was a minister of rare talents and such winning personality that he made a friend of every chance acquaintance. People who came to Catalina for a brief sojourn were attracted to the church and the eloquence of the "little minister," as he was affectionately known, invariably held them. Large gifts were made by some of these sojourners and the hitherto barn-like building was, under Mr. Williams's administration, changed to a handsome edifice. Failing health compelled him to come to the mainland and up to within a fortnight of his death he did splendid work in Plymouth Church.

Miss Williams has associated with her in her new field of labor a corps of trained assistants and the children of the First Congregational Church are fortunate to sit under the instruction of so gifted a leader.

To Elect New President.

The women of the First Methodist Church are confronted with the problem of electing a new president for the Foreign Missionary Society, as the present incumbent, Mrs. Walter Fisher, after a faithful and splendid service of five years, has signified her intention of resigning. Mrs. Fisher's resignation is a cause of sincere regret on the part of the women who have been so delightfully associated with her during these years. Her heart is deeply in the work, as evidence of which Mrs. Fisher and husband have for a number of years maintained at their own expense Miss Vida Stephens, a missionary in India.

So efficient has been Mrs. Fisher as president of the society that it is not easy to find another willing to follow her in office. The election takes place tomorrow afternoon at the regular monthly meeting of the society.

Sierra Madre Club Plans.

Mrs. J. T. Mason of Sierra Madre was hostess at her home on Wednesday afternoon, when she entertained the Art Committee of the Woman's Club, of which she is chairman. The afternoon was devoted to general discussion of the work of the committee

This tapestry brocade tailors into the lovliest of afternoon costumes—with perhaps a band of Persian Lamb—or mink for the trimming.

Tapestry Brocade—at $2.50 the yard.

Duvetyn The New Silk Fabric of Fall

DUVETYN—"dove's breast, skin of a peach (peau de peche)—kitten's ear."

In this new silk fabric—silk and velvet have been blended in the weaving. The result—the smooth richness of velvet and the supple drapeyness of silk.

We have just received—Duvetyn—in all the new shades—mid-night blue, Burgundy, Canard—Russian Green.

Poincare.

FRANCE'S HEAD TOURS SOUTH.

Addresses Give the People New Confidence.

American School Methods Impress Professor.

German Influence Increases With the Greeks.

[A. P. Correspondence to The Times.]

PARIS, Sept. 21.—A million Frenchmen have looked into the plain, friendly face of President Poincare during his September excursion through Southwestern France. In automobiling from Paris to Bordeaux, he passed through many a town and village. He saw 120,000 troops at the autumn maneuvers in the Toulouse country. He met some thousands of the important people of the provinces through which he traveled. His utterances in reply to addresses of local authorities and at public dinners have deepened the impression that Poincare represents the new spirit in France, the spirit of confidence, energy and action. The diction of his speeches has aroused the admiration of literary France.

"President Poincare and President Wilson are alike in one respect," remarked a newspaper observer. "Whatever they say will be finely phrased; why either of them has done a thing will be explained in the best manner possible. Were Mr. Wilson a Frenchman he would be a fellow academician with Poincare."

The Presidential party, which included Madame Poincare, several members of the Cabinet and their wives, traveled in forty automobiles. They took intervals on dusty roads of from 300 to 400 yards apart so that the procession was often eight or ten miles long. The presence of Madame Poincare and other women brought about an innovation at official dinners in France. It was arranged that the women should also be guests, and so were the wives of the provincial authorities. A white straw hat with velvet ribbons, such as are commonly worn in the Creuse, was presented to Madame Poincare at Gueret. She laughingly took off her fashionable Paris toque and put on the peasant hat. She wore it at lunch and drove away in it, the country people cheering. Four thousand persons dined with the President at Toulouse. When they drank his health, 700 bottles of champagne were emptied to fill the glasses once.

RECALLS AMERICAN TRIP.

M. Henri Labroue, history professor at the Bordeaux Lycee, recalls his souvenirs of America in an article appealing for certain reforms in French public instruction.

One of the things which particularly impressed M. Labroue in America was the reproduction of the Republican National Convention of 1907 by the members of Columbia University. M. Labroue considers that such a scene would appear somewhat childish to students of French universities, on account of the differences between the French and the American temperament, but he uses it as an illustration of the immense difference between the teaching of history in France and the United States. French professors are not expected to teach their pupils history after 1875. The Frenchman therefore must pick up his knowledge of modern politics as best he can while the American boy enters manhood fully equipped to take an intelligent part in the political progress of his country.

M. Labroue has much admiration for the manner in which politics and political science are taught in American schools and colleges, and advocates the adoption of similar branches of teaching in France.

GERMANS GET CREDIT.

French public opinion considers France to have been humiliated by the recent speech of King Constantine of Greece at Potsdam, when, during the banquet given by the German Emperor, he ascribed the successes of the Greek troops in the Balkans to their officers' knowledge of Prussian military training.

For a number of years a French military mission, with Gen. Eydoux at its head, has been in Greece instructing Greek troops and in consequence of this France had looked upon Greek victories as evidence of the superiority of her military science. She was, therefore, amazed to hear that the German military education of many of the Greek officers was deemed by the King to have been of more account in the victories over the Bulgarians and Turks than the efforts of her military mission.

The belief is general today that the Potsdam utterances of the Grecian King mark the decline of French influence in Greece and the beginning of a Germanophile policy which will finally attach Greece to the triple alliance. King Constantine is said to be personally less friendly to France than was his father, and the present Queen, Sophie, was born a Hohenzollern.

King Constantine announces his intention of visiting Paris incognito next month, when he may be able by a tactful speech to soften the painful impression created by his remarks in Germany.

Girlish, Wrinkle-Free Skin Easy to Have

Since its remarkable astringent and tonic properties became known, clever women all over the world have been using the saxolite face bath to "tone up" their faces, remove wrinkles and draw flabby cheeks and neck back to normal. After using the solution, the face immediately feels much firmer. The skin tightens evenly all over the face, thus reducing lines and sagginess. The formula is: Powdered saxolite, 1 ounce, dissolved in witch hazel, ½ pint.

Another wonderful facial beautifier and rejuvenator that has become quite a rage in the United States, as in Europe, is mercolized wax. Druggists report a great demand. The wax literally absorbs a sallow, blotchy or withered complexion, giving the fresh, vigorous, healthy-hued young skin underneath a chance to "breathe" and to show itself. Applying the wax at night, like cold cream, washing it off mornings, will completely renovate a poor complexion in a week or ten days. One ounce usually is sufficient.—[Advertisement.

A new chapter in the prison history of Illinois was begun near Dixon, Ill., recently, when forty-five convicts from the State penitentiary of Joliet went into camp near the historic village of Grand Detour, prepared to begin work in connection with a "word of honor" contract with the State of Illinois. A consignment of picks and spades had been shipped on in advance.

Tents were pitched at the foot of the hill and rations were served to the men for their first meal as "free men." The road to be built by the "honor men" leads out of Grand Detour and the amateur road builders will cut through a hillside and a patch of timber to make about a mile of new road.

Nora wanted it. She had a husband and three beautiful, children. She was also the succor to the mind and heart of an outsider who was dying.

She was an extravagant little woman and not a good manager. She went in debt; she borrowed money, she even made a bad note.

Then she fell down where every man alive does fall down and every woman, too. She never, for a moment, figured that whether you spread yourself over the universe and deal with 10,000 persons, or whether you stay in your little world at home and treat with a few who are your very own, the same lessons have to be learned, the same experiences digested, the same point of reflection reached the same resolutions acquired and the same principles applied to daily conduct.

Whatever storm appears on the outside, whether it be in a drawing-room or in an arena of battle, the solution of every problem rests within one's self and peace can come only from one's own heart.

Nora thought that only the big world held the answer. She was running away from herself; she was going where the question never could be put so simply again, nor the answer found so easily.

A woman needs the warm strength of a home and she always will. She needs it because a man requires the same thing. We are only half men and half women without it. "Men must have women," says Victor Hugo; "women must have men; otherwise we would have, not a human, but a phantom poetry."

I like to compare what seems to be the attitude of Miss Thomas, the president of Bryn Mawr, with the conduct of Alice Freeman, a former president of Wellesley. The latter is more of a heroine to me than any woman in America. I never knew her, but I have read about her and her example to the women of the world is something to cherish and her memory we should all revere. Miss Thomas has said, and her remarks were made not very long ago at the founding of Mt. Holyoke College, that women sometimes spend half of their lives preparing themselves for a scholar's work and are then asked to choose between that work and marriage. She adds that no one can estimate the number of women who remain unmarried in revolt before what she describes as "such a horrible alternative."

I wonder if a woman could prepare herself too well to be the mate, the equal and perfect lover of the wonderful man which her own wonderful qualities would attract? I wonder if she could prepare herself too well to be the fit mother of the wonderful sons and daughters America needs?

Alice Freeman's answer is the sweetest I ever heard. You know, she was president of Wellesley at 32 and had been for some time, when Prof. George H. Palmer of Harvard fell in love with her. That was in 1887, and the whole world of education attempted to protest this romance. Love conquered, as true love always does, and will. Palmer wrote the wife of Massachusett's Governor a letter explaining that the vigor of the separate parts of an institution is best proved by a change of executive heads and that, while solid institutions welcome great men, they are never dependent on any one of them. He scouted the idea of dedicated lives which interfere with individual destiny and insisted that, no matter how great a man or a woman is, there are times when the two may honorably make each other their sole concern and still go on with nobility and worth. Then he married his sweetheart and Wellesley took a new president and thrived, while Alice Freeman Palmer prolonged her failing health by fifteen years under the wine of love and the comforts of home. She made a queen of one of the most radiant family circles America has ever known.

I cite her case because it holds something which I would like to see in a new drama, especially as this woman educated herself highly because she would have to work for a living, unless she should marry. Then, when she had attained the highest rank among American working women, she was glad to put aside the battle of the world and fulfill those higher issues of womanhood on which the continuance of the race and the fulfillment of all its ideals must forever depend.

What a character she would be for a great play, since in her the delightful child and the responsible woman were sparklingly combined, never sinking personality in office, but remaining abounding and exuberant and so womanly withal that she protected the womanliness of her students and compelled the love of a man who could make her a happy and a satisfied wife.

I have a lot more sympathy for the unrest that springs from not enough hair ribbons and the lack of a good husband, and for that which grows out of economic necessity, than I have for that which has its sad excuse in the inability of women to find themselves.

I know as well as anybody that women have been marrying all this time hoping to find a good husband and that he has not yet been located, but I also feel that if we took away this hope of love and children from men or women, there would be little left in life for any of us, as long as the sweet and impelling power of generation sent the red blood through our veins.

You may not know who the right man or the right woman is going to be; you may not even suspect what they will be like, but surely the coming of him or her is the long dream of every heart. When love is dead we know the pain of life that has lost the way.

The stage is quick to catch the fever of the day. It knows the pulse of the hour. We have all sorts of plays already on this subject. Few of them get anywhere, none are adequate and yet, the answer is on the way, and I think we shall hear it from the lips of actors first of all. The silly comedies wherein wives run against their husbands for Mayor do not mean much, unless they help us understand that baby hands get in the way of politics and that man is a better master than he is a dishwasher.

Bitter lies like that stupid, blundering play in which a girl runs away to spend a week-end with her father's book-keeper and refuses to marry him when scandal comes up about it because she says he was just a passing fancy, and that she is claiming her sex rights, do not do any good.

There are no sex rights which poison the sweet springs of life and which blacken its clear stream.

There are no sex rights which bring a shadow between the eyes of a wife and those of her husband, or which would choke her heart when she kisses her child and looks in his little face for something she is afraid to find.

There are no sex rights which let us play lightly with life until we cannot hear the benediction when the angels at last are ready to chant it for us as we come into the presence of one who might be more than life were it not that our eyes are blinded by sin and our hearts hardened by dealing flippantly with all that is sacred.

Of course, I welcome woman's entrance to all fine endeavor, but she must not forget that none of it is worth love and home, and the drama of today should seek to remind her of this. It should frankly show that it is egotism and not consecration which would let a woman think more of work than a good man's love and the laughter of children at twilight.

A DEBUTANTE ABROAD.

ON THE TRAIN, Oct 1.

Rebecca, dear: So sorry we did not say good-by to you, but we left in such a hurry that we had to cut out all the tender farewells.

We are going to have a perfectly lovely time, Cherie, and shall return more stuck up than ever, but in the meantime our dignity is under severe daily discipline on the train. The mater is one perpetual peeve and the fact that that little poplin widow is on board and cut her sumptuously yesterday is not helping to make her any more amiable.

You remember the poplin widow? Came to Los Angeles from Kansas last winter, joined the Country Club and guessed she'd get acquainted. Unfortunately she struck the mater on one of the frigid days, so when she cosied up to her loquaciously on the porch without previous introduction the mater lorgnetted her with the sort of lofty correctitude that would turn a successful politician's marrow to barley water. The poplin widow bore it with such bland inconsequence and avoided the mater with such artlessness afterward that yesterday's contretemps came as a regular stunner.

Picture to yourself the mater in all her gracious majesty, feeling more than a trifle bored with a four days' journey ahead of her. She spies the poplin widow in the distant end of the car and mentally decides to be kind to her, poor little thing, especially as it would not now entail introducing her into our sacred set. She took the very first opportunity to be friendly, and, behold! the poplin widow smiled with well-bred condescension. "I seem to remember you somewhere," she said, sweetly. "Weren't you the professional hostess at the Kansas Hotel one time?"

I fanned the mater back to consciousness and tried to make her see the joke—but the time is not yet.

But then we have been traveling through 110 deg. in a stuffy, beplushed, ill-ventilated Pullman for two days now, and anything in the nature of a joke seems indecent. One simply can't be funny enveloped in a scorching wind, red-hot dust and long corsets. Oh, my dear, the latter were never meant to travel in. Perfectly splendid for walking in, or posing on stairs or leaning against balustrades in, but for flopping in—never! You know the mater is plumpish and it is heartrending to see her trying to find a position in which some portion of her corset doesn't stick in somewhere. But getting them on in the morning is the most fiendish of all, and the society leader who can retain an ounce of dignity and prestige while struggling into 'em behind a curtain in a narrow passageway on a rocking train has yet to be born. Just when you have the two bottom clasps nicely fixed and have taken the supreme long breath before buckling the top ones, the porter comes past and bumps you into the berth. You bang your head viciously against the upper berth, sit down hurriedly, furiously, and then get into frightful complications with the corsets. Some people take them into those little poky dressing-rooms, but that is really worse because when four or five women are struggling into corsets in a 4x6 cupboard elbows are a distressing factor and the train is sure to rock at an embarrassing moment. As the mater says, it is, after all, rather better to suffer alone behind the curtain. I suggested we should leave 'em off, but, of course, that is out of the question with the poplin widow's eyes upon us.

The widow incident brought home to me the importance of environment to prestige. Back in Los Angeles the mater is no end of a haughty grand dame, but here on the train we are nobody in particular. No one knows or cares that we live in the finest house on West Adams street—in fact, West Adams or East Los Angeles street are much the same to them. No one knows or cares how the mater queens it at the Country Club at home; they can only see a plumpish, crossish, warmish, middle-aged lady against whom the widow is obviously enjoying a joke all her own.

I remember some English people telling me they lived in Berkeley Square, London, once, and, of course, it didn't make any sort of an impression on me. Later I learned that Berkeley Square is even more scrumptious than Chester Place or St. James Park in Los Angeles or Fifth avenue in New York.

So many of the women are wearing those becoming little boudoir caps all the time on the train to protect their hair from the dust. They certainly are jolly. I'd like to wear the teagown negligee, too, but I suppose one could not get out for those merciful little walks at the stations then without causing a sensation.

By the way, my wrapper is thin white-dotted Swiss—and I brought pajamas for the train, because Melitta said they were so very much better. So when I essayed to slip my wrapper on over the pajamas to go and wash before dressing, behold, an unrehearsed shadow effect that simply would not do at all! So I had to borrow the mater's black silk one and I have to pass the berth where the two nice young Englishmen are, and it doesn't suit me at all.

The Englishmen look quite interesting and they are crossing on the Olympic same as we are, but everyone else in this car looks the ordinary traveling, middle-class sort of person, and there isn't a responsive twinkle among them.

There is just something about train traveling that makes everyone look their very worst and eradicate any signs of grace and intelligence.

Do write and tell me how Fanny's affair pans out—such a curious muddle. I can't help thinking she is acting unwisely in deliberately making enemies instead of friends. Any fool can make enemies, but it takes a diplomat to make friends—in such delicate circumstances. Supposing he does marry the other one in the end, it would surely be better to have them friends than foes—and her case will gain in every way by the exercise of a little charm and a little humor. She is such a jolly nice girl under normal circumstances that I should like to see her happy. She used to have the sporting instinct strongly developed at one time and could always be relied upon to play the game. But if what you tell me is true—well, I hope it isn't.

Mrs. Patrick Campbell is playing in a Barrie play in London—"The Adored One"—so we shall make a point of seeing her before we go on to Russia. You remember what a jolly time we had with her when she came to Los Angeles five years ago. She is quite as attractive off the stage as on, which is more than can be said of some actresses who are so obsessed with their "shop talk" that they bore one to death.

We also are to see Ada Reeve, whom we entertained at Los Angeles in the spring. You remember her, of course, for you were at that famous Alexandria supper after the play.

But it will be the Russian visit of which you will want to hear most, for which reason you had better be good and write to your ever loving BETTY.

THE WEEK.

[illegible], RECEPTIONS, DINNERS, WEDDINGS AND THE LIKE.

ATTENDANTS for the wedding of Miss June Eskey, daughter of Mrs. M. N. Eskey of No. 1423 [illegible] avenue, to James W. Dunham of this city, have been selected and the ceremony, which will be solemnized on the 19th inst., in Christ Church, will be anticipated by many smart functions.

The maid of honor will be Miss [illegible] Barker and Mrs. A. C. Davidson has been asked to assist as matron, while the maids, who have signified their willingness include Miss Virginia Dunham, the attractive young sister of the groom-to-be, Miss Mildred Landreth and Miss Margaret Brown. Arnold Salisbury will serve Dunham as best man.

Dr. and Mrs. J. M. King of No. 1221 South Lake street who, with their family, have been abroad for a little more than a year, returned a day or so ago, tired, but glad to be at home again.

[illegible].

One by one, the large affairs in the winter are being announced, and by the middle of this month, the season will have formally opened and society will again hold sway.

An interesting announcement today is a debutante party for Miss Helen [illegible], the young daughter of Senator and Mrs. Eugene Ives of Shorb. The affair will be a reception and ball and once more the lovely country home will be a gay scene. November [illegible] will mark the important event, which will probably be the first coming-out party this season.

Mrs. Ainsworth to Entertain.

The most fascinating plans are being made by Mrs. Harry B. Ainsworth of West Adams street for a luncheon Tuesday, to be given in compliment to Mrs. Cosmo George Morgan of San Francisco, who is the house guest of her son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Cosmo Morgan, Jr., of West Twenty-fourth street. Others asked to meet the visitor are Mrs. Adna R. [illegible], Mrs. C. C. Carpenter, Mrs. [illegible], Mrs. Hubbell, Mrs. E. F. C. [illegible], Mrs. George King, Mrs. Wesley Clark, Mrs. E. P. Clark, Mrs. Bulkley, Mrs. G. O. Mullins, and Miss Mary [illegible].

Mr. and Mrs. Cosmo Morgan, Jr., with Mrs. Morgan, Sr., left Thursday for a week-end outing at Coronado.

Called to Europe.

Mr. and Mrs. August Marquis of West Twenty-fifth street, were unexpectedly called to Europe last week. They sailed Monday.

Home Again.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Arend are again occupying their cozy home on Albany street, having just returned from a summer at Catalina.

Theater Party.

Miss Roberta Mayer of No. 224 Kingsley drive, entertained with a theater party and tea yesterday afternoon, at which time announcement was made of her engagement to George Punch, Jr., of Tucson. The wedding will be held November 6. The secret was told to Mrs. A. Campbell, Miss Mildred Scott, Miss Lela [illegible], Miss Ruth Dressier, Miss Elsie [illegible], Miss Idabelle Patterson and Miss Charlotte Taylor.

Dinner Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Peery of No. [illegible] South Westmoreland avenue, who have been enjoying the summer touring in their motor car, entertained with a dinner, complimentary to Mr. and Mrs. George Hewes Ross of Rancho Rominna, Hollywood, who have just concluded a tour of the world. The party was held Tuesday evening and the decorations were suggestive of the autumn season. A huge basket of grapes occupied the center and individual favors were dainty bonbon boxes adorned with autumn leaves. Terra cotta figures of children representing the different nations were additional features. Covers were laid for twelve.

Daughter's Engagement.

Mrs. Frank Cochran of No. 118 South Oxford, was a recent luncheon hostess and she announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Bess, to Carl Wirsching of this city. The wedding will be an interesting event of November 5. Twelve guests were asked to share the secret.

Santa Barbara News.

A pretty wedding was held Tuesday evening at the home of the bride's parents, when Miss Adele Carmany, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] K. Carmany of No. 1529 De la Vina street, was married to Floyd [illegible] of Westfield, N. Y. The marriage was the culmination of a [illegible] years' courtship and was attended only by relatives and near friends of the family. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Benjamin [illegible] of the Unitarian Church. Miss Marjorie Greenwood was the bridesmaid and Ralph Runkle the best man. Following the wedding a supper was served and the couple departed for a honeymoon trip to [illegible]. The relatives and guests present were Mrs. A. Canfield, mother of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. Russell [illegible] of Los Angeles, Mrs. K. S. [illegible] of Los Angeles, Mrs. George [illegible] of Los Angeles, Miss Greenwell, Mr. Runkle, Mr. Dense, Vance [illegible] and Mr. and Mrs. Charles [illegible].

Miss Marguerite Doe at her beautiful Montecito home on Sunday evening gave a dinner party in honor of the twenty-first birthday of Elliott Rogers, son of the late Robert [illegible] Rogers. Those present were Miss Marcia Brackenridge, Mrs. [illegible] Frew, Mr. Darlington of [illegible] and Mr. Reginald Fernald.

Mrs. Harry Chickering, accompanied by her sister, Miss Florence [illegible], and their house-guest, Mrs. [illegible] Fremery of Oakland, left Sunday by motor for Los Angeles to remain several days.

Mr. and Mrs. William Miller Graham, accompanied by their son Earl and daughter Geraldine, left Thursday evening for Los Angeles. Mr. Graham and his son will continue to [illegible], Ohio, while Mrs. Graham and daughter will return to Santa Barbara after a few days' visit in the [illegible].

Fourth & Broadway Store Known as the "La Mode" Millinery Announces the Opening of Their $5.00 Trimmed Hat Department

Altho the bulk of our business at La Mode Millinery has heretofore been in the selling of Trimmed Hats at $7.50, $10.00, $12.50, $15.00 and from these prices up, we realize that in a great city like Los Angeles there are thousands of women who appreciate style and quality, but who cannot afford to spend more than $5 for their Fall Hat.

Acting upon this knowledge, we have opened a $5.00 Trimmed Hat Department. In this department we will carry at all times a large selection of the very latest ideas in materials and styles in Trimmed Hats to sell at this popular price.

The tremendous purchasing power of two large stores in Los Angeles make values that cannot be duplicated elsewhere. We invite your early inspection of this new department.

We've spent $40,000 to make Jacoby's a more efficient more helpful store—now to put the store to the test

Jacoby Bros.
Something New Every day
331-335 So. Broadway

—No detail has been too small to be considered—no expense has been too great to give this store a better home—to give it facilities to handle the day's business quicker, easier and more economically—to make it a more healthful, comfortable and safe place for you to shop and for us to work.

—There have been added—New elevators, new staircases, fire-alarm systems, automatic sprinkler systems, sanitary drinking fountains, steam heating plant (no fire in the building)—and ventilating systems, to say nothing of the rearranging and enlarging of various departments and the installation of an efficiency system to cover all clerical work in every section of the store.

"Better Values"

And with these helps we are able to handle a greatly increased business at practically no additional cost.

—Our efficiency man has shown us where and how to eliminate all unnecessary expense—how by marking our merchandise at a closer margin of profit we can turn our stocks oftener—keep the new constantly coming in and at the same time make a fair rate of interest on our investment.

—Monday the store starts on a new era—an era of Better Values and Better Service. Test the store wherever and whenever you will—suggestions for its betterment will be cheerfully accepted—Read on!—

Something New Every day

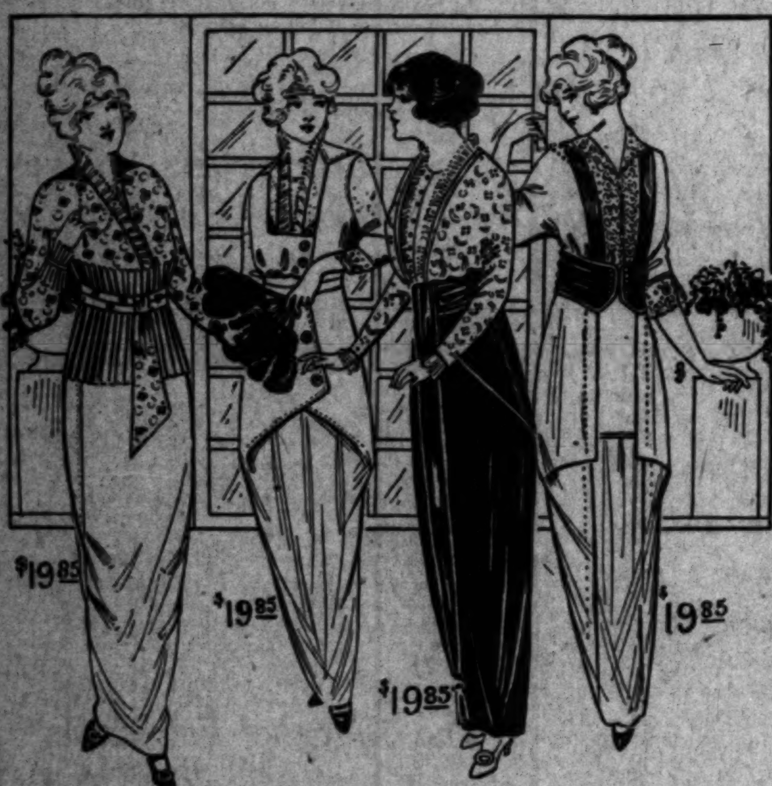
A rousing sale of women's stunning new silk dresses like the illustrations Monday at $19.85



—It's the commencement of the greatest event, from whatever standpoint you look at it—that has been announced in Los Angeles this season. It's an event that will fully demonstrate the efficiency of our new merchandising system and the "Better values" this efficiency has made possible!

—There are a very few of the dresses in this event which other stores might price as low as $25.00, but the great majority of them would be low priced at $30, and even more—

—The four we have illustrated tell the story of their style far better than a whole page of word pictures. The materials include satin Duchess—crepe meteor—charmeuse—messaline and silk poplin.

—There will be a wonderfully broad assortment of them in all sizes to start the sale but so unusual are the values that it would be wise to make your selection right after store opening!

Sport coats for women and misses $13.50

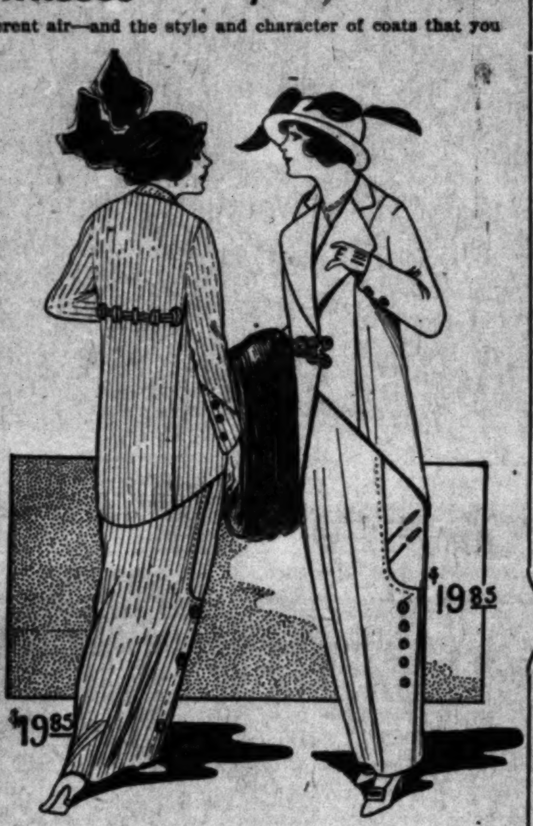
—They have a delightfully different air—and the style and character of coats that you see at a great deal more!—

—A careful comparison of these coats with those other stores are showing will do more towards convincing you of their unusualness than all the praise stories we could conjure up—

—The materials include chinchilla—zibeline and boucle in rose, green, gray, blue and other wanted colors.

—An item worthy a great deal larger advertisement.

Third–Floor.



Women's suits go into this great "better value" event at $19.85

—The great Third Floor garment store will find itself taxed to its utmost to successfully handle the wonder volume of business which is bound to follow the offering of such values as these.

—There are over a dozen different styles—(two of them are illustrated)—of eponge, bedford cord, poplin, diagonal, cheviot and serge in mahogany, gray, Copenhagen, navy, brown, Burgundy and black.

—If we could hand you one of the suits along with this advertisement you would make it a point to tell every woman you know about their unusualness and there would be more than enough women waiting at store opening to take every suit in the lot.

—A full range of sizes up to 44's. Third Floor.

Women's "Forest Mills" underwear for less!

$1.00 Wool Vests and Pants	85c
$1.25 Wool Vests and Pants	$1.06
$1.50 Wool Vests and Pants	$1.22
$1.75 Wool Union Suits	$1.49
$2.00 Wool Union Suits	$1.69
$2.50 Wool Union Suits	$2.19

—Think what these prices mean right at the beginning of the winter season. Center Aisle.

We asked a great New York designer to make up the best hat possible to sell at $6.95 —And he has surpassed even our fondest expectations! We had told him all about our new way of merchandising millinery and he was enthusiastic—he declared we would find in him a hearty co-operator—that his establishment would be an inexhaustible supply from which to draw "better values"—and if we are to take these hats which have just come to sell at $6.95 as a criterion he has expressed his meaning mildly.

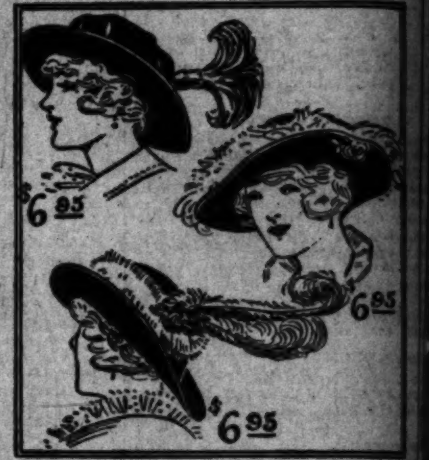
—The pictures show three of them exactly—and there are dozens of others of plush and velvet in black and colors with soft crowns—with drooping or rolling brims and rich ostrich trims.

—Would you have judged those in the picture at less than $10?

—Second Floor—



You have never been able to buy such paradise as these for any where near $5.00

—Just imagine buying real paradise—long sweeping beauties at this price!

—We have had to pay this much wholesale, for many that were not a whit better than these—We've seen paradise not so good as these sold for $7.50 and we believe most stores would mark the ones we have at $10.00.

—Each piece consists of twelve sprays—each mounted firmly on a wire. They are the very effects women will want for both street and dress hats. They come in black, white and natural. We couldn't advise waiting too long to buy yours. Second Floor.

JACOBY'S—BETTER VALUES.

This event brings some wonderful ribbons at 25c yd.

—We're going to offer values every day in the year that will make this ribbon store of ours known far and wide—we can do it because we have made more advantageous buying connections and because by efficient methods we have reduced our selling expense.

—This ribbon we offer Monday is but the forerunner of other wonder values to come.

—There are 126 pieces of richly beautiful ribbons ranging from 4 to 7 inches in width—ribbons that you would not have been surprised to have seen at 45c—and some of it that would be splendid value at a great deal more.

—There are plain silks and satins—and others in Bulgarian and Dresden patterns—in dainty flowered effects in black and white checks and stripes and in glorious plaids.

—And think of buying such ribbons at 25c yd. North Aisle.

JACOBY'S—BETTER VALUES.

Thousands of yards of silks from Wanamaker's and other famous houses—a great sale Monday —In fact the savings are such that Monday should see the sales in the silk store reach a new level! Buying the season's most favored silks at twenty-five to fifty per cent underworth, almost before the season has commenced, is such rare good fortune that few women will care to not profit by it.

—The name "Wanamaker" is sufficient guarantee of the quality of the silks and the fairness of the worth prices, even though we were not back of every yard with an iron-clad guarantee and a liberal money-back policy—

—You can judge the importance of this event by the fact that we have given over the entire south aisle and many other main floor tables and booths to the display and sale of these silks.

—In addition to the thousands of yards of domestic silks there will be piece after piece of glorious imported fabrics from the finest looms of France from whence comes the world's finest silks.

—Whether or not you have your fall clothes planned you should attend this sale—the silks themselves will suggest the prettiest frocks imaginable.

Wanamaker's $8.50 taffeta imprime at $5.75

—Royal silks with two toned grounds and rich flowered patterns in contrasting colors.

—There will be other taffeta imprime underpriced at $6.50 yard.

Wanamaker's $10 Tango satin at . . $7.50

—An extra heavy satin that is at the same time delightfully soft and drapy.

—It comes in a number of exquisite shades. Double width.

42-in. black pebble back charmeuse at $2.19

—Not a week ago, one of the local stores advertised this same splendid charmeuse in a special sale at $3.00 yd., quoting it as a $3.50 value. Women bought it liberally at $3.00! Now imagine what a stir it will cause Monday at $2.19 yd.

Black brocaded coating velvet at . $2.75

—Six handsome designs in self colored brocades and moire effects.

—It all comes full 32-in. wide and would be considered an excellent value at $3.50 yard.

—Many other coatings ready, too.

—Note the few items we have listed here and look for the many others in the windows today and on the Main Floor Monday—

40-inch crepe de chine Monday at $1.35 yd.

—40-in. crepe de chine at a dollar and thirty-five cents a yard—we've repeated it for fear you'd think there had been a mistake—

—Soft crepe de chine in a quality that you would scarcely dream of buying at this price even tho it were way less than 40-in. wide.

—In this yardage which goes forward Monday will be practically every color that is favored for fall.

—Perhaps it would be wise to ask to see these silks the first thing for if values count they will be the first to go!

$15 satin metal broche $11.25

—A decidedly rich silk in patterns and colorings way out of the ordinary. Women who would have something just a little prettier will be eager to buy this at this lowered price. (South Aisle)

Natural color dress linen 25c

—Just one of many of the better values the mezzanine wash goods store offers for Monday. This is a good heavy weight yard wide linen that should cause a flurry among women who know most about values. Others out but not advertised.

—Mezzanine—

Double width crepe meteor at . $1.95

—If this silk had come to us in the ordinary way it would have been priced at least 55c more than this Monday price.

—It's in an exquisite glove finish and comes in black and all wanted colors.

Superb yard-wide peau de peche . . $1.00

—Even the most conservative stores would mark this silk at $1.25 or more! It's a splendid, soft, lustrous silk and comes in fifty-five different shades—fifty-five! Mind you!

—Full 36-in. wide—$1.00 yard.

40-inch rich black crepe de chine at . $2.00

—When you see this splendid silk—note its width and its price you will need no worth price quoted to realize its unusualness.

—There will be other crepe de chines that will interest you too.

42-inch brocaded silk poplin at . . $3.00

—This past week has seen much of this same quality displayed in windows about town at $4.00 yard. Along with this brocaded poplin comes plain effects to match exactly at $2.50 yard.

Hundreds of yards of lace to go Monday at yard . . . 59c

—Still another great demonstration of the better values that efficient, scientific buying and selling makes it possible for us to offer.

—It's a sale that will attract scores and tax to the very limit our store system and prove out its efficiency.

—There are included in the sale linen and cotton Cluny edges and bands—filet laces—shadow lace flouncings in cracquele, filet and other pretty meshes—silk shadow Chantillies—Calais lace edges—band and galloons and worlds of other rich new laces in white, cream, ecru and black.

—There is hardly a lace want but can be filled in this event and the savings are such that it would pay you to come miles and miles to share—

—Laces that most stores would price at 75c, $1.00, $1.25 and more to go at 59c.

Another great group of laces will be marked at 25c

—You have bought just such laces as are in this group at 35c, at 50c and even 75c time and time and again.

—There are cotton and linen Cluny and filet edges and bands ranging from 4 to 6 inches wide and shadow lace in a wide assortment of widths and patterns.

—The choicest patterns will be the first to go, so we advise being early.

Quickly Stops the Worst Backache

Croxone Makes Kidney Troubles, Bladder Disorders, Rheumatic Pains Vanish.

If you suffer with backaching kidney trouble, have disagreeable bladder and urinary disorders, or are tortured with rheumatism, stiff joints, and its heart-wrenching pains, you will be surprised how quickly and surely Croxone will relieve all such troubles.

It soaks right in through the walls, membranes and linings, neutralizes, dissolves and makes the kidneys sift out and filter away the uric acid and poisons from the blood, and leaves the kidneys and urinary organs clean, strong, healthy and well.

It matters not how long you have suffered, how old you are, or what you have used, it is practically impossible to take Croxone without results. It starts to work the minute you take it and is guaranteed to relieve you the first time you use it, or cost you nothing.

If you suffer with pains in your back and sides, or have any signs of kidney, bladder trouble, or rheumatism, such as puffy swellings under the eyes or in the feet and ankles, if you are nervous, tired and run-down, or bothered with urinary disorders, Croxone really will relieve your misery and do it quickly. An original package costs but a trifle, and all druggists are authorized to return the purchase if it fails in a single case.—[Advertisement.

Check the Symtoms of Lung Trouble

One of the many reasons why Lung Trouble is so difficult to fight is because the disease is often of a very flattering nature. The patient may look well, but in reality is fast losing strength by continued night sweats, fever and cough. These symptoms should be checked as quickly as possible. Eckman's Alterative is beneficial in checking fever and night sweats and it has brought about many complete recoveries. Read this case:—

205 W. 36th St., New York.

"Gentlemen:—I am writing you this testimonial that others may know what your Alterative has done for me. Since I was a very young woman I was a sufferer from Bronchitis. I tried doctor after doctor, getting little or no benefit. Finally I had night sweats, weak spells and lost rapidly in weight and my doctor told me if they were not checked I would have Lung Trouble. Miss Mary Korhamer, who is a friend of mine, recovered after taking your Alterative and insisted that I try it. I am now, after two years, perfectly well, strong and healthy."

(Affidavit). MRS. ROSA VOELPEL.

Eckman's Alterative has been proven by many years' test to be most efficacious for severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Stubborn Colds and in upbuilding the system. Contains no narcotics, poisons or habit-forming drugs. Sold by The Owl Drug Co., and leading druggists. Eat and Get Thin

This is turning an old phrase face about, but modern methods of reducing fat have made this revision possible.

If you are overfat and also averse to physical exertion and likewise fond of the table and still want to reduce your excess flesh several pounds, do this: Go to your druggist (or write the Marmola Co., Farmer Building, Detroit, Mich.) and give him (or send them) 75 cents. For this modest amount of money the druggist will put you in the way of satisfying your ambition for a nice, trim, slim figure. He will hand you a large case of Marmola Prescription Tablets (compounded in accordance with the famous Marmola Prescription), one of which you must take after each meal and at bedtime until you begin to lose your fat at the rate of 12 to 16 ounces a day. That is all. Just go on eating what you like, leave exercising to the athletes, but take your little tablet faithfully and without a doubt that flabby flesh will quickly take unto itself wings, leaving behind it your natural self neatly clothed in firm flesh and trim muscles.

Catarrhal Trouble Ended—Use Hyomei

You Breathe It—No Stomach Dosing—Clears Stopped-Up Head.

Use nature's remedy for catarrh and troubles of the breathing organs, a treatment that is harmless yet quick and effective.

It is the healing oils and balsams of Hyomei which you breathe through a small pocket inhaler. This medicated air reaches the most remote air cells in the nose, throat and lungs, killing the catarrhal germs, and restoring health to the diseased mucous membrane.

In using Hyomei you are treating your catarrhal troubles with the natural remedy, for it gives a curative air bath to the nose, throat and bronchial organs. It has a powerful healing and antiseptic effect similar to the air in the mountains, where the forests give off the fragrant and healing balsams.

Hyomei has benefited so many sufferers of the worst cases of catarrh, with offensive breath, raising of mucus, frequent sneezing, droppings in the throat and spasmodic coughing that it is sold under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it does not do all that is claimed for it. A complete Hyomei Outfit, containing inhaler and bottle of liquid, sells for only $1.00. Extra bottles of liquid, if later needed, 50 cents. Druggists everywhere sell Hyomei.

TRY IT! SAYS SAGE TEA DARKENS AND BEAUTIFIES FADED, GRAY HAIR

Mixed With Sulphur Makes Hair Soft and Luxuriant and Removes Dandruff.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is coming in vogue again, says a well-known downtown druggist. It was our grandmother's treatment and hundreds of women and men, too, are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy" for about 50 cents a bottle. It is the most popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply dampen a soft brush or sponge with "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur" and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. Do this tonight, and by morning the gray hair disappears and after another application it is restored to its natural color.

What delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that besides beautifully darkening the hair they say it produces that soft luster and appearance of abundance which is so attractive; besides prevents dandruff; itching scalp and falling hair. Here, you gray-haired folks, get busy: look years younger. Agents, Sun Drug Co.—[Advertisement.

ONE of the prettiest weddings of the season, and the first to be solemnized in the new edifice of the First Presbyterian Church, was that of Miss Adalind Shaul, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Shaul, No. 4034 Park boulevard, and Dr. Milton Bailey of Palomar, which occurred Thursday evening. The ceremony was performed at 8:30 o'clock in the small parlor of the church by Rev. Edwin F. Prize Winners

This Window is one of the special decorative displays exhibited by us during the Fashion Show and which was so favorably commented upon.

TO SAY that we were surprised at the flood of letters received in answer to our offer of a prize for the best criticism of our windows during Fashion Week, would be a mild expression.

We were both surprised and delighted with the general character of the replies, indeed so much so as to be unable to fairly discriminate as to which was most deserving. It was therefore finally decided to leave the matter to our sales force to determine; the letters being read to them without the names or addresses of the writers, and several ballots were necessary to reach a decision.

While only one prize was offered (the handsome "Craftsman" easy chair) yet we feel that many of the letters bore such evidence of careful thought that it would be unjust to grant recognition to only one. Prizes have therefore been awarded as follows:

$49.50 Genuine "Craftsman" Reclining Chair

Awarded to MR. CHAS. H. LEHMAN, 609 VAN NUYS BUILDING, LOS ANGELES.

Oriental Rug Collection

To Be Closed Out in Three Weeks, Beginning Tomorrow

The destruction of one of our warehouses last Monday confronts us with a situation which compels quick and decisive action. We must immediately secure all possible room in our retail establishment, to accommodate immense quantities of new goods for which temporarily we have no available reserve storage space. We must find a place for innumerable shipments of new goods ordered many months ago for our regular Fall business which are arriving now almost daily in the usual way, and we must also be ready to care for many carloads of new goods which will begin to arrive within the next two or three weeks to replace those burned. Concentration in every department of our retail store becomes imperative. The room occupied by our Oriental Rug stock becomes more valuable for furniture stock. Therefore, a rapid, drastic clearance. And while we are about it, we propose to sell this splendid collection of Oriental rugs at prices that will advertise Barker Bros. for years to come!

The Plan Under Which This Sale Will Be Held —On Oct. 6, 7, 8, 9, 10 and 11, Choice of Any Rug in the Entire Collection at

25 PER CENT OFF

Those who wish to secure the rarest and choicest specimens will naturally make their selections during this first week of the sale. At 25 per cent reduction Turkish rug connoisseurs will readily appreciate the extraordinary opportunity to obtain rare old pieces which cannot be duplicated at any price. We commend an inspection of this grand collection which contains so many unusually beautiful rugs as to be altogether notable and worthy of our utmost endorsement.

—On Oct. 13, 14, 15 16, 17 and 18, Choice of Any Rug Still Remaining Unsold, at

33⅓ PER CENT OFF

During the second week of this sale, the reduction will be increased to one-third, applying to every rug remaining from the first week's selling. This is admittedly a tremendous reduction when our regular low markings are considered. This second week should see fully one-half of our entire collection sold. Those who find rugs which meet their particular demands as to sizes and patterns will hardly care to assume chance of losing them by delaying longer than the second week.

—On Oct. 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, the Balance of the Rugs, Without Reservation, at

50 PER CENT OFF

At the beginning of the third week, one more—and final—reduction will be made, cutting original prices on what is left of the stock to exactly HALF—and at these prices we should say that anyone could almost afford to choose blindfolded any remaining rug, and be assured of securing a real bargain of irresistible character.

Conditions and Terms of This Sale

A rug will be considered sold only when paid for—and rugs must be paid for when selected. Every rug will be guaranteed to be exactly as represented. All rugs will be sold in the condition in which they are found in our stock—any repairs or stretching to be paid for in addition to the sale price of the rug.

Every rug sold during the three weeks of this sale can be returned if in good condition, at any time after Jan. 1st and not later than July 1st, 1914, and a guarantee and agreement will appear on the bill of sale stipulating that a credit for a like amount will be given in merchandise from any department of Barker Bros. store, in the event of such return.

Rugs sold in this sale cannot be delivered special, but will be delivered at our earliest convenience—and in any event within one week from the date sold. No rugs will be charged, sent on approval, exchanged, or taken back. No rugs will be reserved, for any one, at any period of the sale.

A Few Words of Suggestion

Various other kinds of rugs, including Kashmirs, Bokharas, Saddle Bags, Kermanshahs in unusual sizes, Antique Senna Kilims, and Antique rugs from all rug-weaving districts.

Inspect this really remarkable collection as early in the sale as possible. You will find not a few, but many surpassingly beautiful rugs, in the greatest possible variety of dimensions, colors and designs, which will genuinely delight you. You will find rugs for the most pretentious mansions, for the modest homes, and antiques of exceptional merit for the connoisseur. If you find several rugs equally meeting your desires, you can defer buying until the later days of the sale and thus buy at the minimum price; if there be but one or two specimens of the particular design or size you wish, then, however, purchase without delay before someone else has anticipated you, for even the opening reduction is amply sufficient to be an irresistible inducement. Remember that genuine Oriental rugs fill a use no other kind of floor-coverings can duplicate. They are most beautiful of all carpetings; in their weaving there is represented an expression of Far Eastern mystery, tradition and art that invites limitless study and admiration. Oriental rugs are serviceable—to be handed down to your children; there is a richness, a refinement, a luxury not possessed by other rugs; and at present prices as will prevail in this sale, we emphasize that the purchase of Oriental rugs now is literally an ECONOMY! We suggest that every reader of this announcement take these few words for serious consideration. Such another opportunity is not probable soon.

SOCIETY.

...y strewed before advancing bride. Miss Shaul entered on the arm of her father, radiant in her gown of white brocaded charmeuse, with drape of Bulgarian thread lace and garniture of crystal and pearl. Her veil was confined to her head with orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley. Dr. Bailey was attended by Irving Wells, as best man.

Following the ceremony a reception to 125 intimate friends of the couple was held at the Shaul home, which, like the church, was decorated with mountain fern, pink and white cosmos and branches of pine and hemlock.

Dr. and Mrs. Bailey left Thursday night for the north, where they will spend two weeks, after which they will make their home at Palomar. Mrs. Bailey has for several years past been one of the most popular teachers at the Florence school, and was one of the teachers at that school to announce their engagement last spring. Dr. Bailey is a graduate of the University of Southern California, and is well known both here and in Los Angeles.

Monrovia.

WITH a brilliant reception at which more than 200 ladies of Monrovia were present, the Monrovia Woman's Club began its season Wednesday afternoon. The occasion was most auspicious in every way and the affair was an unqualified success. The Woman's Clubhouse, where the reception was held, was lavishly decorated with ferns, bamboo, asparagus plumosus and the feathery plumes of pampas grass. Mrs. George O. Mon[illegible] headed the receiving line and greeted the many guests of the club. During the first part of the reception an orchestra played, after which Mrs. [illegible] made a charmingly worded address of welcome. She was followed by Miss Harriet Hutchins, for many years the club's historian, who gave an interesting account of the work of the club during the past year. Miss Susanna Dean, an entertainer of Los Angeles gave a number of unusually pleasing readings, concluding the delightful programme. Ices and cake were served the guests during the social hour that followed, by the young ladies of the club.

Monrovia is becoming a Gretna Green. During the week three ceremonies have been performed by local pastors, and in every case both the bride and groom were non-residents. The first was the Geis-Strong wedding, which was solemnized Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Price. James Geis, the groom, is a nephew of Mrs. Price. The bride was Miss Jessie D. Strong, who came across the continent from Falconer, N. Y., to become a California bride. The wedding was witnessed by the relatives of the young people, Rev. L. J. Millikin, pastor of the [illegible] Methodist Church, officiating. The second ceremony was performed Wednesday forenoon at the home of Mrs. Harris Forsythe, on West Oak avenue, when Rev. R. A. Van der Las, the pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, united in marriage Miss Alice Mary Hughes and William Byron Chaplain. The bride journeyed from her home in Emporia, Kas., the groom coming from Bakersfield, where he has established himself as a rising young attorney. Following the ceremony, an elaborate wedding luncheon was served at Hotel 'Leven Oaks, after which the young couple departed on their honeymoon. They will make their home in Bakersfield. The third ceremony was performed Wednesday afternoon by Rev. Clark [illegible], pastor of the Christian Church. This time the contracting parties were from Huntington Park. They were Miss Nancy Spotts and Mr. Marion [illegible], and were married quietly at the home of the pastor.

A delightful birthday luncheon was given Tuesday by Mr. and Mrs. E. [illegible], at their home on North Myrtle avenue, in honor of Mrs. [illegible] Wade. Among the guests were Rev. and Mrs. R. A. Van der Las, Mr. and Mrs. N. Wade and Mrs. [illegible] of Los Angeles.

Miss Helen Davis entertained the members of the Octo Club at her home on North Myrtle avenue Thursday afternoon. Bridge and sewing occupied the guests. Among those present were Mrs. Hugh Gibson Marshall, Mrs. Claude Chess, Mrs. Leslie M. [illegible] and the Misses Bess Bailey, [illegible] Reed, Eva Bailey, Anna [illegible], Mergie and Pearl Post and [illegible] Newcomb.

The table decoration were pink roses and ferns. The place cards which were painted by Mrs. W. S. Smith of South Royal drive, represented the birth date of each lady present, being the particular flower for that month. Those responding to the invitations were, Mrs. L. S. Cooper of South Pasadena, Mrs. Katherine Myers of Highland Park, Mrs. E. D. Goode of Glendale, Mrs. Alice Winters, Mrs. E. Cormack, Mrs. George Knightlinger and Mrs. John Frackleton of Eagle Rock. Fels-Naptha Soap makes your work easy. How do you do your work? Do you try to find the best and easy way? Or do you have the idea that if a thing is done easily it cannot be done well? That is a mistake. Many people slight things in order to get through quickly, but many women today are doing their work the Fels-Naptha way because they have proved to themselves that it is the best.

Fels-Naptha Soap makes your work easy; does it better; is more thorough. It works in a sensible way—that is why it appeals to sensible women. It gets right into the dirt and dissolves it, and does this with cool or lukewarm water, thus saving your hands. There is nothing that soap and water can do that Fels-Naptha Soap and water cannot do better.

Follow the directions on the Red and Green Wrapper.

Anty Drudge Tells How to Be Happy

Mrs. Weary—"I read the other day that a woman could get out of many a tearful situation by the aid of a good laugh. I'd like to know what can get a woman out of the feeling of dread she has on washday. I, for one, can't laugh, and if I let myself cry as I often want to, I'd only be that much longer getting done. I guess we women just have to grit our teeth and bear some things!"

Anty Drudge—"Nonsense, my dear. Women did use to have to bear things, but these days there are lots of ways to do things different, and make the housework easy. I used to feel the way you do about washday, but now I use Fels-Naptha Soap in the Fels-Naptha way, and when I'm not laughing, I'm singing."

POLICE DECIDE WHEN IT'S DARK.

Supreme Court Ruling Gives Them This Right.

All Germany Alarmed at Big Birth Decrease.

Diplomat Gives Novel Views About Panama Canal.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

BERLIN, Sept. 21.—It is dark in Prussia whenever the police say it is dark. The mere fact that it may happen still to be daylight in defiance of police orders is of no importance.

This is the decree of the Prussian Supreme Court in an appeal taken by a truck owner accused of driving after dark without a lantern on his wagon. The law prescribes that a lantern must be carried by such vehicles after dark, and the police have decided that it is dark thirty minutes after the sun sets. The defendant admitted that he had driven after the prescribed time without a lantern, but contended that it was still light. Two lower courts permitted him to prove his contention and acquitted him. The police, the lower courts held, have no power to set a certain time when it shall be considered dark. The actual conditions must govern in each case. The Supreme Court has reversed this decision upon appeal by the prosecutor and imposed a fine on the offender.

An analogous ruling has been made in an action for damages, brought by a tenant of an apartment-house who had fallen in a dark hallway and injured himself. The landlord pleaded that the hour had not yet arrived when, by police regulation, hallways must be lighted. The plaintiff offered proof that it was quite dark when the accident happened. The proof was excluded as irrelevant. The police, said the court, had decided that it was dark at a specified hour, and that settled it.

BIRTHS FALL OFF.

A decided check in the growth of Germany's population, most alarming to the military apostles of the empire, is shown by the statistics for 1911 which have just been published.

The surplus of births over deaths fell from 879,000 in 1910 to 740,000 in 1911, a shrinkage in the rate of growth of 139,000, or over 15 per cent. This marked retardation in the growth of the nation was due both to a reduction in the number of births and an increase in the death rate. Despite an increase in marriages from 496,396 to 512,819 the total number of births for the empire dropped from 1,982,836 in 1910 to 1,927,039 in 1911, while on the other hand, the number of deaths rose from 1,103,723 to 1,187,094, an increase of more than 83,000. This increase in mortality is attributed chiefly to the extraordinary heat and drought which prevailed during the summer of 1911 and under which infants suffered with particular severity.

Almost a third of the deaths, 359,522, during the year were of children under one year old, some 48,000 babies more than in 1910 succumbing to the heat. The death rate for children in their first year rose from 16.2 in 1910 to 19.2 in 1911. The general death rate, too, after a steady decline for a number of years, rose to 18.2 per 1000 as compared with 17.1 in 1910.

Summing up the statistics in another form the net surplus of births over deaths per thousand population was only 11.3 in 1911, as against 13.6 in 1910 and 14.9 for 1906. These statistics bring out also the fact that almost 30 per cent. of the illegitimate children died before reaching their first birthday.

NEW VIEW OF CANAL.

A novel interpretation of how the Monroe doctrine should be applied after the completion of the Panama Canal has just been voiced by a German diplomat of authority and high position. In substance it is to give the United States full control as far south as the isthmian waterway, but to let the countries of Europe, including Germany, have a free field from Panama to Tierra del Fuego.

The high standing of this diplomat may reasonably be expected to influence the standpoint of Germany in any future controversy involving the famous doctrine of American foreign relations; consequently his views are not without a certain interest. He would cut the American continent in two at the Panama Canal and allow to the United States full and free hand as far south as that waterway, but exclude from the sphere of any Washington supervision or control the relations of Germany and the other European powers with the States of South America. He believes Germany should refrain from any interference whatsoever in Mexico, and that the same rule should apply to all the Central American States. This would involve a virtual extension of the southern boundary of the United States to the canal, so far as the relations of these States to the European powers is concerned. This, it will be seen, is the Monroe doctrine for Central America in an even stronger form than is at present enforced.

But the European states must and should, this diplomat believes, be allowed to settle their controversies with the countries south of this line in their own way and without reference to Washington. The role of the United States as guardian and protector to the whole continent is, he believes, a thing of the past; the South American states have reached years of discretion; they are out of the legitimate sphere of control of the American Department of State; the countries of Europe are entitled to insist on a free hand in their relations with them.

NEW CHECKING SYSTEM.

Encouraged by the remarkable success of the postal system of open check accounts the German postoffice authorities are about to carry government banking one step further by selling postal letters of credit designed to appeal specially to regular and occasional travelers whose financial requirements are not great enough to call for a banker's letter of credit.

AGED EMPRESS EUGENIE ENJOYS GOOD HEALTH.

Walks About Her English Estate Where Lie the Bodies of Her Husband and Son—Great Contracting Firm of John Aird and Company About to Go Out of Business.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Sept. 21.—Empress Eugenie has this year broken a custom of many years standing and, instead of boarding her yacht, the Thistle, for the Cowes regatta, and afterwards cruising in the Mediterranean, she has spent this summer at her home, Farnborough Hill.

This change in plans caused a rumor that the ex-empress, who has enjoyed wonderful health, had commenced to fail, but this is denied and it is stated that Eugenie, who is now in her eighty-eighth year, has been out walking in the woods that surround her home, practically every day during the summer. Farnborough Hill, although situated within sight of the great military camp at Aldershot, is one of the quietest places in England, and the little community of exiles, which surrounds the ex-empress, lives segregated among a forest of pine.

In the grounds are the tombs of Eugenie's husband, Napoleon III., and her son, the Prince Imperial, who was killed fighting for the British in Africa, the bodies having been transferred from Chislehurst, the ex-empress's former residence in England, in 1888. The residence and museum adjoining contain many priceless relics, including the carriages used by the Emperor and Empress at their marriage, and the opening of Napoleon the Third's first parliament. Everywhere are objects to remind one of the past history of this once powerful family.

The Benedictines, who look after the spiritual needs of the household and guard the tombs, have a church and priory, and are now engaged in building an abbey.

NILE DAMMERS RETIRE.

The passing away of one of the greatest contracting firms in the world, John Aird & Co., is announced for next year. The firm which dammed the Nile and carried out other great works throughout the world, will cease to exist next September, by which time all outstanding contracts will have been completed.

The decision to go out of business has been taken by the present Sir John Aird, who succeeded his father in 1911, and inherited from him a fortune of over $5,000,000. The reason given is that, while the risks of contracting are as great as they ever were, the profits are not nearly so large as they were some twenty or thirty years ago. Great plants will be distributed and a staff of engineers and workmen, who are said to have no superiors, will be seeking new positions as a result of the action.

Like that of most big contracting firms, the history of John Aird & Co. is somewhat romantic. It was started in 1848 by John Aird, a Scottish mason, who came to London from Rossshire and after following his trade for several years was appointed superintendent of the Phoenix Gas Company at Greenwich. There he learned the business that gave him his start, and the first big undertaking of his firm was the laying of water and gas mains for London. His son, the first baronet, who died in 1911, joined the firm in 1851, and under him the firm made great strides. They removed Crystal Palace from Hyde Park to its present site at Sydenham; built water and gas works all over the country, as well as in Berlin, Copenhagen, Russia, France, Italy, Denmark, and Brazil. They built and extended railways, and constructed the Royal Albert, East and West India, and Tilbury docks on the Thames, and later the Manchester ship canal. The great docks at Avonmouth and Singapore were created by them, but the damming of the Nile capped all their work.

GREATEST TOREADOR RETIRES.

Bombita, Most Famous Bull-fighter, Retires with a Large Fortune for the Sake of a Girl.

[A. P. Correspondence to The Times.]

MADRID, Sept. 21.—Bombita, the most famous toreador in Spain, has announced his retirement from the bull ring. He will kill his last bull October 19, for the benefit of the Bull Fighters' Pawn Shop, an institution of which he is the founder. Bombita made his own fortune, estimated at $600,000, entirely from the ring, and has besides given away great sums in benevolences.

Bombita's real name is Ricardo Torres. He was a typesetter as a youth, but soon left this calling to follow his two elder brothers into the arena. Few toreadors have acquired such a great reputation as Bombita. His popularity in Spain is univesal. He is chiefly famous for the grace of his thrust and for a reckless courage in giving the bull a chance. He has been gored thirty-eight times, always, of course, slightly, and it has been possible for him to save himself by his acrobatic skill even when on the horns of the bull. His smile is known from the boulevards of Paris to the Puerta del Sol, and is one of the things about him most talked of. During his most reckless feats Bombita smiles.

The easons for Bombita's retirement are not known. Some of his friends aver that he is giving up his career for the sake of a young girl of Barcelona, whom he is about to marry.

Bombita's departure from the ring coincides with the return to it of another famous toreador, Mazzantini, who gave up the calling for politics eight years ago. During these eight years Mazzantini has been a municipal councillor of Madrid, Assistant Deputy Mayor of Madrid and a General Councillor. He recently ran for Parliament, and just failed of election. He has suddenly felt the call of his former profession and intends to return to it.

JAM-EATER'S MOTHER LOVES COUNTRY LIFE.

[BY CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BUCHAREST (Roumania) Oct. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Crown Princess Marie of Roumania, who is the mother of five children, two girls and three boys, is a lover of outdoor life and frequently takes long walks in the woods with her children. Prince Carol was born in 1893, Prince Nicholas in October 1903, and Prince Mischu last January. The Crown Princess, before her marriage to the heir to the Roumanian throne, was Princess Marie of Edinburgh, a niece of King Edward. Of late there has been much criticism of the Crown Princess. She has been accused of having been too friendly with Count Stirbey, who is a maker of jams and is immensely rich. Early in this war the Ris has a caricature of her youngest child, Prince Mischu, eating a large pot of Stirbey's jam, with the comment: "His Royal Highness, Prince Mischu, has refused to touch his bottle and insists on eating Stirbey's jams."

It is not generally known that King Charles, two years ago, insisted on her being divorced from the Crown Prince. She went to Coburg, pending divorce proceedings, but some months later she got permission to return as Prince Nicholas was ill. The King held out for days that as the child was at the point of death he finally consented to the Crown Princess's return.

Commenting on the remark that the establishment of an Irish brewery in Manchester "gives food for reflection," Punch asks: "But is beer food?" Possibly when one remembers the classic dialogue: "'Ad any breakfast, Bill?" "Not a drop!"

CURIOUS WAYS TO INTER DEAD.

Koreans Seize Burial Places Always at Night.

When One Wants a Wife He Captures Her.

Natives Always Rely on the Advice of Astrologers.

[A. P. Correspondence to The Times.]

SEOUL (Korea) Sept. 21.—A curious social fact about Korea is that the most numerous crimes committed by Koreans are connected in some way with tombs and burials. This is the conclusion of M. Kokubu, Chief Public Procurator of the Supreme Court here. A common occurrence is for Koreans to bury their dead in ground belonging to other people without first obtaining the consent of the owner. This is sometimes accomplished in secret, sometimes by force, and it is almost invariably done under cover of darkness.

The underlying reason for these offenses is the Korean superstition that the prosperity or unhappiness of the surviving members of the family in which death has occurred, as well as the happiness of the departed person, depends upon the selection of the burial ground of the dead. Therefore when Koreans are told by soothsayers that a certain spot is good for the burial place they do not hesitate to take possession of the indicated ground.

Blackmail concerning tombs also is frequent. The criminals first open up the tombs belonging to some wealthy family, then remove the head of the corpse and hold it for ransom. In former times the blackmailer succeeded, as Koreans believe that the desecration of tombs brings woe to those who allowed them to remain in a ruined condition. Recently these crimes have decreased, owing to the activity of the police.

WIDOWS SELDOM MARRY.

Mr. Kokubu has recorded another favorite Korean custom, namely, the carrying off by force of widows by bachelors who are unable to marry in the regular way on account of their poverty.

Influenced by Confucianism, Korean women in general believe that they are morally bound not to marry a second time. On the other hand, many men cannot marry on account of the great expense attached to the ceremony. These two conditions have combined to bring about abductions, which are very often nothing more than elopements. Immediately a woman loses her husband some Don Juan in needy circumstances is certain to undertake her rescue from widowhood. Accompanied by friends he goes to the woman's house at midnight and bears her away. Afterward the marriage is announced at a banquet and nobody blames the abductor or the abducted, who are supposed to be happy for ever afterward.

The investigation of crime and criminals in Korea by Procurator Kokubu, and the tradition of the widow's abduction, led him to study marriage customs in general. These he finds have not been changed by the annexation of the peninsula to Japan.

All classes of Koreans marry very early. Not infrequently one meets in Korea boys and girls of fourteen or fifteen already married. These boy-and-girl marriages are arranged by their parents, the young people having no voice in the matter. The decision rests with an astrologer, to whom the parents of a prospective couple go for advice. If the astrologer decides against the pact the matter is dropped. If his advice be favorable, presents are exchanged between the two families and the coming wedding is announced to the actual parties to the alliance. They are, however, still not allowed to see each other.

In Korea, girls are kept confined in an "inner chamber" and are not allowed to go out. They are entirely cut off from society, and consequently are melancholy and unsociable. The wedding announcement is accepted by the prospective bride as heart-breaking news, for she has to leave her own family and join strange people. On the wedding day she says good-bye to her parents and goes to the bridegroom's house, carried in a Korean chair covered with a tiger's skin. This the Koreans believe keeps away the evil spirit. The bride is only allowed to see her husband for the first time when the wedding ceremony is over, for during the ceremony her head is enveloped in a thick veil.

An attempt of a few politicians in Korea to form a "righteous army" to restore Korea to its independence has collapsed and the leaders have been sentenced to jail chiefly on the ground that they were obtaining money under false pretences.

The defendants numbering three were recently tried in the local court at Seoul. The hearing had all the picturesqueness of a Korean gathering, the top-knots and the historic Korean stove-pipe hats contrasting quaintly with the modern European dress of the up-to-date Korean dandy.

Two of the defendants were Confucian scholars and the third a farmer. They declared that their ambition was to show to foreign powers that Koreans were discontented with Japanese rule and that the restoration of independence was justified and desirable. The "righteous army" numbered about fifty, and they realized they were weak. Money was collected for traveling expenses, but nothing ever came of the movement.

Yi Chong No, a small, thin man, who stated that he had been made chief of the general staff of the army, accused the police of having beaten him as a means of forcing him to make incriminatory statements. The defendants were vague as to the disposition of the money collected for the independence movement. Kim Chai Sun was sentenced to two years for having obtained money under false pretences and having invented a story about the "People's Party" in Japan which was supposed to be ready to help the Koreans to win back their independence. Kwak Ham was given one and a half years for helping to organize the "righteous army," and Yi Chong No six months for conspiracy against the government.

ADVANCED MILITANT IDEA VERGES ON FREE LOVE.

Approaching Visit of Mrs. Pankhurst to America Starts Discussion as to Beliefs Regarding Marriage. "Motherhood That Satisfies a Rabbit Is Not Sufficient for a Militant," Declares Leader.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Sept. 20.—The announcement that Mrs. Pankhurst will visit the United States next month for a lecture tour has been received with mixed feelings in England. The British police, of course, are frankly pleased at the prospect of her departure across the Atlantic. In every way her presence constitutes a danger in this country, and a problem. Other friends of America, however, are asking themselves whether the United States quite realize what they may let themselves in for by a reception of this fervent, silver-haired apostle of law-breaking, house-firing, window-smashing, and personal violence.

"A tiny spark will light a big fire." After all, the American police may not prove themselves much more skillful than the English when they have to deal with the madness of hundreds or thousands of excitable women whose ambitions are political even if their acts are cheap, provocative, and deplorably criminal. England has shown to the world that you can't bludgeon horse sense into a woman. What remains?

VISITS MRS. BELMONT.

It seems fairly certain that Mrs. Pankhurst's welcome will not be confined to the extreme section of the suffragettes headed by Mrs. O. P. Belmont. Christabel has been visiting Mrs. Belmont at Deauville, and Mrs. Belmont, who despises us for our treatment of the suffragettes, says that one of the proudest moments of her life was when Miss Pankhurst accepted her invitation to her villa. Mrs. Pankhurst herself is fully prepared for opposition to landing in the United States. She has hosts of admirers over there, and has been kept fully informed of the latest movements on the suffrage question. She has had offers to go on the music-hall stage, too, but has declined them by cable from a modest little French villa where she is staying with Annie Kenney, although both have gone frequently to the villa where Christabel is ensconced with the Duchess of Marlborough's mother.

Deauville pays little attention to "les suffragettes Anglaises," being far too engrossed in frills and fashion for feminism to attract. So any hoped-for propaganda work has been abandoned there—but only there.

A man who has just returned from France says that the British suffragette has become a prominent figure at every fashionable continental watering-place, and that the literature of the Women's Social and Political Union has been well circulated in such places. The women created a good impression wherever they were seen, he adds, and woman's suffrage is likely to be a prominent subject with some of England's European neighbors before long.

Thomas Nelson Page, American Ambassador in Rome, describes militant suffragettes as "live wires." Not a bad description; they are often charged, and they are guaranteed to give a shock to anyone who handles them, particularly if a question is raised as to whether they have really any desperate designs on the holy state of marriage. Onl yesterday Mrs. T. S. Gelet, one of the principal leaders of the British suffragettes now in London, in view of Mrs. Pankhurst's coming visit to the United States, defined the militants' orthodox position in regard to matrimony, so that American critics might know exactly where these militants stand in this important matter.

VIEW ON MATRIMONY.

She did so—in these terms:

"There is," she said, "in the minds of many indolent people an almost ineradicable belief that the suffragettes stand for the disruption of the home, and the break-up of the marriage laws and family life, just because, for reasons of their own, their enemies the 'antis' spread this report. As a matter of fact, those modern theories with regard to the right of every woman to be a mother, married or unmarried, are the logical outcome of the anti-suffrage conception of the position and function of women, viz: the view that she can be of no real use to the community except as a child-bearer.

"This is, put baldly, the root of the anti-suffrage position. They regard a woman who is engaged in other work for the community—mental or spiritual—as more or less wasted, because she is not physically reproducing her kind. This is a very materialistic point of view, and can it be wondered if those who hold that view and see about a million more women than men in the community begin to form theories by which those million women shall 'fulfill their natural function' (a favorite anti-suffrage expression)—and encourage free love and similar doctrines—ignoring the fact that thus many children will be deprived of two parents which are the right of every child born into the world?

"Now, on the other hand, the suffrage movement stands for the value of woman to the community mentally and spiritually, as well as physically. The motherhood that satisfies a rabbit is not sufficient for the militant. Also she claims the right to choose whether she shall be a creator of human beings (in which case she demands greater dignity and protection as such than she receives at present,) or a creator of works of art, or a worker for the good of humanity. She protests against the thoroughly 'anti-suffrage' attitude of mind which scoffed at Florence Nightingale when she began her work for her country; which threw rotten eggs at Josephine Butler, as it did at the first women doctors, and as it does today at the suffragettes, simply because they choose a work outside physical personal motherhood. Happily these women have that glorious spirit of unselfish national motherhood which will suffer all things for the good of the children of the coming generations, as if they were their own.

"The opposition to the women today is exactly of the same essence, and every bit as unreasonable as the opposition to the pioneers mentioned, and, similarly, it is doomed to ignominious defeat. Today women imbued with this same unselfish spirit see around them the conditions of motherhood so terrible and so degrading that all the beauty of it is lost. Children are born diseased, unwanted, sickly, in conditions which no farmer would dream of letting his cow or his mare go through their hours of trouble. And yet women as the mothers of men may be working up till the last minute, liable to kicks and blows from a drunken husband, and then obliged to work and attend to him at the very first minute they can drag themselves to their task after the child is born.

"A woman finds that where her duties as a wife and a man's privileges as a husband come in conflict, the welfare of the child and its mother has today to be sacrificed. Well, this kind of 'marriage' indeed the suffragettes are out against, and in the interests of the children a rebellion must be sown in the hearts of women, or we shall have an even worse racial decay than at present we see around us in England. At present, if a woman has a good husband she is all right. If she has not, she is all wrong, for the law is on the husband's side, as he is not slow to discover.

"What is needed is some protection for women, to insure that, whatever their husband may turn out to be, they shall not suffer the unspeakable horrors that are revealed to us, say, for example, in the report of the National Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children, and by the many local social workers who stand appalled at the magnitude of the tasks of those who seek to make things better. The terrible thing is that so many women become degraded through the conditions of their lives, and servile through the fear of their men folk, that it seems almost hopeless to expect to rouse them to a sense of self-respect and of their dignity as women and the mothers of the race.

"I will quote some words of suffrage leaders if there are still any who mistake the spirit behind the movement, and who imagine it is inspired by anything other than the most ardent desire to raise the ideals of men as well as women concerning their duty toward their children and the welfare of their country. First, however, I would like to draw attention to the fact that the majority of the members of the militant organization are married women, and that a large proportion of the younger women who are in the movement have been brought into it by their mothers. Also the founders and leaders of the various suffrage societies are (with very few exceptions) married women whose husbands have worked heart and soul with them for the same cause.

"Thus Mrs. Pankhurst said: 'I assure you that no woman who enters this agitation need feel that she has got to give up a single one of her woman's duties in the home. She learns to feel that she is attaching a larger meaning to those duties which have been woman's duties since the race began, and will be till the race has ceased to be. After all, home is a very big thing indeed. It is not just your own little home, with its four walls, and your own private and personal interests that you look after then. "The home" is the home of everybody in the nation. No nation can have a proper home unless women as well as men give their best to its building up, and to making it what a home ought to be, a place where every single child born into it shall have a fair chance of growing up to be fit, happy, and a useful member of the community.'

"Again, Mrs. Pethick Lawrence declared: 'Sometimes they say to me: "But if women get their political freedom will it not destroy the beautiful ideal of motherhood?" and I have even heard men say that if women get the vote, and if women sit in Parliament, they will refuse to bear children and the ideal of motherhood will decline. It seems to me that it is the most terrible thought that could enter the human mind that the continuance of the race depends on a subject and subservient womanhood. Surely this is the direct pessimism, the most awful atheism of which we can be capable. But thank God it is not true! When women are free, then for the first time will the wonderful idea of motherhood be able to make its way through; for the first time will it be really known and understood. For it is women who are the custodians of the future; they are the keepers of the keys of destiny; they are the gates of life. It is for the sake of the race, it is for the sake of the generations to come, for the sake of the children that we want women to be free to live out their best and highest ideals.'

"I will quote from a very distinguished feminist writer, Mrs. Lucy Re Bartlett, a strong suffragist and one who has written a wonderful explanation of the psychology of militancy, of the spirit lying behind it, and the reverence and respect due to it. In an article on parentage, she says: 'The sin of man in the past has been that of forcing upon woman children when there was often good reasons why she should not and did not wish them. Today there is a school which would make the father of as little account as the mother has been sometimes in the past and who claim the right of women to bring children into the world as the result of a passing passion of their own, or even without passion, simply because they wish to have a child—in either case treating the father as a mere passing phase, and relegating the child deliberately to a fatherless existence. This sin is different to man's sin, a little less brutal, a little less obvious, but no less egotistical and no less false.'

"It will be seen, therefore, that there is absolutely no justification for imputing to the suffrage movement these short-sighted and disastrous remedies for present injustices. Rather than relieve the father of his present responsibilities, suffragists would seek to make more secure the position of the mother, and make it more difficult than it is at present for a man to shift his responsibility on to some one else's shoulder—usually either the woman's or the community's—and himself go scot free. It is today terribly easy for a man to do this, and to make it still easier would be a clear step backwards into further animality than obtains at present."

DOCKYARD MEN WIN.

British Admiralty Agrees to Recognize the Workmen and Meet Them in Case of Disputes.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Oct. 1.—An important victory for the trade unions was announced when the British admiralty awarded them official recognition. In reply to the demands of the dockyard men, the admiralty agreed hereafter, in the event of disputes, to meet deputations of the workmen, either in London or at the dock yards. It also not only accorded permission to the men in government employ to select their own representatives from the dock yards, but will allow them to be accompanied by trade union leaders.

Continuity.

LIFE AND DEATH ARE REVIEWED.

Eternal Problem Theme of Sir Oliver Lodge.

British Association Hears Latest Deductions.

New Principals Needed to Correlate Sciences.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

LONDON, Sept. 20.—Sir Oliver Lodge's address to 3000 world-famous scientists at the British Association on the subject of life after death has proved one of the most startling of recent sensations in the scientific world. Everybody agrees it was a notable utterance that placed human thought, life and endeavor on quite a new plane, for he seized the occasion to review the whole standpoint of science toward the things visible and invisible which its function is to search out and in some measure to understand. He brought to the task not only wide knowledge, but an independent habit of mind and intellectual courage without arrogance. Indeed, his whole discourse is a protest against arrogance.

His nominal subject was "Continuity," and his address, urging the continuity of life and matter, resolved itself into an eloquent appeal to scientists not to take a negative view on scientific and other subjects outside their own special studies, but to endeavor to co-ordinate all the sciences, to establish some guiding and unifying principle for all to study, the unknown as well as the known, and to throw over their skepticism.

The skepticism he had in mind was not theological, although it involved the theological, but the skepticism that animates biologists, physiologists and physicists in their own controversies, and in their attitude toward theories promulgated outside their particular science.

LIFE A PUZZLE.

"Beneath all," said Sir Oliver, "there is yet the inexplicable fact of life," and in his masterly exposition of the standpoint of several schools of thought he stated that the fact of "life" contained the cohesive force of not only all the sciences, but of science and religion as well, "for science itself is undoubtedly an affair of the intellect.

"Its single-eyed attitude is its strength, but if pressed beyond the positive region of usefulness into a field of dogmatic negation it becomes also its weakness. For the nature of man is a large thing, and intellect is only a part of it. It is, again, only a recent part, suffering from the crudity of newness. Motion and intuition and instinct are immensely older than science, and in a comprehensive survey of existence they cannot be ignored."

The distinguished scientist, reading quietly and keeping to his manuscript —for he was surrounded by some of the keenest intellects in Europe—elucidated the position of the scientist today by this telling illustration:

"Suppose that man made no appeal to the senses of an observer of this planet. Suppose an outside observer could see all the events occurring in the world save only that he could not see animals or men. He would describe what he saw as we have to describe the activities initiated by life.

"If he looked at the Firth of Forth he would see piers arising in the water reaching across in a strange manner till they actually join. Or let him look at the Nile, and recognize the meritorious character of that river in promoting the growth of vegetation in the desert. Then let him see a kind of untoward crystallization growing across and beginning to dam the beneficent stream. It told, concerning either of these structures, that an engineer or designer in London called Benjamin Baker had anything to do with it the idea would be preposterous."

Exact knowledge, he proceeded, had been attained by isolating the sciences one from another; by isolating facts. Thus chemists ignore ether, physicists exclude live things, and biologists exclude mind and design from their provinces. "I cannot admit discontinuity in either space or time," he said, "nor can I imagine any sort of an experiment which would justify such a hypothesis."

On ether he based his theme on the constructive side of his address. Some scientists took up a position of emphatic negation towards ether because they could not detect it in their experiments, but even life itself cannot be detected in a laboratory except in its physical manifestation. "The laws of chemistry and physics must therefore be supplemented, but need by no means be superseded. Life and mind are not excluded by science, although they are by physiology.

"It is my function to remind you that our studies do not exhaust the universe, and that if we dogmatize in a negative direction and say we can reduce everything to physics and chemistry, we gibbet ourselves as ludicrously narrow pedants, and are falling far short of the richness and fulness of our human birthright.

"I see the whole of material existence as a steady passage from past to future, only the single instant which we call the present being actual. The future is the outcome of the present, and is the product of evolution. Existence is like the output from a loom: the pattern, the design for weaving is in some sort 'there' already, but the loom of time is complicated by a multitude of free agents who can modify the web.

"Either we are immortal beings or we are not. Those who make denials are just as likely to be wrong as those who make assertions. Scientific men are looked up to as authorities, and should be careful not to mislead. Science may be able to reveal human destiny, and should certainly not obscure it.

TASKS OF SCIENCE.

"I am one of those who think that the methods of science are not so limited in their scope as has been thought; that they can be applied much more widely, and that the psychic region can be studied and brought under law, too.

"As one of the representatives of orthodox science," he continued, "I will not shrink from the personal note summarizing the result on my own mind of thirty years' experience of psychical research, begun without predilection—indeed, with the usual hostile prejudice.

"In justice to myself and my coworkers I must leave on record our conviction that occurrences now regarded as occult can be examined and reduced to order by the methods of science, carefully and persistently applied, and must go further and say that already the facts so examined have convinced me that memory and affection are not limited to that association with matter by which alone they can manifest themselves here and now, and that personality persists beyond bodily death.

"The evidence, to my mind, goes to prove that discarnate intelligence under certain conditions may interact with us on the material side, thus directly coming within our scientific ken, and that gradually we may hope to attain some understanding of the nature of a larger, perhaps ethereal existence, and of the conditions regulating intercourse across the chasm. A body of responsible investigators has even now landed on the treacherous, but promising, shores of a new continent.

PUNGENT SENTENCES.

"If ever, in their enthusiasm scientific workers say that the thing they exclude from study have no existence in the universe we must appeal against them to direct experience. We ourselves are alive.

"We ourselves are the laboratory which men of science make experiments. If any philosopher tells you that you do not exist, or that the external world does not exist. . . . in all those cases appeal must be made to twelve average men, unsophisticated by special studies.

"Men and brethren, we are trustees of the truth of the physical universe as scientifically explored; let us be faithful to our trust.

"Genuine religion has its roots deep down in the heart of humanity and in the reality of things. It is not surprising that by our methods we fail to grasp it; the actions of the Deity make no appeal to any special sense, only a universal appeal, and our methods are, as we know, incompetent to detect complete uniformity.

"There is a principle of relativity here, and unless we encounter flaw or jar, or change, nothing in us responds; we are deaf and blind, therefore to the immanent grandeur around us, unless we have insight enough to appreciate the whole, and to recognize in the woven fabric of existence, flowing steadily from the loom in an infinite progress toward perfection, the ever-growing garment of a transcendent God."

WHO SIR OLIVER LODGE IS.

Sir Oliver Lodge, who delivered the address to the British Association at Birmingham, is a serious scientific man who takes his pleasures gladly. He is a firm believer in recreation and his theory is that games should be played in moderation by all, and not merely by those who can do them well.

Personally, Sir Oliver is very fond of golf, which he holds to be the best of all recreations for the man who has to work hard with his head. When Prof. Tait taught him golf at St. Andrews thirty-six years ago, he said: "You don't play golf with your muscles; you play it with your morals." To which young Lodge replied: "I hope my morals are not as bad as my golf." He has improved since then.

Sir Oliver, besides being a distinguished physicist of highly original and independent mind, is the exceedingly popular principal of Birmingham University. Lord Rayleigh introduced him as the new president in the place of Sir Edward Schafer who is in San Francisco, and a rather piquant contrast was thus avoided, for while Sir Edward is one of the avowed leaders of the ultra-materialistic school, Sir Oliver is the chief hope in England of the scientific school, which looks beyond physics and chemistry to an ultimate cause and a larger hope.

Immediately behind Lord Rayleigh sat Madame Curie, the pleasant-faced homely lady, who not many years ago shook the accepted principles of science to their foundations by discovering radium. She wore a black evening gown and carried a magnificent bunch of red roses. Sir J. J. Thomson, Sir William Ramsay, Sir David Gill and Sir Joseph Larmor were among the British savants who helped to compose an almost overpoweringly learned platform.

ATTRIBUTED TO SLAUGHTERIN OF BREEDING STOCK.

Assistant Chief of Animal Hus bandry of the United States Sa the Supply from Argentina Is Al That Is Now Left to the Islan Empire.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Shorta of meat supply in England a in United States, is due to considera extent to the butchering of breedi stock, according to G. A. DUBLIN POLICE CLUB CITIZENS.

Giant Officers Are Shown to Be Too Strenuous.

Many Civilians Prostrated, Sent to Hopitals.

Cork Public Men Miss the Free Luncheons.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

DUBLIN, Sept. 20.—The riots in Dublin which filled the hospitals with injured have again focussed public attention on the Dublin force of giant policemen. William B. Black, the well-known journalist, for instance, does not mince words about them. He says they are "the worst force in Europe," and that the real feeling of Dublin is mirrored in the fact that a crowd of over 40,000 attended the funeral of one of the men they fatally injured. He adds:

"The Dublin metropolitan police are quite the biggest men in Europe—and that in two senses. They present so marked a contrast physically to the whole civilian population around them that a foreigner would never suspect that both belonged to one and the same race. It is doubtful if a second thousand men of equal stature and adiposity could be produced out of the 4,000,000 inhabitants in Ireland.

"Every physical prodigy, all that is gigantesque in the island, has been picked out and absorbed in the Dublin metropolitan police. Avoirdupois being the unique desideratum, and being also strictly limited in supply, there is no field of choice for such trivial virtues as tact, civility, intelligence, and, shall we say, education. Yet the prodigies of stature in any country are precisely those who do not abound, as a rule, in the qualities mentioned. In plain words, the Dublin metropolitan police are about as uncouth a lot of men-bears as ever were got lumbering together on this planet.

"Physically unlike the civilian population, they also are constitutionally separated from them in a manner unknown in America. Accustomed for ages to look upon themselves and to be looked upon by the people as an English garrison army maintained to keep down a disaffected populace, they acquired and still maintain a strange spirit of hostility to the people in general similar to that which the police in England confine to the criminal class alone.

HATE ONE ANOTHER.

"This antipathy is mutual. The Recorder of Dublin found it necessary to lay down the dictum in one case before him that 'the police are the servants of the public—not their masters.' That misapprehension is at the bottom of half the baton charges upon respectable non-strikers within the last few days.

"The fact is that the Dublin police treat the respectable working classes with habitual insolence, and, being uncouth men, their insolence is also uncouth. The 'agent de police' in Paris when he wants a crowd to disperse cries 'Circulez, messieurs!' If the Dublin policeman were to address a Dublin crowd with 'Move on, gentlemen,' they would make the sign of the cross, believing the end of the world to be at hand.

"Of all the nonsense written by Irish journalists, the most absurd is that which represents the Dublin mob as fierce and desperate. In reality they are the most police-cowed crowd in this country, or any other I know of. A few days ago at least 10,000 men were coming from one of Larkin's meetings. Although quite orderly, they were charged, through some blunder, by just a dozen and a half constables with drawn batons. The crowd fled in all directions, and not a constable was hurt. If eighteen constables were to charge a Belfast crowd of 10,000, in five minutes there would be nothing left of them but the batons and the helmet spikes to tell the tale of glory.

"In the present riots, so far, nearly 500 civilians are known to have been treated in the hospitals, and probably this does not half exhaust the casualty list. On the police side, all the police hors de combat are known, and they number about thirty all told. So much for the murderous mob of Dublin!"

REDMOND CRITICIZED.

John Redmond's attitude in regard to the labor troubles in Ireland has provoked severe criticism and suspicion among a wide section of labor men in England. There is a feeling that he is by no means as sympathetic a democrat as his past would indicate, and that in an Irish Parliament, his place will be among the monied classes. Even among Irishmen, there is a tendency to regard him in the category of the Tory Conservative, or "superior person" who thinks that labor politics are beneath his dignity. To ignore the labor element in the British Parliament would mean the destruction of any prospects of home rule, and no one who has any respect for the chances of home rule can admire the cavalier attitude of the Irish leader. Most people think that he ought to take his stand beside the workmen; but Redmond has a hard head for diplomacy, and one can never tell what is at the back of his mind.

DIGNITARIES HOAXED.

The municipal dignitaries of Cork and other important Irishmen, have been caught in a net of an enterprising practical joker, and the southwest of Ireland is laughing at the manner in which the unwary ones were entangled in the meshes.

It seems that Winston Churchill was expected to be in Dublin on a certain date, but, for some reason, he was detained at Cork. It may be that the races there proved more attractive to the first lord of the admiralty than a much-disturbed city like Dublin. At any rate, the plans with regard to the latter city went astray, while Winston Churchill went to the races.

Meanwhile someone managed to secure a quantity of the Cork Lord Mayor's official notepaper, and on this paper was printed an invitation to lunch that day with the first lord at the Hotel Imperial. Then the letters were posted to the dignitaries and Councillors.

To give the invitation verisimilitude, these words were added: "Please excuse hasty notice."

Hasty notice or not, the summons was loyally and speedily responded to. Ceremonial attire was quickly donned, and, displaying their best "joy-day" smiles, the public men mounted their jaunting cars and other vehicles and jogged off to the Imperial Hotel. On arrival, they, of course, found the invitation to be a hoax, and displaying their most serious frowns, they jogged off lunchless.

Anglo-Indian Against Dance.

Miss Maud Allan,

Whose declaration to dance Salome in India before the natives has agitated all England.

Salome.

VAUDEVILLE DANCE STARTS FIERCE COLOR LINE FIGHT.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—As expected, the visit of Jack Johnson, the colored pugilist, to England in company with his "white wife," is raising a bitter aftermath. The question whether this man should be allowed to become a popular idol on his flight from a conviction in Chicago has rumbled slowly and painfully into public forgetfulness and oblivion; but the sting of the affront to morality has remained, and has produced a cruel harvest of doubt and suspicion of colored peoples.

The latest to suffer from this newly-sensitized conscience as to the rights of the white races is Maud Allan, the vaudeville dancer. Somehow it leaked out that she meditated a professional visit to India, and as her dances are always full of barbaric color, suggestion and movement, old Anglo-Indians turned in their sleep. They began to ask themselves whether this cheapening of a white woman's charms should be permitted—whether her daring performances in various Indian cities before crowds of whites and natives would not make the lot of the English woman in the great Empire of India more difficult and open to abuse.

ANGLO-INDIANS PROTEST.

Cabled protests appeared in various London newspapers, printed side by side with strong expressions of opinion from the Anglo-Indian press averse to Maud Allan's appearance on the Indian stage. In fact, only one Bombay journalist took up cudgels on the dancer's behalf, and he said generously, but perhaps unwisely, that "people in Bombay, where European dancers are frequently seen, have little sympathy with the anti-Allan agitation. His message goes on to say that "considering the fact that the bunny-hug, turkey trot, and every kind of western ballet dancing are features of the Bombay theaters, astonishment is expressed at the proposal to veto Miss Maud Allan's appearance."

In the theatrical profession, also, Maud Allan did not meet with generous support. On the contrary, Charles d'Albert, the famous dancing master, said the bunny-hug, the tango and the turkey trot had nothing to do with the question. The real point was that the exhibition might in some obscure method undermine the safeguards which Englishmen in India had with painful anxiety and deliberation built around their women-folk.

"I do not suggest," he explained, "that Miss Allan is not an artist, but I do say that she is not an artist in the sense that Adeline Genee is. There is poetry in Miss Allan's 'turn,' and there is infinite charm, but dress her in a ballet skirt and her dances would mean nothing. A European audience can regard Miss Allan's performance and see in it nothing but the poetry Miss Allan wishes to express, but no audience of colored men could view it from that standpoint. As an authority on dancing, I can say further that were she to wear a ballet skirt or the draperies that are generally worn by the Russian dancers, the charm of Miss Allan's 'turn' would entirely disappear."

ADVISED TO DROP TOUR.

"No one is a greater admirer of Miss Maud Allan's art than I," added Ben Nathan, the managing director of the London Operahouse, "but I certainly say that I think she would be well advised to drop the tour. Although in our own eyes such a confusion would be impossible, inasmuch as we appreciate Miss Allan's 'motif' and her art, in India the colored people would be liable to compare her with their nautch-girls, who are, as everyone knows, 'beyond the pale.'"

The agitation has not been a pleasant one for Maud Allan to confront, but it has certainly been a healthy one. And it has served to emphasize the dangers of the color line in a way that can only prove productive of good in the near future. The English people are notoriously careless and blind to this color peril, and it was time that they had a sharp awakening, even if, in the process, they had to say something that was harsh and peremptory to one of their most popular vaudeville dancers.

Laughs?

FLASHES OF WIT FROM THE POND OF DESPAIR.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Sept. 20.—Following is the week's outpouring of British and continental wit and humor:

"Is your husband kind to you?" asked the lady philanthropist. "Oh, yes, ma'am," was the instant response; "he's kind—very kind. In fact, you might say he's more like a friend than a husband."

Difference imperceptible—The impecunious young man was interviewing his expected father-in-law. "So," said the latter, "it is evidently your opinion that two can live as cheaply as one?" "Yes, sir," replied the youth, "I don't think you will find any perceptible difference."

A widower who was married recently for the third time, and whose bride had been married once before, wrote across the bottom of an invitation to the wedding he sent to a well-known concert platform artist, who told me the story the other day, "Be sure and come. This is no amateur performance."

First chorus lady: You will hardly know George since his return from South Africa. He has lost all his money, and—

Second chorus lady: Then I shan't know him at all, dear.

It was a Scottish journalist who told me the story, so let the sting of it be about his Celtic ears. A week ago at Ramugato—or it may have been Largate—a dashing young man brought new and brighter halos about his head by jumping off the pier to save a drowning boy. The congratulations showered upon him during the morning and early afternoon pleased his soul immensely, but when, towards evening, a braw, bulky Scotsman approached him from somewhere or something he scented danger.

Arms akimbo, the Celt advanced upon the rescuer. "Aye, man," ejaculated the newcomer, "and are you the chiel wha saved my wee laddie this forenoon?" The youth blushed, glanced modestly about him, and finally admitted that he was the hero. "Oh, ye are, are you?" cried the Scotsman, menacingly. "Weel, I wad like to ken what you've done wi' the wee laddie's bannet!"

Some passages from a sprightly article in the "Nation" on "The Decay of the Book:"

Twenty years ago Stevenson had just revived heroism in authorship, and had traveled in three continents as a missionary of the rights of words. In his youth he had fought with wild authors at Edinburgh, and in his manhood had rescued many an adjectives from the mouths of journalists.

The difference in the literary atmosphere between then and now may be expressed in a sentence. Then the middling writers envied the good writers their craftsmanship; now the good writers envy the middling writers their banking account.

Even an author has to dine—to adopt a line of Henley's—and if there is not a decent dinner in books, then there will soon be no decent books either.

"Lillian," said the girl's mother, "there were three pieces of cake in the pantry, and now there is only one. How did it happen?" "Well," said the child, her eyes wide open with excitement, "it was so dark in there that I didn't see the other piece."

A clever little English girl, who declared that she might spell "honor" so loved she not "honour" more, had fallen among Americans, and was being quizzed by her companions about the manner of spelling that word and other words like it. "And do you spell 'behaviour' with the U?" she was asked. "Oh, yes," she replied, "my mother would not think it was good behaviour to spell it without the U."

You can't escape except by strength
The Bore who airs his views on health;
He boasts that he gets up at dawn
To walk barefooted on the lawn;
He won't drink this, he won't eat these,
He lives on water, nuts and cheese;
He'll tell you, if you're getting fat,
A simple remedy for that—
"Roll," says the idiotic Bore,
"Two hours a day along the floor."
They call it murder, I suppose,
To kill this Bore. Why? goodness knows!

Cash or Credit

BRENT'S BRENT'S

YOU know better than to imagine you can go to any House Furnishing Store and buy as cheap for credit as you can for cash. Business isn't done that way, and never has been. Brent's, the greatest profit-sharing Furniture Store on the Pacific Coast, has never led you to believe that we sell for credit as cheap as for cash. You'll find prices on all Merchandise at Brent's plainly marked, figured on a very close margin of profit, FOR CASH. No concessions, rebates nor anything of the kind have ever been allowed here.

When you take advantage of Brent's liberal Credit Policy, ten per cent is added to the price marked on the goods. We don't try to pretend that you pay the same price as you would if you paid CASH. When you buy articles valued at $60 or more, on Credit, you are allowed a full year to complete your payments. If you wish to pay off everything before our contract with you expires, we deduct ten per cent on every dollar you pay before it is due.

This has been Brent's way of doing business for nearly a quarter of a century. The fact that our business today has reached gigantic proportions certainly demonstrates that Brent's Policy is Fair, Square and Honest.

A Happy Bald Headed Man

Well-known Politican Nearly Bald Now Has Heavy Growth of Hair.

Tells How He Did It.

A western politician, well known on account of his baldness and ready wit, surprised his friends by appearing with a heavy growth of hair; many of his old friends did not know him and others thought he had a wig. One being asked how he did it, he made the following statement: "I attribute the remarkable growth of my hair to the use of the following simple recipe which any lady or gentleman can mix at home: To a half pint of water add 1 oz. of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ oz. of glycerine. Apply to the scalp two or three times a week with the finger tips. It not only promotes the growth of the hair but removes dandruff, scalp humors and prevents the hair from falling out. It darkens streaked, faded gray hair and makes the hair soft and glossy. These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost and mixed at home.—[Advertisement.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. WAR EPISODES CORRECTED.

A CONFEDERATE GIRL'S DIARY. By Sarah Morgan Dawson. Houghton, Mifflin Company, New York and Boston.

WHO has not known the very best type of cultured southern woman face to face and mind to mind could scarcely appreciate how anyone, with only ten months of regular schooling, could have compiled a journal so truly a literary creation as "A Confederate Girl's Diary." The present reviewer knew this type of woman in a Georgia home—the wife of a country doctor, whose vast plantation was being sold bit by bit to meet emergencies, for the country doctor, in West or southland does not expect compensation for his professional services—and he never refuses a call. The woman referred to was one of the best educated, most highly cultured creatures it has ever been the writer's pleasure to know. She was well on toward 70, but she was conversant with the most up-to-date literature and topics of the time. Refinement, femininity, intelligence—this combination in a southern woman is irresistibly charming, no matter what her age. And this description characterizes Sarah Morgan Dawson. One does not need to have seen her to know this. She takes us into her confidence as a young girl at the beginning of the Civil War. And what a glorious girl! Patriotic as was her passionate heart in the cause of her people, fierce as was her hatred of "Picayune Butler" for raking the streets of her home town with shells when there were only women and children in it—she still shows a remarkable sense of fairness in her judgments, and a knowledge of the political situation at the time that leaves small cause for wonder that the northerner who long afterward had asked to see her journal, sent it back coldly with the comment that it could not possibly have been written by a young girl.

The femininity of the young woman stands out gloriously when, fired by loyalty to the South, she makes a little silk flag, and wears it on her bosom in going about the town, at that time filled with Federal officers. Of course, the beautiful young creature is stared at. Believing that the flaunting of the southern flag is the attraction, she becomes painfully embarrassed, but is too proud to remove the cause. But upon returning to her home she tells her diary that she will not again make herself so conspicuous. She expresses an abhorrence for the loud-voiced ladies who gather in public places, and fling such epithets as "liars, thieves, murderers, scoundrels, scum of the earth, etc.," at the Federal officers, so that they may be overheard. "Let them be what they will," she writes, "it shall not make me less the lady."

Many facts are brought out in this diary concerning events which have not been clearly recorded in history. The author's son, in his preface to the volume states: "A Philadelphian had been talking to my mother of North and South, and had alluded to the engagement between the Essex and the Arkansas, on the Mississippi, as a brilliant victory for the Federal navy. My mother protested at once, said that she and her sister, Miriam, and several friends, had been witnesses from the levee, to the fact that the Confederates had fired and abandoned their own ship when the machinery broke down, after two shots had been exchanged; the Federals, cautiously turning the point, had then captured but a smoking hulk. The Philadelphian gravely corrected her. History, it appeared, had consecrated, on the strength of an official report, the version more agreeable to northern pride." Mrs. Dawson's protest that she had written a description of the whole just a few hours after it occurred failed to move the preconceptions of the Philadelphian.

In poring over this writer's description of the exodus from her home—of the exodus of many families from their homes, and the many sufferings of the brave women whose natural protectors were engaged in the unnatural warfare, the heart bounds with relief to realize that it is all years and years behind us, and that good will and unity once more bind the northerner and the southerner heart to heart.

A NEW MARK TWAIN.

TRAVEL LETTERS FROM NEW ZEALAND, AUSTRALIA AND AFRICA. By E. W. Howe. Crane & Co., Topeka, Kan.

TO do full justice to this lesson in travel-writing would require a volume in itself. Mr. Howe's book contains humor, freshness, and evidences keen observation. A more interesting and vivid account of wanderings in foreign lands will be hard to find. Every line will prove absorbing to the reader. The book is entirely different from anything that has as yet come to our attention in this line. There is a charm about every page that is difficult to describe, and cannot be conveyed until it is experienced directly through a reading. The author's account of the stories of the captain of the Sonoma, the experiences of Mr. Howe himself, inimitably told, remind one of passages in Mark Twain's works.

"Few young people travel," commences one of his delightful paragraphs, "only the old or middle-aged seem able to afford it, while only the young are able to enjoy it. The stewardess calls my niece 'dear,' but invariably refers to me as 'Mr. Works.' I am trying to get even by inventing a new name for the stewardess every time I speak to her. Her name is Mrs. Combs, but I began by calling her Mrs. Ashton, and followed it with Mrs. Bullard, Mrs. Comstock and on down the alphabet, until now I call her Mrs. Wheeler. James, the room steward, and George, our dining-room steward, know my name, but to the stewardess I am always 'Mr. Works.'"

Relative to the journey through Australia, of which a most interesting account is given, Mr. Howe scores one for the suffragist in relation to the intelligent use of the ballot. "In Australia, where women have full suffrage, the wives of the workingmen often vote against their husbands. In a certain election of 1911, the Labor party demanded the adoption of a measure that would result in many strikes and much disturbance. It was believed that the measure would carry by a large majority, but the wives of the Labor men generally voted for peace, and the measure demanded by their husbands was defeated two to one." Certainly some proof that women are equal to the exigencies of suffrage!

The journey through South Africa is equally delightful. The account of an editorial which appeared in the Natal Mercury, one of the leading newspapers, furnishes some astonishment to the reader. "Rural America," the editorial says, "knows little of decent roads, well-organized police or mail facilities, and consists largely of wide-spreading areas that do not contain one human being to the square mile." Truly something astounding to learn about ourselves. The editorial views with alarm the race problem in America. It also fears that the American people are today where the Romans were just before the decline. If newspapers naively print such statements, is it any wonder that the English people have absurd notions of the Americans?

The author's account of the De Beers Company, the trust that took over the Kimberly diamond fields, is highly interesting and instructive. In fact, from the commencement of the journey at San Francisco, December 19, 1912, to the journey's end in Atchison, May 18, 1913, the book furnishes a rare treat to the reader, and Edward Bok well says of it: "Here is a lesson in travel writing that is worth while, and may not be done again in a hurry."

A HEART STORY.

THEIR CHRISTMAS GOLDEN WEDDING. By Caroline Abbot Stanley. Thomas Y. Crowell Company, New York.

AMID the clamor of white slavery, and other sex problem books, a clear, sweet, contrasting note is struck in this little Christmas booklet by Caroline Abbot Stanley. "Their Christmas Golden Wedding" is a story containing a strong, homely heart throb. It is a story that every grown man and woman, who has married, and whose old parents are still alive, should read. It too often happens, as in this story, that the old couple who have given all their life energies, and all of their worldly possessions to the rearing, educating and establishing of their children in advantageous circumstances, find themselves at the last poverty-stricken, and at the mercy of these same children, who find the old folks a burden, and squabble among themselves to escape the responsibility of the care of their parents. Although we have nothing quite so cruel and heart breaking in this story as the spectacle presented in Balzac's "Pere Goriot," it is sad enough to see a happy old Darby and Joan forced to leave the little home where they had lived throughout their married life, because of illness, ruthlessly separated, and placed in the unaccustomed position of subordination to the customs and caprices of their sons and daughters.

On Christmas eve the couple make a pilgrimage together to the old house, which has been leased as they had left it. Christmas festivities have been arranged to take place at the home of the daughter, not very far distant. The couple find the tenant compelled to go away suddenly. Old Darby sees his opportunity, and, assuming a stern demeanor, threatens to hold the tenant to her lease. She is willing and anxious to make concessions. She pays him the balance for the first year, leaves him her cow and a number of other interesting domestic accessories. Darby has his pension of $13 a week, and decides that with this and the butter and eggs they may be able to sell, they ought to get along.

Night comes, and the old couple fail to return to the daughter's home. There is great uneasiness among brothers and sisters until the maid reports that the old gentleman called late in the afternoon, taking away a trunk and two suitcases. She also produces a note.

"My dear son," it runs. "I have a chance to take back the old place at a bargain, and I have done it. We think it best to be in our own home. Don't worry about us. We will get along. There's my pension, you know. Your mother is looking for you all out to dinner tomorrow. And, my son, this is settled."

The old couple have eloped on the eve of Christmas and their golden wedding. Paradise opens once more for them. The children awake to their own past cruelty. There are fifty "gold of Ophir" roses before the happy, tear-dimmed eyes of the bride, and fifty shining dollars at the patriarch's hand, which are to be replaced each month.

A CORRECTED CONCEPTION.

THE BEGINNINGS OF MODERN IRELAND. By Philip Wilson. Norman Remington & Co., Baltimore.

WITH profuse quotations, direct and indirect, from other histories, Philip Wilson has produced a volume dealing with the conquest of Ireland during the reigns of Henry VIII and his successors up to the accession of Elizabeth. The author candidly admits, in his preface, his obligation to different standard historical writings for a considerable amount of the material upon which the book is not only based, but built.

In the assumption of the truthfulness of two propositions, first, that the present condition of Ireland is one of political disease; second, that the causes of the condition are to be found in the past history of the country, the author has presented to the reader two strong and convicing points that are essential to a correct understanding of the story of modern Ireland. A starving population, an absentee aristocracy, alien church, and in addition the weakest executive government in the world—these are the vital creative elements of dissension and unrest in this long-suffering island, brought strongly to the front in the present volume. In the early passages the author claims—and by strong and convicing argument maintains—that the aim of the King and his advisers was not the restoration of order, but the perpetuation of anarchy, his own troops interfering with just sufficient energy and frequency to prevent the native chiefs from governing the country. A chief who was not at war with his neighbors was suspected, not always unjustly, of conspiring with them, and vast sums of money were expended annually by the government in sowing dissension among the native population. The author substantiates this claim with numerous extracts from English history.

In the account of the Geraldine Revolt, Mr. Wilson shows how the authority of the crown was completely overshadowed by that of the house of Kildare, and how it was only by intrusting the government to the head of that house that the King of England was able to preserve a show of sovereignty, and occasionally obtain a scanty revenue. The further account of this revolt, and its consequent disastrous results to the Kildare family, is set forth in a stirring manner.

In his introduction Mr. Wilson presents a most forcible argument against the theory "that the misfortunes of Ireland are traced to the ineradicable defects of the Celtic character."

There is sufficient that is new in the book—a considerable part, according to the author's statement, having previously existed only in manuscript—to present touches of novelty. And there is no reason why history should not be presented with these touches, or should be wanting in those qualities of style and presentation that allure and fascinate in other forms of literature. In fact, if more historians possessed the story-telling faculty, without in any degree tampering with facts, history would be more commonly read, and there would not be the too-widespread, shocking ignorance concerning historical facts, which at present exists even among cultured people.

Edwin L. Sabin,

Author of "Treasure Mountain" and a frequent contributor to The Times Illustrated Weekly.

It may be said of the author of "The Beginnings of Modern Ireland" that his work is exhaustive, and his material presented in a pleasing manner. And it will doubtless give to the reader an insight to facts which will explain conditions in Ireland as they exist today.

A CLASH OF CLASSES.

THE NORTHERN IRON. By George A. Birmingham. Norman Remington & Co., Baltimore.

THIS story deals with the revolt in Ireland in 1798, when the world was full of the kind of ideas for which men are well content to die, for which, also, they did not hesitate to shed blood. The author has used these conditions to fair advantage, and has presented to the readers of this volume a story dealing with class hatred, intrigue, revolution—and last but not least, a love tale, interesting in some of its details; and at some points, rising to gripping climaxes. The general phrasing and style of the dialogue are good, and some of the characters are well-presented, especially those of Lord Dunseveric, Donald and Micah Ward, James Hope, and the lovers. The author has shown considerable cleverness in the interview between Lord Dunseveric and Micah Ward—the latter a religious fanatic—where his lordship endeavors to make plain to Ward the danger threatening the adherents of the uprising through the government's knowledge of the conspiracy, betrayed through certain treacherous members of the brotherhood. His lordship also endeavors to show Ward the utter hopelessness of success in the uprising. Ward's reply to this appeal sets forth a clear portrayal of the extremist—the zealot, and the futility of any enterprise under leadership where fanaticism supplants reason.

Donald Ward is a character which is certain to make its appeal to the reader—trong and determined, harsh, but at heart honest—a soldier of fortune fighting more for the zest of battle than with the hope of reward. In James Hope appears the author's strongest character. His utterances are far different from the flamboyant oratorical flings of other leaders in his cause. He realizes the gravity of taking up arms against established government. He alone realizes the slimness of the chances of victory for the United Irishmen.

There are really fine touches of sentiment in the association of the lovers—sentiment that is refreshing and wholesome in its influence in a day when the sexes are prone to regard each other with suspicion.

BOOKS FOR YOUNG FOLKS.

TREASURE MOUNTAIN. By Edwin L. Sabin. Thomas Y. Crowell Company, New York.

THE love of adventure in every boy will probably render "Treasure Mountain" a literary treasure to boys. If they do not personally know the regions described in a book, all is well and good, even if a volume is full of inaccuracies. We do not accuse Mr. Sabin's work of being full of them. Nevertheless, there are some inaccuracies, in the crack of which the experienced mountaineer is sure to place his finger. The seasoned back-mountain characters are not thoroughly convincing, and when one of them draws an elegant geometrical simile such as would be possible only to the student in harness, or the seasoned professor, the inconsistency is certain to jar even the inexperienced reader.

As the title suggests, the boys are on a prospecting and mining venture among the peaks of the Lost Park region. They compose a jolly party of nine students engaged in practical demonstration of mining. The absent-minded professor, Grizzly Dan, Pihl, Chet, Charley Pow-wow, the two young girls, Cherry and Molly, and the black man—who enacts the role of villian—are among the characters who develop the story. The author has shown a far-reaching understanding of mining, and has most cleverly demonstrated each step in its processes, setting forth in an interesting manner the various methods of extracting precious metals from the earth. The account of the prospecting trip on "Red Chief," in search of the lost Frappe Mine, the encounter with the Big King, the discovery of the petrified forest, the storm on the mountain, the landslide that destroyed the wonder forest, and buried forever Chet's ruby-studded saddle and bridle, the mysteries of the cave, the discovery of the fate of the three hostiles, the narrow escape of the prospectors from a like fate through the warnings of Grizzly Dan—all of these live and exciting adventures are sure to hold the mind of the young reader, and stimulate his imagination.

Mr. Sabin's work may be commended for its wholesome quality, and excellent literary workmanship. The book is thoroughly up-to-date, and may be placed in the first ranks of present-day literature for juveniles.

DEEP-SEA STORIES.

MIDSHIPMAN DAYS. By Roger West. Houghton, Mifflin Company, New York and Boston.

NO DOUBT such a book as "Midshipman Days" will be welcomed by the growing boys whose eyes are turned with longing toward a naval career. There is a notable absence of sensationalism in the story. It is clean-cut and virile, and interesting in its depicting of the two principal boy characters. It is a tale without a villian, for the wealthy young "plebe," who enters the Annapolis Academy on a dare, through his love for a sturdy youth of sterling character, overcomes cowardice, snobbishness and dishonesty, and finally proves his worth and bravery in the Spanish-American war.

There is a delightful girl character who becomes friendly with the young hero of the story, and who talks naval slang delightfully, and is witty and altogether lovable. She is the inspiration—the prod that forces the young man through his difficult examination keeping his ambition at white heat.

A humorous situation is afforded when the young man, on their first cruise, cast anchor in the harbor of Funchal. Two of the first-classmen, inseparable friends, fall in love at sight with a beautiful young Portuguese girl. They arrange that she shall be serenaded, but as neither one has any musical talent, they forcibly press into service one of our young "plebes"—or first-classmen—to do the deed. To the accompaniment of a guitar, he sings beneath the fair one's window, and himself receives the red rose coveted by the enamoured first-classmen, one of whom receives a paddling from the young lady's father, while the other runs screaming down the street with the fingers of her pet monkey clutching his hair. So it is good-by, fair Dolores.

The style of the book has not that heart-to-heart quality that so quickly grips the boy reader. The conversation of the boys is unnaturally stilted, and not true to the nature of masculine youth. In fact, is is, throughout, a bit too "academic" even for boys under academy regime. The action is not sufficiently vigorous and constant. On the other hand the development of Blake and Geff—the first thoroughly masculine, and severe in his ideas of honor, the second self-indulgent, gifted, but lacking in physical bravery and cleancut ideas of honor—is well worked out, when the severity of the one becomes modified, and the other develops manliness and integrity.

THE PATCHWORK GIRL OF OZ. By L. Frank Baum. The Reilly & Britton Company, Chicago.

ANOTHER jolly good book of "Oz" from the pen of L. Frank Baum, is on the literary market. Mr. Baum's books are like circuses. The grown-ups are half ashamed to be caught taking a peep at them, and must, forsooth, take a child—their own or borrowed—as an excuse for frankly devouring the pageant with their eyes. But these grown-ups do enjoy themselves every minute of the time. They are not discomfited even by the smell of the animals, the pouring of the hot sun onto the suffocating canvas, and will calmly eat ice cream cones and drink pink lemonade with the very littlest. Hurrah! Why not? It's fine to forget you are a grown-up for a while. And this is just the way you feel when you take up any of Mr. Baum's delightful books about the mysterious land of Oz. "The Patchwork Girl of Oz" is no exception to the rule. The very absurdity of it is fascinating.

Scraps, the Patchwork Girl, is manufactured by the wife of a magician, who puts her together carefully from gaudy scraps, and stuffs her to suitable roundness. The magician then sprinkles upon Scraps the powder of life, expecting to raise up a servant for his wife. Ojo, a lonely little boy who has dwelt in the forest solitudes with his "Unc Nunkie," has arrived on a hungry pilgrimage at the magician's home. He is witness to the magical process. But immediately before it takes place, he stuffs a miscellaneous assortment of brains into Miss Scrap's head. Since there has been no plan in their selection, Scraps displays remarkable brilliancy, but lacks consistency and logic. In her lively gyrations she knocks a deadly powder from the shelf, which transforms Unc Nunkie and Margolette into marble images. The life powder has been spilled, and since it requires four years to manufacture it, Ojo is in despair. He, however, starts on a pilgrimage for the Emerald City, whence he is to bring back a six-leaved clover, the left wing of a yellow butterfly, a gill of water from a dark well, a drop of oil from a live man's body, three hairs from the tip of a Woozy's tail. Nobody knows what a Woozy is—nobody has ever seen one, but a Woozy must be found since the hairs from his tail are a part of the life-restoring recipe. So off Ojo starts, accompanied by Scraps and the glass cat with pink brains, of which she is very proud. She is constantly calling attention to them, each time laying particular stress upon the fact that "you can see them work"—a little trick if repetition which Baum has used in all of his work most effectually as a laugh-producer.

The book is brimming with humorous situations and keen wit from cover to cover. That's why the grown-up will appreciate it. And as to the kiddies—well, say, they will find "The Patchwork Girl of Oz" just one grand whirlwind of joy. May we all soon find ourselves treated to another Oz stage production.

WITH THE AUTHORS.

Samuel Eliot Morison sailed from Liverpool on the Francona September 16. This writer is of particular interest to California because he has written a life of Gen. Harrison Gray Otis. This work will be published by the Houghton Mifflin Company during the present month.

Frederick Trevor Hill, who has practiced law at the New York bar for twenty-three years, and has been connected with the trial of some of the most remarkable cases known to New York courts, has spent the past summer in Switzerland, working on a life of Washington soon to appear. Mr. Hill's "The Thirteenth Juror," shortly to be issued by the Century Company, is his first book of fiction since "The Accomplice."

An unusual treat was given to a small gathering of summer residents one afternoon in a Bar Harbor drawing-room when quite recently Dr. S. Weir Mitchell read to the assembled guests the songs of three generations. The first, "A Song Should Be Sweetly Sung," written by his father is quoted in Dr. Mitchell's "Characteristics." He then read a poem by his son Langdon—"True Captivity," from a book now out of print, and finished by reading one of his own productions. Two lines of Langdon Mitchell's poem are quoted in the West Point scene in his father's new novel "Westways."

Count Stephen Korwin Szymanowski, who is an interesting and familiar figure in Los Angeles—where he has made his home for eleven years of the twenty-five that he has spent in America—is a native of Caucasus, where he was prominent in education movements. He had not spoken a word of English before his arrival in this country. He has now, however, a beautiful command of the language. No purer English could be found than that contained in "The Searchers," a recent work by this author. "The Evolution of a Theologian" from the same pen is now on the press and will be among the October issues of Sherman, French & Co. of Boston. It was the privilege of the present reviewer to examine the manuscript before it was sent to the publisher, and it may truly be declared devoid of pedantry and cumbersome notes. The subject is approached with the reverence of a Christian and the fearlessness of a scientist.

Lady Hester Lucy Stanhope was the neice and confidante of William Pitt, after whose death she renounced her nationality and settled in the mountains of Lebanon, where she lived for almost thirty years as an Arab Sheikah, leading the tribesmen and paying tribute only to the Sultan of Turkey. She became a mystery to her kindred in England, or to others who knew of her. Now comes her biography by Frank Hamel, which is said to throw light on her life and love affairs, and which bids fair to arouse considerable discussion both in Europe and in this country. The American rights are held by the Funk & Wagnalls Company, co-operating with Cassell & Co. of London.

Capt. A. W. Nelson, commander of the Pacific Mail steamship Korea, author of "Yankee Swanson" now in press, has had an eventful career. Starting out from Sweden as a boy of 14, on a small brig, his entire life has been spent on the "seven seas." His book outlines some chapters of his early days at sea, when sailing vessels were not a thing of the past. That truth is stranger than fiction is well exemplified in this interesting volume.

Francis Grierson will return from abroad shortly, and will give a series of lectures and piano recitals. His book, "The Celtic Temperament," has been adopted by the Japanese government for use as a text-book.

Oliver Madox Hueffer, author of "A Vagabond in New York," among the early publications of this month, has recently been appointed editor of The Onlooker and The Throne, London.

Frederick Townsend Martin has written a book entitled "Things I Remember." It will be a volume of reminiscences of certain happy experiences of Mr. Martin with his friends—men and women of prominence on both sides of the Atlantic. A bright and entertaining book may be anticipated. It will be among the late fall publications of the John Lane Company.

Duality of profession seems to be the rule rather than the exception among creative geniuses of today. F. Hopkinson Smith is an engineer and an author, Rena Cary Sheffield is an artist photographer as well as an author. In a display case on Madison avenue, New York, is a small cabinet bearing her professional imprint. It is a most unusual accomplishment in child photography. It is an achievement of artistic skill, bearing witness to a keen understanding of the subtleties of the art, and it tells, too, of keen sympathies and penetration of child nature. This photograph arouses our expectation on tip-toe as to what we may expect of her delineation of child character in her forthcoming book, "The Golden Hollow." It is not a child's story, but two of its prominent characters are children.

The Times has just received a letter which runs. "I write to say that the publisher's unfortunate omission of page-proof reading, which resulted in an edition of "The Conception of Art" with many errors, has been covered in the revision of the books in its plates. This opportunity has given me a chance to make several changes in the text, and I will ask that you reserve your judgment upon it until a volume from this new edition reaches you. The new edition will appear through the Putnams." Signed, Henry R. Poore. This is indeed a grievous grievance. We will wait.

The Woman's World for October announces a change in the editorship which is important to all its readers. Charles Dwyer, who for the past seven years has been in charge of the Ladies' World, and before that was editor of the Delineator, is now to conduct the Chicago publication. Herbert Kaufman, who has brought the magazine to its present high standard, wished to be relieved of the details of editing so that he could devote himself to his writings. The general policy will remain unchanged.

Garrard Harris, author of the just published book, "Joe, the Book Farmer," was born on a Georgia plantation in 1876. His boyhood was spent partly in that State, and partly in Tennessee. He was educated at private schools, the University of Georgia, and at the North George Agricultural College. In 1903 he was admitted to the bar in Mississippi, where his family had moved, and practiced there for several years. At one time he held the office of District Attorney for the Jackson district. Finally he determined to exchange the law for journalism. He is now associate editor of the Mobile Register, and a contributor to leading magazines.

The Man Who Saw Wron

Greatest story of artist life since "Trilby"

By JACOB FISHER, Author of "The Cradle of the Deep," etc.

A story that grips the imagination from the very outset. A simple plot, seemingly—two artists competing for a great prize and using the same model—but it almost ends in a tragedy. Each artist delineates the girl's character differently, and each for a different purpose. What those purposes were and how the whole affair terminates makes one of the most absorbing stories you have read in many a day.

Fanny of the Forty Frocks

A potpourri of politics and fun

By FRANCES AYMAR MATHEWS, Author of "My Lady Peggy Goes to Town," etc.

Fanny was poor, very poor, and had but one frock. But she didn't sit by and mope and mourn over her apparent misfortune—not Fanny. "It's the call of forty frocks for me," she said one day. I'm going to Europe." And she did go to Europe, and soon had her forty frocks. Some unusual experiences, too, of course, but Fanny had a sense of humor that carried her over the rough spots. Read about Fanny and you'll see the same sunshine that Fanny saw behind the cloud. It's a story that will do you good.

The Fate of Felix Brand

More Fascinating than "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde"

By FLORENCE FINCH KELLY, Author of "The Delafield Affair," etc.

Felix Brand deliberately chose the worst side of his nature, cherished it and tried to ignore and cast out the other, the better side. It was a tremendous battle, but the odds were against him, the odds being a strong-minded woman, who fought hard to redeem him from his fate. If you like a quick-moving powerful tale of intense dramatic interest read this fascinating story of Felix Brand.

The Great Awakening.

CHAPTER VI.

Now I come to the end of this extraordinary incident, so overshadowing in its importance, not to our own small, individual lives, but in the general history of the human race. As I said when I began this narrative, when that history comes to be written this occurrence will surely stand out among all other events like a mountain towering among its foothills. Our generation has been reserved for a very special fate since it has been chosen to experience so wonderful a thing. How long its effect may last—how long mankind may preserve the humility and reverence which this great shock has taught it, can only be shown by the future. I think it is safe to say that things can never be quite the same. Never can one realize how powerless and ignorant one is, and how one is upheld by an unseen hand, until for an instant that hand has seemed to close and to crush. We know that at any moment it may be so. That grim presence shadows our lives, but who can deny that in that shadow the sense of duty, the feeling of sobriety and responsibility, the appreciation of the gravity and of the objects of life, the earnest desire to develop and improve, have grown and become real with us to a degree that has leavened our whole society from end to end? It is something beyond sects and beyond dogmas. It is rather an alteration of perspective, a shifting of our sense of proportion, a vivid realization that we are insignificant and evanescent creatures, existing on sufferance and at the mercy of the first chill wind from the unknown. But if the world has grown graver with this knowledge it is not, I think, a sadder place in consequence. Surely we are agreed that the more sober and restrained pleasures of the present are deeper as well as wiser than the noisy, foolish hustle which passed so often for enjoyment in the days of old—days so recent and yet already so inconceivable. Those empty lives which were wasted in aimless visiting and being visited, in the worry of great and unnecessary households, in the arranging and eating of elaborate and tedious meals, have now found rest and health in the reading, the music, the gentle family communion which comes from a simpler and saner division of their time. With greater health and greater pleasure they are richer than before, even after they have paid those increased contributions to the common fund which have so raised the standard of life in these islands.

There is some clash of opinion as to the exact hour of the great awakening. It is generally agreed that, apart from the difference of clocks, there may have been local causes which influenced the action of the poison. Certainly, in each separate district the resurrection was practically simultaneous. There are numerous witnesses that Big Ben pointed to ten minutes past six at the moment. The Astronomer Royal has fixed the Greenwich time at twelve past six. On the other hand, Laird Johnson, a very capable East Anglian observer, has recorded six-twenty as the hour. In the Hebrides it was as late as seven. In our own case there can be no doubt whatever, for I was seated in Challenger's study with his carefully-tested chronometer in front of me at the moment. The hour was a quarter past six.

An enormous depression was weighing upon my spirits. The cumulative effect of all the dreadful sights which we had seen upon our journey was heavy upon my soul. With my abounding animal health and great physical energy any kind of mental clouding was a rare event. I had the Irish faculty of seeing some gleam of humor in every darkness. But now the obscurity was appalling and unrelieved. The others were downstairs making their plans for the future. I sat by the open window, my chin resting upon my hand, and my mind absorbed in the misery of our situation. Could we continue to live? That was the question which I had begun to ask myself. Was it possible to exist upon a dead world? Just as in physics the greater body draws to itself the lesser, would we not feel an overpowering attraction from that vast body of humanity which had passed into the unknown? How would the end come? Would it be from a return of the poison? Or would the earth be uninhabitable from the mephitic products of universal decay? Or, finally, might our awful situation prey upon and unbalance our minds? A group of insane folk upon a dead world! My mind was brooding upon this last dreadful idea when some slight noise caused me to look down upon the road beneath me. The old cab horse was coming up the hill!

I was conscious at the same instant of the twittering of birds, of some one coughing in the yard below, and of a background of movement in the landscape. And yet I remember that it was that absurd, emaciated, superannuated cab horse which held my gaze. Slowly and wheezily it was climbing the slope. Then my eye traveled to the driver sitting hunched upon the box, and finally to the young man who was leaning out of a window in some excitement and shouting a direction. They were all indisputably, aggressively alive!

Everybody was alive once more! Had it all been a delusion. Was it conceivable that this whole poison belt had been an elaborate dream? For an instant my startled brain was really ready to believe it. Then I looked down, and there was the rising blister on my hand where it was frayed by the rope of the city bell. It had really been so, then. And yet here was the world resuscitated—here was life come back in an instant full tide to the planet. Now, as my eyes wandered all over the great landscape, I saw it in every direction—and moving, to my amazement, in the very same groove in which it had halted. There were golfers. Was it possible that they were going on with their game? Yes, there was a fellow driving off from a tee, and that other group upon the green were surely putting for the hole. The reapers were slowly trooping back to their work. The nurse girl had slapped one of her charges and then began to push the perambulator up the hill. Everyone had unconcernedly taken up the thread at the very point where they had dropped it.

I rushed downstairs; the hall door was open, and I heard the voices of my companions, loud in astonishment and congratulation, in the yard. How we all shook hands and laughed as we came together, and how Mrs. Challenger kissed us all in her emotion, before she finally threw herself into the bear-hug of her husband!

"But they could not have been asleep!" cried Lord John. "Dash it all, Challenger, you don't mean to believe that those folk were asleep with their staring eyes, and stiff limbs, and that awful death grin on their faces!"

"It can only have been the condition that is called catalepsy," said Challenger. "It has been a rare phenomenon in the past and has constantly been mistaken for death. While it endures, the temperature falls, the respiration disappears, the heart beat is indistinguishable—in fact, it is death, save that it is evanescent. Even the most comprehensive mind"—here he closed his eyes and simpered—"could hardly conceive a universal outbreak of it in this fashion."

"You may label it catalepsy," remarked Summerlee, "but, after all, that is only a name, and we know as little of the result as we do of the poison which has caused it. The most we can say is that the vitiated ether has produced a temporary death."

Austin was seated all in a heap on the step of the car. It was his coughing which I had heard from above. He had been holding his head in silence, but now he was muttering to himself and running his eyes over the car.

"Young fat-head!" he grumbled. "Can't leave things alone!"

"What's the matter, Austin?"

"Lubricators left running, sir. Some one has been fooling with the car. I expect it's that young garden boy, sir."

Lord John looked guilty.

"I don't know what's amiss with me," continued Austin, staggering to his feet. "I expect I came over queer when I was hosing her down. I seem to remember flopping over by the step. But I'll swear I never left those lubricator taps on."

In a condensed narrative the astonished Austin was told what had happened to himself and the world. The mystery of the dropping lubricators was also explained to him. He listened with an air of deep distrust when told how an amateur had driven his car, and with absorbed interest to the few sentences in which our experiences of the sleeping city were recorded. I can remember his comment when the story was concluded.

"Was you outside the Bank of England, sir?"

"Yes, Austin."

"With all them millions inside and everybody asleep?"

"That was so."

"And I not there!" he groaned, and turned dismally once more to the hosing of his car.

There was a sudden grinding of wheels upon gravel. The old cab had actually pulled up at Challenger's door. I saw the young occupant step out from it. An instant later the maid, who looked as tousled and bewildered as if she had that instant been roused from the deepest sleep, appeared with a card upon a tray. Challenger snorted ferociously as he looked at it, and his thick black hair seemed to bristle up in his wrath.

"A pressman!" he growled. Then, with a deprecating smile: "After all, it is natural that the whole world should hasten to know what I think of such an episode."

"That can hardly be his errand," said Summerlee, "for he was on the road in his cab before ever the crisis came."

I looked at the card: "James Baxter, London Correspondent New York Monitor."

"You'll see him?" said I.

"Not I."

"Oh, George! You should be kinder and more considerate to others. Surely you have learned something from what we have undergone."

He tut-tutted and shook his big obstinate head.

"A poisonous breed? Eh, Malone? The worst weed in modern civilization, the ready tool of the quack and the hindrance of the self-respecting man! When did they ever say a good word for me?"

"When did you ever say a good word to them?" I answered. "Come, sir, this is a stranger who has made a journey to see you. I am sure that you won't be rude to him."

"Well, well," he grumbled, "you come with me and do the talking. I protest in advance against any such outrageous invasion of my private life." Muttering and mumbling, he came rolling after me like an angry and rather ill-conditioned mastiff.

The dapper young American pulled out his note-book and plunged instantly into his subject.

"I came down, sir," said he, "because our people in America would very much like to hear more about this danger which is, in your opinion, pressing upon the world."

"I know of no danger which is now pressing upon the world," Challenger answered, gruffly.

The Pressman looked at him in mild surprise.

"I meant, sir, the chances that the world might run into a belt of poisonous ether."

"I do not now apprehend any such danger," said Challenger.

The Pressman looked even more perplexed.

"You are Prof. Challenger, are you not?" he asked.

"Yes, sir; that is my name."

"I cannot understand, then, how you can say that there is no such danger. I am alluding to your own letter, published above your name in the London Times of this morning."

It was Challenger's turn to look surprised.

"This morning?" said he. "No London Times was published this morning."

"Surely, sir," said the American, in mild remonstrance, "you must admit that the London Times is a daily paper." He drew out a copy from his inside pocket. "Here is the letter to which I refer."

Challenger chuckled and rubbed his hands.

"I begin to understand," said he. "So you read this letter this morning?"

"Yes, sir."

"And came at once to interview me?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did you observe anything unusual upon the journey down?"

"Well, to tell the truth, your people seemed more lively and generally human than I have ever seen them. The baggage man set out to tell me a funny story, and that's a new experience for me in this country."

"Nothing else?"

"Why, no, sir, not that I can recall."

"Well, now, what hour did you leave Victoria?"

The American smiled.

"I came here to interview you, professor, but it seems to be a case of: Is this nigger fishing, or is this fish niggering? You're doing most of the work."

"It happens to interest me. Do you recall the hour?"

"Sure. It was half-past twelve."

"And you arrived?"

"At a quarter-past two."

"And you hired a cab?"

"That was so."

"How far do you suppose it is to the station?"

"Well, I should reckon the best part of two miles."

"So how long do you think it took you?"

"Well, half an hour, maybe, with that asthmatic in front."

"So it should be 3 o'clock?"

"Yes, or a trifle after it."

"Look at your watch."

The American did so, and then stared at us in astonishment.

"Say!" he cried. "It's twenty past six. That horse has broken every record, sure. Four hours from the station! But it's not possible. The sun is pretty low, now that I come to look at it. Well, there's something here I don't understand."

"Have you no remembrance of anything remarkable as you came up the hill?"

"Well, I seem to recollect that I was mighty sleepy once. It comes back to me that I wanted to say something to the driver, and that I couldn't make him heed me. I guess it was the heat, but I felt swimmy for a moment. That's all."

"So it is with the whole human race," said Challenger to me. "They have all felt swimmy for a moment. None of them have as yet any comprehension of what has occurred. Each will go on with his interrupted job as Austin has snatched up his hose pipe or the golfer continued his game. Your editor, Malone, will continue the issue of his papers, and very much amazed he will be at finding that an issue is missing. Yes, my young friend," he added to the American reporter, with a sudden mood of amused geniality, "it may interest you to know that the world has swum safely through the poisonous current which swirls like the Gulf Stream through the ocean of ether. You will also kindly note for your own future convenience that today is not Friday, August 27, but Saturday, August 28, and that you sat senseless in your cab for twenty-eight hours upon the Rotherfield Hill."

And "right here," as my American colleague would say, I may bring this narrative to an end. It is, as you are probably aware, only a fuller and more detailed version of the account which appeared in the Monday edition of the Daily Gazette—an account which has been universally admitted to be the greatest journalistic scoop of all time, which sold no fewer than 3,500,000 copies of the paper. Framed upon the wall of my sanctum I retain those magnificent headlines:

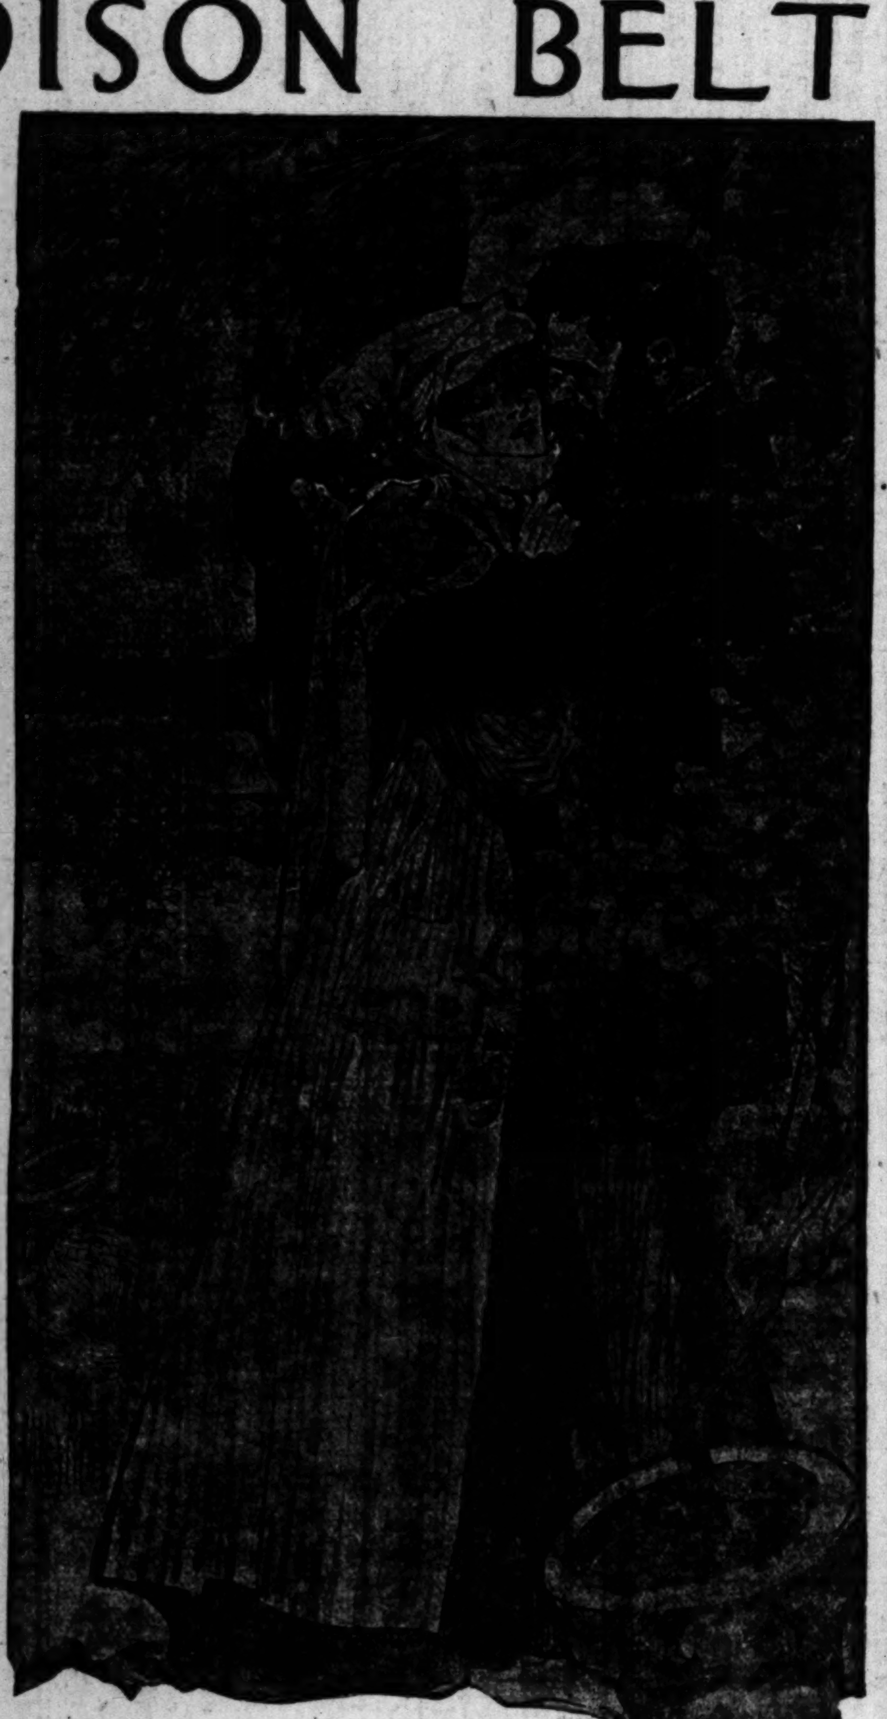
Twenty-eight-Hour World Coma.
UNPRECEDENTED EXPERIENCE.
CHALLENGER JUSTIFIED.
Our Correspondent Escapes.
ENTHRALLING NARRATIVE.
The Oxygen Room. Weird Motor Drive
DEAD LONDON.
REPLACING THE MISSING PAGE.
GREAT FIRES AND LOSS OF LIFE.
WILL IT RECUR?

Underneath this glorious scroll came nine and a half columns of narrative, in which appeared the first, last and only account of the history of the planet, so far as one observer could draw it, during one long day of its existence. Challenger and Summerlee have treated the matter in a joint scientific paper, but to me alone was left the popular account. Surely I can sing "Nunc Dimittis." What is left but anti-climax in the life of a journalist after that!

But let me not end on sensational headlines and a merely personal triumph. Rather let me quote the sonorous passages in which the greatest of daily papers ended its admirable leader upon the subject—a leader which might well be filed for reference by every thoughtful man.

"It has been a well-worn truism," said the Times, "that our human race are a feeble folk before the infinite latent forces which surround us. From the prophets of old and from the philosophers of our own time the same message and warning have reached us. But, like all oft-repeated truths, it has in time lost something of its actuality and cogency. A lesson, an actual experience, was needed to bring it home. It is from that salutary but terrible ordeal that we have just emerged, with minds which are still stunned by the suddenness of the blow, and with spirits which are chastened by the realization of our own limitations and impotence. The world has paid a fearful price for its schooling. Hardly yet have we learned the full tale of disaster, but the destruction by fire of New York, of Orleans, and of Brighton constitutes in itself one of the greatest tragedies in the history of our race. When the account of the railway and shipping accidents has been completed, it will furnish grim reading, although there is evidence to show that in the vast majority of cases the drivers of trains and engineers of steamers succeeded in shutting off power before succumbing to the poison. But the material damage, enormous as it is both in life and in property, is not the consideration which will be uppermost in our minds today. All this may in time be forgotten. But what will not be forgotten, and what will and should continue to obsess our imaginations, is this revelation of the possibilities of the universe, this destruction of our ignorant self-complacency, and this demonstration of how narrow is the path of our material existence, and what abysses may lie upon either side of it. Solemnity and humility are at the base of all our emotions today. May they be the foundations upon which a more earnest and reverent race may build a more worthy temple."

(THE END.)



Mrs. Challenger kissed us all in her emotion, before she finally threw herself into the bear hug of her husband.

JAP COMMENTS ON TIP HABIT.

TOKIO EDUCATOR IS IMPRESSED WITH EUROPEAN CUSTOM.

Says He Finds Police in Foreign Countries Not Averse to Receiving Largesse from Travelers and Praises Germany for Frequency of Its Sign Posts.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

TOKIO, Sept. 20.—Dr. Jinbo returned from a ten months' tour through Europe and the United States and has started to publish his impressions of life in foreign countries from the Japanese standpoint. He is amusing and occasionally quite candid, as, for instance, when he observes:

"Tips are just as frequently expected in foreign countries as is tea-money in Japan. In some countries I visited I found even the policemen were not above taking a tip, and when I said: 'May I give you some money?' they replied: 'You will not get into serious trouble even if you do,' and took the proffered gift. During my travels I found money would go farthest in Berlin, while Russia was easily the dearest place visited.

"Next time I go to London I shall not carry a big supply of linen, because I found that although the city is very smoky I can get my linen washed in one night. In the English metropolis I found that evening dress is worn even on the occasion of small party dinners.

"The convenience of travelers is well cared for in Germany, the various explanatory notices both at the depot and elsewhere, being exceedingly easy to read. In America it was almost impossible to learn the names of the various depots through which I passed, while in England I found the board bearing the name of the depot almost completely hidden among advertisements.

"In England, too, the trains have the habit of moving out of the depot apparently without any signal. I lost a train out of London simply because I had got used to the custom in vogue in Russia, where arrival, warning, and starting signals are all distinctly sounded. On several occasions the train left the depot while I was endeavoring to obtain some food in a refreshment room inside the depot.

"My first impression in London was that I should certainly be killed by an automobile. However, I soon found that all danger could be avoided by keeping near ladies or a police officer.

"A stranger who wants to find a post box in Paris must have sharp eyes, for it is generally concealed under a tobacconist's store window.

"In Germany the sign-posts on the country roads, as well as the names of the streets in the towns are easily seen and read, but both in Paris and New York one experiences great difficulty in getting about. In England, too, many houses show neither name nor number, and several times I had to knock at many doors before I could find out where the person I was searching for lived.

"In England many business men may be seen descending their office stairs two steps at a time, such is their hurry in pursuing their business."

WARSHIPS TO VISIT US.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

DEVONPORT (Eng.) Oct. 4.—The British cruisers Suffolk, Berwick and Lancaster, which are to be joined later by the Monmouth, sailed today for Bermuda. From that base the newly-constituted British West Atlantic squadron, commanded by Rear Admiral Sir Christopher Cradock, will watch British interests in the Panama Canal zone.

This squadron will probably represent Great Britain at the opening of the canal.

RIOT AT KING'S PLAY.

Nicholas's Siege of Scutari so Realistic Audience Nearly Lynches Some of the Actors.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

CETTINJE (Montenegro) Oct. 1.—Riotous scenes, almost culminating in the lynching of the actors who represented Turks, marked the first performance tonight of King Nicholas's play, "The Siege of Scutari."

When the actor who played the role of Essad Pasha came upon the stage the tumult became deafening. A youth sprang on the platform, revolver in hand, and with difficulty was restrained from shooting the actor. When a member of the cast, before the battle scene, began to describe the assault on Tarabosch, several veterans in the audience arose and denounced him as a liar.

When the third act showed the Turks in full retreat, the audience made a rush for the stage with the intention of lynching the wearers of the fez. The police were compelled to use force to restrain the frantic people.

PROF. C. IRVIN ALTHOUSE,

NOTED ASTROLOGER AND PALMIST OF NATIONAL FAME AND REPUTATION.

STUDIO PARLORS, 539½ S. BROADWAY.
A RESIDENT OF LOS ANGELES 20 YEARS.

PROF. ALTHOUSE is an experienced practitioner in the science of modern ASTROLOGY, by which he has made many REMARKABLE PREDICTIONS. The horoscope shows the powerful influence of the planets in ALL AFFAIRS OF LIFE. It shows diseases, deaths, love and marriage, financial affairs, investments, changes, talents, environments, about children, relatives; when and where to travel, what to seek or avoid; when in danger of losses, troubles, etc., etc.; also your good periods coming—GIVING DATES of these events for the FUTURE.

PROF. ALTHOUSE read E. H. Sothern, Nat Goodwin, Schumann-Heink, Gadski, Admiral Schley, David Starr Jordan, ex-Gov. Pardee, ex-Senator Clark, Senator Smoot, Baron Rothschild, Gen. Chaffee, Edison, Sousa, Modjeska, Sembrich, Julia Marlowe, Anna Held, Jefferson, Capt. Hobson, Lillian Russell, Calve, Admiral Evans, H. E. Huntington, De Wolf Hopper, Maxine Elliott, Ethel Barrymore, etc.

PROF. ALTHOUSE'S SKILLED work must not be classed with other readers. Do not waste money on the idiotic advice of HUMBUG astrologers, palmists, psychists—those doing dishonest work.

PROF. ALTHOUSE also gives expert PALM READINGS with each astrological reading.

DR. J. A. LARSON writes: "I want to say that your reading was the most satisfactory I have ever had in my life. I know a great deal about these sciences, and I consider your work as the most THOROUGH and RELIABLE of any reader in the United States." Readings given by mail, also.

PROF. ALTHOUSE'S wonderful proficiency in the casting of HOROSCOPES and in HAND reading has brought him a LARGE and SUCCESSFUL PRACTICE. The most private confidences are reposed in him, and his advice is sought in the most difficult and critical circumstances. Personal attention given. STRICT PRIVACY. HIGHEST GRADE OF WORK that skill and many years of experience can produce. HIGH-CLASS PATRONAGE solicited.

MRS. MASSON,

the noted palmist of London, England, may be consulted at 322 S. SPRING ST. by those desiring CAREFUL, CONSCIENTIOUS AND SCIENTIFIC HAND READINGS FROM ONE OF THE FOREMOST PALMISTS OF THE DAY.

The earnest student and thinker will soon learn in his investigations along psychological lines that that which pertains to occult phenomena proper can readily be distinguished from crude and oft-exposed SLEIGHT-OF-HAND TRICKS, the most common of which is the telling of the subject's name, age, etc., AFTER HE HIMSELF HAS WRITTEN THAT information.

PALMISTRY, HONESTLY PRACTICED WILL NOT tell you your name, but it WILL give you information of considerably greater value in every-day life.

Your vocation, your present line of work, matters of health and domestic life, financial conditions and ways and means of climbing out of a rut of ill luck into wide paths of success and prosperity, can all be told you through scientific palmistry WITHOUT A SINGLE QUESTION, WRITTEN OR VERBAL.

MRS. MASSON DOES NOT APPEAL TO IGNORANT SUPERSTITION, BUT TO THE FINEST INTELLIGENCE.

HIGH-CLASS PATRONAGE SOLICITED.

Inquiries are coming to my office daily for information regarding our LAKEVIEW IRRIGATED FARMS, which is going to be one of the best sellers in farm land property in Southern California this winter. Here is property that you can offer at $200 an acre, with perpetual water right, within twenty miles of Riverside, in the beautiful Perris-Hemet Valley, on high ground; absolutely free from adobe, hardpan, or alkali, and is, I think, as ideal a disintegrated granite soil as one could find. FOR SALE—
A MESSAGE OF KEEN FINANCIAL INTEREST TO THE
PIANO AND PLAYER-PIANO BUYER
Who Intends to Pay
For His Instrument.

When I opened this store I was fully convinced that there were enough people in Southern California, who wanted to pay for the instruments they purchased, to support a piano store conducted in strict accordance with sane business methods, without misrepresentation, and selling pianos and player-pianos on a CASH basis, at the lowest possible price consistent with the purchasers' requirements.

In this "age of the installment plan" many people are persuaded to buy more than they can pay for, and as a result the merchandise is thrown back upon the merchant in an impaired condition to be repaired and resold. Especially is this true in the piano business, and easy terms is the cause. Installment dealer's only defense is, "I can get so much more money for my goods, and people are not so particular about the quality." Of course, he must get more, operating on such a policy. But what about the man who actually pays for his piano, purchased from the dealer advocating and practicing such selling policies? Does he not pay dearly for the dealer's reckless selling experience? He certainly does.

What is THE alternative? Come to a house known for doing business on a SANE-SELLING basis, where you pay for what you get, and can be certain of receiving the exact degree of piano-quality for which you have paid.

My Selling Plan Saves You Money.
Saves you $ 50 on $200 pianos.
Saves you $100 on $300 pianos.
Saves you $150 on $450 pianos.
Saves you $250 on $650 player-pianos.
Saves you $350 on $950 player-pianos.
New pianos rented $3.50 monthly.
Expert piano tuning only $2.

"Doc" W. H. Lehy, the San Francisco impressario, who discovered Mme. Tetrazzini, the grand opera star, was a guest at the Alexandria yesterday. Among other guests at the hotel were Carl Sword, a real estate dealer, Mrs. Sword of San Francisco, and C. E. Glitzer, an implement manufacturer of Moline, Ill.

HEN-PECKED BURGLAR.

Police Rescue Him from Clutches of Women Captors, Who Scared Him Half to Death.

Phillip Chasey—poor, scrawny, henpecked Phillip Chasey—wasn't intended for a burglar. True, he was captured in a rooming house at No. 202 West Eighth street last night with two bundles of loot, ready to depart, but subsequent events only verified the first impression that he was not meant for a burglar.

Police detectives were never more warmly welcomed than were Detectives Ingram and King when they put in an appearance at the West Eighth-street rooming house. Strange enough, the person who welcomed them most heartily was the burglar. Cringing back in one corner of the room, shaking in every limb, the bold, bad burglar was helpless in the grasp of two women, who had captured him. The transfer from the room where he was held captive to a cell in Central Police Station was a welcome one for Phillip.

Chasey was unwise enough last night to enter the room of John Johnson, whose sister, Miss Christina Johnson, is proprietress of the West Eighth-street rooming house. He managed to wrap up a couple of bundles of wearing apparel before he was discovered by Miss Johnson and Mrs. [illegible] Shepherd. After that fatal discovery there was no chance for Phillip.

Chasey says he was always henpecked at home and he certainly looks the part. He might be anywhere from 35 to 50 years of age and apparently has about as much courage as a rabbit. At any rate he is mortally afraid of a woman. In addition to that he weighs only about [illegible] pounds, while his captors are generously endowed. Bearing this discrepancy in mind he offered no resistance to the women when they locked him in the room and called for the police. He is held on a burglary charge.

COLONIZATION LEAGUE.

The Santa Monica Bay Chamber of Commerce at their Friday night's meeting at Ocean Park, indorsed the movement of the American Colonization League after Max Binheim, secretary and manager of the organization, addressed the chamber. The league is preparing pamphlets and booklets setting forth the opportunities of the Western Slope, and they will, as soon as completed, be sent to the East and Middle West. The Santa Monica Colonization Society has elected Dr. L. A. Pertson as their member to serve upon the advisory board of the American Colonization League.

At the South Pole.

THRILLING FILM STORY OF CAPT. SCOTT EXPEDITION.

APROPOS of the forthcoming exhibition of the Capt. Robert Falcon Scott moving pictures of the Antarctic at the Majestic Theater commencing Monday, twice daily for one week only, a few pertinent facts anent life in that frigid zone may prove of timely interest: The only animal life to be encountered down there comes out of the sea. En route to the South Pole is found some feathered life, notably the queer little penguin, which reminds one of a corpulent old gentleman dressed in immaculate white waistcoat with satiny top coat. These birds are unable to fly, their wings being merely flappers, not unlike the seal; they stand erect and can run at a terrific speed. Their habits greatly resemble the primitive mankind, in that the male selects his mate at a certain period of the year from among countless females who assemble on the hillside to be inspected by their future lords and masters.

It is truly remarkable to witness this formality. You have doubtless read of the manner peasant youths and maidens congregate on certain festive days to meet their intended; the penguins come together in a like manner and stand with heads lowered, while the "inspecting" takes place.

PENGUIN PROPOSES.

The little chaps saunter up and examine "the maiden fair" with no mean degree of intelligence and when they decide upon "proposing" the male sallies off and picks up a stone which he brings and deposits at the feet of her ladyship emblematic of his ability to provide a nest for their young. She ignores him for some time, until finally he has piled up quite a mound of stones and then quacks her approval and acceptance, and off they go to establish a bungalow on the hillside.

A striking fact anent that most ferocious beast of the deep—the "killer" whale—is that it hunts its prey in concert. From eight to fifty of these animals are seen rising and blowing and directly one catches a glimpse of a sleek seal madly racing for its life.

Generally the seal reaches the sea ice and skims upon it just before the whales overtake him, but the whales are not to be foiled in their design, so they line up and rising, as one monster, fracture the thick ice for hundreds of yards. This "quake" of course, precipitates the seal into the water, and he has his trouble all over again. In the end he is eaten as an appetizing lunch by his captors.

PONTING IN PERIL.

It was just such an incident as the foregoing that very nearly caused a lamentable tragedy in the ranks of the exploring party. Herbert G. Ponting, the cinematograph expert, had rushed to the edge of the sea ice to film a contest between whales and seal and to his utter horror, the whales attacked him. They dived and crumbled the ice under his very feet, but fortunately he was rescued before he was upset on blocks of ice which of course floated.

One of the strange sights recorded is that of a Weddell seal sawing ice with his huge teeth, so that he is able to work his way out of the water for a sun bath. The camera caught this giant in the very act of cutting steps in the ice.

The animals taken along with the expedition were not the least interesting of the lot; there were Siberian ponies, supremely intelligent and extraordinarily hearty. They subsisted on very little food and yet did their work nobly. Then, too, there were the Siberian dogs, used to transport sleighs loaded with provisions. They are considerably like Alaskan dogs, but seem more robust and stand ill treatment better. They weigh about seventy-five pounds, but easily pull twenty-five pounds more than their weight for twelve hours on a stretch.

The exploring party discovered that the water of the sea was at least 70 degrees warmer than the air, and that the instant they drew a fish out of the water it froze stiff. At times in the Antarctic the sun beats down with such intense heat that the men found their clothing almost unbearable, but could not take it off for fear of taking cold, owing to the severe climatic conditions.

At night the weather was always frigid to an unusual degree. A football game, the only sport permissible on the ice, was filmed, and shows the entire party racing for dear life after the leather-covered sphere. Capt. Scott is shown to be an expert halfback.

MIDNIGHT SUN PICTURES.

One of the most effective films secured was taken by the light of the midnight sun at 2 o'clock in the morning on the brink of the great ice barrier, and depicts the little party of five on the last lap of the journey. These are the gentlemen who perished on their return when within eleven miles of food—Capt. Scott, Dr. Wilson, Petty Officer Evans, Capt. Gates and Lieut. Bowers. This film was the last one made of these intrepid heroes, as it was manifestly impossible to transport such a weighty apparatus as the cinematograph further.

As a matter of information, it may be recorded that the expression "Dash to the Pole" so frequently used in the press and elsewhere, is very misleading. Nothing could be more inappropriate. There is no dash about it. A polar journey is a steady fight against all the most difficult obstacles with which nature can bar the way. Fifteen miles a day is an exceedingly good march, and when that is covered everyone is tired out and ready to drop in his tracks.

The films, "The Undying Story of Capt. Scott" and "Animal Life in the Antarctic," belong to the widows and orphans of the self-sacrificed heroes, who receive 75 per cent. of the net profits of all exhibitions.

ST. PATRICK'S FAIR.

Little Folks the Feature at Church Festival—Mayor Rose Delivers An Address.

The little folks were well remembered yesterday afternoon at the St. Patrick's Church fair, in an interesting programme arranged especially for them, and they attended in large numbers. Mayor Rose delivered an address of congratulation and well-wishing to an audience which more than filled the parish house hall last night.

A sacred concert will be given by the choir of St. Patrick's in the church this evening at 7:30, for which no admission will be made. Miss Katherine A. Bell is organist, Frank L. Martz and L. Charland, violins, and T. McDermott, cornet. Works of Rossini-De Reef, Handel, Mozart, Wagner, Mascagni and Verdi will figure in both the vocal and instrumental portions of the programme. The programme for tomorrow evening will feature Miss Theresa Goss in a sketch, Miss Irene Swarthout in interpretative dancing, and Ralph Doran in a sketch.

Tuesday afternoon will be devoted to another treat for the little folks. The fair is drawing large crowds and is proving a success, financially and artistically.

Among the arrivals yesterday at the Hollenbeck were the following: Mayor W. E. Hawkins of Los Vegas, Nev.; F. R. Mack, a merchant, and Mrs. Mack, of Goldfield; Charles Post, County Clerk of San Francisco county; Robert McCune, an apple grower of Salem, O., and C. A. Barlow, an oil operator of Bakersfield.

CAMPAIGN IS CLOSED.

South Pasadena Citizens Attend Mass Meeting and Hear Reasons for the Proposed Issue.

The campaign of the forces favoring a proposed $550,000 bond issue for the acquirement of a municipal water plant, a municipal sewer system and fire equipment in South Pasadena closed last evening with a final rally in Ong's Hall. An audience numbering over 300 persons listened to speeches by prominent citizens, including members of the Board of Trustees. Mrs. Leo Longley, an old-time resident and clubwoman, active in many civic enterprises, urged favorable action on the bond issue, pointing out that those who now are opposing the improvements have been equally opposed to all past bond issues. C. D. Crouch, representing the eastern firm whose sewage reduction process is proposed to be used jointly for South Pasadena, Pasadena and Alhambra, was present, and he declared that his firm stands back of its contract to care for such sewage free of all cost, with guarantee against litigation.

Signed letters from the Commissioners of Pasadena and the Trustees of Alhambra were exhibited and officials from both cities were on the platform to confirm their previous agreement to share proportionately with South Pasadena the cost of a joint outfall trunk line to Whittier Narrows, where the reduction plant is to be located.

Trustee J. P. Whitmore of South Pasadena declared that the bond issue now being submitted to the people is the result of more than a year's study. He showed the practicability of the plans, and stated that the present election was urged by annexationists as well as those who favor an independent government for South Pasadena.

Trustee Harry Hawgood refuted claims that the proposed sewer plan is not feasible. He declared that South Pasadena will secure a bargain in water by the purchase of the existing companies and distributing systems for less than $300,000, and that there is ample water available for more than three times the present population, and that the city's title to this water would be indisputable.

TO PREVENT 'PHONE MERGER.

Ohio Utilities Commission Is Asked to Block Deal with the Bell System.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

COLUMBUS (O.) Oct. 4.—In a petition filed today with the State Utilities Commission, that body is asked to prevent the proposed merger of independent telephone companies with the Bell Telephone system. The petition, which was filed by H. B. McGraw of Cleveland, recites what the petitioner alleges to be a scheme to check all competition in the telephone business and give full control to the American District Telephone and Telegraph Company, which, it is said, is the parent organization of the Bell interests.

It is alleged that the control of the independent telephone plants throughout Ohio and the United States is owned by the house of J. P. Morgan, New York bankers, and that the controlling interest was purchased for $7,000,000. The petition also alleges that H. P. Davidson, the member of the Morgan banking firm, who closed the contract for the independent interests, is a large stockholder in the American District Telephone and Telegraph Company.

Shunned.

UNIONS QUIT GOMPERS; BRICKLAYERS IN REVOLT.

Masons and Plasterers' Organization Decides by Large Majority Against Affiliation With American Federation of Labor, Rank and File Being Opposed to Entangling Alliance With Agitators Who Favor Strike.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The general membership of the Bricklayers', Masons and Plasterers' International Union of America has voted against affiliation with the American Federation of Labor. The reports of the referendum show that out of a total membership on the roll of 82,351, only 20,351 votes were cast, and only 7375 of these were in favor of the affiliation. The returns show, however, that 81 per cent. of the unions cast votes on the question, 750 locals out of 946 submitting returns. Out of the total number of unions voting, 211 were for and 825 against.

Secretary Dobson said that in spite of the adverse decision of the general membership, the question will probably be submitted to the union's general convention, which will convene next January at Houston, Tex. The constitution of the International gives the convention executive power, and a vote to affiliate may be barred on the floor of the convention.

He said it was evident in many cases that the general membership considered the issue when voting from only a local standpoint.

"If the relations of members with the local trades are friendly, their votes are favorable, if unfriendly, their votes are against the proposition. In this way the national importance of the question is overshadowed," he said.

ALWAYS HELD ALOOF.

The Bricklayers' Union has never been a part of the general labor organization which has its head in the American Federation of Labor. When their international was organized it was the intention of the members and their desire to work alone in the labor movement.

During the last ten or twelve years with the increase in the general field of the labor movement and the steady growth of the American Federation of Labor, the union has become involved in many jurisdictional disputes with other unions whose work dovetails theirs.

Not being members of the building trades department of the American Federation of Labor, the bricklayers have found the allied unions in this department lined up against them. The general offices of the union felt that it would be for the betterment of their members and a great financial saving to the union if they would become a part of the trades department of the federation. The general membership seemed to be against the movement, however, partly because of the friendly strikes into which they might be drawn as a result of the affiliation.

THE ARBITRATION METHOD.

With the advance in popularity of the arbitration method of settling disputes and the formation of agreements between unions and between unions and employers' associations, Secretary Dobson said that the number of the sympathetic strikes had been reduced.

The executive board of the Bricklayers' Union has adopted a form of international trade agreement, governing working conditions, which has been signed by many firms which do an interstate and international contracting business. In these agreements it is set out that a grievance arising on the work of any of the firms, which cannot be settled locally, no strike or stoppage of work shall be ordered, either individually or collectively, while the issues of the contention are being presented to the international executive board for adjustment.

Anaheim.

AN HONORED PIONEER IS GATHERED TO HIS FATHERS

ANAHEIM, Oct. 4.—Theodore Rimpau, a pioneer of this city, died yesterday. Notwithstanding the fact that he had reached the ripe old age of 87 years, many were surprised to learn of the sudden death of such a familiar personage. He had been seen in his yard only the day before his death and the evening before he died he sat up until 11 o'clock enjoying "high five," a social game of cards at his home with his daughters and friends. He celebrated his eighty-seventh birthday anniversary Sunday. During the night he was overcome with a serious spell of stomach ailment that resulted in his death within a few hours. He, however, remained conscious until the end, every member of the family being at his bedside during the last hours.

Few residing in the Southland had such a life history as did the late Mr. Rimpau for he was here on the spot and had the pleasure of "watching California grow" from sage brush and cactus to beautiful, rich orange groves and other progressing industries.

Theodore Rimpau was born in Hamburg, Germany, in 1826 and came to this country in 1848 in the first steamer that sailed around the Horn, this trip requiring six months. He landed at what is now San Francisco, but then was called Yerba Buena and consisted mostly of sand hills. In 1849 he removed to Los Angeles where he carried on a large business and it was in that city that he was married to Miss Francisca Abila in the year of 1850. She died about ten years ago.

An interesting feature connected with this marriage is that the ceremony was performer by Father Sanchez, one of the pioneer padres who trod the "King's Highway," or what is now known as the El Camino Real, from San Francisco to San Diego on foot. Mr. Rimpau was the first foreigner, who married a California maiden and celebrated a golden wedding.

In 1860 he left Los Angeles and came down to the southern part of Orange county, then Los Angeles county, on the San Joaquin ranch, where he engaged in the stock business. In 1862 he came to Anaheim and entered into the wine industry. In addition to his extensive stock business on the San Joaquin ranch and the wine industry, he launched into the mercantile business in Anaheim, conducting one of the leading stores here for twenty years.

Mr. Rimpau bore the distinction of being the first Mayor that Anaheim, the mother colony city had, and served on the City Council Board for two terms. In the old Central grammar school building, which stands here now and where his children all were started on their educational career, he served as one of the trustees for twenty-five years. He was the only remaining member of the Rimpau family. His father was a nobleman in the old country, being a distant relative of the royal family. The Rimpau ancestors existed 400 years ago. This is as far back as could be traced, as the churches were burned then, and on that account the search was ended. Mr. Rimpau owned three vessels plying between San Pedro and San Francisco, and these were all burned within a year. He was one of those who came here for the purpose of finding gold.

Sixteen sons and daughters were born to Mr. and Mrs. Rimpau, eight survive, four residing in Anaheim and four in Los Angeles. They are Adolph, Fred, Misses Marie Leah and Sophia Priscilla Rimpau of this city, and Frank Theodore, John Lewis, Benjamin Alfred and James Arthur Rimpau of Los Angeles.

The funeral is to occur at 10 o'clock Monday morning, at which time high mass will be conducted, Father Dubbel of the local Catholic Church officiating, and three other priests assisting him. The pall-bearers are to be Wallace Theodore Rimpau, Albert Robert Rimpau, Theodore Stephen Rimpau and Arthur Rimpau, all grandsons of the deceased, and E. L. Olmstead and C. A. Clark, the two latter being husbands of his grandchildren.

Proclamation.

WOOD DUCK HUNTING NOW UNDER THE BAN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Formal proclamation that the regulations for enforcing the law to protect migratory and insectiverous birds are now in effect, was made by President Wilson today. Some changes have been made from the tentative regulations prepared several months ago.

The final regulations prohibit bird shooting in Delaware to conform with restrictions in New Jersey and Pennsylvania. Wood duck shooting is prohibited for five years in five additional States in the breeding zone, also in California and Kansas. The shore birds seasons on the shores of New England and on Long Island have been made uniform with no shooting before August 15. The seasons in Washington and Oregon have been made uniform, opening October 1; likewise in California and Arizona, opening October 15.

BALK AT THE CURRENCY.

Administration Supporters Argue Vainly to Hurry up Action on Democratic Measure.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—An ineffectual attempt to hasten consideration of the administration currency bill in the Senate Banking and Currency Committee was made by the supporters of the measure today. Senator Shafroth argued vainly for an agreement to close hearings on the bill next Saturday, but Republicans on the committee protested vigorously. Senators Reed and Hitchcock, Democrats, who have opposed hurrying the bill, were not present.

H. C. Jewett, a business man of Abderdeen, S. D., appearing before the committee, said that the country banker was forced to carry the farmer for long-time loans on paper which would receive none of the advantages of the bill.

J. C. Bassett, president of the Abderdeen National Bank of Abderdeen, said that the measure discriminated against national banks and that he would advise stockholders of his bank to leave the national system and take up a State charter if the bill went into effect.

Members of the committee expressed the opinion that it would be possible to reach an agreement to close the hearings on October 16. An effort will be made to report to the Senate early in November.

TO DISSOLVE NEW HAVEN.

Department of Justice Will Proceed Under the Sherman Anti-trust Law.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—The Department of Justice today completed its preliminary investigation of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad under the Sherman anti-trust law, and J. W. Gregory and Jesse C. Adkins, the attorneys in charge of the case, submitted their report to Atty.-Gen. McReynolds. While no final conclusion had been reached, it is the present intention of the Attorney-General to file a civil anti-trust suit for a dissolution of the road.

SOUTHERN APPORTIONMENT.

Details of Tentative Plans of the Republican Congressional Committee Are Made Public.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Details of the tentative plans suggested by the national Republican Congressional committee for changes in the opportionment of delegates to the national convention were made public today. The first plan provides that each State have four delegates at large, and for Congressional districts, one delegate for each district where the vote for a Republican Presidential elector in 1908 was not more than 40 per cent. of the total vote for Presidential electors; two delegates if the vote was from 40 to 60 per cent., and three delegates where it was more than 60 per cent. The second plan would give each State four delegates at large and one delegate for each 10,000 voters or major fraction thereof cast for the Republican candidate for Presidential electors in 1908. The third plan is just the same as the preceding, except that each Congressional district shall have at least one delegate and there shall be two for each Congressmen-at-large.

MEXICANS DENY CHARGE.

Rebels Declare They Are Not Seizing Property Belonging to G. F. Woodward of Los Angeles.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

DOUGLASS (Ariz.) Oct. 4.—Mexican Constitutionalist officials say regarding the protests filed with the State Department by George F. Woodward of Los Angeles and Moctezuma, Sonora, that his property is being seized, that they are seizing no property to which Woodward holds title. They say they will welcome official investigation from Washington or elsewhere at any time. Woodward is reputed to be one of the wealthiest Americans in Sonora and recently disposed of a large portion of his holdings, now making his home in Los Angeles, where he is engaged in the meat packing business.

VETERAN IN PULPIT.

For the First Time in the History of the Soldiers' Home a Soldier Will Preach.

SOLDIERS' HOME, Oct. 4.—For the first time in the twenty-five-years' history of the Pacific Branch, National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers, the pulpit of the Protestant chapel will be officially occupied by a veteran of the Civil War. Rev. Will H. Knighten, the well-known clergyman and veteran, who has succeeded Rev. G. W. Wilson as chaplain, is in attendance at the Methodist Episcopal conference at Long Beach, but will return here this evening. Members of Uncle Sam Post, G.A.R., and of other local organizations, will add to the throng in greeting the popular pastor at the 10 a.m. service, Sunday, October 5.

FINDS CASH.

Veteran W. C. Weicht is employed in the home laundry at assorting and counting the thousands of articles that are each week turned out of that place. In two instances in the past week he found, fastened on the inside of undergarments, tobacco sacks containing $65 each. Weicht says the finding of sums thus concealed by forgetful old veterans is a common occurrence, but that $130 in one week is the limit. Marks on garments furnish a clew to the owner.

DULL LIFE OF THE COMMON PEOPLE OF MEXICO:

Kind of Warriors We Should Have to Fight in Case of Invasion—Curse of Pulque Hangs Heavily on the Land — A Brown Flood of Destitute Men and Women Covers the Tablelands — Indian Peons Do All the Heavy Work — They Shave You and Bury You — Lack of Industry and Thrift.

[SPECIALLY CONTRIBUTED TO THE TIMES.]

WHAT kind of fighting men will an army of invaders meet when it enters Mexico?

Fifty years ago a Philadelphian emigrated to the State of Nuevo Leon, just south of the Texas border. He married a Spanish woman, who gave him eleven sons.

One of the sons, now a planter, employs forty-five native hands. He grows sugar cane and corn, crushing the cane with American machinery, boiling the juice, pouring it into molds, and producing a cheap, unrefined quality of sugar, which he sells to poor people.

"I pay my men 50 cents a day in silver, or some 23 cents a day in gold," he told the American interviewer who talked with him.

"My men," he went on to say, "live in adobe huts, the roofs of which are made of palm leaves. They call me 'amos,' which means love, translated into English from Spanish. Each of my men has a little piece of land so that he may have his own corn and vegetables.

"During the plowing, planting and harvesting seasons the day of work begins at sunrise and ends at sundown. At other times my superintendent gives every man his stint. That is the best way with Indians. When they come to the line which the superintendent has marked in the earth with his foot, they go home to their own gardens.

"They wear cotton clothing and leather sandals. Women dress in calico. They put on shoes only when they go to church on Sunday. If a farm laborer has $15 in silver he is rich. He can't save more than $8 or $10 a year.

"Should he get into debt and slip away, officers will go a hundred miles or farther and bring him back. Then, if he refuses to pay the debt in labor, he is sent to prison.

HOW THE PEON MAKES LOVE.

"The son of a farm hand goes to his father when he falls in love and wants to marry. The father, in turn, goes to the 'amos' or planter. The planter negotiates the matter with the girl's father.

"When the answer is favorable, the young man must support the girl until the day of the wedding. He gives her family wood, corn, and beans. His father borrows $30, silver, from the planter. The money is spent for clothing and the marriage feast. For three days the bride and bridegroom, their relatives and friends sing, dance and drink.

"A farm laborer may be opulent enough to own a pig, which walks in and out of his house like any other member of the family. The food of this man is corn, principally, which is ground by his wife and daughters, after being boiled and softened in lime water. He may have goat meat once a week.

"My men and their women folk begin to dance every Saturday evening at seven o'clock. At noon on Sunday I stop them so that they shall be ready for work Monday morning. My superintendent, armed with a sword and .44-caliber revolver, is present at the function to preserve order. I have good men and they are happy and don't want to go away.

"But the United States is a better country than Mexico. I have a friend who is worth $250,000. He is afraid of banks and lends at 3 per cent. a month on mortgages. Once he went to St. Louis. When he came home he said: 'I shall gamble no more, (some nights he lost as much as $2000) but shall save my money and send my children to the United States to be educated.

" 'Everything is big there,' he said. 'The buildings are so big that you wouldn't believe me if I told you about them. The horses are big, the beefsteaks are big, the women are big, and even the chickens are big. And there are trees," he said, 'bigger around than my body, and every little while it rains.' "

BROWN FLOOD COVERS MEXICO.

The planter, no doubt, would lead a company of his field hands against the invaders and his friend, the old-time gamester, might become the colonel of the regiment. Several armies of such fighters could be assembled in north and central Mexico—armies of the plain people who sleep and eat on the earthen floor of their hovels, who are born, who live and who die on the ground.

A brown flood of ignorant and destitute men and women covers Mexico; covers its tablelands and lowlands; covers its cheerless and unwatered north and its green and jungled south.

It is this flood which keeps the country in motion. Broken into small bands, the common people of Mexico are now robbing planters, miners and one another. Under Diaz the common people—Indians and half-bloods—worked the fields and mines and bore all the burdens of industry and agriculture. They erected the buildings in towns and cities. Nothing was done without them; nothing now is done without them. They are the fighting men of the ranks.

In Mexico City, everywhere, indeed, Indians cut one's hair, wait on one at the table, drive one's carriage, nurse one's children, makes one's shoes, supply one with milk and groceries, with flowers and fuel, and at last bury one and cut and place a stone on one's grave.

They and their donkeys fill the highways and the streets and make the country prosperous and picturesque. Group a dozen of them under the gray walls of a convent and you see a living water-color, beautiful in its lights and paints, in its hues and shadows.

Artists and poets, wizards in pigments, and conjurors in words, have gone to Mexico. There they have seen tints and shades and wrought in the sunlight and mists. They have heard strange legends. A mountain, hung far down its sides in purple haze, looks well in oil. So does an Indian, slim, erect, a vermilion serape thrown across his shoulder.

THE ENGINEER A KINDLY MAN.

But words and paint do not catch odors—do not lay hold of fleas and worse—do not sing the song—do not picture the scene of squalor. A lowly door among the cacti with a barefooted woman within the frame, may be a poem. Put a black pig at her side and you pipe no lay, but hasten on.

North Mexico is unclean. Water is precious. The train to Mexico City will stop at a little mud village for fuel or orders. Then out of the huts come women with large clay pots to catch the water that drips from the engine's pipes and the tank inside the tender. They come running and laughing, each striving to be first.

Filling their jars, they bear them home on their heads. The American engineer is a kindly man, and his pipes flow free and do not trickle. The water is warm and yellow, but it is sweet. The little the women can get in the village is bitter and not healthful. Such are the mothers and wives of the fighting men who are to battle with the invaders.

To the west the Indians are often miners. They dig copper, gold and silver. Now and then there is a frost in the high valleys. The Yaqui is a fierce man—for Mexico. He eats goat meat occasionally, and that puts an edge to his pugnacity. And he is the only Indian who will stay where there is frost. So his pay is large for Mexico.

Instinctively the Yaqui is a revolutionist. He sneered at Diaz—wanting a government of his own—and Diaz captured him and sent him to Yucatan, where, as Diaz intended, he soon perished from heat and humidity.

The main roads out of Mexico City are level and wide. In the early morning, under a sky cloudless and beautifully blue, hundreds of donkeys in droves of six, ten or twelve, driven by Indians on foot, will be seen struggling along under their loads.

INDIAN AND BURRO WORK TOGETHER.

There were no beasts of burden among the Aztecs. The calendar-stone, by which they told the hour of the day, as well as the seasons, weighed fifty tons. With crude machinery and their own strength they transported it over rivers and mountains to Mexico City. Spain gave them the donkey, and ever since, in humility and utility, Indian and burro have worked together.

A burro can easily carry 150 pounds. Long caravans of burros, heads down and attended by swift-footed Indians, muffled to the ears in bright-colored serapes against the chill of the dawn, enter all large cities every morning. They bear poultry and vegetables in crates, green barley in sheaves, straw in huge, hard bundles, firewood, eggs and milk.

The barley is sold for horse fodder and is piled so high and wide that only the feet of the donkey can be seen. The Indians, slim, upright, short of stature, with straight legs and soft, tuneful voices, drive the donkeys by prodding them in the sides with blunt sticks and by hissing at them through their teeth.

By 7 o'clock the streets are filled with burros and Indians on the way to markets and stores, to houses with wood, eggs and milk, and to stables with barley and straw. They make no noise, for the burros are unshod and the Indians are barefooted. One hears a quick, shrill "P-s-s-s-s," and that is all.

The donkeys also bear flowers in immense baskets, roses of all colors, and purple pansies having stems a foot and a half long. Indians at the street corners make bouquets of the flowers. Two dozen yellow roses and three dozen pansies, or pansies and pink roses, wound with much hidden twine, freshened with water, made green with lace-like vines, can be had for 50 cents in silver if one knows how to bargain.

Thus the country is brought to the city. By noon the lightened donkeys go home. They will be seen among the cactuses, heads down, as ever, winding in and out, now in groups, again one before the other.

DRAYS OF FLESH AND BLOOD.

On the haunches of the larger ones ride little brown Indians, their zarapes folded and slung over their left shoulders, for the sun, a ball of binding gilt, hangs in the blue arch overhead, and the way is hot and the roads and paths are full of white dust.

Within the city the Indians themselves bear on their backs the burdens of industry and commerce. They are Mexico's drays of human flesh and blood. A small account is to be settled. You go to your door and clap your hands together.

A cargadore answers you at once. He pays your bill and you give him a few pennies for his service. He will buy you a shirt if you will tell him where to go and give him the size, color and price. He will deliver a letter or a bouquet.

If you have a trunk at the railway station, the cargadore will carry it a mile without stopping and charge you 12 cents. When you move your furniture out of one house to another you call him in and make terms. He employs a half dozen of his acquaintances, and they come with wooden frames that look like an undertaker's bier. Your grand piano will be borne away on their backs. They are passed as they totter down the street by automobiles, trolley cars and bicycles.

A half-naked Indian—and he is the real inhabitant of the country—his legs bare to the knees, his muscles like ropes, slowly trots across the plaza in Mexico City—the plaza where great battles have been fought and which is now the terminus of electric railroads. His fine but hopeless eyes are on the earth.

There are no sandals on his feet, and his joints are thick and his nails are broken and wrenched. In a box on his back are cans of Standard oil. Another Cortez came to conquer, and the Aztec, as always, bears the burden of the shock. Such will be his fate when the invaders appear in ships or swarm on foot across the frontier.

The hot-land Indian is wretchedly poor, but he has never been in slavery and is a free man now, provided he is not in debt. He has water and he uses it. In Tehauntepec, a city on the Pacific Ocean, Indian women, each of whom has several hundred dollars in gold coins necklaced above her bosom, can be seen selling fruits and flowers at the public market. These women go to dances at night barefooted, but they wear velvet bodices and layers of white petticoats stiff as plenty of starch can make them.

The men will refuse to carry a stranger's baggage for pay but they will live in huts which are, in a sense, without sides and are roofed with leaves and palms. Moreover, they will go into debt, and debt to them means slavery.

Once in debt, they are in ever-enduring bondage. Their debts are bought and sold. The Indians thus change masters because their debts represent their persons and their labor, and are tangible and transferable property. Agents of plantation managers visit little villages on feast days, loan Indians money with which to purchase liquor, and take receipts for the funds thus advanced.

At the end of the debauch the Indians must either go to the plantations or to jail. No doubt the invaders, when they come, will be met in battle array by an army of the meek and vegetable-eating Indians of Chiapas, Campeche and Yucatan.

There also is another flood that covers Mexico. It looks much like buttermilk, is sold for 2 cents a quart, and is called pulque. The common people of the republic, the men who will fight the invaders, are Indians and half-bloods. It can be said that they are intoxicated a good part of the time.

WHEN DIAZ SHOT DEMAGOGUES.

Pulque, the moral scourge of the country, is brewed from the juice of the maguey or American aloe. Mescal, colorless and with a bite like acid, is made of its roots. Aguardiente, or "burning water," is distilled from sugar cane. No liquor is stronger. Field hands are given burning water three times a day in drafts that would eat holes in granite and corrode steel and iron.

The curse of these liquors lies heavy on the land. Pulque is taken daily to Mexico City in special trains. It is an important article of freight. Villagers and country people buy it from peddlers, who store it in pigskins and transport it from hovel to hovel on donkeys' backs.

Mexican planters, half-bloods, quarter-bloods, and pure white, cultivate maguey in almost every part of the republic. They wear tall, pointed hats, short coats or jackets, and skin-tight pantaloons. Clay walls inclose their adobe mansions, their breweries, stables and the square huts of their Indian workmen. These men will be officers in the armies which go forth to hurl back the invaders.

AN ARGUMENT FOR LOW WAGES.

One will be told, however, that all these poor creatures are merry and well contented; that they earn 35 cents in gold a day, and that they would work for less if more were paid. Their wants, one is assured, are few—corn and beans daily, the backbone and ghastly head of a goat twice a week, and a dram of pulque, the Mexican intoxicant, when they are thirsty. Higher wages, so the philosopher of the educated class runs, would mean an increase of drunkenness and idleness, and civilization condemns such things.

The voice of the cargadores are gentle; so even are the voices of the newsboys and hucksters. Many of them wear loose cotton trousers, others wear tight trousers, which spring at the instep over the feet, and are never clean. Rarely does one see a bowlegged Indian in Mexico. The men are slender and well-formed; the women are plump and shapeless.

Women drink pulque and smoke cigarettes. If employed at a hotel, they are taken to the front door at night—there are no back doors in Mexico—and searched for spoons, small dishes, knives and forks, and other concealable and portable property. They stand in line, look not abashed, and make no objection to the procedure.

The interviewer who is writing this article left his baggage open in many hotels throughout the republic among maids and porters, but nothing was ever missed. Zachary Taylor said Mexico was "a nationa of blanketed thieves," but he was fighting them and they were not friends of his.

As a mechanic, the Indian or the half-breed is imitative and slow. He does well, however, in stone, bricks, and mortar, because he has been working with such building materials for centuries. He lays 200 bricks a day. An American mason lays 2000. Contractors say that it is cheaper to dig cellars with Indians than to employ mules and scrapers. An Indian, though small, can easily carry two bushels and a half of wet sand out of a deep hole in the ground.

BAREFOOTED WOMEN IN VELVET

Matias Romero was for many years the Mexican Minister in Washington. He said that he knew of Indians in the highlands of Oaxaca, a State in South Mexico, who raised corn and vegetables in the lowlands thirty miles distant and brought all of their crops home on their backs.

These fishermen too would fight.

Los Angeles Leads San Francisco in September Permits — Bay City Ahead in Valuation Total.

Los Angeles led San Francisco by a large margin in the number of building permits issued during the month of September and was in turn eclipsed by the bay city in the amount of money outlay for construction work. It is the first time this year that San Francisco has shown a greater building valuation total than this city.

The Los Angeles figures for the month were 1387 permits and $1,748,665 valuation, while those of San Francisco were 386 permits and $2,273,723. The bay city's large valuation figures is accounted for by the fact of the issuance there of one permit for a $900,000 building.

Congressman Humphrey Characterizes the Anarchistic and Treasonable Organization in Sharp Speech.

[Chicago Inter Ocean:] In a speech placing the blame for the lamentable rioting in Seattle, Wash., during the "Potlatch celebration" in that city July 17 and 18, last, where it properly belongs—upon the Industrial Workers of the World, who had, without provocation, assaulted a party of three soldiers and two sailors—the Hon. William E. Humphrey, a Representative in Congress from Washington, thus properly characterizes that anarchistic and treasonable organization:

"What was the cause of the riot in Seattle? The same cause that almost daily causes business disturbances, strikes, riots and murder in some part of our country. It is the liberty and license shown to the Industrial Workers of the World under the misguided cry of 'free speech.'

"These enemies to society have become a menace to the nation. These men will not work themselves nor permit others to do so if they can prevent it. These defamers of their country and their country's flag, who defy the law and denounce the courts, who scoff at religion and curse the church, who sneer at the family relations and revile all that is honest, decent and respectable; these men who vilify all who wear the uniform of their country; these preachers of force and destruction, of anarchy and treason, of lawlessness and murder, of the riot and the torch, had been permitted for many months to stand on the streets of Seattle and indulge in their filthy and violent harangues, disgusting, irritating and insulting to all decent people.

"These agitators are always a menace to the community and are constantly inciting riot and bloodshed. These loathsome human parasites were the cause of the riots in Seattle."

It is a strong indictment, but who, knowing of the activities of this organization, shall say that it is unjust? Honest labor organizations, anxious to serve their members and loyal to their country, should be careful to keep their skirts clear of even the imputation of taint from the doctrines of the I.W.W. Sensible city executives should, upon the first intimation of I.W.W. activity in their communities, exert every legal means to curb their lawlessness.

Nervousness Quickly Cured by Magic "Try-New-Life"

Nervousness can be relieved just as quickly, just as easily and just as surely by "Try-New-Life" as rheumatism, or headache, or any other ailment. It is done, every day, in thousands of homes where they use "Try-New-Life," and in hospitals and doctors' offices everywhere.

Nervousness is a disease, not merely a condition. There is positive derangement, the nerves are overworked and do not get their share of nourishment. Then, of course, they do not do their work well.

Come In and Try for Yourself It Will Cost You Nothing

RELIEVES HEADACHE INSTANTLY

STOPS PAIN INSTANTLY

HELPS DEAFNESS!

The malady takes a thousand forms. And both men and women may be unable to sleep, unable to keep the mind fixed on one subject, weak of body and worried in mind.

"Try-New-Life" gives quick and positive relief. There is no numbing the body with drugs and then waiting for improvement. The moment "Try-New-Life" is applied there is a result. The touch of the applicator soothes the quivering nerves, the blood is stimulated to flow afresh through the tissues and bring fresh material for their upbuilding, the wasted muscles and nerves themselves are pressed and tapped and massaged and stroked, encouraging growth and strength.

A single treatment often quiets the most hysterical nerves and brings a sound night's sleep even to a sufferer who has not slept an entire night in many months. No treatment ever fails to give great benefit.

HAIR

"Try-New-Life" increases the circulation of the blood in the scalp, promotes the growth of the hair and loosens the scalp. Hair tonic will not make hair grow, it is the blood that contains all the elements of nutrition for the roots of the hair, and the only way to make hair grow is to stimulate the circulation of the scalp and supply more nutrition for the roots of the hair.

HEADACHE AND NEURALGIA.

Headache and neuralgia can be instantly relieved with one single treatment of "Try-New-Life"

THROAT TROUBLE.

"Try-New-Life" will instantly relieve sore throat, stiff neck, tonsilitis, asthma, or any affection of the throat or bronchial tubes.

STOMACH AND BOWEL TROUBLE

Worms afflict all ages of the human family.

SYMPTOMS—Children and grown people, when troubled with worms, have more or less of these symptoms, or at least worms have caused all of the symptoms given below in different individuals at certain periods of their life; pale complexion, with white or livid circles around the nose and eyes. In some cases lower eyelids and upper lip sometimes swollen, unnatural looking tongue covered with whitish-looking fur, sometimes speckled with small points or dodder elevations; others drooling from the mouth or excessive flow of water (saliva,) with a foul, offensive-smelling breath. Some cases are constantly rubbing or picking their noses, others are restless at night and grind their teeth, also have frightful dreams and start up in terror when asleep.

Passing of mucus or slime from the bowel is an important symptom of worms.

My treatment is pleasant to take. There is no detention from business, no bad effects and can be taken by the youngest child or most feeble person.

The treatment is also a boon in cases of stomach and bowel trouble not due to the presence of worms. It is a fine general tonic, and thoroughly rids the system of accumulations.

ETIQUETTE OF COMMON THINGS.

Guests Should Not Delay Going When They Have Once Made a Start for the Door.

[St. Louis Globe-Democrat:] Seldom does one note the disregard of a very simple, yet, when forgotten, rather disturbing, rule that may safely be classed under this heading: "Stand not on the order of your going, but go at once."

It should be an inflexible rule that a guest in bidding her hostess goodby, after a call of ceremony, or, indeed, a call of any sort, should not delay, with last words, extending possibly into many minutes, keeping both standing, maybe at an open door, with the procrastinating one enveloped in comfortable wraps, but the hostess thinly clad. The usual time allowed for a formal call need not exceed fifteen or twenty minutes, while "last words" often exceed half an hour. This is really a serious breach of the laws of social usage we call etiquette, more especially these days of so many demands upon time and strength in her varied and various duties, for the popular woman of society.

The hostess has always the privilege of making a personal request to her departing guest to "stay a little longer," and the watchful woman can easily tell whether this is perfunctory or really meant, whether just from a sense of politeness or real desire. Then a visitor may with propriety delay her leave-taking a short while, but the few minutes asked for should be understood as minutes, not taken too largely.

Certain allotments of time are, or should be, understood by all who give or accept social invitations; half an hour or an hour are allowed for a large reception, where one meets friends, and a hostess is only expected to greet on arrival and departure.

For a dinner, unless games or other special entertainment is provided, half an hour after leaving the table is correct, and so on through the list of social obligations.

But it is far better not to stay quite long enough, rather than have the hostess breathe a sigh of relief when a caller, after a protracted leave-taking, finally takes flight.

Post Boy, the 4-year-old bay gelding by Avidity-Lowgill, owned by Alexander Smith Cochrane, will be sent to Ireland, where he will be trained for the Liverpool Grand National, to run next March.

FACT AND COMMENT.

The ninth annual convention of the California State Realty Federation, to be held at Del Monte from October 16 to October 19, inclusively, will bring together representative real estate men from all parts of California. The meeting will mark another milestone in the history of an organization which, from a small beginning, has grown to be the largest and most influential association of its kind in the United States. Because the convention will be given over largely to a discussion by the leaders in the realty profession of ways and means to further lift the standards of business between the dealers in real estate and the public, the meeting is of significance to every one who ever expects to buy or sell a piece of property. Real estate has aptly been called the most fundamental of all commodities. In Southern California, especially, it would be hard to find an individual who was not either directly or indirectly interested in some phase of realty activity.

One seldom hears these days of the old bargain and trade kind of dealing between the buyers and sellers of real property. Both sellers and purchasers now believe that a better bargain and a fairer deal can be made through the professional intermediary of an honest and capable broker, whose judgmnet as to values is based on experience and knowledge. The real estate business, in fact, has been placed in the last few years upon a highly professional plane, and the clear thinking brokers are determined to keep it there. Like the lawyers and physicians and bankers, the realty men have declared a war to the death upon the shysters, charlatans and those who bring discredit upon their respectable and useful calling.

The live real estate men, the brokers who are in the business, as other professional men are in business, for life, are constantly studying methods for improving the service they are able to render their clients. That is why local, State and national realty organizations have come into existence and that is the reason back of the convention at Del Monte. These gatherings of the realty men are schools of experience for the brokers who attend them. Successful real estate men from one part of the State meet others of like caliber from other sections, compare notes, get acquainted with conditions outside of their own respective spheres and discuss the newest and best ways of handling their business and of serving those who deal in lots and lands. As the result of many innovations and improvements directly traceable to their organization and to their co-operation in all that goes to elevate the realty profession, the real estate brokers have, in the last few years, done much to raise their calling in the estimation of the public.

The Los Angeles Way.

The fame of Los Angeles as a city of beautiful homes is growing from year to year. The reason is not hard to find. The builders of this city have an unconquerable liking for the wide lawns and terraces which alone can give a private dwelling a detached and homelike atmosphere. In other cities of the size of this the owners of tracts within the zone adapted for residence purposes are cutting their holdings into twenty-five-foot lots. The result is the solidly built street, with its endless monotony of stoops and cornices, that has come to be associated with the conception of the average eastern city.

Even with the certain knowledge that Los Angeles is forging into the million class and that all frontage within easy car hall of the downtown business district is bound to leap in value as the years go by, the subdivisionists of this city are persisting in what shrewd dealers in older cities would undoubtedly call old-fashioned methods. Residence tracts here are still being laid out in wide, deep lots, with sightly parkings and landscape effects. Trees and shrubs occupy space that in many another city would unceremoniously be given over to sidewalks. Instead of the iron-railed stoop leading directly from his door to the street, the Los Angeles home builder demands and is getting a broad, deep expanse of lawn across the front of his home. Under the Los Angeles plan, too, the houses themselves have room to spread out and as a consequence look more like real homes and less like flats and apartments than the squeezed-in, waferlike dwellings of the typical city.

The result is not hard to foresee, if one will but stop to think. Ten years from now, when Los Angeles shall have become one of the world's great centers of population, this "big, overgrown southwest town" (as some of the blase representatives of certain older and as yet larger places cloose to call it,) will be the real garden city of the country. A real metropolis in every sense of the word, it will boast what many of Europe's greatest cities proudly lay claim to, namely, wide, tree-lined thoroughfares and broad, green parkings. When the next decade melts into the accumulating years of the next generation, with the inevitabl esweeping away of present-day conditions, those streets, more beautiful than ever with their ancient, spreading trees, will remain to the credit of the present-day subdivisionists.

OVER GOVERNOR'S HEAD.

One of the subjects to be brought up for discussion at the annual convention of the State Realty Federation, to be held at Del Monte from October 16 to 19, inclusively, will be the real estate license bill, which, although passed by the last session of the Legislature, failed to receive the signature of the Governor, making it a law. In a report to be presented by the Legislative Committee of the federation through its chairman, Victor G. Kleinberger of this city, it will be urged before those attending the convention that the bill be initiated and referred to the people, or that it at least be brought up at every coming session of the Legislature until it becomes a law.

High-Class Restrictions Insure Character of Recently-Opened Residence Tracts—Many Sightly Dwellings Now Being Erected in West Side.

Four attractive houses, typical of the building improvements now under way in as many popular residence subdivisions, are pictured on this page of The Times. Of the approximately 500 permits granted every month for new homes in this city, there are dozens taken out for similarly fine places. The present year has been notable for the number of high-class residence tracts laid out within and just outside the city limits of Los Angeles. Every one of these subdivisions, with its splendid street and landscaping improvements and its protective architectural restrictions, is bound to become a city beauty spot.

The four dwellings pictured show an interesting variety of design. The residence for Mrs. Jules Kauffman, for example, will folllow the style of the early French Renaissance. Planned by Arthur B. Benton, it will occupy a large and sightly lot on Hobart boulevard in Pellessier Square, one of the most attractive of the new west side subdivisions. The house will be of concrete construction with plastered exterior, and will have a slate roof. It will contain eleven rooms and will be finished in hardwoods throughout, the baths having tile walls and floors. The drawing-room will be finished after the period

Most attractive bungalows in the new residential section just opening up by the paving and the building of the new car line on Main street. This is going to be one of the nicest sections of moderate-priced homes in the city.

It is in the direct line of the natural growth of the harbor, and with a 5-cent car line at each end of the block is one of the surest locations for advancing values in the entire city.

Five and six rooms with bath, best material and workmanship, common sense and good taste in decorations and finish, excellent fixtures, lawns—in fact, everything that makes a real home place.

Eighty-third street from Main street to Moneta avenue is one of the prettiest streets in the city in the making. Wide, with good parkings, unspoiled by shabby neighbors, it is a choice location for those who want to get in just ahead of advancing prices.

Seven handsome bungalows just finished, prices from $2750 to $3200. Pay $25 monthly, which includes interest and taxes. Absolutely the best houses in the city for the money.

See them Sunday. Take Homeward-avenue car. Get car on Spring street between Fourth and Ninth, or on Main street from Ninth street south (not Vermont Heights car.)

Agent on tract all day, or telephone us and we will be glad to take you out by automobile at any time.

FOR SALE—

FOUR HOUSES SOLD ON VAN NESS AVENUE
THIS WEEK.

WHY?

Because I own and control 7 or 8 high-class bungalows which have been quoted at a price of from $4200 to $4500.

Last week I STARTED SOMETHING.

I offered these bungalows at $3700—that is about $600 to $700 under former price. It means the houses were sold at absolute cost.

The lots alone are worth $1500 to $1600. That only leaves $2100 to build a high-class 6-room bungalow, with hardwood floors in every room and closets, fine plumbing including pedestal washstand, two wash trays, hot water boiler, beautiful electric light fixtures, elegant wallpaper, electric stove and every convenience one can imagine.

I need money and I need it bad. Therefore, I am sacrificing these houses and have instructions from my associates to do it.

This is not an advertisement simply to sell a home, but a real genuine bargain. I defy anyone in Los Angeles to show a house as well built, as beautifully finished and in as good location for within $1000 of my price.

If you have a couple hundred dollars to spare and from $35 or $40 to pay on a house which can be rented for $35 per month, and you want a good investment, call me up. If you don't mean business and if you are not really looking for a bargain, don't bother me.

For information, call MR. SMITH, at Main 6061, or Home 10685.

SACRIFICE SALE, on Van Ness ave. 6-room bungalow, $3950—$200 down, $35 per month. You may not think of it, but we are a good team. We only have bargains, and, believe me, we have built so many houses we know a bargain when we see it. We have discovered one on Van Ness ave. The house has 6 large rooms, oak floors in every room and closets, finest of plumbing, including pedestal washstand, great big bath tub and two wash trays. The electric light fixtures and the wallpaper are about the same as you will see in a $10,000 home. It is a bungalow that is worth about $5000. It is on a 50-foot lot. We would not have it for sale if it was not a bargain. It can be delivered on easy terms. Might take vacant lot in part exchange. EVA C. KENDIG, Phones Vermont 50 and 26494.

WATER.

OAKDALE IRRIGATION SYSTEM IS BEST ON PACIFIC COAST.

WHY?

BECAUSE WHILE NEARLY EVERY BIG IRRIGATION DITCH IN THE STATE RIGHT NOW IS "DRY AS A BONE," THE BIG OAKLAND DITCHES ARE BRIMMING FULL OF WATER.

THERE IS ENOUGH WATER, RIGHT TODAY, GOING OVER THE OAKDALE IRRIGATION DAM IN THE STANISLAUS RIVER TO IRRIGATE 50,000 ACRES OF ALFALFA.

BUY NOW
AT OAKDALE.

We have a big ranch of 800 acres of land located right in the very heart of the OAKDALE DISTRICT; right alongside the big main canal, with two of the largest laterals serving us; one running through the land and the other alongside.

THESE DITCHES ARE RIGHT NOW BANK FULL. THINK OF IT AND THINK OF WHAT IT MEANS.

The soil is a heavy sediment loam, some black and some chocolate brown. Soil experts state it is best alfalfa and fruit land in California. Orange, olive, almond, walnut, peach and pear orchards are bringing in big returns.

HAY

We have subdivided our ranch into 20, 40 and 60 acre tracts and selling to farmers who want a chance to make good.

We are selling on basis of one-third cash, then we take one-half of your marketable crops each year for balance pay. No crops, no pay.

We know what the land will do; what the water will do. We know if you are a farmer you will win and so will we. It's up to you.

Remember, we actually put the water on every 20-acre tract. Water belongs to the land and costs only the actual upkeep each year. Ranch is fenced. The land has been under cultivation for twenty years, raising bumper crops of barley.

There is a party of farmers going up to look at the land next Wednesday.

FOR SALE—MEXICO—WE ARE COMPELLED TO sacrifice 6000 acres of our lands in one body, situated in the State of Sinaloa. These lands were bought several years ago on account of their being unusually choice in every element necessary for very profitable development and also because of the very low price at which they were secured. We simply could not let the opportunity of securing them pass by unheeded. They are offered at a nominal price per acre and we cannot urge too strongly their purchase at this time for later development. At a total cost of fifteen (15) dollars per acre, which would include the purchase price and the development of headworks, canals and distributing laterals, every block of fifty (50) acres of the entire body would be ready for intensive farming. Taxes two (2) cents per acre per year. Titles perfect. We will take pleasure in discussing details of Mexican matters with any responsible parties who may be interested. Now is the time to lay foundations for very large profits later. Address R, box 96, TIMES OFFICE.

FOR SALE—

MUST HAVE MONEY.

I must have some money and must have it quick. I own one of the best-paying apartment-houses in the city. It is a small house, but it has always made me money. It is close in and has always been full of tenants with many on waiting list. This is true.

Now, I must raise some money and will sell out house, lot and elegant furniture for the best terms I can get. I must have some cash and want as big payments as possible, but I won't turn down any reasonable offer. I might take in some trade, but don't want junk.

I want to do business in a hurry and don't want to fool around with agents who want to list property. Would rather deal direct with someone who wants to buy. I can do lots better and can give a better deal without agents.

I would lease the property to a responsible person and sell the furniture if you cannot buy property. It might pay you to see me.

Address R, box 35, TIMES OFFICE.

FOR SALE—
DON'T WAIT, BUY NOW.
VALUES WILL DOUBLE IN FEW MONTHS AND YOU KNOW IT.

To close an estate we must sell the best corner on West First street (absolutely the best and you know it.) It is occupied by an apartment-house and stores and other buildings. Good, big lot to an alley. Will sell so cheap that within a few weeks when the big First-street tunnel project is adopted by the City Council and work is begun you will almost be ashamed that you bought this corner so cheaply, because you will feel you have practically gotten something for nothing.

Income is today, right this day, paying 12 per cent. on the asking price. Think of it. Get 12 per cent. on your money while waiting only six months to a year for your property to double, treble and quadruple in value.

If you want to be shown, we can do it.

THE STOCK MARKET—
Has had a decided reaction during the past week. This has placed the market in a much more substantial condition, as such reaction was to be expected after rapid advance of the past three weeks.

I believe this reaction is but a temporary check to a steady advance in many of the low-priced issues listed on the local exchange, and advise all those who are interested in the market to take advantage of present prices.

Buying and selling orders on listed and unlisted issues solicited.

MRS. ROBERT NEWTON PAGE.

Wife of the Member of Congress from Biscoe, North Carolina, Asks the Pertinent Question, "What Ails Women of the Present."

BY MARGARET B. DOWNING.

Wife and daughter of Congressman Page.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1. — "I would wish," said Mrs. Page in her delightful drawing-room, snuggling close to a crackling log fire, a mighty comfortable adjunct in these chill October evenings, "every one of my sister women, particularly those engrossed in the dominant theme, the new woman and her perquisites, to sit down and think for five consecutive minutes and then answer these questions:

"Are we women failing to be our best individual selves? Are we using faithfully the rights we already possess as wives, mothers, daughters, sisters, friends, neighbors and mistresses of homes? Will one additional right, that of suffrage, change the situation? We women set the standard in the homes. Homes make up the communities; communities the State; States, the nation. Are we having the same influence which our grandmothers and mothers had? Certainly not, then why since our opportunities are so much better than theirs?

"During the past summer, since Congress was to sit continuously, I decided that Washington should be as comfortable and convenient as any summer resort on the map. I decked my home in snowy coverlets, packed away all superfluities, darkened the house after a thorough airing in the morning, opened it again in the evening and spent the hours after the dark, riding or walking, keeping quiet and trying to keep cool. As a rule every member of the family succeeded in accomplishing both. But naturally our wants were simple and all social obligations except of the flimsiest texture were swept away and I had abundant time to read, to meditate and to ponder on the questions of the hour. Those who did have time to read during the past summer must have been impressed by the recital of things as they are. As the autumn approaches and my friends have begun to drop in, I have been confronted with the question, what is the matter with women? What do they want? Whither are they drifting?

"What impresses me very strongly is the way our present day woman shrinks from work. Just suggest home keeping and the answer is, except in very few exceptions, 'It is so much trouble to keep house, servants are so careless and wasteful; it is expensive and takes all one's time.' Now I ask what is our present day woman's idea of her duty, especially if she has married and has children. When I came to Washington, I was overwhelmed by these considerations and spent four fruitless years in apartments and hotels. Two years ago I made the plunge into housekeeping and the happiness of my home is so great that to weigh against it a little extra expense, a little less leisure perhaps to play bridge or spend useless hours visiting and shopping, would to compare things of real value with the worthless. I think all the unrest is due to the lack of time to think and to see into one's own heart and then that modern foolish idea about the indignity of work.

"I am inclined to regret that our grandmothers and mothers did so much for us, we have so little left to do for our husbands and children. What picture is more inspiring than to recall life as it was when our grandparents were following their homely duties. When grandfather stretched out his comely leg to the blaze of the hickory logs (which he had himself hewn in the forest sawed into proper size and piled on the hearth,) it was covered with stout well-knitted hose done by his faithful spouse as she sat in the twilight after the day's serious duties were over. His staunch jacket and often every detail of his comfortable clothing was the work of his wife or mother or sisters. Cool linen for summer, excellent wool for winter. The food represented the partnership, which the truly happy married life should be. The raw material, the result of his industry, the savory preparing the work of his wife. Such bread as grandmother could make and such pastries, and such catsups and gravies and sauces and cakes and dumplings. And such a quantity as grandfather could eat. Our modern man would be dead of acute indigestion or some such disorder in less than a week. But grandfather plowed the fields, cut the wood, built his own houses, fed his stock, and frequently superintended the slaying and preparing of the meat for the winter. He came to his dinner with the natural hunger of clean physical labor and every article set before him was wholesome, well prepared and well cooked. Naturally grandfather had the greatest respect for grandmother's word and her word was law to him and to the whole household. She certainly had all the rights she wanted and she lost no opportunity to exercise them. The men who steered the ship of state through many crises between the first half of the nineteenth century to the present half of the first quarter of the twentieth are men trained by such grandmothers or by the children such grandmothers trained.

"I like the narrow skirt and sincerely hope it will continue in favor. It is lighter, requires less material, and it can be made graceful and adaptable to all needs as those charming flowing robes of the Greeks. Even the slits do not shock me if only the foot is exposed. There is nothing im-

modest in showing the fo

But when it comes to lack o quate covering; when our yo our mothers of families, eve haired women forget the swe in their sex, then I ask wh caused this change, who is r

"Far from me to blame su

COPPER MARKET; DAILY REVIEW.

DEVELOPMENTS AT NEW PRODUCING CENTERS.

Metal Market, Having Entered Waiting Period, Shows Little Tendency Either Way—Development of Butte and Superior as a Producer of Zinc.

There was no London metal market Saturday. The copper metal market has entered into one of its waiting periods, and while some small lots of metal may be secured at 16⅝@16¾ cents, the larger agencies, being comfortably well sold ahead, [illegible] and are not in the least [illegible] by the competitive undercutting of the [illegible]. American Smelting and Refining Company, for instance, will take business at 16¾ [illegible] is a fraction less. Whenever there [illegible] the small agencies [illegible] at small fractions under the quotations of the United Metals Selling Company and the American Smelting and Refining Company. The big agencies take the position that when the next fortnightly copper statement is cabled from London, and the September Producers' Association statement is issued, [illegible] will be glad to get their copper and pay [illegible] for it. The meaning of a 16¾-cent [illegible] the result of the £2 drop in London [illegible] and the speculative market for [illegible] is always susceptible to manipulation. It is interesting in this connection to [illegible] that substantially over 50 per cent. of the [illegible] held in English and French warehouses, [illegible] which copper warrants are issued, is [illegible] for electrolytic refining. This copper [illegible] product of the United Alkali and Chemical [illegible] of England, and can be used only in the [illegible] of sulphate of copper. As a matter [illegible] the resulting stocks of commercially available copper at English and French storage points [illegible] small as to be almost a negligible factor. [illegible] market inaction, if such it may be called, [illegible] in the trade as merely a resting spell, [illegible] no indication of any inherent [illegible] in the fundamentals of the copper [illegible]

[illegible] the first of the year Butte and Superior, [illegible] new management, has developed from a [illegible] earning very little money, into the [illegible] factor in the production of zinc, [illegible] substantial and well established earning [illegible]. From an average monthly output of [illegible] pounds of zinc in concentrates in 1912, [illegible] output has steadily advanced to [illegible] pounds in April, [illegible] in July, and [illegible] in August. This larger output has [illegible] by a decided improvement in [illegible] in grade of product, and in operating [illegible]. The mill recovery has risen from an [illegible] of less than 60 per cent. in 1912, to better [illegible] per cent. The grade of concentrates has [illegible] from [illegible] per cent. to 50 per cent., the [illegible] upon which the company's smelting [illegible] have been based, while the operating costs [illegible] reduced to the figure originally estimated. The actual net earnings for August, based [illegible] cents for spelter, were $140,000, [illegible] of $8 a share per annum. This was [illegible] of 1000 tons a day. Hayden, [illegible] Co. say: [illegible] advised that the mill [illegible] a maximum capacity of [illegible] and we think it probable will average [illegible] tons. With the prospect of this [illegible] a favorable outlook for [illegible] the shares of [illegible] both as a mining investment [illegible]

[illegible] an Arizona Commercial twelfth [illegible] width of [illegible] feet of [illegible] sulphide ore, [illegible] which showed fourteen feet of [illegible] feet [illegible] the same time the [illegible] comparatively simple matter [illegible] where there is a good showing [illegible] from the sixth level to [illegible] to make connection with [illegible] shaft of Old Dominion, [illegible] that shipments from the [illegible] most any time. This raise is necessary in order to comply with the law which requires two means of exit. On the twelfth level it will probably be two or three months before stoping can be started.

Washoe smelter of Anaconda Copper Company will be shut down for two weeks, beginning about October 1, so that necessary repairs can be made. The capacity of the Washoe smelter is 150,000,000 pounds of copper a year. Confirming dispatches from Butte, regarding temporary shutdown of smelting and converting department of Washoe smelter, B. B. Thayer, president of Anaconda Copper Company, said that the large flue, which is nearly half a mile in length, and connects smelting and converting plants with the main stack, has not had anything but temporary repairs made to it since 1908. This will necessitate closing the smelting and converting plants for not to exceed ten days. After starting up furnaces again they will not reach their capacity immediately, but it is not expected that production will be affected by more than about 10,000,000 pounds of copper. Mines at Butte and concentrating department of Washoe reduction works will continue in full operation, and concentrates will be stored during the period of shutdown.

Officials of Anaconda Copper Mining Company announce that while Washoe smelter at Anaconda is shut down for ten days from October 1 for overhauling and repairs, the mines at Butte will run as usual, and ore sent to Great Falls smelter, and to concentrator at Anaconda, which will be kept running. There will be no curtailment of output.

The Greene-Cananea Company, say Thompson, Towle & Co., now has a pay roll of 2100 men, including only 180 Americans, while a year ago the pay roll was over 5000 men, with 600 Americans. At this time the management is not seeking a large production, but is content to operate at 60 per cent. capacity, outputting about 3,000,000 pounds of copper per month, and it is doing this at a net cost of 10½ cents for its copper, f.o.b. New York sold. The management does not plan an expansion in production until its ore bodies have been placed in condition for improved mining methods, which work is now being done under the supervision of George Kingdon, former superintendent of the Old Dominion. The Western Federation of Labor was back of the labor agitation last spring at Cananea, but many of the Western Federation men have been eliminated in the reduction of the American force from 600 to 180. Operating conditions at Cananea have improved greatly during the past few months, and there is not much fear of any further trouble from the Mexican revolution.

August production of Ray Consolidated amounted to 4,401,568 pounds of copper, compared with 4,097,177 pounds for July, and 3,055,490 for August a year ago. A comparison is as follows:

Six months	23,856,284	16,075,017
July	4,097,177	3,105,165
August	4,401,568	3,055,490

New York Curb Stocks.

(Furnished by E. F. Hutton & Co., Members New York Stock Exchange, 118 West Fourth street, Los Angeles.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—The curb market was dull today. Oils showed a little better tone. Mining stocks were featureless and unchanged. The Boston market opened slow but firm. Alaska was the feature, and inclined to advance. Although the market was very dull, prices held at the best figures until 11:30, when fractional recessions took place in sympathy with New York. The close was quiet.

Boston Copper Market.

BOSTON, Oct. 4.—Tight money and a poor bank statement was responsible for a lower market in New York today. A sharp drive was made at the standard stocks and they showed little resistance. Local stocks were dull, with no changes. Coppers are as strong as ever and well-posted people predict a continuation of present price for a long time.

WHEN THE BOND BUYER BALKS.

His Widespread Influence on Affairs.

Early this summer the bond buyers of the United States and Europe served notice on all whom it might concern that they did not want any more bonds for the time being. They said they had enough and in a good many cases hinted that the creation of any more would be considered an unfriendly act. It was a real ultimatum.

Of course, it came on gradually: if it had not, there would have been a world-wide panic right there and then. If capital ever forms a union and acts as a unit assuming an attitude like that, the world of industry and finance will apply for a receiver the next day. As it was, it was bad enough. Some of the immediate results of it are worth looking at to discover how much of a factor the bond buyer is in the ordinary affairs of the world.

A big southern State, which had some debt coming due, threatened to default, and caused a tremendous commotion before it finally decided that if bondholders would not help it out it would have resource to the note broker and pay an exorbitant rate for a short-time accommodation. A western city refused to pay its debts. In half a thousand other cities sewers, streets, parks and other public enterprises that were well under way were abandoned or postponed. A new navy, proposed by a South American republic, was abandoned. In practically every country on that continent public works and enterprises were shoved over into the future.

The railroads canceled dozens of extensions and branches for which surveys were already made, and in some cases canceled also orders for rails and other material, which had already been placed. No railroad system in the United States is today carrying forward any large plans for extending its main lines, reaching new markets or opening up new territory.

In the companies that provide facilities for light, heat, power and water, curtailment became the immediate order of the day. Bankers who had always poured immense sums of money into these great enterprises, wherever they might be, absolutely refused to bid on new bonds of any sort. In one striking case, where immense expenditures were so far under way that they could not be abandoned, a prosperous company suspended its dividends, which were very well earned, indeed, and announced that it would continue the work out of its earnings, but hoped some day to be able to sell some more bonds and repay the stockholders for their expenditure. There was so much work of this sore under way at the time that the public utility companies were, perhaps, hit harder than any other class when the bond buyers balked.

In Wall street the effect was striking. Since it was almost impossible to sell good bonds at reasonable prices, the bankers, who are very versatile people and quick on their feet, suggested various other expedients. In the case of the Pennsylvania, for instance, it was easy enough to make a stock issue and sell it to the old stockholders at a bargain price. A great many other strong railroads, public utility and industrial companies were urged to borrow for a year or so on temporary notes. They did it to the extent of several hundred millions of dollars. The bondholder, who used to think he was very lucky if he got more than 4 per cent. on his bond, jumped at the chance to get 6 per cent. on one-year notes of the same company.

This expedient was a wise one, even if it did, to a certain extent, corrupt the morals of the bond-buying public by teaching it to expect a far higher rate than it can ever hope to get, under normal conditions, in bonds. Very slowly the bond buyer who refused to be interested in June has been coaxed back into the market. His funds have piled up and he has found it harder and harder to use them profitably outside of the bond market. He has drifted back to his normal occupation and has been occupied for a month or so picking out bargains in bonds. He is more critical than he was before, asks more questions and wants more privileges. You can coax him to buy a bond that will be convertible some day into stock, when you can't interest him in a real bond secured by a real mortgage. You can get him to trade, sometimes, when he won't buy for cash. He refuses to bid high prices even for his old favorites, and the books of the Wall street dealers are full of orders to buy the standard bonds at their low prices of the year, and in many cases far below their present prices.

When the bond buyers balk they almost paralyze the industry of the world. When they come back in full force they will probably go to the other extreme, and there will be another era like 1904, when bonds will sell at foolishly high prices and almost anything that looks like a bond will be marketable. The wise investor is the man who goes to neither extreme; being neither unduly scared by depression nor lured on to pay foolish prices in a period of general inflation.

"QUANTITY SURVEYING."

New Profession Likely to Be Introduced Into This Country. Consists of Scientific Estimation.

[Southwest Contractor:] Movements to establish a Quantity Survey system in this country, similar in principle to the system that prevails in England and Australia, have been started from time to time. Discussions have been frequent among the various professional and trade organizations and in the press, yet little headway has been made to eliminate the greatest element of chance in contracting—that of the errors or omissions in the quantities of materials that enter into a prospective structure. Yet most every one realizes the great expense and gamble entering into the task of estimating plans for any large building, as evidenced by the cartoon of the successful contractor who after learning he was awarded the contract sits down tearing his hair in the mental strain that accompanies his attempt to find out "What did I forget?

Quantity surveying consists of the creation of a new profession, that of the "Quantity Surveyor," who takes the plans prepared by the architect, estimates the amount of materials required for the structure, and prepares from this estimate a "bill of quantities," on this bill of quantities, a copy of which is given each contractor who figures on the job, the contractor bases his bid absolutely so far as the list of materials are concerned. The surveyor is paid a fee, not by the contractor but by the owner, as is the architect or engineer. Thus every contractor starts figuring on an equal footing. On such basis the successful bidder is not he who has forgotten the sash or doors or one entire story, but the man whose experience, ability to handle such a job and to save where others lose through carelessness or mismanagement, enables him to make a profit at a figure below that of his competitors.

Woman Like an Egg.

[St. Louis Globe Democrat:] "Fashionable woman is becoming more and more like an egg," is the dictum of a well-known Paris fashion artist. "The latest modes all tend in the same direction of reduced shoulders and enlarged hip-line.

"The woman of today is proving the truth of Schopenhauer's statement that 'woman is an animal with narrow shoulders and large hips, made to be beaten, well fed and kept a prisoner.' Woman with her bare shoulders, swelling tunic and draped skirt looks for all the world like an egg balanced on the big end."

AIDING THE FARMER.

Question of Cheaper Money for Agricultural Developments to Be Taken up by Canadian Government.

[Realty Bulletin:] As the two questions of cheaper money for agricultural developments and a higher price for Canadian grain on the world's markets are of primary importance to the farmers, the Province of Saskatchewan has appointed a royal commission to investigate the subjects in the interests of the farmers.

The investigation of the grain markets will proceed along three different lines—cost of producing grain, cost of marketing and transportation and standing of the grain in the British market. The objects of these investigations will enable the commission to make recommendations, having for their object the reduction in the cost of producing grain, the reduction of cost to the producer of transportation and marketing facilities, and the importance of the standing of the grain in the world markets. The commission will be assisted in this work by the agricultural department of the province.

WANT TAIL TO WAG DOG.

Phoenix Unions Fail in Rapid Transit Business.

Corporation Board Refuses Right to Sell Stock.

Declares Entire Plan Unfair and Unjust.

PHOENIX (Ariz.) Oct. 2.—Since the early days of the Phoenix street car strike, opposition to the cars has been maintained by members of the local unions in the way of automobile service, running on schedule, along several of the principal streets. To continue this service and for the purchase of automobile busses, there was organized the Rapid Transit Company of Phoenix, which applied a month ago to the Arizona Corporation Commission for authority to sell stock. This permission has just been refused.

The commission found that the corporation has an authorized capitalization of $1,000,000, in $5 shares, of which 150,000 shares are preferred and 50,000 common. Holders of preferred stock are barred from any part in the management of the company, control being vested absolutely in the owners of the common stock. Application was made to the Corporation Commission for permission to sell 19,885 shares of preferred stock and only fifteen shares of common stock, presumably to be held by the present management of the transportation company.

APPLICATION UNJUST.

In its decision, the commission denied the application as "unfair, unjust and unreasonable," further stating:

"If this method of disposing of its capital stock should receive the sanction and approval of this commission it would mean that if successful in the sale of stock prayed for, this company would have issued and outstanding $100,000 worth of stock, with only $75 worth of said stock having voting power.

"Supposing such approval of this commission to be obtained, what, if anything, would prevent the disposal of but $15 worth of common stock. However, in any event, the bald fact remains that under the plan of business presented $75 would have absolute management and control of this corporation.

"This $75 could dictate and control the policy of the company, the holders of said stock could vote themselves or their friends any position or office at any salary they might determine upon, while the owners of $99,925 worth of preferred stock would be helpless and without remedy.

"We cannot by any logical reasoning bring ourselves to believe that this plan of dividing and disposing of stock is fair, just and equitable to all classes of contributors, as provided by the statute hereinbefore mentioned.

"This company must present other and more reasonable plans in order to justify any order or authority permitting the sale of its stock."

STREET RAILWAY WOES.

The Phoenix Street Railway Company is having its own troubles, being commanded by the Corporation Commission to lay new trackage and to purchase new equipment, claimed to be far beyond its means and beyond the necessities of the city. The present car equipment is far behind the times. The changes were ordered at least six months ago, but consideration has been given the corporation by reason of the carmen's strike. The latest blow was an order by the City Council to lay heavier "Trilby" rails on new work. This last order has caused abandonment of a plan to build a loop line on Adams street, west of First street.

The Municipal League has rejected a compromise offer of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company, which now announces that it will fight to the last ditch an order of the Corporation Commission deeply cutting electric rates. The compromise suggested a reduction of 1 per cent. in domestic rates, but this was considered not low enough. The company's main complaint is upon an alleged undervaluation of its plant.

Instructed by the Legislature to build a municipal abattoir, Phoenix is in no financial shape to obey. Only 10 per cent. may legally be raised by taxation above last year's taxation receipts. This will give a revenue of only $283,000, though a budget estimate shows that $330,000 will be necessary in 1914 to carry on the city government.

With the end of the past quarter, the yearly income of the Phoenix postoffice for the first time passed the $100,000 mark, more than double the income of the next largest town in Arizona or New Mexico. Ten years ago the Phoenix income was less than $30,000.

SCHOOL FOR ONE PUPIL.

A single negro student in the Phoenix High School has caused the raising of the race issue by a late arrival from North Carolina, who threatens to mandamus the school trustees to provide separate instruction for the off-color pupil. The trustees consider the demand absurd, as involving the expense of a separate school for a single pupil, picked from among 500 others.

Dispatches from Washington are to the effect that the Arizona Senators have been requested to name the next Collector of Internal Revenue for the Arizona-New Mexico district, indicating that favor will be given the plan for moving the collector's office from Santa Fe to Phoenix. The leading local candidate for the place is Ed Shaw, who is said to be handicapped by his support of Champ Clark while delegate to the Baltimore convention.

Local Stock Market Activities

By Jno. O. Knight.

A quieter tone prevailed this week after the recent outburst of speculative activity. This is as it should be, and doubtless will prove most salutary. Confidence in local securities is returning. That fact is quite patent enough to any observer of financial conditions. But a period of feverish trading is not to be desired from any point of view. Taken as a whole, the local situation could hardly present a more promising appearance.

Also the financial outlook is clearing. Money is not yet easy, but loans are becoming more readily obtainable. In New York the rate for time has dropped to 4¾ per cent. and this, doubtless, will shortly be followed by lower rates throughout the country.

The best grade of local investment securities, while not now as cheap as they were a few weeks ago, are still enticingly low. Opportunities are open at present to purchase high-class stocks and bonds at figures that will yield unusual rates of income. It is exceedingly doubtful whether such chances will be open again for years. The bank stock list particularly presents inducements beyond the ordinary.

Oil stocks, appealing to those more speculatively inclined, are again finding greater popularity than they have enjoyed for a long time. The outlook for a winter of activity in petroleum shares is decidedly promising. Depression in these issues has been so acute that the more questionable stocks have been largely eliminated and many of the good ones are selling far below their actual worth.

Further liquidation of Los Angeles Investment Company stock followed during the week, carrying the price down to $1.85 per share. This stock is reaching a figure where it looks as if it should begin to bring buying orders into the market.

Union Oil lost $2.00 a share on the week's trading and Amalgamated was off a like amount. In the lower priced issues Jade gained one point, National Pacific about held its own, and Maricopa Northern and United Oil each lost a cent a share. General Petroleum was off one or two dollars a share and Palmer Annex was higher.

GENERAL DECLINE IN STEEL STOCKS.

DOWNWARD TREND FOLLOWED BY ACTIVE ISSUES.

Reduction in Price of Billets and Feeling that Further Cuts Will Be Made in Other Products on Account of New Tariff Were Given as Causes of Weakness.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—A general decline in the steel stocks was the conspicuous movement of the day in the securities market. Losses ranged from fractions to four points; the remainder of the list the movement was wavering with a downward trend. Reading was depressed two points, and St. Paul, Lehigh Valley and Amalgamated a point or more each. In the last few minutes several issues were bid up, quickly reducing net losses on the day. Weakness of the steel group was associated with a reduction in the price of steel billets, announced today. The opinion was expressed that further cuts would be made in steel products owing to the falling off in new business and the changes in import duties in the new tariff law. In this connection unusual interest was attached to forecasts of the United States Steel Corporation's forthcoming monthly statement of unfilled orders. Instead of the small cash gain predicted, the bank statement revealed an actual loss of more than $9,500,000. The surplus was cut from $11,044,000 to $3,695,000. The loss was ascribed to operations incidental to the unusually large October interest and dividend payments made during the week. Bonds were steady. Total sales, par value, $770,000. United States 2s and Panama 2s declined a point and the 4s half on call on the week.

Why Union Oil Bonds Must Advance in Price.

The Bonds of the subsidiary Companies of the Union Oil Company are held today at 88 to 97. The First Lien Bonds of the Company itself, to which the subsidiaries owe their existence, are selling at but 82½. Investors who seek basic knowledge and basic value before using their money will find food for thought in these facts. The deduction is inevitable that Union Bonds must ultimately outpoint the Bonds of the subsidiary Companies. We believe Union bonds will reach 85 within six months and be held around 90 within one year. Subject to prior sale, we offer a block of these First Lien 5s at 82½ and accrued interest. Consultation or correspondence invited.

LOCAL PRODUCE MARKET.

There were no startling changes on the produce market yesterday morning, business being very brisk and prices all through the list holding firm on fresh vegetables and fruits. Staples were also unchanged, although there was weakness shown in potatoes and onions. The heaviest onion receipts reported for months, and possibly the record for any one day totaled 3050 sacks, all of the yellow Denver and Australian brown variety. They came from the northern river districts, and in order to obtain quick movement, a slight shading was made by the jobbers. There were also cuts in the potato prices, none, however, of serious enough consequences to make a lower figure to the retail dealers. Receipts were 6471 sacks. Only ninety sacks of sweet potatoes arrived and sold at prevailing quotations.

The egg market was very firm and receipts were only 102 cases. The past week has brought very few eggs to the market, receipts showing lower than at any time for almost a year. Butter closed steady at 34 and there was an attempt made to put it back to 35, but this failed because of the volume of receipts. These totaled 35,598 pounds for the day.

Apple arrivals totaled 9604 boxes. This week has seen a very decided increase in the arrivals of this fruit, but no appreciable decline in prices, due to the high quotations made by the producers who are refusing to sell unless they get their price. The season on plums is past. The only arrivals in the week were a number of crates of extra fancy German prune plums that brought a high quotation. The grape market has showed more strength than since the opening of the season, and rain in the vineyard districts would mean sudden advances.

There was a decided slump in the price of sugar due to the tariff situation, and quotations are expected to decline sharply during the next few days. This is the only commodity that has shown immediate effects of the reduction of the tariff. Reports show that rice is very firm and higher possibly on statements of heavy damage through the South by storms and floods.

There were no changes in the meat list through the week. Live stock is holding steady in all varieties, and there is little danger of a heavy decline with the lower tax on imported meats.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

[Furnished by Logan & Bryan, Members New York and Boston Stock Exchanges, Bradbury building, Los Angeles.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—The market yielded today to the announcement of reductions in steel prices. Stocks of independent companies receded easily, and United States Steel was subjected to heavy pressure, arising from liquidation and also speculative selling. Canadian Pacific was conspicuously strong and its firmness acted somewhat as a steadying influence, particularly in the last half-hour, when a good-sized rally ensued on short covering. It is feared that general trade for a period will be adversely influenced by the operations of the new tariff law, and it is not unlikely that this will be reflected by irregularity and reactionary tendencies in the stock market.

Nine-Hundred-Foot Building Projected in Gotham.

Block Will House Exhibits from All America.

Structure Will Cost Eleven Million Dollars.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1. — Within ninety days ground will be broken in New York for the largest and most wonderful building in the world. The structure will be the home of the Pan-American States Association, and will dwarf the Woolworth block, at present the tallest building on the globe. It will be 901 feet high and its sub-sub-sub-sub-cellar will be 100 feet below the street level. This new structure will be the limit in skyscrapers in New York. Nothing to surpass it can be erected, as the city authorities have restricted the height to which buildings may go. This restriction, however, does not go into effect until the new year and plans filed before that time are exempt.

It is not alone in height but in character that the new giant building will be the marvel of the world. It will be a permanent exhibition of all America. Practically all the space below the twentieth story will be occupied by South and Central American republics. Chile is to have one floor, Brazil two, the Argentine two, Paraguay one, Bolivia one, Peru one, Ecuador one, Venezuela one, the United States of Colombia one, Uruguay one, Cuba one, while three floors are to be divided between Panama, Costa Rica, Honduras, Guatemala, Nicaragua and Mexico. The ceiling of the main room of each of these republics will be a mosaic map of the country, illustrating it not only geographically and topographically, but agriculturally and industrially.

The building will be the trade headquarters of Latin America in the United States. The products of all the lands to the south of us will be on permanent exhibition. What this will mean in the promotion of commerce may be imagined. It is a direct result of the construction of the Panama Canal.

The trade of the United States with the South American people approximates $500,000,000 a year. We sell a little less than $175,000,000 and buy about $325,000,000 worth of goods. Those who are best qualified to judge declare that with proper fostering this trade can be doubled in five years and quadrupled in ten. The greatest development in the next half-century, they say, is going to be in South America and they assert that nothing will do more to promote good will between North and South America or develop commercial relations than this great exhibition.

So far as possible material from Chile will go into the furnishings of the quarters occupied by Chile, hardwoods from Venezuela will be used in the section devoted to Venezuela, and so on. Each room or floor will be as distinctive and representative of the republic occupying it as can be made.

STRUCTURAL MARVEL.

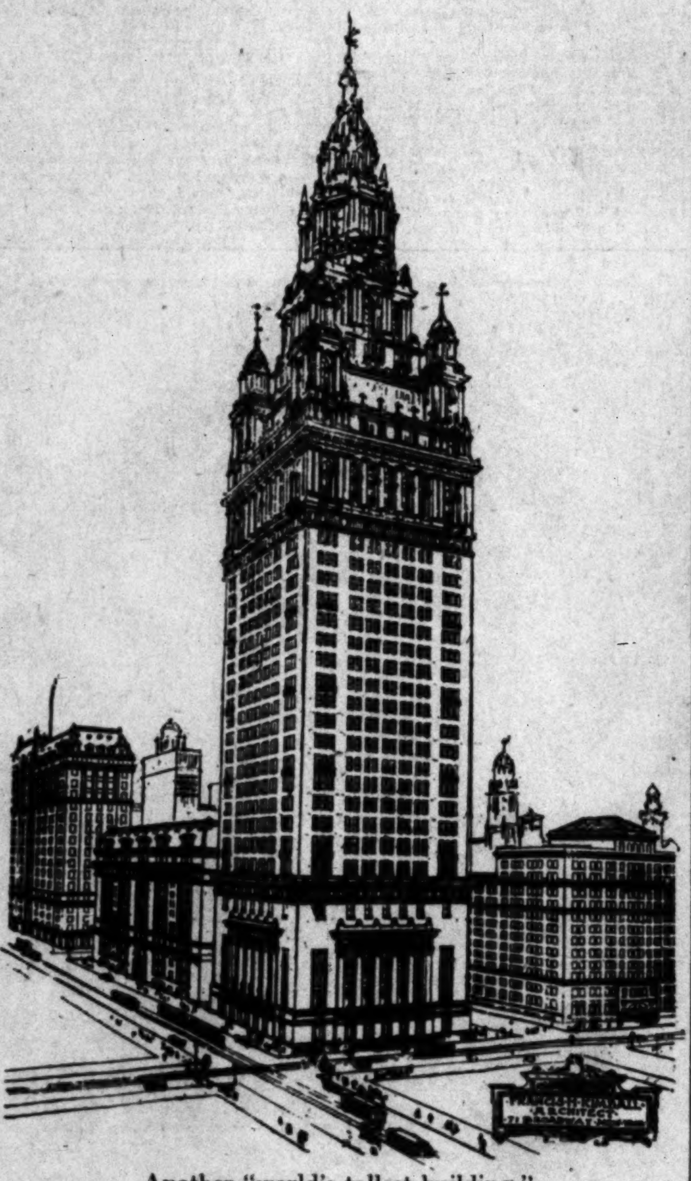
Aside from all this, the building itself will be a world beater. The elevators alone will cost $600,000. The steel in the skeleton will weigh 26,000 tons and cost approximately $1,500,000. The structure will stand on ground 200x200 feet in size and there will be 21,000,000 square feet of material used. The cost of the building complete will be $11,000,000. There will be fifty-six stories to the structure. This is not a great number for so tall a building, but the height of some of the floors used for exhibition purposes will be unusual for a skyscraper. The height must be considerable to get the proper effect or perspective of the remarkable ceiling mosaic maps, some of which are of enormous size. That of Brazil will cover 80,000 square feet.

There is to be a concert hall and a banquet hall, the latter with accommodations for approximately 3000 persons. There is to be a roof garden higher from the ground than any other in the world. Several floors in the upper part of the structure are to be devoted to apartments, some to be leased and some reserved for the use of distinguished Latin Americans who are visitors in New York.

The great rotunda on the lower floor of the building is to be something like a hall of statuary for all America. The principal figure in the group is to be Christopher Columbus. His statue is to show him in chains, the sad condition into which he fell after he returned to Spain subsequent to his discovery of the western world. On either side of him are to be Washington and Simon Bolivar. The other statues in the group are to be such as are selected by the various republics, each country being limited in its selection. At each of the four corners of the building a replica of the prow of one of the caravels that brought Columbus across the Atlantic is to jut out.

The building has been designed by Francis H. Kimball, one of the leading architects of America, and planner of many of the great structures of New York, including the giant City Investing and Empire buildings.

The site of the latest of skyscrapers has not been determined. Options have been secured on three pieces of land, one near the Pennsylvania Station, another near the Grand Central Station, and the third fronting on Columbus Circle. The directors of the Pan-American States Association expect to decide as to the site at their next meeting. That settled, they say it will be but a short time until they start work on the foundations.



Another "world's tallest building."
Proposed structure for Pan-American States Association. This, New York's next structural wonder, will tower 900 feet above the sidewalk level. It will be exactly six times the height of the Story block in Los Angeles.

PLANS GREAT PARKWAY.

Investment Company Working Out Comprehensive Scheme for Beautification of Southwest Holdings.

Carrying out a scheme of city beautification the Los Angeels Investment Company this week began plans for the extension of its floral parking system from Second to Sixth avenues along West Forty-eighth street. The intention of the company is to extend the parkway along Forty-eighth street to the Baldwin Hills. A park bounded by Forty-eighth street and Fourth and Fifth avenues, is being planned by the engineering department of the company, following out a policy of providing special parks for the residents in the sections it is building up. This park will be 210 feet by 300 in dimension.

More than 100 varieties of trees, shrubs and flowers will be used in beautifying the park proper. In planting careful study has been given to the selection and arrangement of widely different varieties of flora, these including choice native and exotic flowering shrubs, trees and herbaceous perennials.

NEW SHOE PLANT FOR TORRANCE.

CONTRACTS SIGNED IN BIG FACTORY DEAL.

Successful Venice Enterprise to Move Bodily to Growing Manufacturing Center—Two Hundred Men Will Be Given Employment in the Establishment.

TORRANCE, Oct. 4.—Contracts have been signed by the Dominguez Land Company for the building of a new shoe factory at Torrance, and within thirty days the backers of the project will be on the ground to carry the $100,000 project into effect. As a nucleus of the new industry, the California Shoe Manufacturing Company, which already has a plant at Venice, will take over the buildings of the Fuller Shoe Company at the new city and will move the 100 employees of the industry from Venice to Torrance. At the same time, additional land has been purchased to enlarge the plant built by the Fuller company, and it is possible that an additional story may be added to the buildings already erected.

Secretary and General Manager Billings now is arranging the details of the removal of the Venice plant to Torrance, while F. R. Harris of Pasadena, who is interestein the project is in the East looking over the machinery end of the deal, in preparation for the purchase of additional equipment. When the new factory is in shape, the company plans to employ more than 200 persons, and will be the first of the large plants of this character to figure in Pacific Coast business.

Some time ago, the plant at Venice was started and has proven to be a success, and the only thing that prevented the removal of the plant to the new city when Torrance was first opened, was the lack of labor for the handling of the business. The growth of Torrance, however, has been so rapid that this question has settled itself, and as a result the final papers for the transfer have been signed by the two companies and all that remains is for the Venice plant to complete the orders for shoes now on hand, in order that the transfer of the plant may be made.

TO ENTER LOCAL FIELD.

Oldest Tobacco Jobbing House on Coast to Establish Wholesale Business Here.

As the result of a transaction concluded during the past week, the S. Bachmann Company of San Francisco, oldest cigar and tobacco jobbing firm on the Pacific Coast, will enter the field in Los Angeles. The firm will incorporate a branch to be known as the S. Bachmann Cigar Company of Los Angeles, with Arthur Bachmann of San Francisco as president, and C. B. Poar, vice-president. The incorporation will be for $50,000 and be fully paid up.

Richard C. Willis of the leasing department of W. Ross Campbell Company has just leased to the firm the premises at No. 396 South Los Angeles street, including the ground floor and basement, for a long term of years. The Bay City firm also has purchased the entire wholesale business, together with all contracts, formerly held by Emil Frank of this city. Poar, who is to be local manager, was engaged in the same line in San Francisco several years prior to the fire of 1906, and thereafter and up to the present time has been the manager of the M. A. Gunst Company of Seattle.

HOMESTEAD SOLD.

Sightly South Pasadena Residence Property in New Hands—New York Jobber Buys Attractive Dwelling.

SOUTH PASADENA, Oct. 4.—One of the most important realty deals recently transacted in South Pasadena is the sale of a portion of what is known as the Margaret Collier Graham homestead to J. H. Hill, formerly of Hermosa Beach. The property consists of a knoll containing over an acre of ground and lying on the south side of Lyndon street, between Meridian and Glendon Way. The house has already been remodeled slightly and put in first-class condition. Hill has extensive plans for the improvement of the grounds, which are high and sightly, overlooking the San Gabriel Valley, with a fine view of the mountains. The sale was handled by Frank E. Collier of this city.

Another important sale was that of the home of F. H. Souder, at the corner of North Marguerita avenue and Alhambra road, near the South Pasadena border, to William Knoblock, a silk jobber of New York City, the reported consideration being $11,000. The property has a frontage of 266 feet and a depth of 124 feet. The house is modern, two stories high, and contains ten rooms.

R. L. Snavely reports the following sale for Edwin E. Searles to Charles C. Fife of Los Angeles of 50x150 feet on Montrose avenue, with seven-room bungalow. The consideration is not named.

Ice Skating May Become Los Angeles Sport.

Company Organized to Erect Arena-Auditorium.

Site Leased Ground at Grand and Jefferson.

With the announced intention of erecting in Los Angeles the largest artificial ice-skating rink in the world, the recently organized Jefferson-Grand Arena Company has employed Frederick Noonan of this city to prepare architectural and engineering plans for a huge structure of steel, wood and glass, which, according to those interested in the project, will be started within the next few weeks at the southwest corner of Jefferson street and Grand avenue. Noonan has already made considerable progress upon the drawings for the proposed building, the cost of which is given at $150,000. He is also making tentative sketches for several other improvements to be undertaken later, and which are said to be included in a comprehensive plan of the same company for the establishment of a great amusement and business center in the vicinity named.

The site of the contemplated buildings is owned by the Milton Thomas Land Company, being held under a twenty-year lease by the corporation back of the improvement projects. The property has a frontage of 560 feet on Grand avenue and of 250 feet on Jefferson street. The company has an additional fifty feet on the latter thoroughfare under option to lease. The entire site has recently been Romaine Square, located as shown by the plat printed below, is the cheapest high class property located in the North Wilshire district, within four blocks of the new Normal School, which will cost over $700,000 and will have over 3000 students. Think what this means toward the advancement of prices on property in this neighborhood. Many of the students whose families now live at a distance, will move into this district in order to be near the school for the education of their children. We have 22 lots left in this beautiful addition, ranging in prices from $1000 to $1800. These lots will all be sold within the next thirty days. We shall be glad to see you on the addition, or if it is impossible for you to come to the tract office, call up our city office, telephone numbers, Main 595 or 10695, and make a date to go out in the auto.

Lots with houses or with diagonal lines are sold. The others have the prices printed thereon.

Improvements

All the streets are graded, oiled, have sidewalks, curbs, water, gas and electricity, all in and paid for (not promised;) wide parkings, with trees set and growing.

Size and Restrictions

These lots are 50x180 feet, restricted to residences only—$1500 on Kingsley Drive; $2000 on Ardmore Avenue; $2500 on Normandie Avenue, as shown in the plat. These restrictions improve the value of your property as well as your neighbor's.

Prices and Terms

The prices are those printed in the plat given above and the terms are the easiest that common sense or business judgment can suggest, namely: 10 per cent. cash and the balance 1 per cent. per month. Deferred payments to draw interest at 6 per cent.

Be sure and see the property today as these prices will only prevail for thirty days. Our agent, Mr. Elmendorf, will be at our tract office, southwest corner Melrose and Normandie, all day Sunday and every other day in the week, where he will be glad to show you this property, giving you all the information in regard to the same. You will receive every courtesy and we shall take pleasure in showing you the property, which we are proud to offer at the above prices. FOURTH ANNUAL APPLE EXHIBIT.

Watsonville Ready for Its Yearly Celebration.

Six Days Devoted to Boosting and Revelry.

Pie Foundry Will Be an Unusual Feature.

WATSONVILLE, Oct. 4.—The annual California apple show, to be held here October 6 to 11, inclusive, promises to eclipse anything heretofore done by the apple growers of California. Already every foot of exhibit space in the huge pavilion and the adjoining tent has been taken up and from present appearances the directors of the show may have to lease another block to accommodate the exhibitors. Up to date, twenty-three counties have reserved space and each county will try to outdo the others in its exhibit of California-grown apples.

The first interest in this year's apple show was the selection of a queen to rule over the festival for the six days. A contest for this honor was instituted and it was opened to all counties wherein apples were grown. Twelve have been entered in the contest. Eleven of these young women are residents of the Pajaro, Santa Clara and Santa Cruz valleys, the twelfth being from Tehachepi and it is a close race today between two Rubys as to which shall be the queen to old King Apple. The candidates are:

Miss Ruby White, Watsonville; Miss Ruby Brite, Tehachepi; Miss Katheryn Thompson, Watsonville; Miss Grayce Bowden, Hollister; Miss Ellen Parker, Santa Cruz; Miss Stella Wood, Watsonville; Miss Eugenia Hughes, Watsonville; Miss Eva McCartney, Salinas; Miss Louise Tuttle, Watsonville; Miss Cheever Wheeler, Santa Cruz, and Miss Gladys Tremaine, Gilroy.

Thousands of people from all over the State will visit Watsonville, principally to view the apple exhibits. Other thousands will come for amusement and the directors of the show have made due preparations for the entertainment of the amusement lovers.

At 10 o'clock October 6, the Watsonville band will open the apple show. In the afternoon, in the pavilion, the music will be furnished by the Royal Marine Band and a programme of entertainment will be rendered by the Italian serenaders, the Schillings, and a bevy of clever cabaret performers. A baseball game between the Watsonville and San Jose teams will also be an attraction of the opening afternoon. Following a band concert in the evening in the pavilion, the formal opening will take place. President O. D. Stoesser will make the opening remarks, introducing Chairman J. E. Gardner, Mayor W. A. Trafton, and Hon. J. F. Coonan.

Charles A. Vogelsang, commissioner of State and foreign organizations of the Panama-Pacific Exposition, will make a few remarks, and the formal opening speech will be made by Francis J. Heney. The coronation of the queen will follow the speech-making. The remainder of the evening will be given over to merry-making. Tuesday will be school children's day and a grand historical pageant participated in by the school children of Watsonville will consume nearly the entire afternoon.

Every day of the show will bring new and more attractive features. A Mardi Gras carnival on the streets of Watsonville on the closing night of the show will be one of the greatest events in the history of the Pajaro Valley. Several bands will be stationed throughout the city and dancing will be indulged in at every street corner in the downtown section. Although it has not been publicly announced, it is understood that Mayor Trafton will forget to turn out the lights at all during the entire week.

Saturday will be all-California day and the Mayors and other officials of all the cities of the State are expected to be in attendance, besides the Panama-Pacific officials. One of the organizations that will be in attendance is the Produce Men's Outing Club of San Francisco, comprising every fruit and vegetable dealer in the metropolis. These are the people the apple growers do business with and they may be assured of a rousing reception.

An endeavor is to be made at this year's show to make the "pie foundry" the feature exhibit. Watsonville's best cooks will be behind the pie counter and the pie—the apple pie—that makes your mouth water—the kind that mother used to make—will be sold over said pie counter, straight from the oven to the waiting mouth.

Already, more than 100 workers are busy preparing the models for the feature exhibit. There will be a Statue of Liberty in apples, a bucking broncho, the California bear, an apple pie about twelve feet in diameter, besides the usual exhibits of fancy boxed apples in the competition. At present, it is estimated that there will be fifty new and novel features done either in fresh or dried apples, besides the box displays.

There will be accommodations in Watsonville for every visitor during the entire week of the show. Besides the hotel accommodations, there will be rooms in every home in the city and several thousand can be accommodated with ease.

OVERLOOKS CITY.

New Crown Hill Apartment House Occupies Commanding Site—Place to Be Managed by Owners.

Among the many improvements now under way in the sightly section to the west of Bunker Hill is a three-story apartment house being erected by B. F. and Alice Whitmarsh at No. 1218 Crown Hill avenue. The structure, which is directly opposite the new Huntley apartments, occupies a commanding location and overlooks the city on every side.

The building contains forty large rooms, divided for the most part into two-room suites. It is 46x108 feet in size. The property will be ready for occupancy in about three weeks. The place will be managed by the owners.

MAY TAX CEMETERIES.

Queens Property Owners Demand That Holders of Burial Plots Be Compelled to Pay Assessments.

[New York Sun:] Cemetery corporations in the borough of Queens will be compelled to pay their proportionate share for improvements if a movement instituted by a number of civic associations whose owners have interests in the vicinity of cemeteries, is successful. It is estimated by engineers that $10,000,000 will be expended in the districts in which these lands are located. The public improvements which the cemeteries enjoy consist of sewers, highways, street and sidewalk pavements and the laying out of new streets and the condemnation thereof.

The legality of assessing cemetery land for taxes will probably be tested. In the borough of Queens about fifty acres within the boundaries of the Cypress Hills Cemetery have been placed upon the tax enrollment books. This is expected to precipitate a contest by the cemetery directors and a test will be made.

While the movement started is in no way political, the leaders of it have, however, decided to secure the pledges of the respective candidates for members of Assembly in the county this year to stand for the taxing of cemetery property. They contemplate that they will be confronted by spirited opposition from the cemetery corporations. Powerful political influences in Manhattan are said to be prepared to use their influence against the proposed legislation.

Higher Mathematics.

SKYSCRAPERS PAY BIG FIRE RATE.

COST OF INSURANCE JUMPS AT NINTH FLOOR.

Carefully Estimated Hazard of Cloud-Piercing Structures Like Woolworth Building Digs Deeply Into Pockets of Owners—Surtax May Limit Heights.

[New York Sun:] Great fire hazard of high buildings annually costs the owners of such structures in New York millions of dollars in the way of extra insurance premiums for excessive height alone. The schedules of the New York Fire Insurance Exchange, according to a study made by the Heights of Buildings Commission, indicate that these extra premiums amount to many thousands of dollars in the case of certain buildings. For the Woolworth building they total more than $10,000 a year.

In the insurance of fireproof mercantile buildings the height element is ignored until the ninth story is reached. The extra charge for height on a nine-story building is one cent for a hundred dollars. The charge increases very rapidly from that story upward. For a ten-story building it is 2 cents; for a fifteen-story building, 22 cents, and for a twenty-story building, 72 cents.

A very heavy surtax is imposed on the building in addition to these charges in the case of those buildings where merchandise is stored on or above the seventh story. Only sample stocks exempt the building from this charge. The less hazardous stocks subject it to a half-rate surtax. In case of the lower buildings this surtax is many times larger than the height charge proper. In a nineteen-story building the two charges are about the same. This stock surtax on the building is 10 cents for a seven-story building, 19 cents for a ten-story building, 44 cents for a fifteen-story building and 69 cents for a twenty-story building. The onus for this tax no doubt operates in a very large degree to keep the storing of merchandise below the seventh story in the case of high buildings.

Fireproof office buildings eight stories and under are free from any height charge. Above that height they are subject to one-fourth the height charges of fireproof mercantile buildings. For a nine-story building this charge is one-fourth of one cent and for a ten-story building one-half of one cent. The charge leaps very rapidly above this point. For a fifteen-story building it is 5½ cents; for a twenty-story building, 18 cents; for a twenty-five-story building, 30½ cents, and for a thirty-story building, 43 cents. A forty-story building would have a charge of 68 cents and a fifty-story building 93 cents.

No deductions have been allowed in the above computation for exclusive office occupancy or for co-insurance. These deductions are so considerable that the height charge is reduced considerably from that indicated in the above schedules. But even when these factors are taken into consideration the height factor plays the most important role in determining the insurance rate for a very high building.

In the Woolworth building, for instance, the height charge forms 62 per cent. of the final rate on the unexposed building and 45 per cent. of the final rate on the exposed building. The present unexposed rate on the Woolworth building is 27 cents. If there were no height charge this rate would be reduced to 11 cents. In other words, an annual tax of 16 cents is imposed on account of height alone. The Woolworth building being valued at about $6,500,000, would therefore pay about $10,400 per year in height charge alone, assuming the building to be fully insured. This penalty is approximately equal to the annual rental of one of its entire tower floors.

The height charge of a tower like that of the Woolworth building is much smaller than that on a full building of the same height. The height of the tower is prorated over the base area of the entire building. The tower area in the Woolworth building is only one-fourth that of the whole building. This levels the height of the whole building to thirty-four stories. If the whole Woolworth building were erected to a height of fifty-five stories the height charges would be twice those actually imposed.

Palisades Park
"the glorious"

Quality and class count for as much today as they ever did. When you buy a lot on which to build a home, you naturally think of environment and chance of increase of value.

Everything worth considering for a homesite is already established in Palisades Park. It is part of exclusive Santa Monica, extending from 7th st. to 14th st. and San Vicente Blvd. to Montana ave.

It has these advantages—large size lots (50x150 ft.) with all improvements paid for, the healthiest year-round climate (pure air from the ocean,) fine stores, schools, churches, wide boulevards, tree-arched avenues, asphalt streets, wide alleys in every block, the finest of restrictions, fine soil, an elevation of 250 feet, the grandest view of mountains and ocean, and, best of all, the guarantee of good environment in the form of $15,000 homes already built in Palisades Park. With the mansions of millionaires in the older settled part of the Palisades, all about this tract.

This exclusive plateau by the sea has a limited area and when it is sold there will never again be anything on the market quite as good. A look all around Los Angeles, from the ocean to the mountains, will convince you of this. The Palisades are bounded on the north by Santa Monica Canyon, over 200 feet deep; on the west by the ocean, on the south and east by gently sloping valleys.

We give the most enjoyable auto de luxe ride in Southern California, just to show people looking for a home site this wonderful spot. Adults can take this splendid ride over the famous Wilshire boulevard, bordered by many of the finest homes in Los Angeles, through the oil-well district, view the excavating of prehistoric animals over 300,000 years old, the Soldiers' Home, Santa Monica Beach and Palisades Park, all for 25c. (This is a regular $2.00 excursion.)

Come in for tickets any time; or send us a postal and we will mail you an illustrated folder on Palisades Park. Don't buy a lot until you have taken this trip. Telephone to us for a special free auto ride to Palisades Park and go any hour during the day.

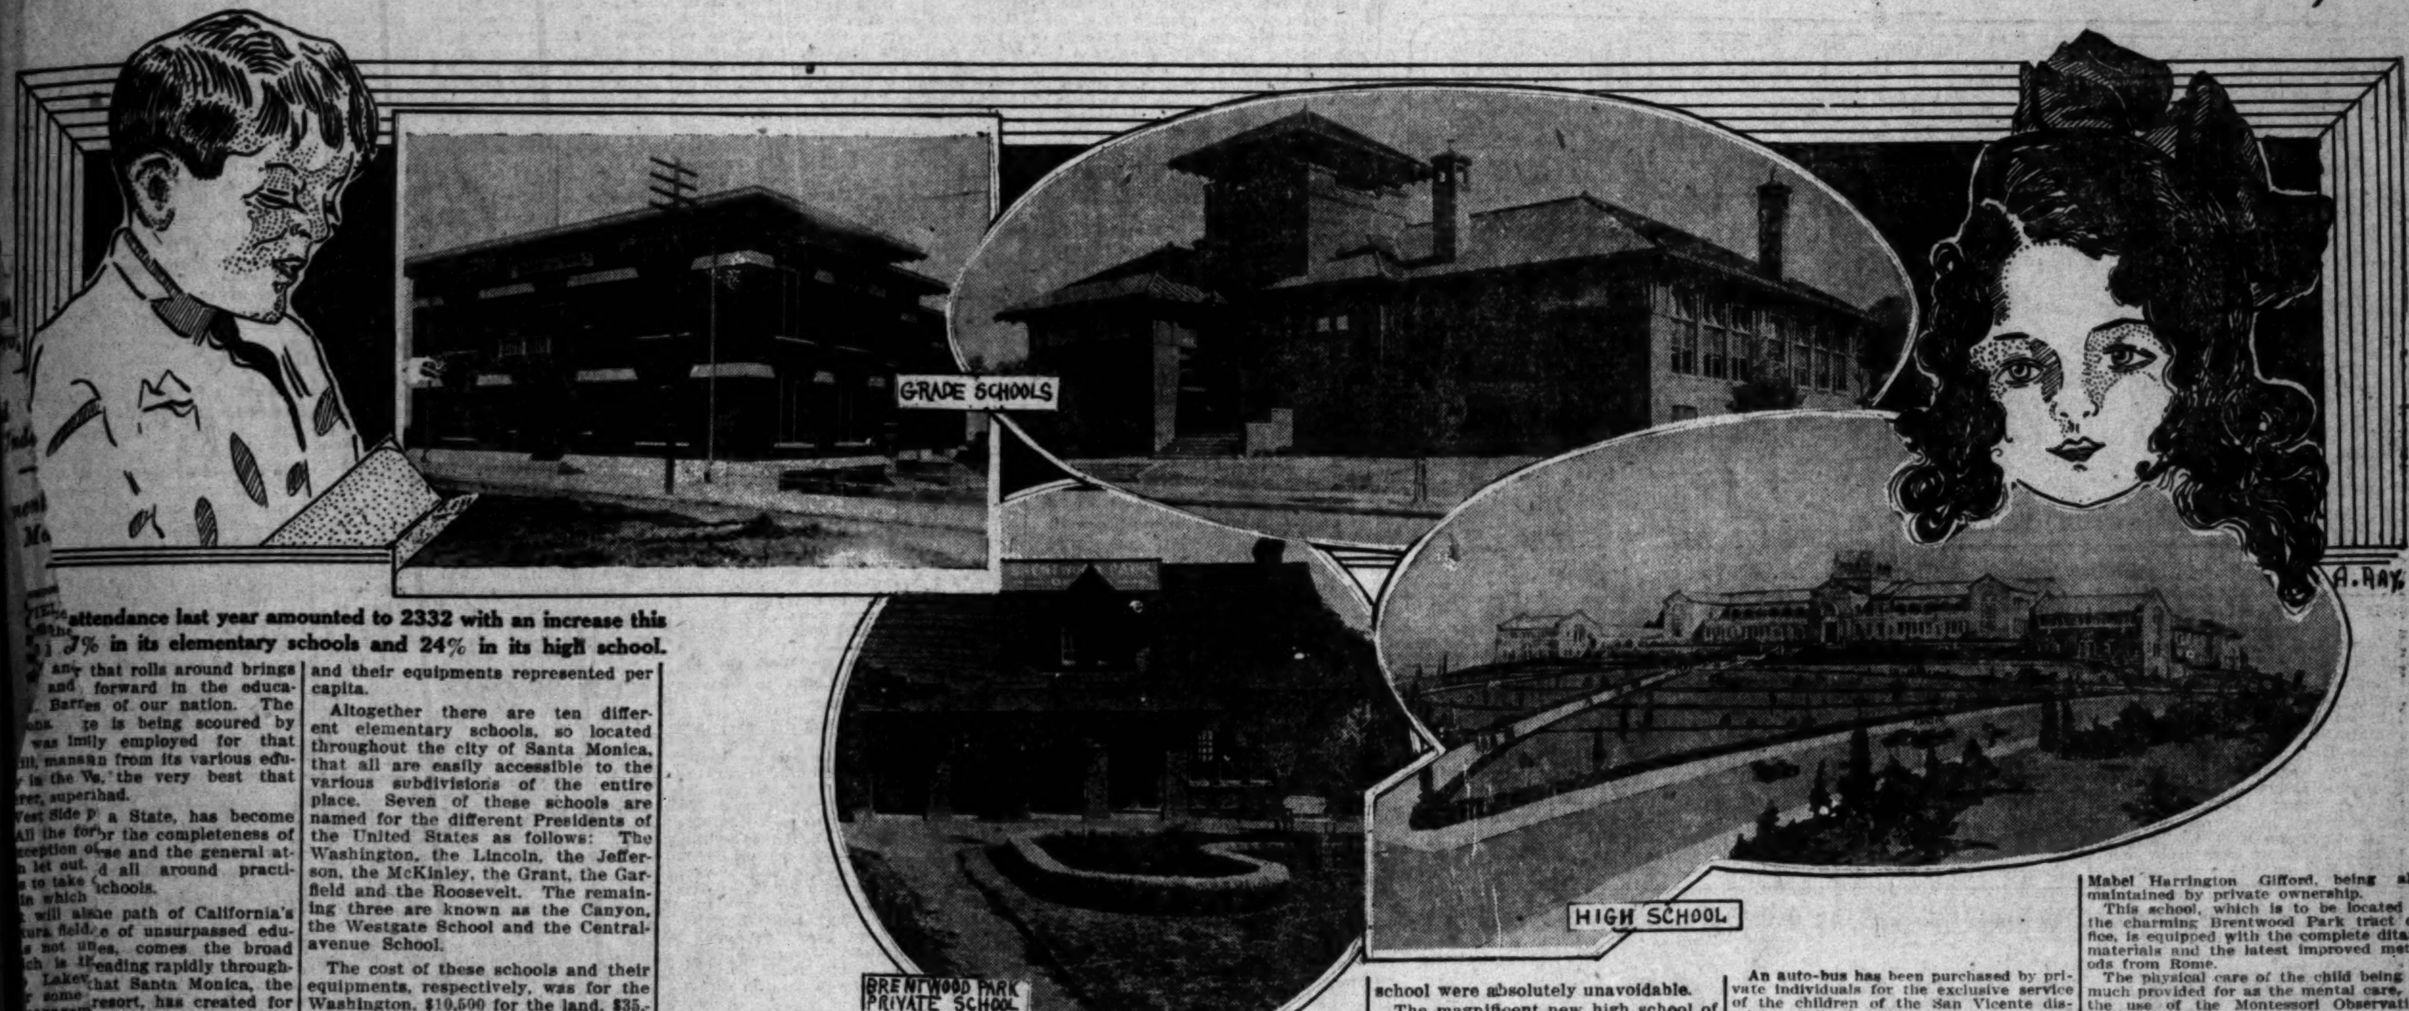
SANTA MONICA'S SCHOOLS AGGREGATE A COST OF $602,900



[illegible] attendance last year amounted to 2332 with an increase this [illegible] 7% in its elementary schools and 24% in its high school.

[illegible] path of California's [illegible] of unsurpassed edu- [illegible] comes the broad [illegible] reading rapidly through- [illegible] that Santa Monica, the [illegible] resort, has created for [illegible] superiority of its [illegible]

[illegible] of Santa Monica are [illegible] of those of any city of [illegible] its size in California; [illegible] many details the ma- [illegible] rivals.

[illegible] the activity of a city that [illegible] expenditure of $602,900 [illegible] ool equipment supplying [illegible]. It is even doubtful if [illegible] larger eastern cities can [illegible] good a rate of school ad- [illegible] guring on the basis of the [illegible] unt of money in schools and their equipments represented per capita.

Altogether there are ten different elementary schools, so located throughout the city of Santa Monica, that all are easily accessible to the various subdivisions of the entire place. Seven of these schools are named for the different Presidents of the United States as follows: The Washington, the Lincoln, the Jefferson, the McKinley, the Grant, the Garfield and the Roosevelt. The remaining three are known as the Canyon, the Westgate School and the Central-avenue School.

The cost of these schools and their equipments, respectively, was for the Washington, $10,500 for the land, $35,000 for the school; the Lincoln, $10,000 for the land, $24,000 for the building; the Jefferson, $16,000 for the land, $33,000 for the building; the McKinley, $8500 for the land, $16,000 for the building; the Grant, $4800 for the land, $15,000 for the building; the Garfield, $8600 for the land, $27,000 for the building; the Roosevelt, $12,500 for the land, $32,000 for the building; the Canyon School totals $3000 as well as the Westgate School, which amounts to the same figures; the Central-avenue School, which has just been completed, amounted to $15,000 for the land and $35,000 for the building.

The Roosevelt School, which is the one attended by the entire San Vicente district, has just recently been improved to the extent of $18,000, which improvements were the forced result of the steadily growing popularity of this superb and high class section surrounding San Vicente Boulevard.

With the enormous amount of selling of property and the consequent establishment of new homes in all of these tracts, including the Palisades, Gillette's Regent Square, Brentwood Park, Brentwood Place, Santa Monica High Lands and the splendid new property lying just beyond Brentwood Place, which is owned by Ransford Lewis, such increased facilities at the school were absolutely unavoidable.

The magnificent new high school of Santa Monica, which would be credit to a city many times its size, cost for the land it occupies $45,487, the high school buildings not counting the two immense gymnasium buildings, now in course of construction, aggregated a cost of $187,509. When the gymnasiums are finally complete the total cost of this high school with its entire equipment will amount to $310,000.

To add to the unsurpassed educational facilities enjoyed by all of the residents of Santa Monica, a new feature has now been installed which will materially improve even these conditions in the San Vicente district.

An auto-bus has been purchased by private individuals for the exclusive service of the children of the San Vicente district, going either to school week days or Sunday-school on Sunday.

This auto-bus will call every morning at the homes of all of these subdivisions bordering San Vicente Boulevard, where there are children to be taken to school; calling at school again in the afternoon at its close, to return them safely to their homes.

This is perhaps one of the greatest assets to the school life of this district that has yet been installed, insuring the absolute promptness and safety of the school children.

Another factor which will materially affect the wee folks of this San Vicente community is the establishment of the Brentwood Park Montessori School for children from the ages of two to seven. The school is to be directed by Miss Mabel Harrington Gifford, being also maintained by private ownership.

This school, which is to be located in the charming Brentwood Park tract office, is equipped with the complete ditatic materials and the latest improved methods from Rome.

The physical care of the child being as much provided for as the mental care, by the use of the Montessori Observation Charts; also by a special arrangement a periodical examination of each child will be made by a physician.

There will be a special sense training which will include visual, audile, gusatory, olfactory, tactile, thermic, baric, stereognastic and chromatic; or in other words, sight, hearing, taste, smell, touch, heat, weight, fusion of tactile or muscular and sense of color.

The intellectual training will consist of reading, writing and elementary arithmetic taught by special apparatus; as well as plastic work, manual training, nature studies and stories; special attention being given to the moral training.

The auto-bus will also call each morning in the neighborhood of 9 o'clock for these little folks, restoring them to their homes shortly after 12 o'clock.

COMPREHENSIVE PLAN.

Sightly modern villas, in both the Italian and mission styles of architecture, are to adorn some of the more picturesque knolls of the Baldwin Hills, according to announcement made yesterday by the Los Angeles Investment Company, owner of that great southwest subdivision. The land on the sloping hillsides is to be carefully terraced by the company's engineers and will be transformed into one of the residence show places of Southern California. Extensive landscape gardening will be done as well. Scenic automobile roads lead directly to the grounds of the fine homes of the tract.

MIGRATORY HOMES.

Popularity of Portable House Growing, Thanks to Many Recent Improvements in Same.

[Christian Science Monitor:] It is entirely in accord with the general trend of things that the portable house should be so reduced in bulk and weight as to be almost as light as the tent of the Arab. All that was required to bring it to its present stage of perfection was time. A little more time and, doubtless, a house that may now be carried from place to place in a light vehicle may become an essential part of the equipment of a touring motor car. Indeed, it requires not much more at present than a rearrangement of the baggage-carrying facilities of the large automobile to make room on the rear of, or under, the body for the frame of a portable dwelling. For the manufacturers are using prepared canvas where they once used wood. Improvements in waterproofing, and such features, are so great that a very light material may now be employed in walls and partitions. Having a framework of Washington fir, a three-room bungalow may be carried about the country almost as easily as some of the modern upright trunks.

But, of course, this is not all. There must be some kind of furniture and equipment. Well, they are reducing everything of this character in size and weight also, and it really begins to look as if a man and wife, or even a small family, might in a short time be able to tour the continent with little regard for anything in the way of outside accommodation save the gasoline supply.

Of course, this opens up no end of possibilities to the imaginative and speculative thinker. Suppose, for instance, that portable house excursions should become popular, that is to say, fashionable, and suppose the present ratio of progress in the reduction of bulk and weight of portable house parts should be maintained, and suppose that the lighter and cheaper automobile should come into use until nearly everybody might own one, and suppose that automobile owners should then form the habit of touring in the South during the winter and in the North during the summer, camping in portable houses wherever they happened to be, and, so to speak, living on country, having no care or expense aside from gasoline—what, it might be asked, would become of the cities, what would become of society as it exists today? Would Americans, or a very large proportion of them, become nomads? Would there be any means of reaching them by mail? How could they be made to vote? How supply them with newspapers and all the other elevating and refining influences of this complex civilization? Or, to put it in another way, suppose that, through conjunction of the automobile, or the aeroplane, and the portable house, a man or a family could "pick up" at any minute and pre-empt a site at any point along the countryside, changing the place of residence daily, or even three times a day—what would become of real estate values?

There is no occasion for immediate alarm, but it is well enough, as a summer recreation, to think of the many things that might happen if the present population of the United States should through possibilities opened by the combination of the motor car and the portable dwelling, become migratory.

A LOT A DAY.

W. H. Tonks, one of the salesmen in the subdivision department of Robert Marsh & Co., closed deals for six lots in Ethelwyn Manor during the past week. Tonks's buyers were Philip H. Bittinger, two lots; J. W. Horne, Jean Shumers, Alice H. Peterson and Earl I. Harris.

With $500 or More to Invest

Buy Industrial Acreage

Do Not Say You Are Unable, With Your Small Means. You May Not Be Able to Control a Large Tract, But By Combining With Others, You Can Share Proportionately With the Capitalist the Great Profit to Be Made.

The Industrial Era Has Begun. Well Located Acreage in the Manufacturing District Is a Gold Mine.

I want people with $500 or more cash to invest, to join in the buying of nineteen acres in the manufacturing district of Los Angeles. This property has DIRECT RAILROAD CONNECTION WITH THE HARBOR and will soon be in the HEART OF THE CITY'S INDUSTRIAL DISTRICT.

The Industrial Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce will soon be bringing great manufacturing enterprises to Los Angeles. The factory area is limited, because factories must keep close to the railroads. The big profits in real estate come from business and manufacturing property. Such land selling for $2500 an acre ten years ago is now worth $30,000 an acre. Where the city has doubled in population such property has increased 1000 per cent. "Los Angeles 1,000,000 population in 1920." Figure it out yourself.

Price $1850 an Acre, Which is $1150 an Acre Cheaper Than Property Directly Adjoining is Valued.

A Limited Number Can Join in This Enterprise. Don't Apply Too Late. Map and Complete Details at My Office.

cleared. Announcement is made that all the stock necessary to insure the success of the amusement project has already been subscribed.

The main building projected is a combined artificial ice rink and auditorium, planned along the lines of large rinks in New Yok, Paris and Berlin, and to be 175x460 feet in size. The ice floor will occupy a space 80x250 feet in dimensions and is designed to accommodate 1800 skaters at one time.

The structure is being so planned that it may be floored and converted into an auditorium or convention hall. When being utilized for such purposes it will be possible to remove with ease all partitions and seat sections, thus throwing open the whole of the enormous floor space of the building. The builders estimate that the total seating capacity of the place under such conditions will be close to 12,000 persons.

The architect has planned a structure of attractive exterior, the plastered wall surfaces of which will be relieved by heavy timber treatment. The roof of the building will be almost entirely of glass.

An elaborate system of refrigeration has been devised for the creation and maintenance of a skating surface. Pipes are to be laid thickly over the floor and through these will flow constantly a brine solution kept at many degrees below freezing point. Water sprayed evenly over these pipes congeals and is gradually built up to a smooth and level surface. The promoters of the enterprise declare that under their plan of refrigeration a hard surface will be possible under any and all outdoor and indoor temperatures.

The arena-auditorium is to have two entrances, one from Grand and one from Jefferson. On either side of the first named entrance are to be three stores, while the Jefferson-street entrance is to be flanked on one hand by a picture theater and on the other by a store. The smaller buildings will extend to points flush with the large structure, their roofs constituting a garden and promenade space.

The amusement building will extend lengthwise with Grand avenue, being set back a considerable distance from Jefferson street. Directly at the corner of the two thoroughfares the promoters declare they hope to build a four-story fireproof hotel upon the completion of the rink. Other improvements are in contemplation for the Grand-avenue frontage.

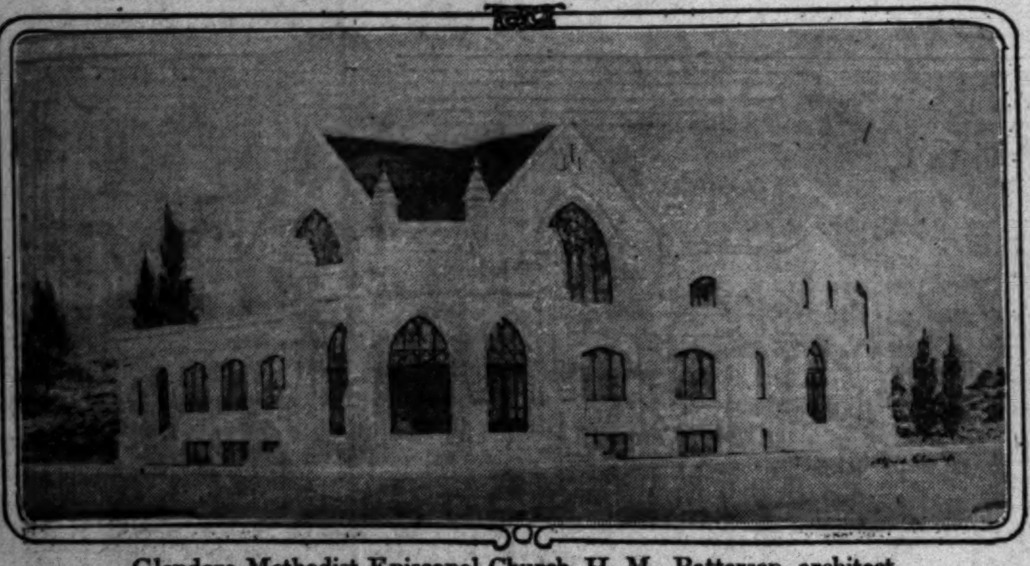
required comparatively slight topping to leave an asphaltic residue which was well suited for road and roofing asphalt.

Under the conditions it has proved possible to push the sale of California asphalt to great distances.

ARLINGTON SQUARE.

Emil Firth reports sales of lots in Arlington Square to the following purchasers: F. Allard, lot on Second avenue near Rodeo road, $950; Miriam A. Schwartz, northeast corner Santa Barbara boulevard and Third avenue, $1125; Mrs. Pauline Murphy, lot on Arlington avenue, north of Thirty-ninth street, $1000; Mrs. Pauline Murphy, corner Arlington avenue and Rodeo road, $1250; E. Lawton, 100 feet on Arlington avenue, near Thirty-ninth street, $1900; Alice Ford, lot on Arlington avenue, south of Thirty-ninth street, $1000; G. Leslie Davis, lot on Third avenue, $775; Augusta Davis, lot adjoining, $775; Sydney C. Ward, lot on Third avenue, $800; G. E. Benson, lot on Second avenue, $950; H. V. Hunt, lot adjoining, $950; Dana Howerton, lot on Third avenue, $800, and Joseph Zillincar, lot on Second avenue, $1000. Several of the sites purchased, it is announced, are to be improved.

Attractive New House of Worship.



Glendora Methodist Episcopal Church, H. M. Patterson, architect.

PROUD OF NEW CHURCH.

Glendora Methodists Erecting Beautiful and Substantial Gothic Edifice to Replace Frame Building.

GLENDORA, Sept. 27.—Work has been begun upon the beautiful house of worship to be erected by the First Methodist Episcopal Church of this place at the corner of Bennett and Vista Bonita avenues. The edifice, which is replacing the old-time frame church of the same congregation, will be of an unusually substantial type of construction, having reinforced concrete and hollow tile walls, and a clay tile roof. The citizens of Glendora regard the project in the light of an architectural achievement and take a corresponding pride in it.

The church will be of gothic design and will be faced with cement plaster. It will contain several fine stained glass windows. The building will have a triple entrance at the corner, with two additional entrances at the sides. The main auditorium will have a seating capacity of 500. This may be increased to 1000 by the throwing open of partitions into the Sunday-school and league departments.

Exceptional provision has been made for Sunday-school facilities. In the basement will be a primary department and seven classrooms. There will be five classrooms on the main floor and four large classrooms and three smaller rooms in a second-story portion provided for in the plans. In the basement also will be a large social and dining hall and a kitchen.

The Rev. B. D. Snudden is the pastor of the church. H. M. Patterson of Los Angeles is the architect.

LET PIPE CONTRACT.

The Southern California Home Builders report the letting of the contract for the first mile of cement pipe to be used to irrigate the 100-acre experimental farm on the company's Coachella Valley tract. The pipe is twelve inches in diameter. The tract will be planted to alfalfa. Contracts are also reported to have been let for the installation of a sixty-horse-power engine and pumping plant at a well recently put down by the company. The present section of the irrigation project, it is stated, is only the first unit of the complete system, which is destined to place 7200 acres in all under irrigation. Leland A. Reynolds has charge of the development of the tract and G. F. Stephens, an irrigation expert, has been placed in charge of the installation of the irrigation system.

IMPERIAL VALLEY PROPERTY IN STRONG DEMAND.

Recent Acreage Transfers Show Excellent Market Condition—All Past Building Records Eclipsed in El Centro—Total Outlay Is Half-Million.

EL CENTRO, Oct. 4.—Imperial Valley real estate has picked up noticeably during the past week, and several good-sized deals have been recorded, prominent among which was the sale of S. H. Mason's eighty acres southeast of El Centro, by Pier & Pendergast. The land was purchased by S. Harold Freeman for $200 per acre. J. W. Huffaker consummated a deal for his ranch of ninety-seven acres last week. The land lies five miles east of El Centro and sold for $250 an acre. E. A. Merriam of the Ross Company recently closed a deal for E. K. Henderson's 160 acres of alfalfa land east of Heber. The land was purchased by the Ross Company for $30,000. Three west side claims, the total value of which is about $10,000, were relinquished last week. The transactions were made by Follis & Allen, who also closed a deal for forty acres of barley land, in crop, for $3200.

During the past year the city of El Centro has shattered all previous building records, with a gain in residences of exactly 100 per cent. Eighteen business buildings, eight industrial structures, two churches, four hotels and lodging-houses, and 156 residences were erected in the last year, as compared with seventy-eight residences the year before. This building involves an expenditure of $419,200, and shows an investment in buildings alone of $84 per capita. This is a record seldom equaled, and represents, not a boom growth, but simply the steady advance of a city entering upon the seventh year of its phenomenal existence and striving to keep pace with the marvelous progress of the Imperial Valley as a whole.

El Centro's heartfelt wish for a plunge is about to be gratified by the erection of a thoroughly modern bath-house by Pruitt & Daniels. The bath will contain a 30x90-foot plunge, with all modern equipments, and will be located next to the new laundry plant which is about to be built by the same people.

HINTS TO BUILDERS.

Many Points to Be Well Considered by Person About to Invest His Money in a Home.

[Pictorial Review:] There are certain things about every house that it is well for one to know about. For instance, you should settle the question of interior finish before ordering your mill stuff. If you do not you may find yourself buying yellow pine to be finished in white. In selecting moldings, panels, etc., use as few as possible and choose the simplest you can find. The more ornate they are the more they catch the dust. Thus, instead of being a joy forever, they decome a perpetual nuisance. Study your architect's specifications until you understand them as you do the alphabet.

You can both save money and have more beautiful and better walls by dispensing with paper and finishing your walls with "two coat" work tinted, preferably in gray. The money saved here should go into paints and varnishes. Do not economize on them. Get the best. You will find it pays.

Be careful about the bridging between joints under your floors and insist upon double joists under windows and doors, and upon floor rafters of sufficient size. In laying pipes under flooring it is necessary to notch the floor beams. If these beams are narrow, they may be notched to the point of danger and your floor weakened. Double floors are by all means advisable. They are warmer, more nearly soundproof and help toward making the house fireproof.

Of course no wooden structure can be really fireproof; yet there is much that can be done in building such houses to make it difficult for fire to get headway. Most important is the matter of fire stops. The floor beams rest on the cellar walls, leaving openings under the framework of the house. Up these spaces flames will draw as up a chimney. All these openings should be filled in with brick—better yet with brick and mortar. Similarly, the spaces between partitions, which form other flues, should be "fire stopped." This can be done with no expense by throwing into these spaces the remnants of brick, stone and mortar that otherwise must be carted away. Cellar ceilings should be plastered, thus completing the protection of the wooden skeleton. These precautions, with the double floors already mentioned, will confine an incipient blaze to the room of its origin.

Ornamentation, both inside and outside the house, is costly. Balustrades, cornices, piazzas, molded mill work, columns, etc., all cost more than plain woodwork. And unless they are very appropriate, these things harm rather than help the looks of a house. Plain clapboards and shingles are cheapest and usually best looking. In fixtures, the same principle applies. Chandeliers and other fixtures at best are costly. The more ornate are extremely expensive and usually in bad taste. In plumbing, the simplest fixtures cost $50 to $75 each to install. The ordinary house has five fixtures—three in the bathroom, one in the kitchen and one in the laundry. The cheapest outfit therefore will cost $250.

Square and oblong houses are cheaper than odd-shaped structures. The oblong house is cheaper than the square. Timbers come in certain lengths, and the house that is long and narrow takes less timber than one that is square. That is to say, the material cuts to better advantage in the oblong house than in the square house. Also less labor is involved in the making.

"APING" AMERICANS.

Dear Old London May Soon Boast Regular New York Skyscraper. Will House Colonial Offices.

If all the reports be true, it would seem that the Englishman is on the point of forgetting all his vaunted standards of architecture and his oft-expressed prejudice against what he has always chosen to dub the "vulgarly commercial" skyscraper. In fact, it would appear that the Briton is about to adopt the one distinctly American note in architecture for his own. Being English, he will not, of course, admit that he borrowed the idea from America or anywhere else. The London Sphere is authority for the statement that a sky-piercing structure now being projected in the world's largest city will be both original and different.

The most favored drawing submitted in the arcihtectural competition for the proposed new Dominion House in London, is, according to the Sphere, a sketch for a lofty structure 400 feet in height. The building is designed to house all the colonial offices, providing a section for each of Britain's colonies. In describing the plans of A. Randall Wells, the architect, the Sphere says:

"A. Randall Wells has devised a structure of which the dominant note is a great tower free from all meaningless ornament and bearing on its summit a wireless station, which it is thought most effectively symbolizes the meaning and uses of the building. The architect by the manipulation and arrangement of bay windows has wrought a design for the tower in large perpendicular lines harmoniously related but different in their depth of light and shade.

"In his scheme the great east wing, with its imposing entrance, would house Canada; the one to the west, South Africa; while New Zealand and Newfoundland would lie to the right and left of the great central entrance. This entrance runs, under a great arch in the tower, from the Strand to Kingsway. Similar arche the tower on the right and le into large glass-roofed e halls. In front of these hal glazed groined arcading, which form immense Dominion sh facing the Strand. The tower, rises 400 feet above the stree be used as a hotel, having flat roofs of the government some two acres of gardens; greater use would be that bolizing by day and night the tude of the Dominions. The seems to have achieved by a simplicity a great impre without any sacrifice of utility venience. The material to be the building is reinforced with an incorporated skin land stone. The wind and swept tower would bleach to derful whiteness. The main would span a forty-foot roadw

The Oil Industry.

Bakersfield.

FAMOUS AREA IS ABSORBED.

Union Manages Lakeview Property Now.

Standard Gusher Brought Under Control.

Developments in Midway and Maricopa.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

BAKERSFIELD, Oct. 2.—At a meeting of officials of the Union Oil Company and the Lakeview Oil Company last Wednesday the leases of the latter were turned over to the Union Oil Company, and Superintendent Charles Off and Assistant Superintendent W. J. Barnhart tendered their resignations.

The management was immediately assumed by F. F. Hill, manager of the Union Oil Company in the West Side, and George Kammerer, superintendent of drilling on the West Side properties of the company. All the former employees, with the exception of Francis Gormley, have been let out. Off will go to the Ojai fields to take charge of some oil property in which he is interested. Barnhart will also take a position in the Ventura field.

The transfer was not unexpected, as the Union, which is the largest stockholder in the Lakeview Company, has been for some time dissatisfied with the management of the property, believing that different treatment of the wells will produce better results.

The Lakeview at present has five active producers on section 34, 32-24, and one well, No. 12, drilling, is down over 1800 feet. On section 25, 12-23, gusher territory, there are three producing wells. No. 9 on this section is again doing about 200 barrels a day after being off production for a while. A tubing gas packer, such as is used in the eastern fields, has been put in No. 9 to force the gas through the pipe with the idea of putting sufficient pressure behind the oil to force a steadier flow. If the experiment is a success other companies in the same territory will no doubt adopt the packer.

Under Control.

The Standard Oil Company's big gusher, No. 6, on section 36, 31-23, is at last under control, a second attempt to cap it with the big boiler having been successful. Wednesday of last week the boiler was with great difficulty placed over the fountain of oil only to be bored through by sand forced through by the oil from beneath. The hole was bored as clean as possible with tools. The second boiler was more effectual and the oil is now held close to the ground with but little gas blowing off.

The ground within a radius of a quarter of a mile in all directions is saturated with the oil, making the approach to the well both difficult and dangerous. The Standard is using the utmost vigilance to prevent the oil from catching fire, and guards are posted both night and day to warn autos against the danger.

Field Developments.

Well No. 23 on the Ethel D lease, section 36, 12-24, which is being redrilled, upon entering a gas pocket sent up a shower of sand and shale followed later by oil. The well gushed by heads for the best part of the day alternately sanding up and blowing off oil and sand, which reached the derrick top. With each breaking out large pieces of shale were thrown from the hole. The day's production was about 800 barrels of 26 gravity oil.

The property of the United Crude Oil Company on section 2 11-24, has moved up in the matter of production in the past eight months from almost nothing to 5000 barrels a month under the able management of W. R. Bess. A new 70-horsepower boiler was recently installed. It will furnish steam to force the company's oil into the Agency pipe line. The mate to this boiler furnishes power to run the wells. The lease has now five producing wells, and No. 6 will be put on the list in a short time.

Section 17, 11-22 will again be tested for oil. The Hazelton Crude Oil Company is preparing to cement off the water in its well No. 1, which has been abandoned for over two years. At a depth of 1700 feet a strong stream of flowing water was encountered and failure to shut it off resulted in the shutting down of the lease. A fine oil sand was encountered at a depth of 1500 feet and the intention of the company is to cement off the water at the bottom of the hole and bridge back to the oil sand. Should the effort to shut off the water in this well prove successful, it is quite likely that a revival of operations in that locality will be started.

Well No. 7 of the General Petroleum Oil Company on the Essex division on section 6, 11-23, has been cemented for the fourth time. This well has been a regular "Jonah" on account of the chemicals in the water which prevent the cement from setting. This last job has been turned over to Huber and Wilson, who have just finished it. Four tons of cement, chemically treated, were put down the hole. Great interest in the experiment is manifested by adjacent property holders. According to the terms of the contract with Huber and Wilson no pay is to be forthcoming if the cement fails to keep back the water.

Here and There.

Cable tools have been installed in well No. 8 of the North American Oil Company on the Section Two Syndicate division, 2, 32-23, at a depth of 3000 feet and the expectation is that the next 200 feet of drilling will finish the well. Well No. 10 was spudded in Tuesday and will be drilled with a Mogul rotary.

Indications are good for a producing well on the Oakland Midway Oil Company's property, section 13, 31-22. Well No. 6 has been perforated at a depth of 2165 feet by John Woods of the Hardison Perforating Company and made a good showing of gas with some little oil.

Operations are being abandoned by the Humamua Oil Company on its lease seventeen and one-half miles west of McKittrick and the casing is being pulled from the well. The well was put down 2400 feet, but a slight seepage was the only oil indication found and no work has been done at the property for some time.

The new derrick for the M.J. and M. & M. property for well No. 5 on section 36, 12-24 has been finished and a crew is at work rigging up for drilling.

A rotary disc bit in well No. 4 of the Northern Exploration Company, section 26, 31-23, is doing good work in the hard shale formation that has been encountered.

The Traffic Oil Company on section 16, 31-22 has gone into heavy oil sand at a depth of 1000 feet with well No. 1. The well has not yet been tested, but the sand evidences oil of about 16 gravity. The well is in North Midway field and has been drilling six weeks with standard tools.

RUSHING GAS PLANT.

Work is Going Forward Rapidly on Main Compressor of Midway Gas Company in Buena Vista.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

TAFT, OCT. 2.—The greater part of the structural iron to be used in the main compressor plant of the Southern California Midway Gas Company has been placed in position and work is going forward with great rapidity at the plant in the Buena Vista Hills. The concrete work is more than half finished and the heavy foundations for the compressors, which will soon arrive, are being constructed. Twenty-four tents and several iron-clad buildings on the hillside give the camp the appearance of a small town. The first water well is in good sand and will soon be tested, an 11 5-8-inch strainer pipe having been landed at 478 feet.

The Empire Gas and Fuel Company, on section 15-32-23, has put a shot of dynamite in its well at a depth of 2890 feet in order to sidetrack some tools. All efforts to recover the tools by fishing failed.

The six-inch casing in well No. 7 of the Spreckles Oil Company, on section 32-12-23, has been dynamited at 2200 feet, preparatory to redrilling. The well was down 2500 feet but casing trouble prevented further drilling. The company expects to enter the big sand that supplies the Maricopa Queen on the same section.

Well No. 2 of the Midway Fields Oil Company, on section 4-11-23, has had the eight-inch casing pulled preparatory to redrilling.

SHELLS TO GET MORE HOLDINGS.

DEAL WITH TURNER AND W. K. PRACTICALLY CLOSED.

Big European Combine to Acquire Large Acreage in Coalinga by Five-Million-Dollar Transaction — Investments Will Represent Over Seventeen Millions.

That a deal for the taking over of the Turner and W. K. oil companies' holdings in Coalinga by the Shell-Royal-Dutch combine, which has been rumored for some time, has been practically closed, is the tenor of advices from the north. The amount stated to be represented in the transaction is $5,000,000, a portion of which will be in stocks and bonds in the corporation formed by the Europeans to operate the properties, and the rest in cash.

This will represent the second purchase of producing oil properties in the State by the big foreign combine and rival of the Standard Oil Company in world petroleum trade. The Shell-Royal-Dutch only recently closed a deal for the property of the California Oilfields, Ltd., properties in the Coalinga field, which was a $12,500,000 transaction.

Thus far, therefore, the total amount of money put into the producing end of the California oil business by the big European combine totals about $17,500,000. Besides, the combine has built distributing stations along the coast for gasoline which it brings from the Orient, and has acquired a refinery site near San Francisco.

Experts of the combine have been examining oil properties in all sections of the State, and it is believed likely that a number of other purchases will grow out of these investigations. However, the details of arrangements as regards price generally require a long time to be worked out. This is reputed to have caused the delay in the case of the W. K. and Turner companies, as the first inklings of the likelihood of a deal were had nearly two months ago.

The properties of the W. K. and Turner, which are practically under the same management, take up the entire section 2, 20-15, of 660 acres in Coalinga. This is what has proved of late to be very rich territory. The acquiring of the properties will add a large amount to the Shell-Royal-Dutch oil production in California.

Hale-McLeod Affairs.

The Hale-McLeod Oil Company, which has just disbursed a dividend of 1 cent per share to its stockholders, is looking forward to making another disbursement January 1, according to a communication addressed to its stockholders at the time the last checks were sent.

"Inasmuch as we are realizing money on the sale of our land in section 34 to the Union Oil Company, we have decided to use this money for our development in order that we may pay dividends to our stockholders out of our earnings," the letter says. "Herewith find enclosed dividend check No. 6, and we feel satisfied that we will be able to pay another about January 1.

"In our letter of July 10 we stated that we had made a contract for our oil under 18-gravity, which was true at that time, but later the deal fell down and therefore we are not selling the product of wells Nos. 1, 2 and 3. We expect a market for this heavy oil soon.

"We have just started drilling No. 12. No. 11 is producing about 100 barrels per day of 21-gravity and up. No. 10 was a fairly good well, but we had finished it at 2200 feet and decided to go deeper. We are now 2750 feet in brown shale with indications of oil and gas. If we do not find another oil sand under this formation we will cement off at the original depth and resume pumping as before."

At the rate of 1 cent a share the company paid to its stockholders about $15,000.

TAKES OVER AGENCY.

Frank V. Marshall, a local real estate man, has entered into a contract with the owners of Du Ray place to at once put on sale the lots remaining unsold in that tract. Du Ray place is situated at the end of the West Adams-street car line and contains about 600 lots. Oiled streets, cement sidewalks and curbs, a water supply and other city improvements have been installed.

Peace.

GASOLINE WAR MAY HAVE END.

HIGHER PRICES FOR PRODUCT MAY ALSO RESULT.

Settlement of Price-Cutting Feud Between Refiners May Grow Out of Purchase of Brea Canyon Casinghead Product by Union Oil Company.

The Union Oil Company has practically closed a contract for the casinghead gasoline output of the Pacific Gasoline Company and the Brea Gasoline Company at Brea Canyon, and is already handling the product. It is believed likely that this move will result in the practical cessation of the local gasoline war, as it is said that the Continental Refineries, through its selling agents, was one of the principal participants in the fight.

The Continental Refineries Company is going out of business, as it found it impossible to meet successfully the competition and steady descent of prices which has been the rule of the past year.

When the Continental took over the output of the Pacific Company it was under the necessity of entering the local market, not having distributing facilities to deal with outside points. The company's agents, finding themselves unable successfully to cope with the other big concerns in the local market at the average rate, which was then about 18 or 19 cents a gallon, undersold them. The increasing production of casinghead gasoline at other points and light oil helped matters along greatly, and refiners generally joined in the price-cutting fight. The result was that gasoline has been selling at a phenomenally low price of 14½ cents a gallon compared with 19 cents at this time last year.

The Continental paid 14 cents a gallon for gasoline, manufactured from gas, which it bought from the Pacific Gasoline Company. The output of that concern amounts to some 4000 gallons a day. The product was mixed with about equal parts of distillate, which gave the Continental a marketable yield of over 200,000 gallons a month.

The Union, which originally handled the output of the Pacific Company, is again taking that product now and also the Brea Company's gasoline, in all about 6000 gallons a day, at approximately 10 cents a gallon. The scale of prices will be a sliding one, however, so that when gasoline advances or declines a higher or lower fee will be paid for the raw casinghead product.

The product is not simply mixed as heretofore, but is redistilled with a distillate of lower grade, for the prevention of the loss of higher-grade properties through their evaporation. It is estimated that the output of the Union Oil Company approximates 12,000 gallons a day from this plant.

With facilities for the distribution of the output there will be little danger of flooding the local market with the casinghead product, despite increasing production. A number of refiners are looking for an advance in prices of gasoline as a consequence. In fact, some of them predict that gasoline will be back to the 19-cent level again next summer. During the winter months, of course, the rise will not be as perceptible because of lighter consumption.

Casinghead gasoline is being manufactured in increasing quantities in the oil fields of the State from gas, produced principally by old wells. This gas is rich in the lighter liquid properties, which it yields when brought under pressure. Several new plants are being constructed in the vicinity of Los Angeles.

GOES UP HIGHER.

M'KITTRICK, Sept. 30.—James A. Barr, who for the past ten months has filled the position of manager of the Associated Supply Company's local branch, has been promoted to the Los Angeles office of the company, where he will this week enter upon his duties as assistant manager. W. J. Fletcher will succeed Mr. Barr here. While Mr. Barr's associates and friends in the McKittrick oil field are much gratified because of his highly-deserved promotion, they regret his removal from the district, but wish him still greater success in his new place. Mr. Fletcher has been connected with the McKittrick branch for two years, and previous to that time was located at Oil Center. He is well known and very popular, and well merits the advancement he has received.

NEW INDUSTRY.

Richard C. Willis of the lease department of the W. Ross Campbell Company, has just closed a long-term lease with John C. Wichmann, president of the American Tungsten and Refining Company, for the entire top floor of the building at Nos. 724-726 South Los Angeles street. This location will house the offices and the testing laboratory of the concern. Negotiations are now under way for an entire building for the complete milling and refining of tungsten and its products. Wichmann has already been successful with his process in Berlin, Germany. From this city he says he will make the entire United States his field of activity. The ore from which tungsten is to be obtained will be mined in the San Bernardino Mountains, according to those interested.

GRANITE PRODUCTION.

[Southwest Contractor:] The quarrying of granite is one of the big industries of the country. During 1912 the production in the United States was valued at $20,334,041. Vermont was the leading producer, with an output valued at $3,074,306; and thirteen other States each reported a production of more than $500,000, while six of these produced more than $1,000,000 each.

Over 30 per cent. of the total, or $6,126,754, was represented in building stone, $4,643,919 in monumental stone, $1,485,750 in riprap, about $2,500,000 in paving blocks and the rest in curbing, flagging, crushed stone, etc. The greater part of these values reported represent granite in the rough, the value of the finished or manufactured stone being of, course, far greater.

Farmers Attention!

Mr. Farmer:

The Valley of Southern California has shown larger increase in value than any other section of the State. There's a reason. Los Angeles is a center. It is growing faster than any other city in America. Farmers around Whittier, Anaheim and Santa Ana went into that country ten years ago and bought land for $200 an acre. Today they are selling for from $800 to $1200 an acre. You can repeat their experience by going a few miles east into the beautiful Lakeview-Perris Valley and buying.

Lakeview Irrigated Farms

This land at $200 an acre will show the same increase in value within the next ten years that the Santa Ana country has shown in the past ten years.

You can leave Los Angeles at 9 o'clock in the morning and arrive at Riverside at 10:45; there take our auto and have a twenty-mile ride through one of the prettiest agricultural sections in this State. This auto ride will tell the whole story. Alfalfa, Hogs, Dairy Cattle, Gardens and Fruit Trees on all sides. Nothing that we can say here would be half as convincing. It is a picture of prosperity. You arrive at our property about 11:30, lunch at the Ranch headquarters, then have about three hours to look over the property, then back to Riverside via auto, arriving there at 5 o'clock and returning to Los Angeles at seven.

Or, come to our office and see the stereopticon pictures of the entire valley. Pictures of Riverside with all its beauty. Pictures of the alfalfa fields and the dairy farms. Pictures of the walnuts and apricot groves, and also the canneries and driers. Pictures of the pretty homes and pictures of our own property, taken only a few weeks ago. This will tell the story as no words can.

You owe it to yourself to investigate. It may be that this is just the kind of land that you have dreamed of. Cut out the coupon below and we will send you complete literature on Lakeview Irrigated Farms.

PELLISSIER ·SQUARE·

Go all over exclusive Wilshire, the high-class residential section of Los Angeles, and you will find nothing equaling Pellissier Square, considering the value offered and the prices asked.

You will find magnificent tracts approaching Pellissier Square in quality, but none equaling its strategic location and offering such attractive pre-opening prices.

The fame and popularity of the Wilshire is increasing daily. Its development has been marvelous. Hundreds of our most influential business and professional men live there. This wonderful growth is doing one thing, however. It is bringing the Wilshire nearer the completely built-up stage.

The majority of the lot offerings now are on the outskirts of the Wilshire. There is, however, ONE new subdivision right in the heart of the choicest built-up part. It is the new Pellissier Square in which such remarkably low prices as these can be found:

Lot 50x150—Hobart Boulevard $3000
Lot 60x150—Oxford Avenue . . $3500

Larger lots at proportionate figures. Liberal terms. Investors practically make $80 per front foot profit at the very start. Ask us how this is possible.

Pellissier Square, because of its newness, naturally will have beautifying and improvement features not found elsewhere. Ask for a list of them.

One of our autos is at your disposal for an inspection trip. Just call up and make an appointment. Tract can also be reached via West Ninth St. car.

WILL RUSH HIG

Effort to Be Made County Good Roads Next Summer.

NEWPORT, Oct. 4.—With the close of the sugar beet season every effort will now be put forth by the County Highway Commission and the County Supervisors of Orange county to rush the work on the good roads system, which has been laid out and for which bonds have been voted. Some of the work, about twenty miles in all, is either under way or contracted for, but the boulevard from Santa Ana to this point has been held up because of the use of the roads by the beet haulers.

The sugar beet crop has been exceptionally large this year and records will be broken before the campaign is entirely over, it is said. Because of the heavy crop nearly all the roads which are to be made into boulevards in Orange county have been in constant use. Highway engineers, therefore, have deemed it wise to wait until all the beets are hauled before attempting much good road work. Contracts covering some seventy-five miles will, it is said, be let within a few weeks so that the boulevards will be completed and ready for use before the heavy teaming begins next season.

One of the first contracts to be let, it is understood, is for the boulevarding of the old Santa Ana road leading from Santa Ana along a portion of the Irvine ranch and traversing the Fairview Farms property, for about a mile and then leading, by an easy grade, from the mesa to the ocean. It is stated by engineers of the Highway Commission that this boulevard will be in operation early in the spring.

CANNERY BRANCHES OUT.

Huntington Beach Enterprise Seeking Larger Quarters—Library Bids to Be Opened During Week.

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Oct. 4.—A dozen new houses are under construction within sight of the water front at this place. Among the best of these are the residence of C. E. Lavering, R. A. Eaton of Long Beach, who is building at the corner of Fifteenth and Palm, and R. G. Harris, who is building at Fifteenth and Walnut. Bids for the Carnegie library will be opened Monday night and the contract will be awarded at that time.

The jet system of sinking the concrete piling of the new pier has proven to be successful, in spite of the fact that entirely novel difficulties were encountered. At no great depth under the sand a strata of blue clay was reached and this at first offered great resistance. By an ingenious combination of pile-driver work with extra powerful jets of water shot into the clay below the water level, it was found possible to sink the piling to any desired depth. The pier should prove practically indestructable, as it is not conceivable that any force could loosen piling embedded in such a manner.

The Pierce Home Cannery, a small plant already in operation at Huntington Beach, is planning to branch out and has asked the Huntington Beach Company for a site in the industrial section at Bolsa, adjoining this city. The Pierce company has been successful on a small scale, using the home-grown products in and around Huntington Beach, and is now prepared to branch out. This will make the seventh industrial plant for Huntington Beach, six of them being grouped around the Bolsa station.

TO LESSEN FIRE RISK.

Citizens of Newport Beach, East Newport and Balboa Expected to Vote Proposed Water Bonds.

BALBOA, Oct. 4.—On Tuesday, October 7, the citizens of Newport Beach, which also includes East Newport and Balboa, will go to the polls to vote a bond issue to cover the installation of water mains throughout that municipality. As all the people are practically unanimous for this issue, the bonds will in all probability go through with a rush.

The city of Newport has already an efficient water plant, and with the installation of the new mains, ample fire protection will be afforded, as well as increased pressure on the water for household use. Also there will be no chance for another disastrous fire such as the one that destroyed the buildings of the East Newport Town Company early in the summer.

TREES ARE LOADED.

Large Apple Crop in Yucaipa and Oak Glen Districts—Fruit Reported to Be Clean and Solid.

[Yucaipa Record:] In round numbers, 100,000 boxes of apples, making 2000 tons, will be the marketable crop of the Yucaipa and Oak Glen ranches this season.

In the upper valley, where the crop was short last season, and this has been remarkably heavy in comparison, the improvement has been most marked, and the apples are not only heavy in quantity, but are of the very finest quality. Especially is this the case with the late varieties, the Rome Beauty and Winesap, the Jonathan and King David. These promise to be of the highest value, and will do much to add to the luster of the fame of the Yucaipa and Oak Glen products.

The weight of the apple crop of this season has been astonishing. The question of holding the crop on the trees has been a serious one, too, for the amount of propping that has been done has exceeded that of any previous year.

Picking of the earlier varieties, the Bellefleurs and the Rhode Island Greenings has begun, and shipments will be made early in the week.

The health of the orchards has been such that the winter apples are almost without exception clean, the percentage of worms being very slight. The crop of this year will exceed generally that of two years ago, which set a record for the Oak Glen district.

A VALUABLE TREE.

[Popular Science Monthly:] What is probably the most valuable tree in the world is an alligator-pear tree at Whittier, Cal., which netted its owner a profit of $3206 in one year. This tree was planted in 1905 and began bearing in its fourth year. In 1912 it bore 3000 pears, which sold for $1500, while the sale of buds during the same year amounted to $1706, making the total given above. The tree is a seedling, the seed having been planted with a quantity of other seed, which had been imported, presumably from Mexico. Another tree, which was planted at the same time, and which stands close to this phenomenal bearer, has never borne more than fifty pears in a season.

Mines and Mining in the Great Southwest.

Phoenix.

OCTAVE MINE MAY OPERATE.

Reorganization to Give New Life to Property.

Other Old Mines Disposed to "Come Back."

Ray Mill at Hayden Makes Record Run.

PHOENIX (Ariz.) Oct. 3.—There is prospect for renewed operation of the Octave mine in the near future. The Octave is one of the best developed properties in the State, with several miles of underground levels and with the deepest workings of any Central Arizona mine, save only the nearby Congress. The ore is pyritic, carrying gold in fair quantity and in character suitable for concentration.

The main trouble seems to have been the raising of money enough to provide adequate and economical surface works and milling equipment. This equipment was completed only a few days before the mine closed down, a few years ago, following the demonstrated failure of power works built by an affiliated corporation at Wickenburg. Instead of furnishing electricity for the mines of the neighborhood, in addition to the Octave, the plant proved inadequate for the necessities of the Octave alone.

Soon thereafter the mining company went into bankruptcy, lately closed by the sale of the property, under foreclosure, to a number of old stockholders. The reorganization has executed a trust deed to the International Trust Company of Massachusetts, to secure a bond issue of $500,000, the proceeds to be devoted to placing the property on a paying basis. The surface improvements alone are considered worth more than that sum.

It is probable that much more stoping ground will have to be opened up to keep the large mill in profitable operation, as the vein is not a large one, though fairly constant in width and in gold content.

The old Vekol mine is to be reopened soon. This is a historic property, lying nearly forty miles south of Casa Grande, for many years worked by the Walker brothers, with the help only of Indian labor. The ores, rich in silver, were brought to the surface in a very crude manner—"coyoted" wherever the veins led. Something better was attempted later by a company which purchased the property from the Walkers after they had moved to Los Angeles. This was after the determination of a lawsuit wherein a share of the mine was claimed by an Indian girl, said to be the daughter of one of the brothers. There is little doubt that much silver remains in the old property, to be profitably reached by better mining methods, and there is belief also that the silver is merely the capping for a great body of copper.

Another old silver mine, though of very different character, is the Reymert, north of Florence, which contains an immense ore body of low grade. It has been taken over by the Thompson-Gunn Company, which is sinking a shaft to develop the property at depth, expecting to find copper. This shaft is now about 250 feet deep and has tapped a troublesome flow of water. The same interests are working the famous Magma property in the near-by Superior district.

Still another old argentiferous property that seems to be able to "come back" is the Silver King, at Silver King, said to have been sold lately to an eastern company by three adverse claimants. It is said that [illegible]k McCabe of Los Angeles is to get $[illegible]000, E. G. Dean and William [illegible]ry, late locators, $75,000, and the original stockholders $40,000, thus clearing the title.

The old mine is in sad plight, nearly filled with water, and any new work will probably have to be through the Bilk shaft, in outside country rock. The old shaft was in dangerous condition when the mine was abandoned by the old Silver King Company many years ago and later work has been upon upper levels, following rich silver stringers that often have well repaid any attention given them.

The old owners believed they had got down to the bottom of the wonderful chimney, at about 500 feet of depth, but this view has not been sustained in later years by deeper workings on such neighboring properties as the Magma. All things considered, a deeper exploration of the Silver King, even to 2000 feet, is now considered a very good gamble.

Since the discovery of cinnabar in the Sunflower district in the western Mazatzals, northeast of Phoenix, prospectors have been taking a new view of the rocks of that locality, which heretofore have not been very well considered, as regards mineral possibilities. Several more sections have been found with quicksilver croppings, said to be at least as good as those of the Sunflower Company. This company is packing a retort into the mountains and expects to become a producer in short order.

A record run of the Ray mill at Hayden was made last Sunday, in the handling of 8877 tons of ore, the largest day's production ever made by any mining company in the Southwest. After changes in progress have been made in the mill, it is probable the plant will absorb 10,000 tons of ore a day without special speeding.

Goldfield.

FIRST FIGURES ARE SURPASSED.

CONSOLIDATED MINES UNUSUAL QUANTITY OF ORE.

Final Report Shows Net Realization for September to Be Nearly Two Hundred Thousand Dollars. Son of Gen. Grant at Goldfield Suing for Divorce.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

GOLDFIELD (Nev.) Oct. 3.—Albert Burch, general manager of the Goldfield Consolidated Mines Company, has just rendered his final report for the month of August. It shows that the net earnings of the company were considerably in excess of the amount indicated by the preliminary estimate, given out early in September. The net realization of the company was $198,784.37, and an unusually large quantity of ore, approximately 32,000 tons, was mined during the month.

New development work performed during the month amounted to 3094 feet, and the company's operating costs were but $5.99 per ton. Development in the mines continued to produce satisfactory results and is extended rapidly on the deepest levels. The 1400-foot level of the Grizzly Bear mine is now being driven to explore the great vein, forty feet wide, at the point where the crosscut penetrated it near the eastern boundary, and from which, at a point just above this level, a large tonnage of shipping ore has been extracted.

The final report of the production and earnings of the Nevada Hills Mining Company for the month of August has just been issued from its Reno office, and shows that the company's operations are attaining a highly satisfactory basis in point of net results and operating costs. The report shows that the company now has no liabilities and that it has net resources of over $150,000, of which upward of $65,000 is cash in the bank, thus indicating that at the present rate of profit-earning it will not be long until the company will be in a position to begin the disbursement of regular dividends.

The record of production for the month indicates that the company's mill has been running at its full capacity and has handled 140 tons of ore daily, a larger tonnage than was expected from the early announcements of the company's plans. The metallic recovery, 90.5 per cent., is regarded as excellent in view of the fact that some of the ore is of a class not regarded as free-milling, and the greater recovery is effected by cyanidation. The average value of the ore treated in August was $17.24 per ton, and the loss in tailing was but $1.62. Net operating costs amounted to $6.86 per ton, leaving a net profit of $8.75 per ton. New development during the month of August amounted to 404 feet. The mine has a large tonnage of ore blocked out and the development work is constantly adding to the ore reserves.

BETTER CONDITIONS.

Throughout the Goldfield district conditions in the mines are showing improvement and a better feeling and a greater confidence in the future are prevalent among the residents of the camp. Work that has been in progress for many months past at a number of points, and which has been of a preparatory character, is now nearing the point where important results may be confidently expected within the next few months, and this is notably true of the Goldfield Cro, Merger, Blue Bull, Booth, Vernal, Sandstorm-Kendall, Lone Star, Silver Pick Consolidated and Black Butte.

At all of these properties, as well as at several others in the district, development work has been carried on for a considerable period on scales of varying magnitude, and at each of these properties there are encouraging indications of the presence of ore and good grounds for the belief that productive mines will be made with development. All of these properties, and a number of others in the Goldfield district, have exposed low-grade ore that will some day be treated profitably.

There are now good prospects that development work on an extensive scale will be started in the near future at a number of properties of promise that have been idle for several years, and in the light of results obtained in adjacent territory there are excellent chances for the discovery of new deposits of pay ore and the making of productive mines in virgin ground. The next fortnight will likely produce developments in the mines of Goldfield that will have an influence upon the future of the district and greatly stimulate interest in the district's main industry.

VERNAL DEVELOPMENT.

The results of recent development at the Goldfield Vernal property indicate that this is one of the most promising prospects that has been opened in the Diamondfield part of the district. Specimens of ore have been taken from the winze below the 100-foot level that show free gold in large quantity and carry some silver. The ore resembles, in some respects, the richest material that has been mined in the central part of the district, but the gold content is apparently more free. Some of the gold appearing in the fractures and on the iron impregnated matrix, is coarse, and apparently much heavier than the leaf gold and particles that appear in the oxidized ore nearer the surface.

The New Jersey Mines Company is working on two levels of its Excelsior group of claims under the management of Harry Ernest, and some ore of fairly good grade has been exposed, the assays running at times above $50 per ton.

Conditions in the Florence Goldfield are reported to be considerably better than for some time past, and the quality of ore now extracted from the mine and shipped to the mill at Bonnie Clare is better than the management expected it would be when milling operations were begun. Mill-heads have been maintained for some time at a figure that insures a good output of bullion, and it is the belief of those in charge of the company's operations that the initial clean-up, which will be completed shortly, will result in sending to the mint a brick of gold of sufficient value to leave a satisfactory profit in excess of operating costs.

JESSE GRANT'S DIVORCE.

Jesse Grant, son of Gen. Grant, is one of the spectacular figures of the camp. He is suing for a divorce on the ground of desertion, and there is every indication that he will have a contest on his hands. He has lived at the Goldfield Hotel for the past six months—in fact, came here before the new divorce law went into effect—and filed his application some time ago. The other day his wife, who lives in San Francisco, filed a demurrer, alleging that sufficient facts to constitute grounds for a divorce had not been stated in Jesse Grant's complaint.

Jesse Grant has followed mining for the past thirty years throughout the West and Alaska, and he seems to be at home wherever his hat is off. He has made many friends here.

W. F. (Billy) Pond, an early-day broker of Goldfield, died the other day at the hospital after twenty-four hours' illness. Bright's disease was given as the cause.

METROPOLITAN AIRS.

Lawndale now boasts a newspaper. The Lawndale Review, devoted to the interests of Lawndale and Ingledale, made its first appearance last Friday. It is an eight-page paper filled with news and comment about the thriving southwest. The field of the publication will extend to Hawthorne, El Segundo, Torrance and Redondo.

Tonopah.

TWO MILLS ARE IN PROSPECT.

Thousands of Extra Tons to Be Treated.

Water Service to Undergo Improvement.

Details of North Star's Woes and Troubles.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

TONOPAH (Nev.) Oct. 3.—Preparations for the immediate construction of two new mills having an aggregate capacity for treating a thousand tons daily have been set afoot. This is the result of the action of the Tonopah United Water Company in securing the services of an eminent hydraulic engineer from California to report on how to increase the flow of the wells which supply Tonopah. By virtue of this increase it will be possible to serve the new mills which are expected to be in operation next spring.

The mills referred to are the Halifax and the Merger. The latter will begin with treatment of 150 tons daily, but will have facilities for enlarging the buildings and appliances so that they will be equal to any strain that may be put on them. The resolution regarding the Merger comes after deliberating for a year on the best way to treat the ore from that property and it has been decided that the freight saving alone would make an item of some importance. The rate for the fifteen-mile haul to Millers is 90 cents a ton, or more than enough to pay interest on the cost of a mill.

The Halifax improvement was decided on when Senator Kearns of Utah was here. With the enormous tonnage of ore blocked out there is no gainsaying the fact that the time has come for the company to act expeditiously.

The Halifax has been troubled with water. The pumps have been kept going day and night in order to dispose of the 100,000 gallons a day that accumulates in the sump, but this condition is not likely to continue longer than a few months as the water comes from seams in the rocks and is bound to find it way through to other underground chambers. It is certain that a great deal of the water at the Halifax comes from sources that troubled the Belmont, and it is noted that the Belmont has almost gone dry since the opening of the lower workings of the Halifax.

Be that as it may, the water company is getting ready to serve these mines with a supply that will relieve them from all anxiety in the future regarding a source for their prospective mills. Unless the water is developed in this territory it would be folly to go ahead with mill building when such work calls for the investment of $150,000 to $250,000 in each case. That an expert has been summoned to the local field to formally report on the water limitations and possibilities is an assurance that the milling facilities of Tonopah will receive two important additions within the course of a few months.

"STAR" TROUBLES.

The experience of the North Star which blew up just as it was getting a fair start as a producer, will not be duplicated at other properties in the camp. The developments in North Star justify the most sensational predictions about that property which has been used as a football to fatten bank accounts of some San Francisco brokers.

Manager McQuillan poses as an injured victim, but the cloak does not sit well on his shoulders. Foreman Heney who is accused of "doping" the assay sheet to make them appear different from what they were, has gone hence and if local opinion is any gauge of the conditions, he is none the poorer for his brief stay in camp. He is reliably reported to have cleaned up something like $30,000 by his knowledge of underground conditions which knowledge was denied the ordinary stockholder.

President Zadig says he did not know the ore was running down as low as $8 a ton as he was notified daily that the shipments were holding up to between $25 and $30 a ton When this astute president thought the mine was earning profits of $600 a day, the ore was netting a daily loss of $80 to $100 on shipments sent out in disguise. The ore that was reported to be worth $25 a ton often ran so low that the company had to pay the smelter $3 to $4 a ton in excess of the valued content, to cover the cost of freight and treatment.

That McQuillan was not wholly guiltless is the common opinion since he has been retained as manager of the Rescue Eula and Umatilla, both Zadig properties. It does not stand to reason that Zadig would keep a man in his employment who had once deceived him and since there has not been any denial of the facts alleged against the local manager, it is not creditable to the good sense or business acumen of the Zadig people to retain the former manager of the North Star in a responsible position.

W. B. Daniels, an engineer sent from Oakland by Zadig to report on the physical condition of the North Star, sent back word that the mine was "gutted" and that it would require months of the closest attention to development to bring it back to its former prosperity. The Star had all the makings of a good mine but the owners were too greedy to make a record and to join in a profit distribution so they went ahead and took out all the ore in sight and never thought of providing for the morrow by doing any dead work or keeping the blocked-out ore ahead of shipping demands.

Readers of The Times have been warned repeatedly of the juggling going on through the stock brokerage tactics of the directors of the North Star, but no one ever dreamed of the property being completely sacrificed to greed. It is estimated that since the North Star came into bearing that something like $165,000 gross has been taken out and that there is in the treasury about $75,000 to pay that dividend promised by Zadig two weeks ago when he said there would be a 10 cent dividend the first week in December.

The portentous condition of the mine leaves little doubt that those who had reckoned on these funds to buy Christmas presents will either go hungry or do without presents. There is no money in sight for dividends and it will be fortunate for the stockholders if the present treasury will withstand the effort to place the property in good condition.

Ore shipments for the month of August aggregated 44,727 tons, valued at $1,064,820, compared with 53,182 tons of a value of $1,046,600 for the preceding month. The decrease in tonnage is due to the electric storms and floods which interfered with operating the mills for several days. Labor Day also came this month. It was expected to be one of the poorest of recent months.

SEND OUT RICH ORE.

Thirty-Six-Ton Consignment from Quartette Represents Effects of Resumption of Work After Fire.

[A. P. Correspondence to The Times.]

SEARCHLIGHT (Nev.) Oct. 2.—The richest carload of ore ever shipped out of this district was expressed this week to Selby's from the Quartette mine. The ore came from the 600-foot level, east of the main shaft, on the same shoot that has produced so heavily in the past. The shipment consisted of thirty-six tons of an average value of about $400 per ton.

After the recent disastrous fire, when the forty-stamp mill was destroyed, work was temporarily suspended until the Cyrus Noble mill was overhauled and put in shape to handle the ores from this mine. The mine is now working full-handed again and regular shipments will go forth to the smelters weekly.

A new shaft has been started on the north side of the Techaticup mine tunnel and will be dropped to connect the workings at the 400-foot level. The cross-cut on this level has proved up the vein at this depth, showing four feet of shipping grade ore. Several samples assayed 24 ounces gold and 112 ounces silver. This property was formerly owned by Joseph Wharton, ex-president of the Bethlehem Steel Works, and was one of a large number of mines that have passed from his estate during the past few months.

A representative of an Indiana capitalist has bonded the properties of the Little Eldorado Mining Company, together with the surface rights which comprise the town of Nelson. The Wall-street vein extends into this property and it has been reported that development work will soon be started. The principal owner of the company is Denis J. Callahan, an old-time prospector, who has recently made an excellent strike two miles from Nelson, where ore running $150 per ton was found at the grass roots.

A contract has been let by M. L. Cook, C.E., of San Bernardino, for the erection of a fifty-ton reduction plant at Nob Hill to be built on Silver Legion ground. The plant will handle the ores of the district at a cost estimated at $2 per ton and a recovery of about 85 to 90 per cent. of the content. The question of water has been solved by the leasing of the Silver Sphinx mine, which can produce about 24,000 gallons daily, about twice as much as will be needed.

The gold strike on the Mineral Farm is showing up better with each round of shots and the ore pans freely, some of the colors being as large as a grain of wheat.

What a Few Dollars Will Do

SECURITY HOME BUILDERS OF LOS ANGELES

A few dollars rightly invested in Southern California will make any man wealthy. Many proofs of this are all around us. Those who invested in Los Angeles real estate a few years ago have made great big profits.

But what have been the profits of the man who had the money to invest, but lacked the courage? Has he the money now? Has he grown wealthy, too?

The opportunities for making money are greater than ever. But it takes larger money to turn the deals. You, with a few dollars, a few hundred or a few thousand dollars, can't, by yourself, secure the big profits you could years ago.

But the buying strength and earning power of the combined money of nearly 1500 people, added to your money, will secure for you the fullest earning power of every dollar.

No greater opportunity for securing the big profits ever confronted you. Security shares at 15 cents are your greatest opportunity. Because Security Home Builders is engaged in a business that yields the greatest profits with the greatest safety.

Shares Advance to 16 Cents

Over 50 per cent. profit has been the reward of those who bought Security shares less than a year ago. And this profit is gradually, but surely, getting larger.

THE PNEUMATIC TIRE

Overwhelming Success

Nearly Half of Panama Rubber Company Capital Stock Taken

BONUS TO BE WITHDRAWN

Price of Shares Will be Sharply Advanced Soon

Success Breeds Success

The project of the Panama Rubber Co., conceived about a year ago in the minds of a few of the leading citizens of Los Angeles, has been a remarkable success. It has been successful in attracting to it a group of men headed by Mr. W. D. Newerf, whose record in the tire business on the Coast has been a notable one—the engagement as superintendent of one of the foremost men in the industry who has been connected with some of the largest tire concerns in America—and now the securing of a site at Compton, which is in every way admirably adapted to the needs of the company.

All these successes have placed the company today in an enviable position. We were not surprised at the magnificent sale of stock which followed our opening announcement of Sunday last. From now on it will be clear sailing with this company. Nearly half of the capital stock has been subscribed and we feel that we would not be justified in continuing the bonus offered of one share of common stock free with four shares of 7% Accumulative Preferred bought and paid for at par of $10 per share.

Bonus Offer to be Withdrawn

On Tuesday, Oct. 14, at the close of business, the bonus offered of one share of Common stock free with each four shares Preferred purchased will be withdrawn. That leaves but eight days in which you may buy this stock with this free bonus offer unless the entire allotment is oversubscribed in that time or taken by a few individuals. As we said in the beginning this allotment was limited.

Prices of Shares Advance

The actual assets of this company today are such that it has a perfect right to advance the price of its shares to a premium. It is a going company with a rapidly growing business at the present time. As soon as it begins the manufacture of tires we look for the stock to advance to a point many times above par. The next price at which these shares will be offered after the present allotment is subscribed will be $12.50 per share and rapid advances may be looked for from that time on.

The Greatest Business of All

The Diamond and Goodrich Companies, capitalized in 1894 at $100,000 and $500,000 respectively, merged their interests in 1911, the consolidation being for $90,000,000. The Diamond stockholders receiving for their half, $45,000,000 in return for their original investment of $50,000.

Let's Keep California Money at Home

Tire makers of the east have been taking about $10,000,000 every year out of California and the Pacific Coast. This is regarded as the most fertile field in the automobile business for cars are kept on the go here twelve months out of the year. Is it any wonder then that the Panama Rubber Company is anxious to get going so that we may get our share of this $10,000,000 which is being sent back east every year? As we have said before we know the tire business. We propose to make the best tire that can be made, and the name of that tire will be the Panama, the "Long Winded Tire," made by experts.

Special Concessions to Stockholders Who Own Automobiles

We propose to cut down the cost of automobiling considerably to those of our stockholders who own automobiles. They will buy not only their tires but all of the accessories that enter into the automobile at a very great saving in price. Each man will receive a 6000-mile guarantee with his Panama tires, nearly double that which is offered by the best tire makers today. These features are bringing automobile owners into our fold in large numbers.

Factory Site is Ready

Our factory site at Compton is ready and we are now considering bids from contractors for the erection of the plant. It will not be an expensive building to build as it will be but one story in height, but covering 27,000 square feet of ground. This factory is to be built in units, each unit covering a space of about 50 by 200 feet. The full capacity of the first unit will be about 400 tires per day. This will not go far among our 53 sales agents and our eight stores extending from Vancouver to El Paso, but it will be a good beginning.

Shares to Go to $50.00

And why not? Firestone Rubber Co. stock in less than three years advanced from par to $685, that one share of that original stock is worth now about $2500.

Estimated Earnings

Based upon a profit of $5.00 each on tires, 50 cents each on tubes and 3 cents a pound on reclaimed rubber, and not taking into consideration the profit on inner liners, patches, boots or on solid tires, hose, belting, mechanical goods, etc., the following estimate is made:

Daily output one year	100 Tires 200 Tubes 1 Ton	200 Tires 400 Tubes 2 Ton	300 Tires 600 Tubes 3 Ton
Earnings, $5 a tire	$150,000	$300,000	$450,000
Earnings, 50c a tube	30,000	60,000	90,000
Earnings, Reclaimed Rubber, 3c per pound	18,000	36,000	54,000
Total earnings	$198,000	$396,000	$594,000

DEATH LURKS FOR THOSE PEOPLE WHO IGNORE SANE SPEED LAWS.

Where They Began.

ON THE SAND LOTS WITH SNODGRASS AND SHAFER.

How Fred Snodgrass's Blunder Cost a College Pennant.

Owen Bird Tells of the Famous Series Between Occidental College and St. Vincent's College in Which the Two Present Stars of the New York Giants Were the Big Features.

BY OWEN R. BIRD.

OF COURSE, at this time the pedigree of each and every player on either the Giants or the Athletics is dug out of the archives and [illegible] before the hungry public [illegible] it seems a bit too bad to do this, [illegible] all great men must have a past, more or less, like a sponge full of holes—and it is with certain incidents in the past history of Mr. Arthur Shafer and Mr. Fred Snodgrass—members of McGraw's fighting corps—that this screed has to deal.

HUMBLE BEGINNINGS.

Shafer and Snodgrass are both Los Angeles boys, who got their starts on the local sand lots and later with the Los Angeles High School. Art then jumped to Santa Clara College, while Fred continued to play for the Blue and White High School. However, their first soar into fame and prominence came seven years ago last spring, when, playing with Saint Vincent's College of this city, they formed the backbone of the team that swept the entire State like a scourge, but [illegible]—not all the State. That spring they ran into the Occidental Tigers.

After many trials and tribulations it was my great good fortune to make the Oxy team, at center field, thereby getting into a championship series with Shafer and Snodgrass, so the Boston Red Sox are not the only fellows who can claim to have played and beaten these famous young men.

SAINTS AND TIGERS.

Now for the holes in the sponge. In the intercollegiate baseball season of 1906, St. Vincent's and Occidental had wiped up the ground with every baseball team on the map, in fact, there was nothing to any of the games. Naturally, it came to a series between the Tigers and the Saints for the gonfalon. The year before we had been fortunate enough to take one game from the Saints in the three-game series, something hitherto considered a howling impossibility, as—since the beginning of time—the "Harps" of St. Vincent's had been all-conquering in the realm of college ball.

In 1906 the interest in the coming series was at a fever pitch, and the wagering was three to one that the Saints would take the series. Who were these lowly Tigers to dispute the might and power of the famous Catholic nine. But like all true-blooded Presbyterians, we failed to see where a past reputation gave them an edge, so entered the series ready for blood and victory at all costs.

SNODGRASS STARS.

The first game was played at St. Vincent's, and went to the enemy by the score of 3 to 2, after one of the greatest college ball games that was ever played in the south. Freddie Snodgrass practically won this game, when he landed on a fast one on the inside and got a double, scoring two runs in the eighth inning. Shafer played like a big leaguer in the game, and so did the rest, and I'll admit that it looked quite gloomy. In this game we discovered two things: first, that the hit-and-run game—then new in college ball—would get Saint goats, and that with the heavy hitting ability of Snodgrass, Shafer, Lemar and Flick, it was up to the outfield to play better ball than they knew how.

The next game was played on our grounds, and I might say right here that there never has been its equal Hurrah!

CHANCE IS OUT OF LAST PLACE.

PEERLESS LEADER IS SEVENTH IN LEAGUE.

Houck Hands Him the Game After Mack's Regulars Had Piled Up a Nice Lead—Issues Eight Passes in Last Two Innings—Chance Goes Home a Happy Man.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The curtain was rung down today on the American League season in this city, the home of Connie Mack's champions, with a weird exhibition of the national game. Frank Chance's lowly New Yorks appeared in the finale with the Athletics which was witnessed by only a sprinkling of fans, because everybody here is looking forward to the classic series which begins next Tuesday. Almost on the eve of entering the all-important series, the Athletics were beaten by the Yankees to the tune of 10 to 8.

But the defeat of the house of Mack was meaningless. Connie's ball tossers have world seriesitis and they did not give a rap about the outcome of yesterday's tilt. They just wanted to get their throwing arms in trim and their batting eyes on the alert. They fairly well accomplished this, and then gave way to the second-string men who tossed the game away in the last inning. That is, Byron S. Houck, the big pitcher whose record ranks second to Walter Johnson in the league, presented the Yankees with the victory.

Houck evidently just figured that Chance needed to win more than the Athletics and he made a good job of it. With the score 8 to 4 in favor of the Mackmen at the beginning of the ninth inning, Houck proceeded to pass around gifts to the Yankees. In this one period he issued four bases on balls and permitted a double and two singles. This array produced the six runs. It was a very charitable act on the part of Mr. Houck, at least Frank L. Chance appreciated it in this way.

Houck's erratic work nevertheless had its good omen. It saved Frank Chance from having his title of "Peerless Leader" reduced to that of "Tail-End" leader. The victory enabled New York to crawl out of last place which position they held practically all season, as St. Louis lost and tied Cleveland.

Houck complimented the Yankees

RECKLESS CYCLISTS ARE MENACE TO MOTOR MEN.

Police Are Asked to Curb the Buzzers Who Thread Our City Traffic, Dash Heedlessly Around Curves and Endanger Lives—Earle Boothe, National Man, Sounds the Alarm and Starts Unique Campaign.

BY BERT C. SMITH.

MOTORCYCLE riders who recklessly dash through the city streets are to be arrested and prosecuted to the limit of the law. Bike buzzers who race over the country roads, dodging in and out among the vehicles on the highway, are also to feel the strong arm of the police. Drastic measures are to be used to curb the reckless ones who are spoiling many of the comforts of motoring.

Death has reaped a harvest in the past week. The danger not only to motorcyclists themselves, but also to the tourers in automobiles, is such that an active campaign is to be started in this city and county to stop this useless abuse of the city and county speed laws.

It is a recognized fact that many motorcyclists pay no attention whatsoever to the speed and traffic laws. These are to be gathered into the dragnet to be spread by the police and an example will be made of the men who so heedlessly make life miserable to the timid or novice who is operating machines on our streets.

Another measure to be enforced is the carrying of lights on all vehicles. Motorcyclists obey this rule fairly well, but woe betide the man who is caught without the warning signal. He is to be dealt with and handled without gloves. Teamsters, also, who refuse or who forget to use the lights will be gathered in.

Menaces to our traffic and hindrances to our touring on county roads are to be taught a lesson. The word has gone out to the speed pilots in the city and the county and a campaign has already been started to make it more comfortable and safer to operate vehicles on our roads in Southern California.

Equal rights to all with special privileges to none is the slogan adopted by the Los Angeles traffic squad which Lieut. Butler has marshalled into such an efficient force. Complaints have been received concerning the abuse of the traffic laws, and also of the violation of speed laws by motorcyclists.

The right of way is to be determined. The question as to who should go into a curve first is to be settled. The many accidents which have resulted from motorcycle riders dashing straight into a turn without paying the slightest attention to an automobile has caused the authorities to give special attention to traffic laws and speed regulations.

It is not an unusual sight to see a motorcycle man come dashing down the streets at fifty miles an hour. It is argued by some that he can handle his machine so dextrously that he can stop quickly, dodge rapidly and avoid accidents better than a driver of a motor car possibly can. The facts do not bear out this contention. The surprising and alarming number of fatal accidents in which motorcycle riders have figured of late makes it necessary to regulate the men on the bike buzzers.

There is no special law for the motorcyclist, and for the motor car operator. It is to be equal rights to all and the sooner the owner of a machine realizes this the better it will be for the man who is in the habit of driving at a reckless pace anywhere on our streets or roads. The strong arm of the law is ready to reach out. The police desire to avoid accidents, and the campaign now on is certain to result in better conditions as far as our speed regulations are concerned.

BY EARLE BOOTHE.

Earle Y. Boothe, agent for the National, is one of the auto dealers who is taking a keen interest in this campaign for better conditions. He has felt the inconvenience and has realised the danger which comes from the careless operation of a motorcycle ridden by a reckless dare-devil who cares only for his own comfort and has no real regard for the lives of others.

"It is high time something was done to curb this reckless driving and riding indulged in by motorcyclists," said Earle Boothe yesterday. "The danger, not only to themselves, but to others, is so great that I am more than pleased to know The Times intends to start a campaign for better conditions.

"Time and again I have encountered motorcyclists who are willing to risk their necks in order to get to a turn quicker than I can reach the street intersection. Three different times I have figured in what might have been a serious accident but for the lucky chance that I had my hand on the emergency brake.

"There is not a motorist driving any car, whether a National or other make, who would willingly hurt anyone. The motor car operator will do all in his power to avoid an accident, but there are times when, because of the recklessness of a motorcycle rider it is impossible to avoid a crash. These men should be summarily dealt with.

"It's not that I want to be a fire-eater. No one is more anxious than I am to make things comfortable for every driver of a motor car, and for that matter every operator of a motorcycle, but I know the men on the bikes are careless.

Drive carefully, with due regard for pedestrians. Always turn to the right when passing another vehicle.

Watch the crossing officer and his signal and signal the officer if you desire to turn at street intersection.

Stop ten feet to the rear of street

OUR BIG CHIEF "ELEVATED."

Our charming and handsome Managing Editor Harry E. Andrews was "elevated" to the high rank of the Noble Order of the Mystic Shrine last night. Several of his associates on The Times took an active part in the ordeal. The tour across the burning sands was personally conducted by Jacob Baum and the torture chamber was prepared under the personal supervision of Frank X. Pfaffinger. Nothing was left undone. Our genial chief in his innocence preceding the ordeal asked his friend, Jacob, if it would be necessary to make a speech. Frank Pfaffinger hurried to reply, saying "No, it won't be necessary as you'll be speechless." This is not a society item, but pure sporting comment.

WILL USE SHOCK ABSORBERS.

The two Cadillac cars that are now on a tryout trip to Phoenix were equipped with Martin shock absorbers, when the car started on the long desert grind. Soules used Martins on his Cadillac in the Sacramento race and did not change a tire. It was noticeable in the Sacramento race that the cars that finished in the money and were equipped with Martin shock absorbers made no tire changes.

Fighting.

TIGERS AGAIN BEAT ANGELS.

Harkness Unfurls Funny Exhibition.

Passes Nine and Strikes Out Same Number.

Holds Angels to Three Hits and One Run.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

In order, as far as possible, to nail the libelous report that they are no longer in the heat of the Coast League race, the Tigers handed the Angels a swift little Saturday spanking, 4 to 1, thereby almost cinching the series.

For six and two-thirds innings it was Harkness vs. Chech. Then a number of things happened to Chech that necessitated a change in the pitching personnel, and from then on it was Harkness vs. Gregory.

Harkness licked both of the parties mentioned, but he admits that he wore a four-leaf clover in each brogan and that the hind hoof of an Inyo county jackrabbit was dangling inside his blouse.

SPECK VARIES.

"Speck" was a pitching paradox, displaying the dual personality of a Jekyll and Hyde. He struck out nine men, walked the same amount and allowed only three hits. It was always a question whether "Speck" would walk the next two batters or strike them out. On one occasion he did neither, hitting the batter instead. He potted Ernie Johnson on the throwing arm in the sixth, causing Ernie such anguish that he retired after stealing a base. C. Goodwin finished the game at short.

Harkness seemed to take a fiendish delight in permitting the Angels to fill up the bases, and then sending them back to the field runless.

Maggert, who has been the only Angel to tamper with the plate in the last three days, delivered the Los Angeles lonely in the fifth. Carlisle, his deadly rival, scored the tieing run in the sixth. Up to that moment Chech had out-pitched Harkness. This, however, was the beginning of the end for Charles, said end coming in the seventh after Harkness landed on him for a double, scoring Patterson. When "Speck" gets a two-base hit the other pitcher should have,

PHOENIX RACE FATHER HERE.

George Purdy Bullard Visits Our Fair City.

Attorney-General's Bride Is Also a Booster.

Soules in Cadillac Back from Long Hard Grind.

George Purdy Bullard, Attorney-General of Arizona, father of the Phoenix road race, and the man around whom all the real interest of this desert classic clings, was in Los Angeles Tuesday and Wednesday to settle the details of the big contest. He says this race is to be the one great contest of the series, with an entry list that will make them all sit up and take notice.

Mrs. Bullard, the beautiful and accomplished wife of the prominent Arizonan, was with the "Father of the Race," and is also satisfied that it will be something to talk about for a long time to come. Mrs. Bullard says the entire feminine population of Phoenix is taking a keen interest in the contest, and will be out boosting for each driver, even on the trial spins overland.

"There was never so much interest taken in any previous race," said Mrs. Bullard, "as in the present contest. Every one is anxious to learn the latest news about the entrants. When I return it will be necessary for me to dope the racers as best I can. Of course, Purdy tells me all about the race, and though he is so busy with other matters, he always has time to spend, at least a few hours each day, in correspondence.

"Among the prominent society women of Phoenix the race is a choice topic. At afternoon teas and social functions they talk of the contest, which is to be held this year on November 3. The man who wins will certainly be a hero in their sight. It means lots of hard work, if you don't believe it, watch my husband for just one day.

"Yes, I'm a booster for the race. We expect to keep open house again this year. Looks to me as if the crowds will be larger and the race far more thrilling. I will do all in my power to make it a success and I know I speak for all the rest of my sisters who will be out to see the finish of the great event."

OLDFIELD ENTERS.

Barney Oldfield, in a Simplex, will be one of the big attractions in the Los Angeles-Phoenix road race. Oldfield has a fast car. He showed his ability at Corona. He has the nerve and has never before appeared in this desert classic. He is doped by many to win the long grind. Oldfield was never in better shape than he is at the present, and he is one of the big cards in this contest.

Never given to bragging, Barney seems more confident than ever before over his prospects for this battle royal. He will have the Simplex, belonging to George Settle, under him, and the car is fast enough to overtake any of the racers now entered, and Oldfield is one of the most experienced of drivers. He is willing to take a risk and is out to win.

If confidence helps, Settle is also satisfied that Barney will win. So satisfied is he that he is willing to wager a sum on the result of the race. He likes Barney's chances best of all and will pin his faith to the speed king on the Simplex. Perhaps Settle is right. At least Barney believes he is.

SOULES IN CADILLAC.

Considerable work will have to be done on parts of the Los Angeles-Phoenix race course, according to Charles Soules, who has just completed the 500-mile run in his Cadillac.

Soules went through without trouble, but he is an experienced driver, and men who have done less work on the desert will have considerable trouble.

"In comparing the course of this year with that of a year ago, I must say the new course is the most dangerous and the hardest. The first 125 miles compare favorably. From a short distance beyond San Diego to El Centro and through the Mountain Spring grade, the road is very dangerous and nerve-racking. From El Centro to Mammoth Wash the roads are in good condition.

"The wash is in a terrible state, I have never seen it so bad. It is absolutely necessary that work be done here, as a car stuck can tie up the whole race. From there to Yuma there are a great many washouts which make the road worse than ever before.

"The sand in the wash the day we went through had drifted across the road until there was a wall five feet high blocking our path. If we had not had real automobiles we would have been there yet."

"The Cadillacs gave a wonderful demonstration of what a modern motor car will do," said J. E. Brown. "We came to places where it did not seem possible that any kind of a vehicle could get through, but we always came out on the right side and kept moving.

"The road is a hard strain on the driver and the car, but it is the kind of a race that is worth while. The harder the better for Cadillacs."

BIG AUTO SHOW AT ST. LOUIS SOON.

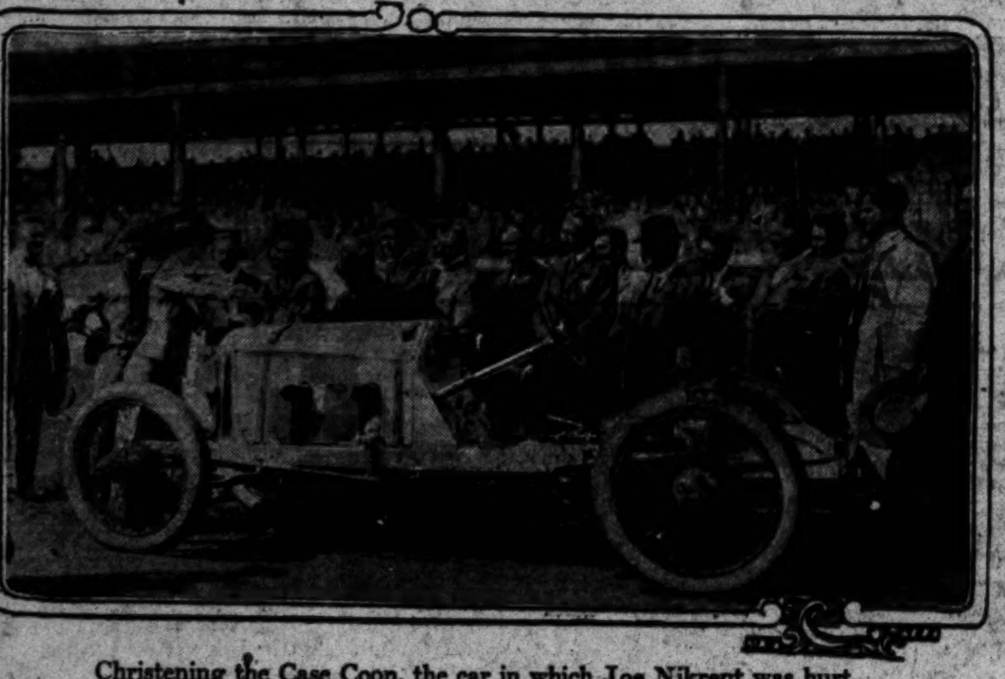
America's first display of 1914 automobiles is announced for St. Louis October 6 to 11, inclusive, with reduced fares from all parts of the country.

The show is to be held in the immense amusement garden at Forest Park, Highlands, where the exhibit will include 233 electric and gasoline pleasure cars, and thirty-seven kinds of motor trucks and delivery wagons.

Besides the auto show the week's attractions are fixed to include aeroplane contests, under the auspices of the Aero Club of St. Louis; the German centennial celebration; motorcycle races; motorboat races, on the Mississippi, under the auspices of the Western Rowing Club, and the pageant and ball of the veiled prophet, on the night of October 7.

The procession of the veiled prophet consists of twenty electrically illuminated floats, in two divisions, telling the story of life. Theme, "The Seven Ages and the Five Senses."

Division one portrays Shakespeare's man from the infant to old age; division two illustrates the senses, first seriously, then humorously.



Christening the Case Coon, the car in which Joe Nikrent was hurt.

Miss Belle Robards anointing the fast racer in which Nikrent drove his last automobile contest at Galveston, where he wrecked the car rather than injure a lad on the course.

BEARDSLEY ELECTRIC IS TO BE THING OF BEAUTY.

LOS ANGELES is to be the center of the electric vehicle industry if Volney S. Beardsley has his way. A new concern, to be known as the Beardsley Electric Company, has just been formed. Electric vehicles known as the Beardsley electrics will be built here in this city in a splendidly equipped plant.

As president and general manager of the Auto Vehicle Company, Beardsley became well known to the local motor trade. He has a wide circle of acquaintances in the business world both here and in the East. On a recent visit to the Atlantic seaboard he made plans for securing the necessary equipment for his big undertaking.

This electric will be produced at a price that will be within the reach of a large market. For two years Beardsley has been busily engaged on the details of a plan that has for its object the biggest boost ever given to the local industry.

There is not a man in the business here in Los Angeles who is better adapted to the task which has been set for him than this same Volney S. Beardsley. Square as a die; honest in all his dealing and ready to "be shown," the pioneer of the electric vehicle business is sure to make good. He has the backing of some of the best men in our city and will be associated with Watt Moreland, designer of the Moreland truck.

The new organization is ready for business and the first car will be seen on the streets of Los Angeles in about a week. Beardsley will be president and manager of the new concern. Watt L. Moreland of the Moreland Truck Company of this city is first vice-president, and M. Elsasser, a wealthy local capitalist, is second vice-president.

The directors are R. H. Rafael, Charles H. Sorg, L. Goldwater and John T. Shannon. Arthur Wright is secretary; E. C. Stroble, cashier; John T. Shannon, electrical engineer, and Charles H. Sorg, superintendent. The personnel of the directors and of the men back of the concern assure its financial strength and its success.

Improved ideas are promised in the Beardsley electric, including several features which have never been seen in an electric automobile. The control mechanism is of an entirely original type and is said to be absolutely foolproof. While the idea of the construction of this electric has been to avoid freakishness, yet many distinctive features will mark the new production.

Something New.

WORKS OF ART MAKE NEW PIERCE-ARROW MEN SMILE.

AN art department was installed six years ago by the Pierce-Arrow Motor Car Company. The object was to assist agents to obtain for owners that maximum of distinctive beauty and individuality which has been the Pierce aim from the first. In order to awaken a keen appreciation of the artistic possibilities of the motor car, the first task of this department was to treat the interior of a standard enclosed car in a purely decorative manner. A car trimmed in hand-tooled Cordovan leather was the first offering, followed the next year by a car done in Circassian walnut and one in Louis XVI style.

The extravagant nature of these cars precluded any possibility of their ever becoming a commercial proposition, but they served their purpose. The public was awakened to two things: First, the possibility of improving the appearance of motor cars by giving more attention to the selection of colors and materials, and, second, to the facilities and resources of the Pierce-Arrow factory to carry these improvements into effect.

Primarily the art department is a part of the sales organization, yet its duties are of a dual capacity, for it often happens that in order to successfully carry out the requirements of some customer it must become part of the manufacturing organization. As a part of the latter organization it aims to improve the general appearance of each new model by offering suggestions to the body-designing department with reference to lines, and has under its direct supervision the arrangement of color schemes, upholstery, hardware, lamps and appointments.

W. E. Bush, the local Pierce-Arrow agent, recently said that with proper care a good car would last a man's lifetime. To substantiate this statement Bush has the following letter from W. H. Brown, a Montana coal dealer:

"We now have in use at this office two of your forty-five-horse-power, seven-passenger cars and one of your 1906 models, which are giving exceptional service. Our 1906 car has been driven over 170,000 miles and is in active service every day, and we do not know of any other car on the market which will do the same amount of work over all conditions of roads as the Pierce-Arrow and with the same upkeep."

"We do not know how long one of our cars, properly cared for, will last. None of them has ever worn out. They are cheaper to own in the long run than other cars because they are durable. They are cars to keep through many seasons, not one or two-year cars."

SMALL TRUCKS IN HOMER FACTORY.

In addition to the building of the big Homer tractors, the factory of the Homer Motors Company will soon begin the construction of the first of a large output of small delivery wagons. The new motor delivery will be of 800 pounds capacity and will be equipped with a powerful two-cylinder Homer motor, water-cooled, and the construction throughout will be of the most sturdy character.

The announcement of the new car has made a sensation among motor dealers, chiefly owing to the fact that, because of the simplicity of the construction of the Homer motor, the delivery wagon can be built and sold for a greatly lower figure than any other car of like capacity, and still leave a good profit for the builders.

Before deciding to build the new wagon an old chassis was fitted with a two-cylinder Homer motor and a thorough test was made. The car and the motor performed in a manner that convinced the directors of the company that a great field was open for a cheap but good delivery car, and arrangements were then completed for the construction of the first of the new cars.

A large number of dealers have visited the offices of the Homer Motors Company and, after inspecting the plans of the little delivery, have asked for reservations and territory for the sale. Enough of these reservations have already been received to insure a steady business for the Homer factory.

KISSEL KAR'S KLIMB.

Camp Bonita lies at the junction of the San Gabriel River and Cattle Creek Canyon. Nothing but mules had ever been able to shin up to the place through the soft dirt and sand and over the murderous grades, until a Kissel Kar, driven by W. K. Bunch, tried it.

While the going was not particularly joyful; Bunch achieved the height. The car and himself met with no accidents.

WOMEN READY FOR THIS CAR.

New Self-Starting Buick Appeals to the Fair Sex.

Extra Equipment Makes Decided Hit With Autoists.

Many Demonstrations Made and Sales Recorded.

Never in the history of the Buick has there been a more decided interest taken in the new line than this year. The salesroom of the Howard Automobile Company has been thronged every day during the past week, and the new self-starting Buick has been on the move every instant. The demonstrations made and the number of sales recorded are evidence of the popularity of this new car.

Manager F. S. Howard of the local Buick agency is more than pleased with his new 1914 line. He now is assured of many deliveries and has given orders for the taking of as many deposits as can be secured. The limit has been raised and word has been received from Flint, Mich., that shipments can be expected each week. Manager Howard has a sales force that is particularly efficient and is ready for big business.

Feminine interest in the motor car is becoming more and more marked each year, and automobile manufacturers, recognizing the importance of appealing to women in motor construction, have added for the season of 1914 many features which particularly adapt the modern automobile to the feminine motorist. There is no question but that the necessity of cranking a car has been one of the chief drawbacks to women driving, and the introduction of a reliable starting device of 100 per cent. efficiency has removed this objection.

The 1914 Buick appeals to the woman driver not only from a standpoint of ease in operation, but also because of its mechanical efficiency. Built around the famous overhead valve motor, the vital changes have been few, but the adoption of the Delco electric starter, Delco electric lights, left-hand drive and right-hand gear shift control, wide doors, in addition to the sweeping refinement of body construction, the new Buick has at last fulfilled the promise of motor car manufacturers to produce a car that can be handled in perfect safety by the entire family.

The success which has already greeted the appearance of the new Buick models shows that the public has long been waiting for a car possessing these refinements, and Manager F. S. Howard of the Howard Automobile Company predicts that the near future will find as many women as men at the wheel of the new Buick.

BARNEY BREAKS RECORD.

Firestone tires were used by Barney Oldfield in breaking the Michigan mile record at Detroit on September 21, when he made the distance in 48.8 seconds. These tires also won the Panama-Pacific, Tacoma, and Corona road races, within the past few months.

48 "Six" KISSELKAR 48 "Six"

The warm reception of the KisselKar 48 "Six" proves beyond doubt that the public is quick and keen in the recognition of automobile values.

WHEREVER the KisselKar 48 "Six" has been shown it has created genuine enthusiasm. Its low hung body, clean, artistic lines and refinement of design produce an instantly favorable impression, which is decisively confirmed by a study of the specifications and personal test of its riding qualities.

The KisselKar 48 "Six" is more than superficially attractive—its construction is mechanically perfect. While it is good to look upon—every inch a thoroughbred from radiator to tail light—the real measure of its merit lies in the things that produce riding comfort and lasting service. In these vital factors the KisselKar 48 "Six" invites comparison with any car regardless of price.

The KisselKar 48 "Six" meets and masters every road condition. It is equipped with a dependable long-stroke motor of remarkable flexibility, obedient to every demand. It will pull you up any hill without "rushing" and you can slow down to a "creep" without shifting gears. This motor is so accurately built that you can scarcely hear it when running.

An examination of the big axles, big steering knuckles, large gears and bearings will show you that at every vital point of wear and strain the KisselKar 48 "Six" is more strongly built than is considered necessary by most automobile manufacturers. Only a few of the highest priced cars contain so much of the marvelously tough, wear-resisting, heat-treated chrome vanadium steel. It is this extra strong construction which gives the KisselKar 48 "Six" its remarkable dependability and makes possible years of continuous service at a low cost for upkeep.

Extra liberal wheelbase permits the unusually roomy tonneau and deep seats. The big wheels, tires, springs and shock absorbers make the KisselKar 48 "Six" a car of extraordinary comfort. It is perfectly balanced in construction, being correctly proportioned for size and weight, making it light-footed in picking the way over any road and equal to any demand.

Before you make a selection of an automobile, by all means investigate the KisselKar. You must see and examine the KisselKar to fully appreciate and understand the points of superiority and the exceptional values.

There are three KisselKar models: 48 "Six," $2500; 60 "Six," $3300; 40 "Four," $2000, f.o.b. Los Angeles—all fully equipped, electric lighted and started; left hand drive and center control.

KisselKar Service

The KisselKar is sold under a written guarantee of service to owners—a tangible, definite and specific contract that clearly stipulates the scope of KisselKar Service and is a decided advance in the evolution of the "Service" idea.

AT THE SUMMIT IN A PACKARD.

High Sierras Reached by Six-Cylinder Tourer.

Ten Thousand Feet Into Blue on This Jaunt.

ine Record Made by Page on Interesting Run.

Into the high Sierras in a Packard six-cylinder is the interesting experience of Stanley H. Page who has just returned from the long jaunt. With Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Belden, Miss Margaret Belden and Thomas Buckley the big car was driven up into the high hills over some of the steepest grades and into the most interesting scenery to be found in the West.

The record of the trip is of fascinating interest to motorists. There was no trouble whatever with the car. Some of the roads followed lead into the Yosemite Park. Lake Tahoe is on the route chosen and the car reached a country which is seldom visited by automobiles. The roads are rough and particularly steep, but the Packard "was there" according to Page, all the time. In writing of the trip Page says:

"Few California motorists realize that there is a road within the boundaries of their own State over which it is possible to drive an automobile to an altitude of 10,000 feet and from which it is possible to view Alpine scenery equal to and even excelling that of the more traveled regions of Switzerland or the Canadian Pacific Rockies.

"This road crosses the Sierras over Sonora Pass at a point about midway between Lake Tahoe and Yosemite Valley, and affords access to regions that are rarely visited except on foot or horseback.

"From Stockton the trip follows the main road through Farmington, Knights Ferry and into the region inhabited by Bret Harte's picturesque characters. The road through the foothills to Jimtown and Sonora is dusty and rough and prohibits any but slow driving.

HARD GOING.

"At Sonora we were informed that the sixty miles to the foot of the last grade, locally spoken of as 'the foot of the summit' was in good condition, but the nine miles to the 'top of the mountain' was almost impassable for a machine on account of the steep grades and heavy sand. As it was barely noon we decided to go as far as Strawberry or Parsons where we were told we could spend the night if the pass could not be made before dark.

"After leaving Sonora the road continues through the dry foothills leaving Soulsbyville on the right. By the time we reached Confidence and Sugarpine the pines and sequoias had begun to appear and the springs beside the road became more numerous. For a distance of five or six miles beyond Sugarpine the road follows the canyon of the North Fork of the Tuolumne, 1000 feet above the river, finally climbing to the top of the ridge and dropping down to the South Fork of the Stanislaus, which it crosses at Strawberry. The replies to our inquiries as to the road over the pass were far from reassuring, but it was four hours till sunset and only thirty-eight miles to the summit, so it was decided that we should go on.

AT THE SUMMIT.

"From Strawberry there is a stiff climb to the top of the ridge, and then a drop of 1000 feet to the bottom of the canyon of the Middle Fork of the Stanislaus. The river was crossed at Brighton Flat, and was closely followed to Kennedy's meadows, which is 'the foot of the summit.' From this point the grade is steep and our aneroid showed a rise of 1000 feet in less than a mile. The steepest grade is 28 per cent. at a point known as the Q-de-Porka, which is a narrow cut through the solid rock forty feet deep for a distance of 100 feet, and just wide enough for a machine to pass.

"From this point the scenery becomes more rugged, the trees began to dwindle and to appear stunted and gnarled, and it was not long before we found ourselves above the perpetual snow line. The last few miles of the road to the summit follows Deadman's Creek, and in a few places it was barely wide enough for us to get by. The last mile was an easy climb through Alpine Meadows, and it was just dusk as we climbed over the summit.

"The Nevada desert was at our feet and on either side rugged peaks rose to an altitude of almost 12,000 feet. The government bench mark at the top of the pass was marked 9624 feet above sea level. As it was after dusk when we started down we had to run slowly in order to keep in the middle of the ill-defined road. The only difficulty was experienced at a deep ford at the bottom of a steep pitch. This ford was not long, but was entered at such an angle that for an instant the radiator was completely submerged, short-circuiting the wiring and stopping the motor, but our momentum was such that the car did not stop till the front wheels were on the opposite bank, and we were able to get at the magneto and wiring in order to wipe off the water. About 10 o'clock we reached Fales Hot Springs where we found a comfortable ranch-house and country hotel."

BIG DEMAND ON FOR LOZIER CARS.

The Lozier Motor Company directors have been obliged to increase their operative funds in order to meet the demand for their new cars of the coming year. The directors themselves took up all new stock, none being offered the public.

At the meeting of directors it was announced that as a starter for 1914 business, Lozier dealers have already placed orders for more than 5000 cars. The new four-cylinder car in the popular-priced field, just announced by Lozier, has proven the biggest sensation ever brought out by the company. Although the first of these models will not be turned out until after January 1, Lozier dealers in all sections of the country have informed the Detroit offices that they are taking cash deposits from customers months in advance. If no more orders were received from Lozier dealers, the number now on hand would be sufficient to make 1914 a record year for the Lozier company. During the coming year, the Lozier company will manufacture two models, the six-cylinder car selling at $5000 and the four at $2100.

One of the beauty spots on the road to Yosemite where the big trees meet.

Near the forbidden country which is to be made more interesting because of the work already accomplished by the Automobile Club of Southern California.

Long Route.

CHALMERS STARTS ON A TRANSCONTINENTAL TRIP.

ONE of the last transcontinental motoring parties to leave Los Angeles for the East was given a send-off last Monday afternoon, when Frank J. Grandon and three friends left for New York.

Piloting a Chalmers 36, Grandon will follow the southern route through Arizona and New Mexico, and on through Colorado and Kansas, by way of the Santa Fe trail.

A short stop will be made at the Grand Canyon of the Colorado, but the tourists do not expect to lay over in any cities before reaching Denver, as they realize that winter is almost here, and the snow in the Arizona mountains will prove troublesome.

The Chalmers was completely equipped for the long tour, and just before leaving Grandon drove down to the Martin Shock Absorber factory and placed an order for a complete set of Martin absorbers, as he realized that the hard trip across the desert and Rocky Mountains without Martin absorbers would be about 50 per cent. harder on both the occupants of the car and the machine itself.

Grandon is director of the Selig Moving Picture Company, and the long journey to New York is being made in the interests of that firm.

On the Move.

NEW HOME FOR SIMPLEX AND MERCER CARS READY.

SIMPLEX and Mercer cars now have a new home. The Bentel & Mackey Co. has moved into the handsome new building which has been erected at No. 1052 South Grand avenue. The structure is three stories in height and is one of the most completely-equipped buildings in the city.

A general overhauling and repair work is carried on by the company, and some of the most beautiful bodies in the State have been turned out recently.

The first floor is occupied by the service department and the top manufacturing forces. As the Bentel & Mackey Co. handles the Simplex and Mercer cars, the repair and service station is located in the new building, although the sales department is still located at Eleventh and Olive.

The second floor is completely filled by the body building and repair department. A complete motor car can be built in the well-equipped shops, and this angle of the motor car industry is being covered by the company.

The only air-tight and dust-proof varnishing compartment in the city has been installed on the third floor of the new building, and some beautiful work is being turned out in the color line.

George Bentel stated yesterday: "We are now prepared to handle all kinds of automobile repairing and overhauling, and our plant is the most complete in the city. We have employed trained experts with years of experience to take care of our trade, and from now on we expect to produce wonderful results in the turning out of made-to-order bodies and motor cars.

"We manufacture glass fronts, tops, fenders, bodies, tire racks and other automobile fixtures. Our painting equipment is second to none as no expense has been spared to secure the best and most modern equipment."

Charles A. Mackey of the Bentel-Mackey Company, is the proud owner of a handsome racing Mercer roadster. The car was received last week, and is one of two turned out to order by the Mercer company.

The other car is owned by Carl Fisher of the Indianapolis Speedway. The little roadster has wire wheels, and has the same motor as the Mercer racing cars. The roadster body is placed on a touring car chassis, giving a longer wheel base and natty lines.

Mackey stated when he received the car, that he was going to limber up the motor first and later take the speedy Mercer out for a few trial spins in an attempt to set a few records between adjacent cities.

COLE CAR SMASHES MT. HOOD ALTITUDE RECORD.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

PORTLAND (Or.) Oct. 1.—To a Cole "Six-60" and C. S. Crawford goes the honor of breaking all records in climbing toward the summit of Mt. Hood, Oregon's famous scenic wonder that rises thousands of feet in the Cascade Mountains. The chief engineer of the Cole Motor Car Company of Indianapolis piloted his machine to an elevation of 4800 feet, while a crowd of amazed newspaper men and other prominent people of Portland and Salem watched his perilous progress.

When the transcontinental Cole test car, with Chief Engineer Crawford and Chief Tester Lew Pettijohn arrived here it was suggested that an attempt be made to break the Mt. Hood record, an honor eagerly sought by all local motorists. Undaunted by tales of the steep grade, with its winding, narrow, rocky and sandy trail, Crawford started out to accomplish the seemingly impossible.

To appreciate the gruelling test the Cole was put to one should try to drive over the road, if it can be dignified by such title. In many places the grade was 30 per cent., while the car sank to a depth of one foot in sand. Huge boulders had to be pried loose in order that the car might pass. Crawford was stopped only when the rear wheels lost traction in the deep sand while trying to negotiate a 30-per cent. pitch.

As a result of his rather wonderful accomplishment, Crawford probably will be presented with a medal by the Mazamas, a local mountain-climbing organization with an internationl reputtion. This band of sturdy "hikers" appreciate fully his wonderful work, for many times they have grown weary climbing by foot to the point where he stopped.

After entering the Oregon National Forest Reserve it was a steady climb to the end, a distance of approximately fifteen miles. Not once on all the drive was the radiator's contents replenished, a fact so worthy of comment that it was appreciated by even the uninitiated. Government Camp was the farthest point ever reached by an automobile before. Crawford went two miles past this point.

STUDEBAKER FIRM HAVE MUCH TRADE.

A Studebaker "25" roadster won the trophy in the recent Seattle reliability run, with a perfect score and without adjustment or repair in the 900 miles of rough going, against a field of twenty-three other cars.

The Breen Motor Company of Winnipeg has contracted for $500,000 worth of these cars for 1914 delivery in the Canadian Northwest.

The Studebaker management states that their actual sales will take the full capacity of the plant production for a year hence, and that the coming season's business in automobiles will, in its estimation, be greater than that just closing.

TWO OF A KIND.

A rather amusing incident occurred at the salesroom of the Lord Motor Car Company when on last Friday two of the Maxwell 25's were sold to parties of the same name, neither of whom knew the other, one party being H. L. Price and the other H. C. Price. The sales were closed within twenty minutes of each other in different parts of the city. Fourteen of the Maxwell 25's arrived in the city Monday morning and Tuesday night not one remained in the garage of the Lord Motor Car Company. Harry Lord is experiencing considerable trouble keeping one of these cars on the salesroom floor. With a shipment of thirty-two of the 25's on the road it will only be a matter of a few days until the Lord company will be caught up on orders.

Humble Start.

HUPMOBILE WAS BORN IN SHED.

NOW OCCUPIES HUGE AMOUNT OF FLOOR SPACE.

Little Car Which Started Out in 1908 Has Been Growing Rapidly and Now Turns Out About Fourteen Thousand Cars a Year—Company Has Become Stable.

"The Hupmobile was born in a shed; today it occupies 250,000 square feet of floor space with as complete an equipment as engineers have learned how to design.

"From 1908 to 1913 is a short stretch of time; yet that interval has witnessed the development of the automobile industry," said Walter Drake, president of the Hupp Motor Car factory.

"The outlook for 1914 is excellent for our factory.

"Our organization, starting naturally with a small unit, has gradually been enlarged, so that the factory and dealers' organizations take care of any expansion of our business. Naturally, in the intensification of our development a few changes had to be made, as well as additions to our executive and sales forces.

"Perhaps the best illustration of the efficiency of an organization is in its results. One year ago we faced the problem of doubling our entire product—an undertaking which meant the selling of some fourteen thousand cars. The fact that we have accomplished this is the best answer that I know of as to the dependability of our organization.

"The policy of the organization has always been to so arrange its plans that the services of no one man would be indispensable—a policy that we have been able to work out effectively through the harmonious team work among the heads of the different departments.

"Another fact in regard to the permanency of our institution is that, since the incorporation of this company there has been less than a 10 per cent. change among its distributors. Today, practically every Hupmobile dealer has established a solid organization in his own territory, built along the same lines of permanency and stability as has marked the progress of our company."

OVER THE DESERT IN A MAXWELL.

C. L. Cassidy arrived in Los Angeles two weeks ago from Douglas, Ariz., for the purpose of looking over the many and various automobiles offered for sale in the city of Los Angeles to choose a car for W. E. Schwamm, a Douglas merchant. Cassidy finally settled on a Maxwell "six" and received delivery of one of the seven-passenger touring cars about a week ago.

Contrary to the advice of friends, Cassidy decided to drive the car overland, notwithstanding the fact that the roads are probably worse at this time of year than at any other time. Cassidy had had practically no automobile experience, had never been over the road at all between Los Angeles and Phoenix, and most people would have undertaken a trip of this nature with much fear and trembling. Cassidy being a steady-going, methodical sort of an individual, left Los Angeles Monday night and landed in Phoenix on Thursday without experiencing a moment's trouble of any kind in the new Maxwell "six." After laying over one day in Phoenix, he proceeded on to Douglas, where Schwamm, the owner of the car, was made happy by the first sight of his new purchase.

NEW TRUCK TIRE.

Made of Mixture of Solid and Pneumatic Types Seems to Fill the Bill.

"A happy compromise between the solid rubber tire and the pneumatic seems to have solved the difficult problem of a tire for the automobile truck," said T. H. McGiehan, general manager of the Motz Tire and Rubber Company of Akron, O.

"After considerable experimenting, we have produced such a tire. We intended it first as a tire for our electric vehicles, but the truck men insisted upon having a tire of similar design.

"The tire has double the tractive area of the ordinary solid tire of the same rated size. This is an important factor involving an economical question that results in a great saving in fuel consumption. No power is consumed in turning wheels that are not constantly in contact with the road surface. In this way the machine is always propelled in an onward and not an upward direction.

"The success of the Motz S. A. E. Cushion Tire is practically assured, as many manufacturers have proved to their own satisfaction the desirabilities of this time."

Rides Like Constant Coasting

"What Shall I Do With My Old Car?"

"I WANT a new automobile. The one I have doesn't quite satisfy, yet it would do. I cannot afford to throw it away or scrap it. I want a newer car. One with more power—A six-cylinder—A left-hand drive—A streamline body—An electric self-starter—A quiet, powerful, easy-riding automobile. But what am I to do with the car I now have?"

Don't Deceive Yourself

WHATEVER you do, don't be deceived as to the real value of your car. It is worth no more to someone else than to you. The chances are it is not worth so much.

If someone—a dealer—in order to have you buy his new car, offers you more for the one you have than can be gotten elsewhere—remember that he is making his profits out of the cash you pay to obtain his new car in addition to turning in your old one.

Because the car is priced at $3,000 does not necessarily mean $3,000 value.

Remember that pianos sell at anywhere between $300 and $1,000. The price charged often depends on the instrument you have to trade in.

But with motor cars, prices are fixed. Some makers know that a large share of their trade will come from those who already own a car, and to attract them the list price is put high in order to provide a fund out of every sale to take care of excessive allowances on the used car.

Hudson Six 54 Values Are Real

THIS—the handsomest car ever designed—is not built for trading. It is priced low for cash buyers. It is the kind of value you get when you pay cash. In its purchase you are not paying a high price to help absorb the used car of some other buyer.

If you drive a Six, then drive this one for a while. If you do not know anything about six-cylinder cars—then come, experience its smoothness.

The man who knows nothing of the electric light is satisfied with his kerosene lamp. To him it is the very best artificial light to be obtained. So it is with the man who knows only the four-cylinder car. He does not understand the pleasures and satisfaction to be obtained with a Six.

The Hudson Six 54 rides like constant coasting. Up hill or down, over rough roads or smooth, at any speed, you ride with a comfort not obtainable in any four.

There is nothing lacking in this car to make it complete. Its true streamline body, left-hand drive, center control, entrance to driver's seat from either side, four-speed transmission and many other details—some exclusive, all advanced—are features you should see.

Would you let such value be compared with the fictitious price of a car made for trading?

Made under the supervision of the Automobile Club of Southern California

You can save two-thirds of your fuel bill and have more power, less carbon and a sweeter-running motor. The round trip from Los Angeles to San Diego, a distance of 325 miles, was made for 42 cents, using a 30-H.P. touring car, carrying 4 passengers. The run was made over bad roads and at no time did the motor heat, not using a drop of water, and only two and one-half pints of lubricating oil.

Our system is adapted to all hydro-carbon engines and we defy the world to equal us for efficiency and economy.

Good News.

MANY MOTORS ON THEIR WAY.

Heavy Shipments of Chalmers to Local Agency.

Trainload Lots Sent Out to Eager Auto Prospects.

Nineteen-Fourteen Cars in Great Demand Here.

Chalmers cars are coming in trainload lots. This is the welcome news just received at the Chalmers-Los Angeles Company. The first big shipment was made last week and fifty of the handsome six-cylinders were sent out in one bunch, only to be followed by two other large shipments, one of which was consigned to Los Angeles, where fifty excited and anxious prospective owners are waiting for the cars.

These cars are sold before they arrive. It is to be a question of output once more. The Chalmers factory at Detroit is employing men night and day to turn out the six-cylinders and the Chalmers "36" cars. The capacity, however, will be limited only to the number of cars that can be finished after the severest of tests.

Hugh Chalmers has determined to limit the output to the number of cars that can be given the O.K. of the expert designers at the Chalmers plant. This is to be a record-breaking Chalmers year, but the standard of perfection is to be maintained, in spite of the steady demand for the cars which is such that every machine that can be shipped to this city will be delivered to an eager prospect whose deposit is already in the hands of the local agents.

The new model 19 Chalmers is proving popular. It retains all of the features which made the 1913 car ideal for touring. It has many material advantages, however. The unusually graceful lines, with the full flush sides, the bell-backed tonneau and moulded oval fenders are particularly attractive and give to the car that grace and elegance which is only found in the higher-priced 1914 models.

NEW FEATURES.

One of the features which appeals to the motorist is the gasoline tank and tire irons, which are suspended in the rear. The battery and tool boxes have been placed under the front seat. In this way the running boards are absolutely clear and give the car the appearance of having no unnecessary impedimenta.

The positive pressure system feeds the gasoline to the carburetor by means of the automatic pressure pump. The amount of gasoline can be seen at once by the gauge, which tells just how low the supply of fuel has become. The tank holds twenty-five gallons and the wonderful mileage already recorded makes this new Chalmers one of the most economical of the cars turned out by the factory.

With a bore of 4¼ inches and a stroke of 5¼, the motor develops the full thirty-six horsepower. The Chalmers has been tested on some of the severest hills and has made good in every instance. It is one of the cars that has shown to advantage under the most severe tests, with everything against the motor and with the men at the wheel trying to select the steepest grades and the roughest of roads.

FULL EQUIPMENT.

Because of the regular equipment which includes the Gray & Davis electric lighting system, and the self-starter that starts, with the Continental demountable rims, the Warner speedometer, the new type of tire-carrier, the power tire inflator, the gasoline pressure system with the mechanical pump and a complete repair outfit, the car this year is declared to be lower-priced than ever before.

The model 19 comes in two body types and is shown in a torpedo and a touring car, which are extremely nobby and stylish. The cars this year embody so many improvements, none of which are drastic, that the 1914 models appeal at once to the lover of a motor car.

STEARNS MOVES.

The Philadelphia and Los Angeles Branches Incorporate—Headquarters to Be Here.

The F. B. Stearns Company of Cleveland, manufacturers of the Stearns-Knight cars, has incorporated its Los Angeles and Philadelphia branches, the latter being known as the F. B. Stearns Company of California." The headquarters of the California branch will be moved from San Francisco to Los Angeles. J. H. Duffee, who for the past year has been western manager of the Stearns company, continues in the same capacity.

HUDSON SEDAN HAS ARRIVED.

HAS WIRE WHEELS AND STREAM LINE BODY.

Self-starter Has Enough Power to Carry Car Across a Crossing if the Motor Stalls—Has Four Speeds Forward and a Reverse. Rated at Fifty-five Horse-Power.

The long expected 1914 Hudson sedan has arrived. Following many advance notices, the latest product of the Hudson plant has created a furore along the local automobile row, as it is undoubtedly the most beautiful closed car which has been displayed this season.

Refinement is the keynote of the Hudson sedan, and every little detail tending to increase the comfort of the owner has been attended to by the designers of the car.

Upon first glance, one cannot help noticing the wire wheels and the stream line body. The combination is in keeping with the rest of the car, as the very latest equipment has been built into the car.

The Delco self-starter and electric lighting system has been adopted by the Hudson engineers, and the silent six-cylinder motor of the sedan is started by simply pressing a button.

The sloping crown fenders and clear running boards give the car a neat appearance, which can be obtained in no other way. The convenient left-hand drive with center control makes the Hudson, an ideal car to drive in the midst of congested city traffic.

If the motor stalls at a crossing, by pressing the self-starter button, the electric motor offers sufficient power to enable the driver to continue on with out stopping.

The motor is rated a fifty-five horse power, and has four speeds forward and reverse.

A NEW LOCK.

Cartercar Owner Finds a Method of Locking Car and Wants No Improvements.

Harry R. Radford tells an amusing story of the owner of a first model Cartercar, which Radford's company have for years been improving, from their own point of view.

"I met this fellow on my recent western trip," said Mr. Radford, "and he was showing me his car. 'It's the best car in the world,' he said, 'and I wouldn't part with it for anything.' I had been telling him that he ought to get one of the new models with modern improvements on it, but he only laughed. He said that he had something on his car that had all the improvements in the world backed off the boards. Then he told me about this patent lock."

"He had in some way adjusted the spark so that no one but himself could crank the car. He knew just how to do the trick, and when anyone else tried to start the car he was very likely to get thrown over a tree top. He said that he knew his lock was burglar proof because it had been proved. Just a short time before I saw him, a thief had tried to steal the old Cartercar, but had gotten a broken arm for his trouble. 'Talk about the electric starters on the new models,' he said, 'I'd like to know how I'd lock my car with an electric starter on it.'"

PRICE OF AUTOS RAPIDLY GOING DOWN, SAYS SPEE

WITH the gentle assertion that the auto is the original little reducer of the high cost of living, Froman Speers, president and general manager of the Lozier Automobile Company of the Pacific Coast, stated yesterday that within three years there would not be a car made that would cost more than $4000.

"It is the same as with the bicycle," said Speers. "The manufacturers have found that they can turn out better and cheaper cars by assembling the various parts of well-known, tested makes. So it is only a question of time when every part except the body will be made by outside factories that specialize in these different parts of the machine."

According to Speers there is hardly a car made today that does not have bearings, magneto, differential, radiators, lighting system and various other parts made by separate factories.

"Of course, there will always be some factory that will turn out every part of its own car, but it will cater to those who are willing for a fad. The well-know cars will very soon be as to cost," said Speers. can be made for less turned out by the thous the single piece."

The cost of steel also reduced price of autos, Speers. A few years ag suitable for gears had to from Germany. First, themselves were made next the blanks were and the gears cut out can factories. Today th facturers of America a steel every bit as pure as factories, so this in a larg helps to reduce the cost

The 1914 Lozier is the high-priced cars to be pl market at a popular pric model is selling for $3400, year the same car sold Manager Speers says sever makes are preparing for a duction which will be within a few weeks.

Quite True.

AUTOMOBILES HAVE MADE FARMERS INDEPENDEN

THE automobile, more than any other one thing, has made the farmer the independent and contented man that he is today," says George E. Daniels, vice-president and general manager of the Oakland Motor Car Company. "Please understand that I am excepting farm machinery, which was, of course, the most vital thing to him, in as much as it changed his method of work and allowed him to develop a wider area of land. But, taking it all in all, the automobile has been a most important assistant. It is truly wonderful when you think of what the motor car has accomplished for him.

"It has practically eliminated distances. Towns twenty-five miles away are no longer considered out of reach, as it is possible in an evening to visit friends at that distance. The automobile has helped to make the farmer and his family satisfied with country life. The loneliness of farm life is gone because people find pleasure in riding and getting in in town often. Their whole mode of living has been change thing. Do not forget, eith value of farm property ha materially on account of th car, and what is true of fa erty is also true of sub erty.

"The farmer's interest mobile is as keen as that man. In fact, I am incline that the farmer is better the reason that he takes est in his car and under mechanical details better.

"I recently received a one of our men who is through Minnesota and the and has attended several of them had automobile the automobile booths stantly crowded, nearly of the visitors being Minneapolis the interest there were more farmers demonstrations and inspecting tomobile exhibits than that were watching farm and seeking demonstrations various mechanical devices farm implements."

Across the Plains.

HOW LOZIER LIGHT SIX CROSSED THE CONTINEN

THE transcontinental touring season is drawing to a close and the last of the long tours across the continent will be made this month. The snows have already started in the highest mountains and within a short time it will not be possible to cross the Raton Pass.

Among the latest to arrive was R. G. Dunlap and party, who came in last week in a Lozier light six from Kansas City.

Leaving Kansas City September 12, Dunlap piloted his car over some of the worst roads in the country to Los Angeles in practically sixteen days. This is close to record time, and considering the heavy load which was carried on the long trip the time is all the more remarkable.

From Kansas City, Dunlap followed the Santa Fe trail to Trinidad, Colo., and he found the roads in good condition with the exception of the heavy dust, which was found throughout the State of Kansas.

From Trinidad the Lozier party crossed the Raton Pass and dropped down into Las Vegas. From the old frontier town Dunlap drove his car on to Santa Fe and Albuquerque, N. M. The roads are of solid foundation and fast time was recorded, according to Dunlap.

BAD ROADS.

From Albuquerque the Lozier six was piloted on through Quemada to Springerville, an old-fashioned Mormon village. From the latter place Dunlap reports the roads in wretched condition, as the old Santa Fe trail is in practically the same shape as it was in the days of the rush to the California gold fields.

High centers and gigantic rocks make the "going" very slow and a poor mileage record resulted for the Lozier party. Many interesting scenes were reported by the tourists in and around the Arizona White Mountains. Ft. Apache, 150 miles from a railroad, was one of the many novel scenes.

The road from the fort into Globe is one of the roughest stretches on the entire trip, according to Dunlap. High centers once more made fast driving impossible. most wonderful mountain the entire country is White Mountains and the City tourists enjoyed every the ride down into Globe.

UNCLE SAM'S ROAD.

From Globe a fine road into Phoenix by way of the Roosevelt dam, one of the pendous engineering feats tempted. The road was built government, and it is just as a city boulevard, notwith the fact that it is built over ranges of high mountains.

From Phoenix, Dunlap he followed the old through Buckeye, Harrisburg Salome to Ehrenberg, where ry was taken across the Colorado er to Blythe.

The road from Blythe, Chuckawalla Valley, is in fair but from Sand Canyon to this side, the sand makes almost impassable.

Dunlap stated yesterday "The trip was the most I have ever taken, and the performance of the Lozier car revelation to me, for it was long trip, and we did not have of trouble with the changing a tire, which was by the rocks in the mountains not have to touch the motor although I made a carburetor ment from the dash once when we were high up in the Mountains. We will probably in Los Angeles for a few which we will drive on to San Fran cisco."

AUTO RUN TO GIANT TREES.

Sequoia Park Short Distance from City's Heart.

Good Road to Camp Sierra, Trip Worth Trying.

Auto Club Man Makes Run Into the High Hills.

"Few motorists living in this section realize they are within two days' run by automobile of the largest body of giant Sequoias in the world," said J. J. Kinnan upon his return from the Sequoia National Park, where he had gone to obtain first hand knowledge of California's big trees. "Of these monsters the Gen. Sherman is king, it being thirty-six feet in diameter and 288 feet high. The Gen. Sherman tree is reputed to be the largest one in the world, but some of the rangers claim that there are still greater trees in the forest at little-known and almost inaccessible places to which neither roads nor trails have been built."

J. J. Kinnan is a resident of Pasadena throughout as much of the year as [illegible] away from business interests in the East. He is one of the most enthusiastic members of the Automobile Club of Southern California and probably has done as much automobile touring in this State as any of our business men who tour for pleasure. In discussing his most recent trip he gave the following information:

"The run from Pasadena to Bakersfield via Tejon Pass is 188 miles and is easily made in eight hours. From Bakersfield to Porterville is sixty-five miles over a good, level desert road. Then there are thirty-two miles of boulevard via Exeter to Lemon Cove, this being through a beautiful orange grove district. From Lemon Cove to Three Rivers is ten miles and at Three Rivers is a small hotel, new and clean. From there to the gate of the Sequoia National Park it is eleven miles. The road winds up the bank of the Kaweah River and is a little rough on account of the heavy teaming.

"To Camp Sierra from the gate of the park there is a good government road and the distance is seventeen miles. This makes a total distance from Bakersfield of 135 miles to the camp, or from here the total distance is [illegible] miles.

"The park was opened to motorists about August 1. The scenery from the park gate to Camp Sierra is grand and the views of the different peaks after reaching the higher elevations is magnificent. Camp Sierra is at an altitude of 6400 feet and is the most ideal camping location possible. It is situated in the midst of giant Sequoias and consists of a dining-room and canvas-covered tents scattered all through the grounds and at different elevations, thus affording seclusion to the guests and the possibility of a log fire in front of each tent.

"The most interesting thing about the great trees is not their size or their beauty; it is their age and the records they hold of conditions that existed thousands of years ago. A [illegible]-year-old Sequoia is just in its swaddling clothes, and it is only after it has reached an age of 1500 or 2000 years that it can be called a well grown young tree. The old trees are up around the 4000-year mark and the wonderful thing is that in their mighty hearts they hold stories and records of all that has happened from the day they pushed their green sprout above the surface of the ground. These stories are told to those who understand, but first the tree must be sawed off, because the records are kept in the yearly rings that have been formed from the beginning.

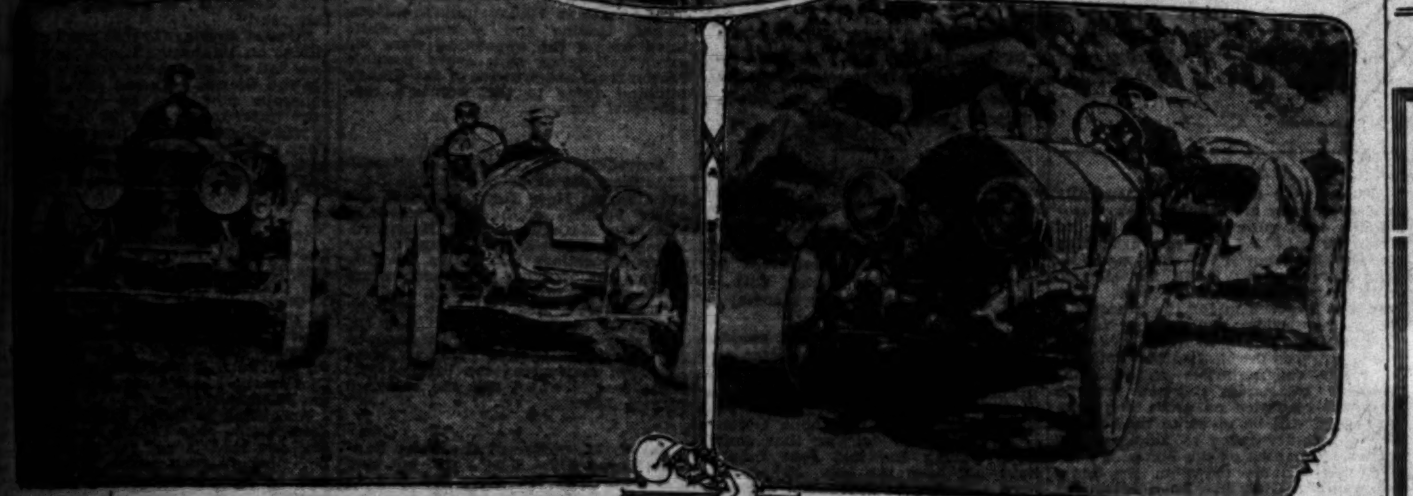
THOSE OLD TREES.

"Much has been learned by researchers through the old trees that have been felled. We can go back to the time of the Trojan wars, or about [illegible] years before Christ, and tell what the comparative amount of rainfall was. Periods of drouth extending over 100 years or more are recorded in the rings of the old trees. By comparing the trees' record with what can be inferred from ancient history regarding famines and the movements of whole nations of people to escape starvation, it has been found that it was during the period of aridity that were world-wide, but more intense at some places than others, that great hordes of barbaric races overran civilization. These hordes were driven by hunger and thirst out of their own countries and had to gain foothold elsewhere or perish.

"The Bible history of famine and pestilence is borne out and made more clear by the stories told in the Sequoias. During those times the trees were fighting year after year for sufficient water to maintain their lives, and the struggles of the human race throughout those years was most terrible. When we think of these things it is not surprising that the old giant trees become personal friends and that we can gain inspiration just by getting close to their mammoth exteriors, and considering what might be the meaning of the whispers and noddings of the boughs a hundred feet or so above our heads.

"I would advise all who can to make the trip to Sequoia Park. Camp Sierra offers enough of comfort so there is no hardship to undergo at any point. The cooking is plain and wholesome and the camp is in charge of Walter E. Kinney, who is of the Kinneys of Yosemite fame. One little point tells the whole story of how the camp is conducted. A clean napkin is furnished with each meal.

"The trip by machine is an interesting one and on the whole very comfortable. This is particularly true in the territory of the Southland, where the splendid work of our Automobile Club of Southern California is so much in evidence. I have toured this whole State and a number of others, and it is always a decided satisfaction to me when I get back to Southern California and always the first indication is the signs on the roads that have been erected by our auto club. It is also a satisfaction to know that I am a member of this organization and am doing my part in furthering its work. I bring as many members into the fold as I can, because I feel that every person who owns an automobile should help support the work going on, and I also feel that anyone who uses the roads is imposing on his fellow-users if he is not paying his share for the signing of the present roads and the obtaining of other good ones."



Out on the sands of the lonely desert in a Cadillac racer en route to Phoenix.

KNIGHT MOTORS ARE SUCCESSFUL.

TRIAL RESULTS IN BIG ORDER OF THEM.

London General Omnibus Company Expects to Replace 2600 Poppet Valve Motors on Their Busses With Sliding-Sleeve Motor After Trying Out 300 Cars.

Reporting the British Commercial Vehicle Show in its August 7th issue, The Automobile, one of the leading British trade papers, reviews the various types of buses, and remarks on the number which are equipped with the Knight type motor, adding the following significant comment:

"While on this subject it is worth while to state that, according to definite news published today, the big London General Omnibus Company, which has 2600 motor omnibuses on the London streets, has been so thoroughly satisfied with the service given by the 300 Knight-rigged Daimler buses, which have been running for twelve months past, that they have decided to replace gradually all the poppet engines in their 2600 buses with Knight motors. The Daimler busses in question are greatly favored by the public on account of their silence and smooth-running qualities, while the great power of acceleration enables the driver to pick his way through traffic to the very best advantage, with the result that the Knight motor has now been selected as standard for future work. In view of the fact that the daily run of a London bus is 110 miles of very strenuous work, it must be admitted that the success achieved here is very notable indeed."

More than two years ago the F. B. Stearns Company of Cleveland displayed their faith in the sleeve-valve principle by discarding the poppet-valve motor entirely and adopting the Knight type, despite the enviable reputation built up by the old Stearns motor.

COLLEGE LADS ON TOUR.

Two Ohio State University students, Charles Swartzbaugh and John Gager, have started on a motorcycle tour of Europe. They will tour the northern countries first, after which they will visit Germany, France and Italy. Mr. Swartzbaugh will probably remain in the old country for some time, looking after his father's manufacturing interests there.

TO GO THROUGH LOS ANGELES.

National Reliability Run Coming This Way.

Cars Will Come Here in the Exposition Year.

Route Now Being Laid Out by Pathfinder.

From New York to San Francisco by way of Los Angeles will be the route of the 1915 A.A.A. national reliability run. The route will be the one now being surveyed by the Indianapolis Pathfinder.

This run promises to be so big that every other reliability run ever attempted will be compelled to fade in comparison.

"The Ocean-to-Ocean Highway Association has plans for a route through the Middle West and Southwest that are bound to mature as the project is backed by typical western energy and brains.

"There are innumerable western good roads associations that have stretches of good road that they are not going to see isolated like an oasis in the desert of the western wilderness. Things will be booming in the good roads line all over the West for the next two years. And once started this movement will never cease.

"It is planned to enlist team entries in the three A tour representing various cities along the different transcontinental highway routes. Entries of two and three cars, say representing Indianapolis or Detroit or Cleveland would attract no end of attention on such a tour and would be commented on in all of the big newspapers and magazines throughout the country.

"Texas, and in fact all of the States throughout the great Southwest and Southern Atlantic States really have good roads, as is testified by the Indianapolis-made Pathfinder "40," which in spite of the great mileage it has totaled to date, has come through this hitherto unknown country with flying colors."

It is said that the proposed tour is intended in no way to detract interest from the worthy Lincoln highway project, but is to generate enthusiasm along some of the other routes, so that interest will not die out with the realization of one great ocean-to-ocean highway.

OXY MAY LAND STAR CADETS.

Some fast varsity material is to be turned out of the San Diego Army and Navy Academy in June and it is believed that Occidental College will get a lion's share of the youngsters.

Kohler and Jensen, two fast track men and football stars are both likely candidates for the Highland Park varsity, and George Bean, captain of the Army and Navy eleven this fall, may also go to Oxy.

Bill Holman, the former Citrus Union boy, will also graduate from the southern prep school in June, but he is reported to be sweet on U.S.C., where his former coach, Boyd Comstock, is on the job.

In addition to being a sterling track man, Holman is a baseball and football star, playing a half on the Army and Navy eleven this season.

A novel building task was recently revealed by a plan filed with the department of buildings of New York City for a gatehouse. The plans call for a one-story, fireproof building, 18x40.4 feet in area, which is to serve as an entrance to driveway for the large eleven-story garage recently completed. This gatehouse will cost $2000.

ELECTRIC GEAR SHIFT IS GOOD.

The Vulcan electric gear shift mechanism was lately tested by George H. Strout in a 700-mile trip from Kokomo to Sioux City, in a Haynes, model 26, five-passenger touring car. After the journey Mr. Strout said:

"I never fully realized the practical value of the Vulcan electric gear shift until I drove our model 26 from Cedar Rapids to Waterloo, sixty miles throught tough Iowa mud. There was scarcely a moment that I did not require both hands on the steering wheel and the simplicity with which I operated and controlled the car, in comparison with the use of the hand-shift lever, under similar conditions, was a revelation to me, and surely will be to those Haynes owners and prospective owners of Haynes cars whose orders are on hand for one of our latest models." NOISY AUTO BODY.

The body of a car is a source of noise that is frequently unsuspected. Usually made of wood, and in a number of parts held in more or less close contact, the severe contortion to which it is subjected serves to set various edges and surfaces to rubbing upon one another, with consequent noise production. A great offender in this respect is the door, which will rub against its jamb. Another way in which the door will become noisy is through the fastening, the lever or handle sometimes producing a rattle, especially if the spring breaks or becomes weak. There is no noise more annoying than a rattling door.

Good Advice.

INATTENTION MAKES TROUBLE.

OWNERS PUT OFF EXAMINATION TOO LONG.

Many Car Owners Hear Knocks and Other Trouble but Refuse to Have the Car Overhauled Until It Is Impossible to Run It—"A Stitch in Time—"

Good advice to motorists is given by W. M. Lee of the Regal service department, in a late commentary upon car troubles.

"It is exaggerating but little, if any, to say that fully 75 per cent. of mechanical troubles that develop in automobiles are a direct result of inattention on the part of the car owners."

"In some cases this negligence may be excusable on the plea of inexperience and lack of knowledge of what was required in the way of adjustments, but in most cases any lack of attention can be readily traced to an attitude of procrastination on the part of the car owner."

"Knocks, pounds or other foreign noises emanating from the motor and plainly indicating distress within, are for the time tolerated, and the owner quiets his conscience by assuring himself that he will have the matter investigated at the first time it is convenient for him to be without the use of his car for a day or so. However, it usually happens that this convenient time is not forthcoming. Mr. Car-owner continues to drive his car; the indications of distress become more pronounced; then finally the inevitable happens—the motor is disabled and the car has to be towed to the repair shop. The motor is taken apart for inspection and the mechanic reports a scored cylinder; a broken connecting rod bearing cap and damage to other parts that invaribly accompany this, or, other trouble that will make necessary the installing of new parts and considerable labor to correct. When asked what caused the trouble, the mechanic will probably say, a loose wrist pin screw; a worn connecting rod bearing or the bolts in the bearing cap loose; or name some other conditions that could easily have been eliminated if given attention at the proper time. By lack of timely attention, a large repair bill has been incurred and a delay of several days must be tolerated before the repairs can be completed, and the car ready for the road."

"No matter in what part of the car trouble develops, whether in the motor, transmission gear set, rear axle or in one of the lesser units, the car owner is invaribly given ample notice of the presence of the trouble by sounds of distress or other noticeable symptoms and if he is wise this should be his cue for prompt action in the matter of investigation and adjustments."

Doing Well.

DOLLARS SAVED MONEY EARNED.

Automobile Club's Insurance Plan Attractive.

Twenty-five Hundred Autoists Now Interested.

First Year's Work Nets Fine Total of Profit.

Twenty-five hundred Southern California motorists were saved $78,000 during the past eleven months by the Automobile Club of Southern California. The average autoist is daily wondering what will ram his shiny new car from behind. In England the apprehension grew so great that to relieve the nervous strain, members of the Royal Automobile Club of Great Britain banded together, apprehension diminished, and the result was a mutual insurance organization for its members, which wrote insurance at reduced rates. Its success was unqualified.

About four years ago Secretary S. C. Geary of the local club suggested to its board of directors that to the benefits already accruing to the members in the way of maps, touring information and a consistent effort for good roads, should be added a reduced rate of insurance. Skeptics remarked that such a thing could never come to pass. Miss Geary knew whereof she spoke, the directors investigated the possibilities and Guy Van Alstine was summoned, and just eleven months ago, in this city, was launched what has proved to be one of the most successful departments of its kind in the world.

The Auto Club rapidly became the most powerful in America. With its increase in membership came an added power for the securing of better highways, and also came a settled conviction to the directors that the insurance system was a practicable one. That only members are given the reduced rates of insurance has led hundreds of automobile owners to join the club within the last few months, the activities of which have increased with the increase in membership.

MYSTERY SOLVED.

Just how the interinsurance system operates has been a mystery or a matter of no concern to the average automobile owner not a member of the club. How $78,000 was saved to Southern California auto owners is a fact known best to the 2500 members who have availed themselves of this opportunity.

The exchange during the past eleven months has written insurance for club members aggregating $94,000 in premiums. At board rates, explains the club, this would have cost the car owners $134,000, pointing out that the insured were given an initial saving of $40,000.

That there are no profits derived by any but the insured themselves and that the directors of the club are among the most influential men in the State has secured for the system a sound basis. The amount of unearned premium being returned to the insured upon the expiration or cancellation of his policy approximates 30 per cent., which, as shown by the department, means an additional saving of $28,000 more. In addition to this the department has written for club members personal liability insurance in premium volume of practically $20,000 for the year, which was written at a 25 per cent. discount to members, an additional saving of $10,000.

Good roads and touring information are necessary adjuncts to motordom. The Automobile Club at present possesses the most complete system of touring information and maps anywhere obtainable; in addition it has the most up-to-date insurance department in the country.

The significance of the work of the exchange has been found in the fact that, with the rapid increase in membership, the Southern California club has increased its power in the instigation of good roads and in lessening the troubles of the motorist.

That there are no stockholders to receive dividends, no quarters outside of the clubrooms at Eighth and Olive streets to maintain, and that there is no staff of solicitors, appeals to autoists.

That S. C. Geary was justified in her prediction that such a department would prove a valuable adjunct to the club has been definitely proved. Membership has advanced rapidly and a remarkable work has been accomplished.

AMERICAN CARS WIN MANY RACES.

American underslung cars are put by their owners in heavy races, though the American Motors Company, manufacturers, have retired from the racing game. A recent report states that the Mexicans chose their Independence Day for holding a big automobile race meet around Chapultepec Castle before a crowd estimated at more than 100,000.

Senor Cazaux, the American dealer in Mexico, driving an American "thirty," performed in brilliant style, winning third in the series race of 150 kilometers from a large field, while H. G. Fletcher, the company's representative, driving a fifty-horse-power car, beat out everything in the free-for-all with the exception of a special European 130-horse-power creation.

The Canadian event at Calgary was the meet known as the Alberta Championship. The American "thirty" won every race in which it was started—among these being the star event of the day and free-for-all, as well as several handicap contests.

MOTORS VERSUS STREET CARS.

Phoenix, Ariz., is to try out the motor bus in competition with its trolley cars, and, if it likes the substitute, may legislate the rails out of business. For the test the Phoenix Rapid Transit Company has bought a KisselKar, twenty-five-passenger bus, and it will be placed in commission immediately with a pay-as-you-enter system. Phoenix citizens are favorably impressed with this European idea, which is rapidly and practically proving that trolleys are an unnecessary noise, and nuisance and an inartistic blot on the landscape.

GIVES AUTO TO JOCKEY.

After Jockey Small had piloted five winning mounts across the line in one day at the Windsor (Ont.) races, Owner McKenzie of the stable for which Small rides told him to cross the river to Detroit, buy the automobile that looked best to him, and have it charged to the McKenzie account. Small is now touring overland to his home at San Antonio, Tex., in his Studebaker "Six."

AUTO TAXES.

Finlay (O.) automobilists generally are protesting against the new automobile law, which imposes a tax of from $5 to $18 for a car, according to the horsepower of the machine. The present tax is $3 for electric cars and $5 for gasoline cars. The tax was imposed under the guise of a police regulation, and so long as the income, amounting to about $600,000 per year, was devoted to the building of roads, the motorists made no objection. But under the new law the tax will be twice as great and only one-third will be given to road work, the remainder going to help pay the general expenses of the State. To resist the double taxation, the Lima Automobile Club has been organized with forty-three members. The organization will join the State body in testing the new law.

SQUEAKY SPRINGS.

Springs will produce most annoying squeaks unless lubricated. Most cars are put out now with graphite applied between the leaves of the springs, and this will last for some time, but eventually the leaves will become rusty on their inner surfaces. Then the friction when the leaves rub over one another is evidenced in squeaks. The obvious remedy is to jack up the body of the car so as to separate the leaves, and apply a little flake graphite. The part the spring shackles play in the noise of a car is to be seen in the fact that many cars now fit these with grease cups, or a special shackle with the grease cup integral. These cups should be given a turn or two occasionally, to keep the bearing surfaces lubricated.

PACKARD OIL TRUCKS.

Additional orders for Packard trucks just placed by the Standard Oil Company make a total of twenty-two Packards in the service of this concern. The new equipment, consisting of standard chassis equipped with tank bodies, is to be used in Seattle and San Francisco.

CADILLAC CARS TO ABSORB SHOCKS.

The remarkable success which the racing cars equipped with Martin shock absorbers have met with in races of the past, has caused practically all of the drivers of cars entered in the Phoenix desert race to send in orders for the instruments.

The two Cadillac cars which were driven to Phoenix last week carried complete outfits of Martin absorbers. After Charles Soules piloted his Cadillac car into fourth position in the Los Angeles to Sacramento road race, and has established a wonderful record for tires, not a single change being necessary, a number of other racing drivers jumped into the Martin line, and as a result Martins will probably predominate in the races of the future.

Last year in the Phoenix race, Sam McKee's Cadillac was the only car to reach the destination without spring trouble of some kind. Every car which finished in the money in the July 4 road race carried Martin absorbers.

Dave Lewis, who will probably drive a Fiat in the desert classic this year, is the latest driver to come over to the Martin ranks.

MANY PRE-SEASON DEMANDS FOR AUTOS.

Peerless and Ohio Electrics Are in Constant Demand, Showing That the Financial Depression Has Not Affected the Demand for High-Priced Cars.

C. F. Smith of the local Ohio and Peerless agency returned last week from a business trip into the northern part of the State. Smith made a close study of business conditions and is satisfied that the coming winter and spring will be very lively for the motor industry in California.

"I talked to a number of bankers and merchants in San Francisco and Sacramento," said Smith, "and the general impression throughout the State seems to be that there will be a general loosening up about October 1. There is no denying that conditions during the last four months have not been the best. There has been a feeling of depression in financial circles and this has made itself felt in the motor industry.

"Following a period of this kind there is always a season of unusual prosperity and everywhere preparations are being made for a big winter season.

"With two such high-grade lines as the Peerless and Ohio Electrics, we are in a position to judge the demand for high-grade goods. Our Peerless business has remained steady and the Ohio Electric demand has continued practically without a break. This leads us to believe that we have an unusually prosperous season ahead of us.

"I know that never before have we had so many inquiries on the inclosed models. The limousine season does not open until October, but for the past month hardly a day has passed that we have not had inquiries concerning the new Peerless limousine."

AUTOS IN CANADA.

Statistics compiled from government reports show that in comparison to population Alberta has more automobiles than any other province in the Dominion of Canada, there being 300 cars or one to every 124 persons, estimating the population at 374,663. Manitoba is second, having one car to every 152 persons of its population of 445,614, while British Columbia has third place, reporting one automobile for every 165 persons of a population of 392,480. Saskatchewan is fourth. It has 2537 cars, or one for each 194 persons of its population of 492,432. Ontario has the largest number of cars, reporting 7338, or one for each 344 of a population of 2,523,208. Nova Scotia has the smallest number of automobiles, there being one to each 852 of its population, which is placed at 592,338. New Brunswick, with a population of 351,889, has 594 automobiles.

ESCAPING OIL.

The chances of oil escaping from the crankcase of a motor by reason of a car standing on a gradient is practically impossible. Even on a 30-degree slope the oil would still, in most motors, be some distance from the point at which it would leak to any extent, because the only means of escape it would have would be through the rear main bearing and that would be only a drip. In many engines the lower part of the crankcase is cut off from the upper part by a horizontal tray which forms a partition. The only holes through this partition are between the oil troughs which are carried in the trail. The car would have to be tilted until the oil lever rose above one of these holes. This slope would probably be so severe that the car would slide down the hill with the wheels locked. In other words, although there is a possibility of the back of the crankcase being flooded when the oil reservoir is too full, there is hardly any chance for any leakage below a 30-degree slope. Above this it would be a question of the design of the particular motor considered.

LOS ANGELES PREACHERS PICK GIANTS TO WIN.

Pastors of Seven Churches Tell Their Opinions of the Coming World Series — Rev. William Horace Day Casts a Minority Vote for the Athletics on Account of the Heavy Hitters.

BY BONNIE GLESSNER.

If preachers are prophets when it comes to fortelling the outcome of the world's series, then the Nationals have that popular scrap of silk—the pennant—already wrapped up in tissue paper and laid away with lavender.

Seven good men—pastors of seven of the leading churches of Los Angeles—yesterday picked the Giants as the next world's champions, while one good pastor, just as good as the goodest of the seven, strenuously maintained that the Athletics would pluck the banner when the series is run off next week. So, according to the ministerial dope-sheet, little old New York is about a 7-to-1 shot, which, as everybody knows, is good enough odds for any favorite.

Rev. William Horace Day, pastor of the First Congregational Church, cast the minority vote because of his strong faith in Philadelphia's batters, Baker, Collins and McInnis, while lined up on the opposition were his seven colleagues with every possible reason from the prowess of the Giant's pitching force to the woman's reason—just because.

According to Dr. J. Whitcomb Brougher, pastor of the Temple Baptist Church, New York can't lose the series because of her two seasoned pitchers, Mathewson and Marquard. Brougher, who was pitcher and catcher on his college team, says he fully appreciates on what apparently mere trifles ball games often hang.

"The series was lost last year by Snodgrass muffing the ball," said Dr. Brougher when asked for his reason for liking the Giants, "and an error like that may swing the balance this year; that is why I like the seasoned players best."

Dr. C. M. Carter of the First Baptist Church liked New York, but said the issue was too close for him to put up any money on.

"Both teams have an equal advantage of having been through two world series, so the games should be close," said Dr. Carter. "However, I like McGraw."

Dr. Charles Edward Locke, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, stated that if he were a betting man he would back all his money on New York to win.

"I have been pretty busy with reforms," said Dr. Locke, "but I always have time to figure on such an important matter as the world's series. I believe New York will win, and if my hoping she will get the pennant will do any good, then she can have the weight of my influence. New York has the best pitching staff of the two teams. I like the work of the youngster Demaree, so put me down for the Giants."

"Does the world series interest me?" said Dr. J. M. Kramer of the Central Baptist Church, when questioned regarding the baseball situation. "Why, I am a regular Ty Cobb when it comes to liking a ball game and I don't see anything to the but New York."

With two Baptists, Mathewson Demaree, on the Giants' side, Kramer says he can't see how York can lose.

The Athletics' ministerial scoffs at such an argument, and the heavy hitting of Collins and Innis of the Americans will more offset the strong pitching and qualifications claimed for the by his brethren of the opposition.

"With two such pitchers as and Plank," said Dr. Day, "New hasn't a ghost of a chance at that nant; Philadelphia has the clinched."

Rev. Baker P. Lee, rector of Episcopal Church, couldn't see Athletics for a minute. When that Dr. Day claimed Philadelphia the greatest infield in the history baseball, Dr. Lee was highly Very stoutly he maintained that York deserved "to pull the this year."

"Out of courtesy to that small village on Manhattan Island," said Lee, "all of Los Angeles ought to for the Giants. We can afford generous now that we have pure water to our long list of It will only be a short time until York will have to take a second with Los Angeles. So I advise one here to boost for the National

With the big boost for Mathe Dr. W. L. Y. Davis, of the West ams M. E. Church, cast his the Giants.

"New York has the greatest in the world—Mathewson," said Davis, "so to my mind the as good as played. I always for my home team, and coming Cincinnati, I can't see anything the Nationals."

According to Davis, poor old delphia has only two seasoned ers, and that is not enough to her through such strenuous work will be before the team in the games.

Acknowledging that he was authority on baseball, and that interest came through his son, Rabbi Isadore Myers asserted New York was due to win the

"I don't know a blessed thing the ball games," said Rabbi depreciatingly, "I never saw a in my life, but I realize how lightened I am. My son says isn't any sport like baseball, and beginning to believe him. Every is so interested in the game guess these days a man can't good preacher unless he is what call a 'fan.' I am going out to ington Park some day and see first game of ball, then next will pick the winner of the for myself."

To all of which arguments Dr. merely smiled and said: "Wait see."

If it is difficult to decide M.D.'s disagree, there is small of bringing about a state of when D.D.'s differ in opinion, so isn't anything else to do but and see.

Baseball History.

WORLD-SERIES FLAG IS WON TWENTY-ONE TIMES.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Twenty-one times have the pennant winners of the country fought for the world's championship on the diamond.

The world's series will pass its twenty-ninth birthday; however, with the forthcoming contest between the Giants and Athletics. It first came into being in New York in 1884, when Providence, winner of the National League pennant, crossed bats with the victorious Metropolitans—New York's standard-bearers—of the old American Association. There were lapses in 1891 and 1893 and a big gap from 1898 to 1902, inclusive, and still another lapse in 1904, when no games were played, but from 1884 to the present, barring these intermissions, the post-season fight for the apex of the baseball world has been an established custom.

The flag has flown in ten States during this short generation. Once it strayed west of the Mississippi River and breezed from a flagstaff in the St. Louis park of the American Association. This was in 1886, twenty-seven years ago. It stayed there but one season, came back to Detroit, and never since has crossed the Father of Waters.

A flag without a home, it has floated over eleven cities. Providence, Chicago, St. Louis, Detroit, New York, Louisville, Boston, Cleveland, Baltimore, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia—all have sent forth, from time to time, clubs that have fought victorious battles for the trophy. One hundred and thirty-four games have stamped these teams in various years premier baseball players of the world in no uncertain brand. Nearly three-fourths of the games have gone to the winners, although of recent years the contests have been closer than they were in the babyhood of the fight.

Ninety-seven of the 134 games have been won by the teams which captured the flag. Thirty-seven have gone to the losers. Fifteen times a National League club has won the flag; once the old American captured it; five times it has over an American League Park. fact, the American League clubs been its keeper five times out of years in which the American and tional League clubs have played it. For the past three years it breezed over an American park.

First winners of the world pionship were the Providence which defeated New York straight games. The next year, the flag went to Chicago. and St. Louis fought again for championship in 1887 and this St. Louis triumphed. Detroit captured the flag in 1887. In came to New York for a two-year stay. Louisville got it in 1890. ton in 1892 and New York 1894. In 1895 Cleveland won it contest from Baltimore, but the year the old Baltimore Orioles it away from Cleveland to keep it two years. The Boston took it in 1903, first year of the season fight between National American League pennant New York regained it in 1905. Chicago Nationals and fought for it in 1906 and the White Sox won it. In 1907 and 1908 Chicago Nationals won it easily Detroit. Pittsburgh took her place the championship map in 1909, Detroit team being defeated for third consecutive time in the world's series games. For two years after the Philadelphia Athletics tured it. Last year it went to the Boston Americans.

Six of the eleven cities—Provid St. Louis, Detroit, Louisville, land and Pittsburgh—have world's champions but one Two, Baltimore and Philadelphia have been champions twice, in 1896 and 1897 and Philadelphia 1910 and 1911. Three times the has floated over a Boston park, 1892, 1903 and 1913. New York Chicago have each had it four the former in 1888, 1889, 1894 1905; the latter in 1885, 1886, and 1908.

GOOD ROADS BILL.

In order to encourage and systematize good road development and between the several States and to equalize the burdens thereof, Representative Hobson of Georgia has introduced a bill in Congress that contains a number of excellent features. It provides, in effect, that the Director of the Office of Public Roads be authorized to maintain a general survey of interstate highways, locating the natural trunk lines and branches, said survey to include general plans giving the type and estimate of cost of construction and improvement of each highway and its subdivisions, and to make a detailed survey of post roads and rural free delivery routes.

THE BEST BUILT CAR Locomobile IN AMERICA

FOUR CARS A DAY

THE BEST BUILT CAR Locomobile IN AMERICA

There are but two logical methods of building motor cars.

One method is to produce cars in enormous quantities so as to bring the price down as low as possible.

The other method is to produce cars in limited quantities so that each car will be of the highest quality.

Each system has but one real exponent. In a middle western city, "mass production" enables a good small car to be made and sold at a low figure. In a New England city, "The Best Built Car in America" is produced practically car by car, by the finest mechanics in the world.

One car carries out one ideal, the other a totally different idea. Both are right. Both are built, not assembled. One company makes 1000 cars a day, the other company Four Cars a Day. The idea back of one car is to give the most for the money; the idea back of the other is to give the best, regardless of price.

The smaller car is turned out like the well-known and worth-while "dollar watch." The greater car is built like a chronometer. Any other car—is a compromise.

The Locomobile now occupies a peculiar position. It is the only high-grade car whose sales have increased during the past two years. This success of the Locomobile is due to the policy of building not more than four cars a day. All of the power and the experience of the Locomobile organization has been concentrated on a limited production.

Years ago we concluded that just so surely as the best cheap car could only be produced in very large numbers, just so surely could the car of highest quality be produced only in limited quantities.

Our policy from the very start was to build cars in small lots so that each car could have the most intimate attention. When others were increasing their plants and building more cars, we were increasing our quality, striving to make the Locomobile "The Best Built Car in America."

Every Locomobile has been built like every other Locomobile. Every Locomobile has been built with the utmost care. Every Locomobile has been built to carry out the ideal of quality, not a commonplace, commercial idea.

The Locomobile will be made as it always has been made, in limited quantity—and with unlimited care. (Despite the present demand for the Locomobile and despite any rumor to the contrary, we will not increase our production and make more cars.)

There will always be a demand for the limited number of cars we make.
Because we have been building for the future, our plant will always run at capacity, without reducing the quantity of our product, or its price, or both.

IRST GAME GENERALLY DECIDES WORLD'S SERIES.

Only Two Exceptions to This Rule Since American and National League Began Annual Post-Season Series—Victory in Opening Skirmish Gives Team Big Advantage—Past Records.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

WORLD'S series managers seldom fail to send their "best bet" onto the mound for the opening game.

Surprise has sometimes been expressed that one of the managers did not save his best pitcher for the second game, when he would figure to be almost a sure winner against a weaker opponent, arguing that it is silly for both teams to sacrifice their best pitchers by pitting them against each other.

Probably this is explained by the fact that experience has taught the managers the value of drawing first blood.

It has grown to be almost a world's series axiom that the team which wins the opening skirmish also grabs both the bacon and the glory. This seems to be a ruling law in any short series.

TWO EXCEPTIONS.

There have been just two exceptions to this rule since 1903, when the National and American leagues first became addicted to the habit of prolonging the annual baseball agony by settling the question of supremacy in a post-season series.

The first exception was located in the first series. That year, 1903, Pittsburgh won the opening game, 7 to 3, and then lost the series, three games to five. Boston took the second game, Pittsburgh the next two and then Boston came through with a whirlwind finish and bagged the last four games.

Returning to modern times, the result of last year's series between Boston and New York is still fresh as a newly mined smelt in the minds of the fans. The Red Sox whipped New York in the first game, 4 to 3, and continued to lick them from time to time until the final count was four games to three in favor of the Hub, with one game drawn.

THE OTHER CASE.

The 1911 series between Philadelphia and New York provided the second exception. The Giants were returned winners in the first game, Mathewson beating Bender. Mack's men quickly took a brace, beating the Giants in the next three. They lost the fifth, but were there a million in the sixth, when New York buckled under the terrific assault of the Athletics.

The Athletics took the first game from Chicago in 1910. This was the beginning of the end of Chance's great machine, which barely escaped the ignominy of losing the series by a clean sweep. The Cubs took just one game, the fourth, the Athletic defense displaying a fleeting, but fatal weakness when the Mackmen had the game within their grasp.

In 1909, Pittsburgh beat Detroit in the opener, 4 to 1, and the series ended four games to three in favor of the Pirates.

The Cubs and Detroit hooked up for the first time in 1908. Chicago took the first two games and the series, four games to one—a dose which was to be meted out to them two years later by the Athletics.

START WITH A TIE.

The first game between Chicago and Detroit in 1907 ended in a draw after thirteen innings of heart-breaking baseball. Chicago then ran away with the series, taking four games straight, leaving Detroit but one victory to show for its two years of world's series striving against Chicago.

It was in 1906 that Comiskey's "hitless wonders" sprung the greatest sensation of modern baseball by whipping the Cubs. The White Sox won the opening game, and there is little doubt but that this victory had an important bearing on the result. The confidence of the complacent Cubs was severely shaken by this surprising reverse, and they succeeded in taking but two games.

New York and Philadelphia, who will be the center of admiration this week, first hooked up in 1905. The Giants won the first game, 3 to 0, and the series, four games to one, the Athletics winning only the second.

No series was played in 9104, and nerve specialists complained that business was dull the following winter.

The result of the 1903 series has already been cited, when Pittsburgh got away to a flying start and then lost to Boston.

LONG SERIES.

The longest world's series on record was that played in 1887 between St. Louis and Detroit. Fourteen games were played, Detroit winning ten. The teams divided the games among ten different cities, playing in St. Louis, Detroit, Pittsburgh, Brooklyn, New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Washington, Baltimore and Chicago. The total receipts from these fourteen contests was $42,000 as against $490,449 received, from eight games between New York and Boston last season.

The following "dope" on world's series of the by-gone is exhumed for the benefit of those who may still maintain an interest in the moth-eaten past:

HIGHWAY FUNDS.

To further the building of the Lincoln memorial highway, a road from New York City to some point on the Pacific Coast, appeal is being made now to owners of automobiles to subscribe for $5 certificates in order to increase the sum of $2,400,000 already pledged by car builders and individuals to $10,000,000, the figure that has been fixed upon as necessary before operations are to be begun. The owners so subscribing will receive certificates and also insignia for their cars. This Lincoln highway grew out of the plan for an ocean-to-ocean stone road offered by Carl G. Fisher of Indianapolis, who purposed to have the car manufacturers by pledging 1 per cent. of their gross annual receipts raise the fund. The plan which is being followed in many details is not to build a whole new road, but to furnish materials for such a road, chiefly for fitting in the sections between already well-constructed highways on the route fixed.

On the Sand Lots.

in the annals of western college baseball. Fourteen innings we battled, finally humbling the Saints 3 to 2. Roy Thacker, the little "hop ball" pitcher for our team, was right, and fanned eighteen of the opposition, getting Fred twice and Shafer three times on whiffs. It was in this game that I had the pleasure of throwing Snodgrass out twice from the field, once in the seventh and once in the eleventh.

FRIENDSHIP FUTILE.

The score was tied up in the sixth and remained in a hard lump until the final blow fell in the fourteenth. There were no "bones" pulled in this game, all hands playing like a lot of madmen with their lives at stake on every ball. Early in the contest we started the hit-and-run game on the Saints, but they had come primed for this little feature. It seems that some of Fred's friends thought they had our signals, so they stationed themselves back of the plate and tried to tom-tom to Snodgrass every time we got a man on the paths. I might say that while their intentions may have been the best in the world, they did not quite have the combination, and we pulled off two double-crosses on Fred and his pitcher, Pat Phillips, thereby scoring two runs, for it is an easy matter to cross an infield when it is playing on a sure thing.

In the seventh things looked very bad for the Tigers. With one out, Snodgrass and Shafer got on first and second, then Frenchy Lemar caught one on the inside and hit it at least a mile away to left field, where "Tod" Irwin was playing. "Tod" took one look at the flying ball, turned his back and sprinted for the clubhouse.

Knowing that the ball traveled when hit by the Saints, we outfielders had been taught to back up on every play. Well, while Tod was racing after the ball, I started for left field in order to be on the ground. All thought it was a hopeless case and that Irwin could not possibly catch the ball. But Tod was fast and as he crossed the running track, at the extreme limit of the field, he took one look over his shoulder, another at the clubhouse—looming up twelve feet away—then jumped. The ball was sailing high over his right shoulder, but Irwin speared it with his right hand, then crashed into the wall of the clubhouse. His last conscious movement was to toss the ball over his shoulder to the place where he supposed I would be and luckily I was there.

DAZZLING DOUBLE.

With the crack of the bat, Shafer and Snodgrass had started for the plate, but as Fred was stretching out for the plate the coacher at third told him to go back, as Irwin might make the catch. As Irwin did make the catch, it was an easy matter to throw Fred out at second before he could return to the bag, thus completing a double play and avoiding trouble of a dire sort.

There were no more thrills until in the eleventh, this time the Saints had the bases full and none out, Shafer and Snodgrass being on second and third this time. Once more Lemar hit a long one, but this time it was on the outside corner. The outfield had been primed by Al Merrill's signal, and when Lemar connected we were on the run for right. This fellow Lemar hit on the line every time that he smote the ball and this instance was no exception. "Skinny" Spaulding, our right fielder, saw it was hopeless and threw his glove at the soaring sphere.

THRILLING TRIPLE.

How it happened I don't know, but I got behind Skinny, scooped the ball off the grass with the gloved hand and while still running started the ball for the plate. Though I was up against the right field fence, the ball carried on the fly to the plate, in fact, Al Merrill had to jump for it, but the play was not at the plate this time. You see Fred and Art, thinking that this time the ball was surely safe, dug out for the plate. By the time Snodgrass had crossed it and Shafer was only a few yards away, the ball was caught. Then a mad scramble started. But Merrill whipped the ball to Gar Ross, Oxy's third baseman, who in turn sailed it to Frank Beal at second, thus retiring the side on a triple play. Chaos reigned supreme.

Before going on to the third game, it might be interesting to state that in the fourteenth inning Al Merrill singled, was sacrificed to second by Bruce Merrill and scored with the winning run when "Tod" Irwin, who had recovered from his smash at the clubhouse by this time, cracked the ball up against the right center fence for two bases.

The third and final game was played at the old Chutes Park, now Washington Park. The park was packed, and the famous oil can corps of St. Vincent's was on hand, to help along in the general Bedlam.

This was another tight affair. Thacker was going great guns, while old Pat Phillips was serving them out of his south side in great shape. The Saints scored once in the second and again in the third, making it 2 to 0. The first run was due to a single by Snodgrass and a roaring two-base hit by Shafer.

TIED AGAIN.

We got one in the fifth and another in the sixth and the old game was again tied up. I'll never forget the seventh inning. The Saints got three on with none out, the tin can band was working overtime and all the wise ones settled back amid the din and said, "I told you so." At this point Thacker jumped on the hill of fame. Shafer was at bat. He fanned out on three pitched balls as did the two following batters. But the Irish Saints were full of fight and in the eighth they again got men on the bases, but a fast double play by Beal and Thacker retired the side.

The ninth rolled around, the Saints came to bat first. With one out Snodgrass came to bat and hit a wicked drive over Irwin's head, but the center fielder, having been taught to back up, stopped the ball and tossed Fred out at second. Shafer doubled and Lemar singled to center, but Shafer was unlucky, giving the center fielder another assist at the plate.

Now comes the woeful portion of this tale and it has to do with Mr. Snodgrass. I had managed to talk Phillips into sending one down the groove, which was slammed out for a single. Thacker singled and I went to third, as the play was hit and run, but Thacker was nailed at second when he tried to stretch his wallop. Thacher was then at bat and hung up the squeeze sign. However, Fred tipped this one off and although Thacher connected, the ball was wide and rolled to the pitcher, who tossed to Snodgrass at the plate where a young, skidding hopeful was tagged out, making two for the inning.

SNODGRASS SLIPS.

It looked like extra innings, but Thacher—always a fast and dangerous base runner—took a big lead off first. Fred was watching him and when he thought Thacher was far enough away, cut loose to Campbell, at first, with a terrible throw. It was about two feet on the outside of the base and low. Thacher saw that it was bad and was on his way. The ball rolled out to right field with Wilhoit in pursuit. Wilhoit cut it off, then threw to the plate to head off the speeding Tiger shortstop. It seemed ages while the runner and the ball traveled toward that all crucial point, the championship, tradition and everything resting on the culmination of the race. Fifteen feet from the plate Thacher left the ground and started to slide. Meanwhile the ball was dropping, like a wounded swallow, toward the waiting glove of Snodgrass—standing tense at the plate, misery depicted in every expression as he began to realize that he had thrown the title to the winds, for Thacher's slide sent him over the plate—with the winning run—one flicker of an eyelash ahead of the speeding ball and it was all over.

Fred sat right down in the dust and dirt around the rubber and sobbed. Coach Haggerty came over to the boy and though the tears were streaming down his face, he led the shaken lad off the field. Thus did Fred Snodgrass go through his first big championship, but he has become a great man since, so all can take heart.

PEERLESS CARS IN FIRE SERVICE.

"A year ago it was in the minds of the heads of the Cleveland fire department to begin the purchase of motor fire apparatus," said Stanley Smith, the local Peerless agent. "W. Schmunk, in the Peerless used-car department, sat one day at his desk with his finger on his temple, thinking. All at once he got a telepathic flash of what was going on at the City Hall.

"He rushed around and got the factory started on a flying squadron fire wagon to be put on a used-car chassis. This was made up for stock. But as soon as it was completed the rig was loaned to the Cleveland fire department for a month as a demonstration. That car made good.

"The car hadn't been in use very long before an order was placed with the Peerless Motor Car Company for $25,000 worth of apparatus of various kinds.

"This order included two flying squadron wagons, of which the demonstrator was one; a Peerless hook and ladder made on an especially long three-ton truck chassis; a combination hose and chemical wagon on a six-cylinder chassis; a high-pressure hose wagon—the largest in use in America—on a three-ton truck chassis, and a tractor to haul a horse-drawn hook and ladder made of an especially short three-ton truck chassis.

"Each was fully equipped with all ladders, axes, roof cutters, chemical tanks and other fittings that are carried on such vehicles.

"The performance of these cars has been so successful that the company is now making up some stock in the same form with perfect confidence that it will shortly be placed.

MOTORCYCLED TO CONVENTION.

Motorcycle parties from all over the country attended the national convention of Rural Mail Carriers at Evansville recently. Especially did a large number of Indiana carriers ride to the convention city on their two-wheelers. One party of thirty motored from Ft. Wayne, recruits being added at most of the towns and cities through which the tourists passed.

Perhaps to no one class of people has the motorcycle proved so valuable as to the rural mail carriers, and for this reason the gathering at Evansville looked almost like a motorcycle convention.

Cartercar

With the Gearless Transmission

You get perfect service for every dollar invested in this car!

The owner of a Cartercar does not have to worry about whether his car will travel such and such a road—or is safe for his wife or daughter to drive.

He knows that whenever he wants to go—or when his family wants to go—that the Cartercar is ready. He knows that anyone can operate it—that it is safe. And best of all he knows that the Cartercar will travel all the roads.

Service is the big feature of the Cartercar—and Cartercar service is so much better than the average motor car owner knows anything about. The Cartercar with a two-unit transmission is far more reliable, more easily operated, and enables the car to travel roads where the gear car is practically helpless.

Ask any man who drives a Cartercar what feature of his car he likes best and he'll answer: "I like it because I know I can depend on it." He knows it will always give him the service he requires.

If you want to be sure of getting the full value of your money—and you are foolish if you don't demand it—then you must consider the Cartercar. Remember that a car with gears must be weak—and will sooner or later cause you trouble. Nothing takes the joy out of motoring like having stripped gears. Buy this car without gears—you get the reliability and far greater efficiency at the same time.

Call us up or come to our salesroom and we'll gladly prove these claims to you.

Nearly Dead.

PROFESSIONAL BOXING IS DYING A NATURAL DEATH.

Lack of Class Among Present-Day Pugilists Is Gradually Cutting the Game Down So that There Is No Necessity of Hastening Its Death by Legislation—Need Better Training.

BY DE WITT VAN COURT.

IT SEEMS to me that all this valuable time and money spent by our church federation and moralist friends to stop the professional boxing game is going for naught, when, as a matter of fact, the boxing game if let alone, will, within a few years, die a natural death.

Boxing, like any other sport or amusement, will never prosper when there is no class to it.

Never in the history of boxing has there been shown so little class as at the present time, and at no time in its history have there been as many men taking up the sport as a profession.

In every city in America it is easy to find young men who think they can box, taking to it as a means of livelihood.

Letters galore come to the different sporting writers throughout the country, telling of this or that young fellow, who, if given a chance, will surely be a champion some day.

Out of all these it would be a hard matter to find a half-dozen that even had the first qualifications to make a champion, if taken in hand by the best coaches or instructors.

TOO MUCH MONEY.

The money that has been made in the professional boxing game during the past fifteen years has so turned the heads of those who might make good that all sight of the true art is overlooked.

The result is no more class, which means in a very short time the death of professional boxing.

There are six classes in professional boxing: Bantam, feather, light, welter, middle and heavyweights.

Beginning at the bantam class, we have just two men of real class—Johnny Coulon and Eddie Campi. Johnny is too sick to box any more championship contests and Eddie Campi will soon outgrow his class.

Kid Williams is a slugger pure and simple, and never would have a chance with a high-class boxer, but as there are none in his class, he holds the championship.

The featherweight class has one man only—Johnny Kilbane—and he is fast outgrowing his class. And again, Johnny is considered by many to be only a sparrer and never could be considered for an instant with such great boxers as Abe Attell, George Dixon, Ike (Spider) Weir, Terry McGovern, Johnny Griffin and several others when in their prime.

The lightweight class has gone completely to pieces. Most of the claimants of that class are welterweights, but still insist on calling themselves lightweights.

In going over the list of this class there is only one that I could give as a legitimate lightweight and he is Freddy Welsh. And again, Freddy is said by some of his friends to have been going back fast for the past six months.

Wolgast, in my opinion, is out of the game for good and when he meets old Bat Nelson, I look for Bat to beat him.

Willie Ritchie and Jack Britton each claim to be lightweights, but they are welters and in Packy McFarland's class.

Packy leads the welters by many miles and none will meet him. He also is considering retiring. If he does, this will leave a poor lot of welters.

The middleweights are the joke of the bunch.

Billy Papke, Klause, Clabby, Petroskey and any others that might be named as contenders for the championship would be as children against such men as Jack Dempsey, Mike Lucy, Johnny (Young) Mitchell, Hurgert. Imagine any of these fellows meeting old Bob Fitzsimmons when that redhead was at his best.

In the light-heavyweights, perhaps Bob McAllister, the ex-amateur champion of the Olympic Club, leads the list. There are no others.

What do you say about the heavyweights. Sam Langford could easily beat any of the bunch and he has been at the game longer than any other boxer in the game at the present time, so we must consider Sam as an old-timer.

There is not a single other man in that class outside of Jack Johnson, (and it is safe to say he will never box again) who is any better than the merest novice, as far as science or class goes.

Never, until the present-day boxers make a study of the game and try to improve themselves in the finer points and science of boxing, will there be any improvement.

There is also a dearth of first-class instructors in the country and few first-class trainers. These things all go to cause a decadence in boxing that will be a hard matter to overcome.

If something is not done, and done quickly, boxing will surely die as a sport.

ONLY OIL TOPS.

"Oil toppings" of so low a grade that a lighted match would not set the stuff afire, was the crude fuel used in a record run of a Kissel Kar truck to San Francisco.

O. W. Kern, who drove the truck, says that the special carburetor used will burn anything down to 38 deg. gravity without adjustment, after the motor has run long enough to heat the exhaust manifold. "And that isn't long," adds Kern. "The only necessary adjustment of the carburetor is made from the steering head." Kern's remarkable time of 472 miles in 24 hours and 45 minutes, at a fuel cost of $1.40, is being widely discussed.

ALL BLACKS EASILY WIN FROM THE OLYMPIC CLUB.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 4.—The all-star New Zealand Blacks, heralded as the strongest Rugby fifteen from the Antipodes that ever has visited the Pacific Coast, defeated the Olympic Club team here today by a score of 19 to 0. The Blacks made two unconverted tries in the first half and three tries in the second half, two of which they converted. The clubmen were outclassed, although the visitors were perceptibly off their game. Their superiority in scrum work and aggressive dribbling was consistent, but their passing was frequently wild. They fumbled often and they were repeatedly penalized for forward passing. When they did get together they showed dash, precision and finished form that left their opponents helpless. The last try in the first half was scored by a beautiful four-handed pass from the thirty-five-yard line, after the pistol had been fired to call time.

As showing what the visitors expect to do when they are in their full stride, they tried two goals from placement a yard short of center-field—and missed them both. The game today was their first in nearly three weeks.

The line-up follows:

Tigers Beat Angels.

by all means, been removed. Gregory was unable to administer the soothing syrup until another run had scored, and the Tigers tacked up a final tally in the eighth.

Fine fielding by Kane, Maggert, Patterson and Johnson, each pulling off at least one catch that didn't seem human, enlivened the occasion.

Ellis was the author of one of the three hits made off Harkness. It happened in the first with two down, and was a single. Rube was flagged stealing. Boles opened the third with a single, and was forced by Chech. Maggert flied to Carlisle. Harkness here became generous and walked Howard and Ellis. Page, with much depending on him, retired the side with a foul to Litschi.

Two passes in the fourth stood for only so much leg work. Krueger walked, and was thrown out stealing, Brashear taking Sterrett's high throw with one hand and then falling down on Art with considerable force. Sawyer fanned simultaneously, thereby confirming the report that it was an attempted hit-and-run. Johnson walked, and Boles boosted to Bayless.

HARL SCORES.

But "Speck" dilly-dallied with the pass business once two often. In the fifth he walked Maggert with one out. Harl stole second and dashed along to third when Sterrett heaved strongly to center field. Harkness then fanned Howard. Ellis refused to be fanned. Instead, he slapped a triple over first, scoring Maggert. "Speck" then proved that he is a nervy young man by picking Page off at the plate.

More wildness was manifested in the sixth. Krueger walked, and Sawyer sacrificed. Harkness bounced the ball off Johnson. Art and Ernie then executed a two-ply theft, Boles fanning at the same time. Chech ended the act with a fly to Patterson.

Two more walks marred the seventh, but again "Speck" managed to squirm through safely. Maggert and Howard were the pedestrians. Both runners advanced a base after Bayless's catch of Ellis's long fly. Page drove to Litschi, who whipped the ball to Sterrett. Maggert, who had started for the plate, retreated to third, only to find that Howard had jumped his claim. Ike could not prove priority, and was fired off the base by Phyle. Krueger bicked a high fly in front of the plate that Sterrett successfully located after a painful period of uncertainty.

SPECK GETS GOOD.

By this time, "Speck" had the location of the plate firmly fixed in his mind, and fanned three of the six batters to face him in the last two rounds.

Kane was the first to reach a satisfactory solution of Chech's slants. Johnny singled in the fourth, and was thrown out by Ellis after making a valiant effort to run it into a double.

Chech did little walking and wiggled out himself in the fifth. He passed Brashear and O'Rourke, Litschi sacrificing. Patterson was franked, filling the bases. Sterrett hacked out a short fly that Ellis took close in, and Brashear was discouraged from making any attempt to score. Chech then wound up and fanned the dangerous Harkness. "Speck" got even for this a couple of innings later.

Chech walked Carlisle in the sixth. This was fatal to his ambitions. Kane sacrificed and Bayless hit to right. Krueger charged in after the ball, and missed the tackle, Carlisle scoring and Bayless taking second. Brashear flied to Ellis. O'Rourke walked and Howard disposed of Litschi single-handed.

Patterson opened the seventh with a hit to center. Sterrett sacrificed. Harkness here made what is believed to be his third hit of the season. It was a double to right, and put Patterson over. Carlisle slashed a single to right, "Speck" sprinting to third. Walter was nailed trying to stretch the blow into a double. Gregory here went in and Kane hit him right for one base, counting Harkness. Johnny was nailed stealing—that is, in the judgment of Mr. Phyle.

Singles by Brashear and Litschi, sandwiching a sacrifice by O'Rourke, gave the felines their final in the eighth.

OAKS WIN THEIR FIRST GAME UNDER NEW MANAGER.

O'Brien and Alexander, Former Big Leaguers, Prove Hard Combination for McCredie's Men—Three Pitchers Unable to Stop Tailenders. Ninth-Inning Rally Warms Fans.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PORTLAND (Or.) Oct. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The big league combination of Pitcher O'Brien, formerly of Boston, and Alexander, catcher from St. Louis, put Portland back one today on the local grounds and marked the first victory for Oakland under the management of Arthur Devlin. The score was 7 to 1 until the ninth, when a belated rally netted Portland three and made the final score 7 to 4 in the visitors' favor.

Portland used fourteen men and dragged the battle through two hours and twenty minutes before a half-frozen crowd of more than 2000. Hagerman started the mound work for Portland, Krapp took two innings of it and Stanley finished it, but none was effective in keeping the Oaks off the bases.

O'Brien allowed Portland thirteen hits, but they trickled in by ones and twos through the entire game, until the last frame. Walks played a big part in the game. Portland's twirlers allowed first as a present to seven Oaks. Three of them grew into runs. Krapp had a bad day of it and started the sixth inning by pitching eight balls and one strike.

Alexander broke in by winging Rodgers in his flight to second. He seemed to fit well behind the bat and held O'Brien on all the big leaguer sent him.

The first inning passed easy enough for both teams, but in the second Oakland pasted up the lead which was never headed. Leard was safe on first by a bad throw from Davis. He took second on the same miscue and later waltzed in with Alexander when Coy singled over third and Lober made a poor throw in.

When, with the score 7 to 1, Fisher started the last of the ninth with a hit, Portland fans forgot all about their suppers. Davis sent Fisher to second and placed himself on a hit to second. Speas was sent for a pinch, but filed out to Cook. That chilled the fans for a second, but they were again brought to their feet when Chadbourne planted one out in the gardens good for two bases, bringing Fisher and Davis in. Derrick scored him with still only the one out. The thermometer of hope went down to zero when Kores flied out and Rodgers put it back to the reading of liquid air when he struck out and ended the game. The score:

SENATORS AND RED SOX IN WEIRD EXHIBITION.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Washington took the last game of the 1913 season here from the Boston Red Sox today, 10 to 9. The exhibition was a farce throughout, players of both teams indulging in comedy and giving their opponents an opportunity to fatten batting averages. Catchers and pitchers were turned into fielders, and fielders took turns in the box. The day was "army day," having been set aside in honor of the thousands of visiting cavalrymen. Score:

[illegible] BIG DAY.

[illegible] Defeats State School 41 to 0—High School Also Wins From Long Beach.

The double-header on Hadley field yesterday resulted in an all-round Whittier victory. The college defeated the State school, 41 to 6, in a [illegible] easy manner. The Whittier High School then defeated the Long Beach High School aggregation in a hard-fought game, by the score of 1 to 0. The game was wide open from the Whittier point of view and it was due to this type of play that the Quaker pups were able to smear the hopeful Beach Combers.

MANUAL SURPRISED.

Manual Arts High School ran into a rather startling surprise yesterday, when the mighty Mechanics fell before the boys of the citrus belt by the score of 3 to 0. The strength of the [illegible] team has never been known until yesterday, when it showed all kinds of speed and dash, rushing the Manual backs off their feet.

MACKMEN DONATE GAME TO YANKEES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 4.—Manager Mack of the Philadelphia American League champions, put two sets of infielders and outfielders, two catchers and three of his young pitchers in against New York in the final league game here today and the latter won, 10 to 8. It was a weirdly-played affair, both teams fielding poorly, the pitchers being wild and the batting light.

Philadelphia's regular fielders played for five innings and led by six to three. They piled up seven hits and stole four bases, while they were charged with four errors. In the sixth, Manager Mack sent in a brand new team.

Brown pitched for three innings. He allowed three hits, gave three bases on balls and made a wild pitch. Shawkey pitched the next three innings, followed by Houck. Score:

SEATS FOR WORLD SERIES GO FAST.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—All of the 8000 reserved seats in the upper tier of the grand stand at the Polo Grounds for the world's series baseball games had been sold out this afternoon, according to announcement made by the New York Baseball Club, and there remain only the 20,000 unreserved grand stand and bleacher seats.

It was generally understood in baseball circles today that Larry Doyle, the Giants' second baseman, who was recently injured, would surely take part in the series, though perhaps not in the first game.

Among the big bets wagered on the series so far was $1000 even on the Giants, placed this afternoon by a theatrical man. Even money seemed to be the trend.

HARVARD ACADEMY WINS.

The Harvard Military Academy took the measure of the Monrovia High School yesterday, on the latter's grounds in a good game of Rugby, by the score of 9 to 0. The Harvard forwards played a fast game, advancing the ball under good control and it was here that the military boys were able to get the edge, as the two backfields were both playing equally well.

GIANTS BEAT PHILLIES IN TWO SLUGGING GAMES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—The curtain rang down on the local National League season here today when New York took a double-header from Philadelphia. The New York regulars won the first game easily by a score of 12 to 7, while the Giant Yanigans won the second, 7 to 5.

In the first inning Thorpe ran for Snodgrass and McGraw secured the permission of Manager Dooin to let Snodgrass stay in the game, but Umpire Klem would not permit it. The scores:

BORDEN AFTER BEAR.

SEATTLE (Wash.) Oct. 4.—[By A. P. Night Wire.] The yacht Adventuress, owned by John Borden, son of Gail Borden, was at Uyak Bay, Kodiak Island, September 20, and Borden and his guests were hunting Kodiak bears on the island. The Kodiak bear is the largest species in the world, and sometimes grows as tall as a horse. All the members of the expedition were well. The Adventuress sailed from San Francisco July 28. The cannery ship A. J. Fuller arrived today from Alaska, bringing news of the Adventuress.

Out of Last Place.

with eight bases on balls in the last two of the three innings pitched and for so doing Chance has a warm spot in his heart for Byron. Instead of starting for his farm in California last night with no better result than having finished in last place his first year in the American League, Chance felt elated that there was one other club that made a poorer showing than his.

Chance will not be a spectator or an author at the world's series games. He is on his way to the stillness of his farm where he will endeavor to forget baseball for the next several months.

For five innings Mack's regulars who will face the New York Giants, worked against the Yankees and showed that their offensive strength is to be reckoned with in the derby. Their batting eyes are just as sharp as ever, they having scored six runs in the five innings against the Highlanders. In fact, they scored almost at will.

Carroll Brown was the first Mack pitcher to tee off. He worked three innings in which time New York made three hits and three runs. Brown simply lobbed them over the plate. Bob Shawkey pitched the middle three innings and showed that he was ready to give New York trouble if called upon in the big series. He allowed only one hit in the three sessions, a single by Zeider.

Neither Chief Bender nor Eddie Plank got into the game. Manager Mack is satisfied that Bender is in tip-top form for the classic contests, while Eddie Plank still has several days in which to prime his arm further if he so desires. The Mackmen will report at Shibe Park today for a strenuous workout behind closed gates. Bender and Plank will put on their finishing touches at this time.

ARMY AND NAVY BEAT ESCONDIDO.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN DIEGO, Oct. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Army and Navy Academy won from Escondido High School here this afternoon in one of the hardest-fought gridiron battles ever staged in San Diego county. The score was 6 to 0 at the end of the first half and through the last two quarters the teams fought up and down the field without making any impression on the opponents' defense. Kob Kohler at half for the Army and Navy eleven scored the only touchdown of the day on a long end run. The Escondido eleven outweighed the winners by several pounds to the man and it was impossible for Coach Waddell's backs to make any yardage through the heavy line.

Two Upsets.

ATHLETIC CLUB BEATS THE TROJAN VARSITY.

Wise Old Heads on L.A.A.C. Squad Are Outplayed, but Use Noodles in the Pinches and Capture the Battle by Score of Five to Three — Los Angeles High Gets Big Surprise.

BY OWEN R. BIRD.

RUGBY football is sometimes a funny thing and yesterday the double-header, played on Bovard Field, brought out some really unique results. The Los Angeles Athletic Club defeated the Trojans in the second practice game of the season by the score of 5 to 3, after being run all over the field and being constantly on the defense, the Trojans gaining four yards to the clubmen's one, but the boys in blue won. Then the lads from the San Bernardino High School held the heavier, faster and better Rugby-playing Los Angeles High School team, 0 to 0, by simply refusing to be scored upon. The up-country lads evidently did not know the Rugby that the Blue and White boys did, but they surely knew how to fight in the pinches.

There is a lot of credit due the L.A.A.C. cohort. This team is made up of a lot of wise old birds, and when they found that they were not being called for playing off side, they played off side to the absolute discomforture of the Trojan backs. Rugby football will never be a fast open game for American college men, until a rule is enforced that will not allow the breakaways and scrum men to pile up on the opposing halfback, until he has procured the ball, if his scrum heels out.

Now for the Trojans, they were off color yesterday and did not come through in the scoring pinches as expected. All afternoon the U.S.C. men were "ramping" around on the club's goal line, but always managed to foozle the play in such a manner as to preclude any chance of a score. The foxy old clubmen, played defensive ball all afternoon, until the opening came in the second half, then Mow Mitchell got away to the goal line after a great run of forty yards, fooling all his would-be tacklers, passing to Harrigan, who scooted over the line. Bob Davis then converted the try, boosting the score from 3 to 0 in favor of U.S.C. to 5 to 3 for the club.

NEAR SCORE.

After this play the remaining fifteen minutes of the half was played inside of the L.A.A.C. 25-yard line, and twice it looked as though the Trojans were going over. Once Elmore dropped a club forward, who had the ball, on the goal line, took it away from him and hiked over the line, but Referee Elliott ruled a 25 drop-out and the score was not allowed. Again Laird wiggled his way over, but was hauled back by the entire club team. At the very end of the game U.S.C. was awarded a free kick from the 25-yard line, Elmore shooting what looked like a goal. At first Elliott called it a score, but when the touch judge changed his decision, did not allow the score.

However, the game was a good thing for the Trojans, as it showed up several weak spots, which must be patched up before the game with California next Saturday. The Olympics beat Stanford at the first of the season and it is now proving to have been the best thing that has happened to the Cardinal varsity team.

THE START.

In the first half the game opened with the clubmen kicking off to the varsity. The fullbacks exchanged kicks to touch, Tiedeman getting the best of Toland, when Walton and Sweeney clustered around the ball and dribbled it to the U.S.C. fifty-yard line. At this point, Jones broke through on a line-out and went tearing down the field, taking the play to the club ten-yard line. The Trojans heeled out, gave the ball to Alber, who cross-kicked to Craig, who passed to Laird, who was downed on the one-yard line. Here the battle ranged for ten minutes, then one of the clubmen picked out of the scrum and U.S.C. was awarded a free kick. Alber carried the ball out to the thirty-yard line, as it was on a rather difficult angle, but Elmore kicked a beautiful goal, scoring three points.

During the last five minutes of this half the Trojans again got on the five-yard line and kept pounding on the goal line, but were unable to get by the desperate men in blue. Schwarts went over once, but was called back for passing off the ground. Then U.S.C. was awarded another free kick, which Elmore sent between the bars, only to have little midget Tommy McCarey touch it just as he kicked, Tom making a wild jump. This nullified the score, so when the half ended the score was 3 to 0, when, if the varsity had shown any class at all, it should have been at least fifteen.

TOO TRICKY.

Between halves, Coach Higgins poured out the blue vitrol of his wrath, and it seemed to have the desired effect at first, but the tricky old heads managed to outguess the varsity, and at that the stage was set for them. The most thrilling portion of this period of play was during the final five minutes, when the Trojans had the clubmen on their one-yard line. Several times the U.S.C. backs seemed to pass up opportunities of carrying the ball over the line, trying drop kicks instead, all of which took up valuable time, but the time gun was fired and the day saved for the heroes of "ye olden days."

It was during the fore part of the second half that Mow Mitchell and Phil Harrigan staged their little coup de grace, thereby capturing the game and quite some glory.

SOME SCRAP.

Now for these high school lads. Some battle gents, some battle, and when you have said this, you have the description of the game. San Bernardino just would not submit to defeat and that was all there was to the affair.

The High School team does not look very good this year, while the Gate City boys have improved at least 100 per cent. over last year, although there is still room for about 1000 per cent. now. It was the fight that these mere boys carried under their flaming red uniforms that carried the day. Coach Johnson must have been feeding them on pure tobasco sauce all week.

In the first half San Berdoo rushed the hill toppers off their feet, but the boys from L. A. came back and nearly scored before time was called. In the second half, Johnson's men were on the defense nearly all the time, but the blue line could advance to the goal line, then it seemed to be a physical impossibility to get any further, therefore the score remained 0 to 0, all hail to the little fellows from San Bernardino, they are game and it will take some team to beat them.

The line-ups for yesterday's games were as follows:

U.S.C. — Forwards, Baronides, Haines, Toolan, Schwarts, Mason, Elmore, Jones, Fisher, Teschke; Alber, half-back; K. Haney, W. Haney, first five; Craig, second five; Bacon, Lund, center three; Laird, K. Haney and Sheppard, wings; Toland, full-back.

NEW GOLF CHAMPION.

MONTREAL, Oct. 4.—[By A. P. Night Wire.] —Miss Muriel Dodd, champion woman golfer of England, won the women's golf championship of Canada by defeating Miss Florence Harvey of Hamilton, Ont., today, seven up and six to play.

VICTORY FOR GARDENA.

The Gardena High School Rugby team defeated the San Pedro High School fifteen yesterday afternoon, on the Gardena grounds by the score of 12 to 0. The Gardena back-field was too strong for the harbor boys and the speed of this portion of the team won the game.

NO KICKER FOR ARMY AND NAVY.

There is not a punter among the candidates for the football team at the Army and Navy Academy this fall. The most likely booter in the running is Bidwell, formerly of San Diego High School, but he is only mediocre and has not been in the best of condition during the past two weeks and it is possible that he will have to give up all hopes of the eleven.

Al Waddell, who is coaching the eleven, had hoped to develop a kicking and passing offense, but without a star punter such a thing is impossible and the best he will be able to do will be to work up the forward pass to a state of near-perfection, such as was done by Coach Wilson at Whittier College last fall.

"Pug" Waddell, a brother of the coach, has been doing well at place-kicking, but when he was put out with a cracked rib, the team was robbed of that advantage. Mollison, the husky little back, has been working to get the ball over the bar from all angles with a drop kick and is doing fairly well, but it will be a long time before he will be an able punter.

The University of California Rugby team recently tried out a new formation calling for fourteen men on a team, instead of the customary fifteen.

CHALMERS TROPHIES TO DAUBERT AND JOHNSON.

Star Pitcher of the Washington Club and the Lanky First Baseman of the Brooklyn Club Were Chosen as the Most Valuable Players in American and National Leagues.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Oct. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Walter Johnson, pitcher of the Washingtons, and Jake Daubert of the Brooklyn Dodgers, were baseball's most valuable players during the season of 1913. This was the result of the vote of the Chalmers trophy commission announced today and the two athletes will be given 1914 Chalmers cars for being of the most value to their teams during the season now almost a thing of the past. Daubert will be given his car at New York on the opening day of the world series, while Johnson will get his prize at Philadelphia a day later.

The vote on Daubert as the most valuable athlete came as a surprise to the followers of the pastime. The lanky first baseman, while not a sensational player, is leading the National League in hitting and it was due to his work that the Dodgers at the start of the season held second place for several weeks.

Johnson's selection was another upset for it was thought that a pitcher could not win the trophy for the reason that twirlers did not deserve as much credit as players who were in the game every day. Johnson smashed this theory by his great work during the season and he alone is responsible for the Senators' position in the race. The blonde shrapnel has taken part in almost one-third of the National games this season, winning thirty-six times.

The votes were canvassed at the University Club this afternoon by Ren Mulford, Jr., chairman of the trophy commission, and Carl M. Green, representing Hugh L. Chalmers, donor of the car. The notable coincidence in connection with the voting was the fact that the players who received votes last year fell off in their playing to such an extent that they failed to get a mention this year. Ty Cobb, 1911 winner of the car in the American League, received three votes, while Frank Schulte, his running mate that season, did not receive a vote.

Take Two Games.

OXY TIGERS WIN BUT SHOW NOTHING STARTLING

OCCIDENTAL, 30; South Pasadena, 0.

Occidental, 14; Y.M.C.A., 0.

The double-header football game on Occidental Field yesterday afternoon failed to disclose anything startling in the line of class.

In the preliminary a mixed up varsity squad which had Capt. Jones of the varsity, a couple of othters of near-varsity caliber and the remainder third team men, defeated South Pasadena High without much trouble. The work of Lewis at end, Snortt Long at full-back and Thad Jones at tackle was very noticeable, though Thad remained in the game only long enough to get up a good sweat.

The High School boys were far too light for the collegians, but managed to make headway several times as well as making good gains on fumbles. The Tigers failed to get the forward pass working at all, the High School ends smothering the quarter-back on several occasions.

The game with the Y.M.C.A. squad proved to be something more than a workout for the Tigers, who used the second team for the larger part of the game. The fast varsity backs and ends were not used for more than about five minutes, and as a result it was not possible to get a very good line on the varsity material.

The real sensation of the day was the discovery of a couple of fine tackles. Squires and Doig are the men in question. Squires created a big sensation by his work in carrying the ball on tackle-around plays, while Doig, who did not get a chance to carry the ball, broke through the Y.M.C.A. line time after time and smeared up their plays.

Perhaps it was that the Y.M.C.A. line was strong at center and guards but the Tigers failed to work the forward pass successfully. One long pass to Kirkpatrick netted a touchdown, but as a rule Quarter-back Lens was forced to get his passes off in such a hurry that they were too long or too short and seldom failed to connect.

Coffeen's work in the backfield for the Tigers was very good. He was too light to be of much effect against the Y.M.C.A. line, but on the defensive he proved to be a whirlwind, tackling men all over the field. On the whole the work of the Tigers was very ragged, due to the frequent changes in the line-up, while the Y.M.C.A. team proved unexpectedly strong, their quarter-back making some very sensational dodging runs.

They Show.

POMONA VARSITY TAKES FIRST GAME OF SEASON.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CLAREMONT, Oct. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Pomona College varsity opened its 1913 season here today by defeating the strong Santa Monica High School eleven, 27 to 0. Stanton's men held the visitors safe at all stages of the game and at no time during the contest did the beach lads have possession of the ball in Pomona's territory. Santa Monica was able to make first down but twice in the entire forty minutes of play, and then only on two forward passes. The ball was in the possession of the "Sage Hens" the majority of the time and always in their opponents' territory.

Stanton's line, as was expected, showed to advantage and the back field played consistent ball, making gains wherever called upon. With one or two exceptions there were no long runs, Stanton relying on line plunges, which netted from three to five yards with crushing regularity. In fact, the football displayed by the Blue and White team was a reversion to the old bucking game of five years ago, Stanton's idea seeming to be to get possession of the ball and take it slowly, but none the less surely, up the field. The work of the Pomona line on the defensive was notable, especially when the strength of the High School eleven is taken into consideration. Santa Monica is a well-coached, fast and shifty team, and from the showing here today should stand well up in the interscholastic race this fall.

There were but few star plays. Capt. Wilson, the Hun leader, ran the team at quarter in a steady, consistent manner, and Walter Reeves, Pomona left end, showed the same ability to thread interference and nail the man carrying the ball that placed him on the all-State team in 1912. Barton at center for Santa Monica was the real star of the High School lads, spoiling many promising plays.

Stanton's substitutes were rushed into the game in the fourth quarter and acquitted themselves well. Pomona scored one touchdown in the first quarter, one in the second, none in the third and two in the last; three out of four attempts to kick goal were converted. The ball was in Pomona's possession on Santa Monica's ten-yard line when time was called.

Touch downs—Jesson, 2; Cogswell, 2. Goals after touchdown — Youngman, Jesson, Cogswell. Time of quarters, 10 minutes. "Dutch" Shutt, referee. Miller, umpire. Ash, head linesman.

HOW TO MIX OIL ON SEVERE TEST.

The Master Carburetor Company has installed one of the most complete testing plants on the Pacific Coast in the new factory, which is located on Los Angeles street. All kinds of oil and fuel are tested and the results chronicled for future reference.

Manager Miller, in speaking of the new plant yesterday afternoon, said: "We have obtained some interesting results in our different tests of automobile oils and fuel. We are also prepared to test spark plugs, magnetos and various makes of carburetors. The plant is maintained to assist us in our work of perfecting the modern carburetor, and to anyone interested in this line of work, a visit to our factory is more than worth while.

"There are great differences in gasoline, oil, coal oil and distillate, and by testing each one by various methods, we are able to determine just what kind of oil and fuel is best for the different motors.

"To anyone who is bothered by fuel troubles, we are always ready to render whatever assistance is necessary to determine the cause and remedy of the trouble."

MUCH-TRAVELED STEARNS.

Few—very few—of the automobiles running today can boast a mileage of 100,000 while still in the hands of the original owner, although the streets are full of travel-scarred veterans that look the part. And of the few that have reached this mark not many are allowed to get outside the zone of garages and repair shops. It is this fact which lends interest to the recent performance of a 1912 Stearns car in completing a trip from New York to New Orleans in thirteen days. The car is owned by W. M. Scholl, representative of a New York perfumery house, who piloted the car on its journey to New Orleans.

The race track at the San Francisco exposition in 1915 is to be not only one of the fastest in the country, but the most beautiful.

A PLEA FOR THE DETACHED HOUSE

By Aymar Embury II

One of the Leading Country House Architects of America

THE Home, next to the children in it, is the object in which the normal human being takes most interest and there is, after all, only one sort of a Home that completely and comfortably shelters the affections — the detached dwelling with its surroundings. No apartment can ever have the same meaning, because with a house, as with a child, what we tend and care for and regard as permanent we most love. I suppose there was never a man who owned his own house who did not have in his mind some scheme, small or great, for its improvement in comfort and appearance; and the detached house offers a wide range of opportunity for changes and developments. Conditions of living in an apartment house are accepted as something fixed and unalterable; no one wishes to spend money on improving the property of another; nor to become too sentimentally attached to a home which can only be regarded as temporary.

The detached house, standing in its own grounds, is the only sort of place where one can really find the simplest and yet essential necessities of life — Air and Sunshine. To deliberately exile one's self from these things by occupying a bed room on a light court (light in name only) is certainly foolish; to bring one's children up under such conditions is hardly short of criminal. The saving grace of the hurried and fretful life that most Americans live, lies in the fact that they may, perhaps, disregard their own health and comfort, but very earnestly seek them for their children. Consciously or otherwise, in the United States it is the coming generation for whom best provision is made, and nowhere can we better serve the coming generation than in helping them to sound, healthy bodies and sound, healthy minds.

Little Gardens of Eden

The detached house presupposes a certain amount of surrounding grounds that can be a source of infinite pleasure to the home owner, and of inexhaustible utility to his children. Where the dining room of the apartment house usually opens upon a magnificent vista of occupied clothes lines, the dining room of the detached home may look out upon a garden space as beautiful as the owner cares to make it. You come to your own front door through air impregnated with the good sound smell of Mother Earth, and not with your nostrils filled with the fumes of your neighbor's cooking; and from the windows of your living room you see hedges and green lawns instead of dusty and noisome streets.

Your own house may n very different in cost or sign from those of your nei bors, but, whether you buil yourself or buy it ready-ma it has inevitably many featu which appeal to your taste and indivi ality, and which conform to your sta ards of comfort and appropriate liv Nor need it fall short of the best ap ment house in material aids to comf You have your radiators for steam hot water heating, and you have, in a dition, the open fire place which surely a highway to health. You m have to heat your own water, but y also know that no apartment below y is going to use so much water that y get none; you may have to repair y own plumbing, but you know that the rent you pay does not cover t expenses of repairing damages done by your careless and slovenly tenants, not neighbors, s one has no neighbors in a apartment house.

There is another side of l in the detached or suburb house which is not commo thought of, but is quite as i portant as those which h been mentioned. That is t character of surroundings a associates and their effect u growing children. You m have an apartment in a neig borhood where you do not kn and do not wish to know any the people about you; you ca and do go long distances to s your friends; but your childr must meet and play with other that live in the same block.

Home Assets and Dividen

In the suburbs most of th people in the same neighbor hood are of the same sort an standard of character, and i the suburban school which you children will attend, the pupi will be the children of people i your own walk of life, the so of children with whom you own should grow up, associa and mate. The buildings a not overcrowded, because th population is not dense enoug to cause overcrowding.

In the last analysis the Hom owner is what God intend him to be, a normal, health man, raising his children in normal, healthy way: doing in a Home that allows for th fullest expression of his ind viduality and that of his fami subject to an environment o his own making that brings ou the best that's in him.

If you haven't thought of th point before, call on a fellow flat-dweller and feel the limpi aenemic, howdy-do handshak and the lack of enthusiasm Then call upon some friend li ing at the edge of a city or dw in the suburbs, and when you ring his bell you 'll get a hearty greeting and a heartier handshake from a man with the light of the Joy of Living in his eye

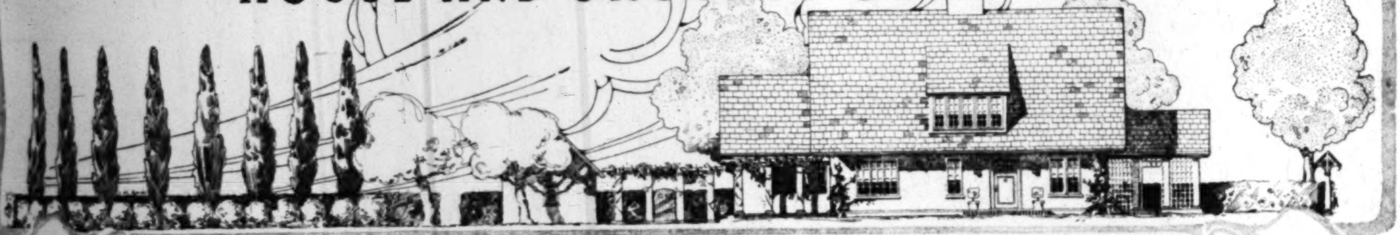
THE IDEAL HOME

HOUSE AND GROUNDS COMPLETE



"WELL ORDERED HOME MAN'S BEST DESIRE TO MAKE"– James Johnson.

DESIGNED BY JACK MANLEY ROSÉ, ASSOCIATE EDITOR

THE very making of a well-ordered and Ideal Home is a subject to which we have given thought and mature judgment and the greatest enthusiasm for the past year. And we present to our readers what we believe to be the finest solution of the homebuilder's problem—a solution well considered and adequately suited to conform to the demands of modern life; a home not without luxury, but comprising every simple comfort: primarily a country home within the city limits.

The demands of high living are met here, and the appeal of simple living also. In the good outline of the house, framed in its charming garden and grounds, in the carefully planned interior, harmoniously furnished, is both the acme of good taste and the familiar contours of a real home. A man well blessed with worldly goods could live here with pride and respect among his neighbors,—a struggling city worker would find his problem of existence lightened in this home, and an aesthetic whose desire for the beautiful has made average dwelling unattractive to him, would here realize the home of his dreams—all the joys of a country home on the confines of a city lot.

WE do not believe that there is one need of the average home-builder that is not met here, nor one inch of ground or room not utilized to the best advantage. Every expense, exclusive of costs of the building lot, title searches, of the grading of a property not ideally situated and leveled, of the public service companies, or city, for bringing gas, water, etc., from the street to the house, of a superintending architect, and the actual cost of the home furniture, has been considered and noted. Outside of such expenses there are no extras in the cost of the Ideal Home, a fact greatly appreciated by those who have previously builded to their sorrow.

Every economy has been taken advantage of and yet nothing is skimped to mar the whole effect.

We are locating the Ideal Home, for the purpose of discussion, just within the city limits of either a great metropolis or a small town, where the air is pure to breathe and a man may own enough ground to comfortably seclude himself from his nearest neighbors, a real requisite of a home and one so seldom considered. In doing so we reduce to a minimum the cost of transporting building materials, which lowers the estimate of the job. We are developing from flat uninteresting building lots a home complete in itself, doing away with the bare, unsettled aspect so common to new residences and their grounds. If one is so fortunate as to be building on a tract already relieved from ugliness by growth of some sort, a certain amount can be saved from the cost of laying out the grounds, but the average home-builder's problem generally concerns itself with the beautifying of building lots newly laid out and boasting no more than a coating of grass and a row of very young shade trees along the sidewalk line.

Ground Plan of the IDEAL HOME

AS you approach the Ideal Home from your trolley, subway or railroad station, or in your automobile, you will find the outward aspect wholly satisfying and delightful. The house itself is long and rambling, and faces its own pretty gardens, endwise to the street. This gives you not only the greatest amount of space about your house, (but allows for a satisfactory cutting up of the grounds in case encroaching developments make it advantageous to sell or dispose of a portion of the property). For if you are paying taxes on your entire plot of ground, why not enjoy every inch of it? This is the idea we are carrying out for you—a country place, completely developed within the boundaries of the city. The average house faces the street occupying all the lot front save a driveway on one side and a little grass plot on the other. The tiny front lawn shows some care generally, but the part of the property behind the house is considered "back yard,"—a place of clothes poles, ash cans and trodden down turf,—We are making a garden of it, a garden that your own house faces and enjoys. The privet hedge completely encircling the place and left to grow at least five feet high, though it's better at seven, gives the grounds a delightful feeling of seclusion. The long low lines of the English roof, with its deep overhang, casts a pleasing shadow on the rough walls. The warm neutral tan of the stucco and the rich brown stain of shingled roof and trim in their setting of green foliage is not only charming and quaint but dignified and imposing according to the view point from which it is considered. THE IDEAL HOUSE PLAN

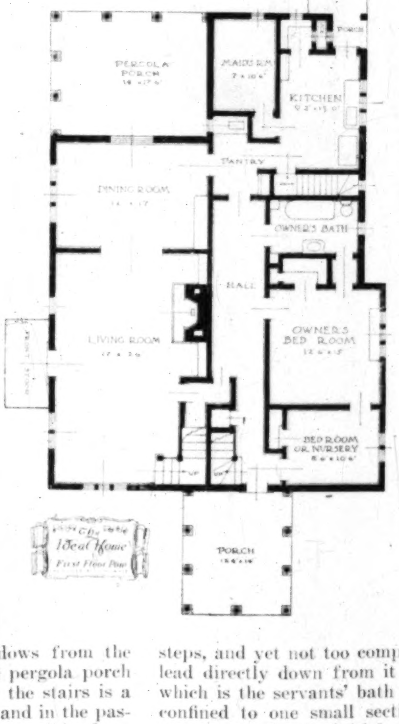
NO one will gainsay, we think, that the bungalow type of dwelling has grown rapidly in favor of late. Nor will anyone who has considered the subject fail to admit that it has its peculiar disadvantages. We have endeavored to incorporate the virtues and eliminate the vices of the bungalow type of dwelling from our House. Not a true bungalow, nor yet a large house, it has the general effect of both. The ground floor is complete for living; bedrooms, bathroom and all, and the second floor rooms have none of the stuffiness of the true bungalow on account of the air chamber above them. The ceilings are not too low for comfort and ventilation, and yet not so high as to be ugly.

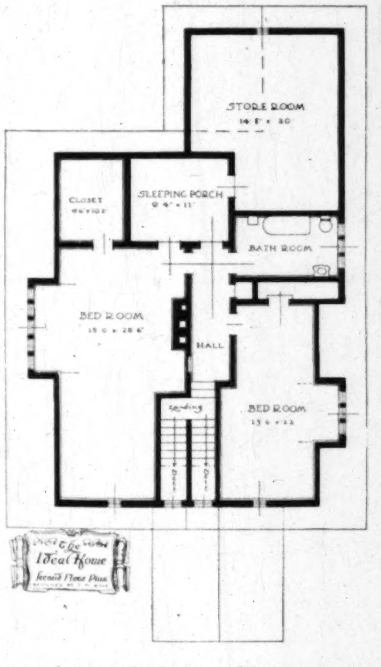
As you enter the front door there is no uninteresting hall to greet you with stupid hat rack and umbrella stand combined. You enter directly: the whole atmosphere of an unusual home envelopes you. The stairs are at the extreme right, unobtrusive and taking up as little room as possible. They are merely a means of getting upstairs, treated in a simple and consistent manner and wholly subordinated to the other more interesting features. The fireplace faces you, and the low bookcases which embrace it.

Through the wide doorway is the vista of the dining room, and the two rooms opening into one as they do, afford a large space for dancing; a present-day requirement not to be ignored. Double French windows from the dining room open out on the bricked pergola porch or dining porch, if you will. Under the stairs is a small passageway leading to the hall, and in the passageway is the telephone located; accessible from both the living rooms and the bedrooms, and reached by both back and front stairs. This passageway serves as a cloak and hat closet as well.

THE hall runs through the center of the house, east and west, and a doorway at one end leads out to the covered porch. At this end are also the back stairs leading to a common landing with the front stairs and merging there; making it unnecessary to go through the living room to reach the upstairs bedrooms. At the other end is the butler's pantry, which leads into the kitchen to the north, and the dining room to the south. Along the hall opening into it are the nursery, the owner's room and the bathroom. Thus are the sleeping quarters absolutely cut off from the living and dining room; an arrangement with many advantages in that each section may be ventilated, cleaned and lived in separately. The service end to the west is isolated, and the maid's room, though connected with the kitchen, is divided from it by a passageway. The kitchen porch is roomy, the kitchen small enough to save steps, and yet not too compact, and the cellar stairs lead directly down from it into the laundry, off of which is the servants' bath room. The plumbing is confined to one small section of the house, which saves not only the initial cost but confines any repairing to a small area. Ample store rooms are portioned off in the cellar, and the coal and wood bins are located near the furnace door. Area steps lead directly from the laundry, and the clothes chutes from the two upstair bathrooms terminate near the set tubs.

On the second floor are two large airy bedrooms across the hall from each other. One of them is intended for a guest chamber, and the other for older children or other members of the family. The bathroom comes directly over the first floor one, and at the end of the hall is a door to the sleeping porch, which is also reached through the front bedroom. A large unfinished store room opens on the sleeping porch which makes the airing of stored a tains, rugs and winter clothing a simple Whole trunks may be dragged out there and sacked and repacked in the strong-light a which cannot fail to appeal to the housewif dreads the heated attic in the first warm d spring.





Every room has adequate closet space; the front bedroom and the o room being particularly fav this respect. The plan of the Home admits of enlarging appropriation can be raised For one thousand dollars m following changes could be the covered porch on the g floor might easily be sacrifice an extension bedroom, day n or study of fine proportions sleeping porch walled-in for a tra maid's room, or the unfin storeroom converted for the use. The bathrooms could b throughout, an extra chimney and a fireplace opened in the stairs bedroom, as well as a dow built in the closet. A bui ice box could be furnished, a shelf under the dining room dows for plants with corner cupboards built in on either and a beamed ceiling in the li room. Awnings might be for the sunny side of the house gardens piped for sprinklers vacuum cleaner with exhaus stalled, or other electric devices saving labor. So can the I Home at the modest cost of thousand five hundred dollars come as well equipped as a pretentious and costly dwelling

IF a green house is desired as an addition to otherwise Ideal Home, it can be made both us as well as ornamental. And if you are really in ested in a garden of your own and want to ob therein the very best results, and also have gro things about you during all the months,—a g house is to you an essential. A hot bed or a c frame will hardly be sufficient to your requirement A not too costly outlay would transpose the cove porch of the Ideal House into a conservatory gre house. Glassing in the sides with removable s would give you a solarium for the colder months a while not as thoroughly businesslike as a hot hou would make a good starting place for indoor seedlin

Attached to the house it may be made part of it another charming room to live in, it can furnish the gardening joys with none of its discomforts, a guarantee seasonable results in vegetables, fruits a flowers that will make you an object of envy.

A LIVA

YOU may not have nightingales in you garden nor a stretch of moonlit se to enjoy, but you can have clear ai the scent of growing things, moon light touching the flower beds an silvering the lawn, or the patter o a warm spring rain all about you, i you are lured from the walled-in bedroom to the sleeping balcony. You need have none of the fear of disturbance that goes with outdoor sleeping as a rule, for we have planned this balcony so that it is shielded from the street, cut off from the glare of the rising sun but not from the enjoyment of the gilded morning sky. It may be screened at small expense and is roomy enough for two Gloucester hammocks to hang, that can be hoisted roofwards during the day.

The first crisp nights of autumn have a charm al their own for outdoor sleeping. You have not th oppressive stillness of a sleeping household abou you, but the intimate quiet of the whole universe To sleep is a simple task, so easy as to be almost re gretful, and to wake, bathed in the freshness of th morning, is a joy.

Our sleeping porch is like a room with the wall to wards the garden removed, all save the guard rail o masonry. It has a wooden floor coated with dee paint, with an outlet for water in case of a drivin rain. Canvas curtains could be dropped during violent storm if the habitual outdoor sleeper scorne to come indoors.

The advantages of an upstairs porch, aside fro its sleeping possibilities, cannot be reckoned unle you try to live without after having had one. As place for the outdoor baby to take his daytime na a drying place for the hand-basin washing of lace silk stockings and neckwear that every woman i dulges in occasionally, or an airing spot for blanke and comforters, it has no equal. There is no bett room for gasoline cleaning or for the brushing a shaking out of wearing apparel. You will never r gret building the sleeping porch!

KITCHEN YARD AND VEGETABLE GARDEN

IS there any reason in the world why Mond should find all your garden a mass of wet line Why not dry it all in an enclosure, screened fr the living rooms and cut off from the garden wa and lawns? An enclosure with sunlight and a easy of access from kitchen and laundry and out the path of remorseless delivery boys. A pat clothes dryer, closed like an umbrella turned ins out, is set into a socket sunken in the turf. O opened up it has, strung from rib to rib, clothes l enough for the drying of the linen of any small fa ily. It is easily revolved at will, it is convenien reached at all points and obviates the possibility the line sagging and trailing freshly washed she on the ground.

Across the yard is the garage and shop where the garden tools are also stored, and at the back of the yard is a stout wire netting stretched on the pergola for Clematis and Honeysuckle, leaving a small passage near the garage. This gives almost directly upon the gravel path leading back to the garage and the rubbish yard, to the vegetable garden. Here the north and west sides have a single row of poplars just within the hedge. A screen that casts little shadow and does not keep off the moisture or hinder the free circulation of air. A low row of berry bushes; currants, blackberries and raspberries, mark the confines on the south. A hedge of privet on the east hides the rubbish yard. There is room in the kitchen garden plot to raise vegetables for one's own table —the old standbys and the experiments. A strawberry patch and an asparagus bed could be wedged in, and a row of herbs. If you care to make your useful garden as ornamental as possible,

If you care to make your useful garden as ornamental as possible, a border of giant rhubarb, or one of purple flowered chives will give great pleasure as well as practical satisfaction. In the spring and fall, manure can be pitched from the rubbish yard, where dumped, directly to the garden plot across the hedge, or barrowed around at leisure with the least risk of offending. The dove-cote furnishes a home for pigeons,—picturesque birds of gentle habits.

Practical things need not be unsightly or even unbeautiful, and in a well-ordered home, ugliness has no place.

THE ~ PERGOLA RIGHTLY USED

IT is an age of pergolas; they are budding forth on remodeled houses, incorporated in new houses and added to old houses with an utter disregard of true fitness. They begin nowhere and lead nowhere, they support no vines and consequently furnish no shade, and, in fact, half the time look depressingly like nothing so much as a section of elevated railroad.

The well-used pergola whose framework is covered each of the first few years by the quick growth of annual vines before the perennials cast enough shade, is the ideal pergola. It must have a use, primarily, —leading to or leading from somewhere; or be a place to sit in and enjoy, else it misses its point entirely. Sometimes the pergola is built for beauty alone, a curving white section placed at the far side of a pool—or at the end of a tennis court, against a background of green shrubbery, and in that case no one can dispute the use if it pleases the eye.

The pergola has more possibilities than seem at first apparent. If the growth of vines be unsuccessful, a striped-canvas awning can be stretched across the rafters, or the entire pergola screened on the inside, which useful scheme need not detract from the beauty.

THE Ideal Home provides for both pergola porch and pergola covered walk. The porch opens out from the dining room; has a bricked floor, laid herringbone pattern a step above the grass, and makes a delightful place to dine in sultry weather. The dining table can be drawn out through the double French window and the serving made a simple matter. Don't you like the idea of an evening meal al fresco, with long shadows, and level golden light streaking the lawn, the glint on silver and glass, the sleepy twittering of the birds, and the quiet of it all? By and by the candles are lighted and you sit there at the softly glowing table and watch the moon rise across the garden.

Out from the porch leads the pergola walk, a stretch of creamy columns screening the kitchen yard and pointing the path on down to the vegetable patch. The interlacing leafy tendrils spatter the ground with flecks of light and shade, and frame the pleasing vista beyond. (Continued on Page 16)

ROSE GARDENS, WALKS AND SEATS TO TEMPT YOU~

AS a chance caller at our House, turning in at the wicket gate and strolling up the curving path to the hospitable doorway, you would be inclined to loiter as you pass the Rose Garden where the sun dial stands, and note the birds splashing in the bath around it, and speculate on the gardens so alluringly half hidden by the terrace before you. Being a formal caller, you would stand sedately on the little porch, your back to the charming garden, your mind and tongue receptively fixed to meet the opening door with the proper phrase, your greeting nicely tempered to be adequate to all emergencies. Once in the spacious atmosphere of the living room you may catch tantalizing glimpses of the grounds from the curtained casement, a stretch of brick path along the terrace, the green-twined columns of a pergola, and a vista of interlacing boughs and color between them.

Why not be the owner of the Ideal Home and have it all belong to you? All seasons of the year have their particular charm out of doors, and who can say whether the deep greens of mid-summer are more beautiful than the purple boughs and snow crusts of winter, or the lush verdure of the spring fairer than the vivid painting of the autumn? Every day will tempt you to enjoy the gardens of the Ideal Home. According to modern standards the heavy demarcation between outside the house and inside the house is, to a great extent, erased. Let your house overflow into your garden and your garden into your house.

The trellis that leads from your entrance door into your Rose Garden, circles its burden of rambling clusters over your head as you pass under and stroll about the prim little paths, grass-edged, that mark off the formal beds where all your hardy beauties lift their scented faces. There would be tea roses here, such as Elizabeth loved, and the hardy Killarney that rose growers almost give away when they have exhausted their usefulness to them. Oh! there are any number of your favorites and there is room for them all.

IF the roses just for themselves do not appeal to you,—if the necessary cultivation and the lack of color effect in massing does not please you, think what a fascinating old-fashioned garden you could plant here! Lavender and heliotrope, love-in-a-mist, babies' breath, snow-on-the-mountain, sweet alyssum, names to conjure with, and all for little border edgings! Bachelor buttons, pinks, asters, marigolds, mignonette and poppies planted all in masses and back of them, stocks, larkspur, Canterbury bells, hollyhocks, snap-dragon, phlox and foxglove.

A sundial will make you pause to watch the shadow creep about, and the bird bath give you endless simple pleasure. Masses of shrubbery, as indicated, will furnish variety, give some shade, and make retreat possible. The potted hydrangeas guarding the terrace steps give some hint of the beauty beyond, and the little hedge of Japanese barberry or box will give a quaint edging to the low terrace. From this coign of vantage the little house is spread before you in all its intimacy and charm. A glance down to the shady court crowned by its fine tree shows a vista full of allure, and in fact every viewpoint has its appeal. There is no ugliness apparent anywhere,—all is beauty and promise. So on down the terrace steps at the back, along the grass walk, with the stately flower beds massing color on each side, to the clump of trees and shrubs at the end, parting to show the pool and seat beyond; its pale color against the green of the quince bushes reflecting in the depths of the still, dark water. Blue iris rings about the pool and flowering bulbs are sown broadcast under the orchard trees, naturalized in the grass. From the seat with the pool at your feet, you face the two tall clumps of trees and shrubbery across the lawn that mark the beginning of the grass walk leading back again to the terrace. A white birch gleams here against the (Continued on Page 9)

THE PRACTICAL SIDE OF THE QUESTION

WHETHER you are considering building immediately or whether it is a distant dream, you are interested primarily in the costs of construction and all the economical phases of the problem. Here you have a house of which the cost is limited to $5,540, in no possible way to be exceeded. A house adapted to almost any location, be it seacoast, hill country or the restricted environs of a model city, it stands pleasing in its long, low exterior lines, and modern rough cast finish. Every item of cost has been most carefully considered and every expense, not absolutely required to make the house well constructed, pleasing, weather proof, warm in winter and correspondingly cool in summer, and thoroughly practical for all living purposes, has been thoughtfully cut down. Before your house plans are thought out, you will possibly consider the material of which your home shall be built. You have seen so-called fire-proof houses gutted from cellar to roof and know that they are not infallible. You are cheerfully willing to stand the risk of loss by fire for the sake of lowering considerably the cost of the house.

You want a warm house, a tight house, a house that will not warp or hold dampness, and what better wall-construction, excepting brick, presents itself than this for the Ideal House. Wooden frame covered with diagonal board sheathing, this with a layer of building paper outside of which is the stucco board which receives two coats of cement stucco. Inside the frame is lath and plaster. All this is set on a foundation of hollow tile coated with marine cement followed by cement mortar inside and out.

In presenting figures for this house we are assuming conditions to be perfect, which means the property practically level, located within city limits that the cost of transportation need not be an item of any great consideration, and presenting no difficult or unforeseen problem of excavation such as the encountering of quicksand or trap rock.

THE plans and specifications of this house, calling for only the best of materials and constructions, and consisting of nine rooms and three bathrooms, a sleeping porch, two large piazzas, an attic trunk room, a laundry and cellar store room, have been figured upon by reliable contractors of the East, Middle West and Pacific coast. We are quoting to you Eastern figures, for all authorities will agree that the highest cost of building centers about New York city, within a radius of fifty miles. Long Island, perhaps, being in the lead, due to a shortage of artisan labor.

The cost of the garage is $500.00; $220 covers the pergolas and garden accessories; $565.00 the paths, grading and planting. The cost of all the plants as shown on the plan of the grounds is $175.00. All of this, with $5,540.00 for the house, makes a total of $7,000.00 for The Ideal Home complete.

If you have leisure to give the matter of building your undivided attention, and the patience to deal with the unforeseen, as well as some slight experience in conducting building operations, it is quite likely that you can dispense with the services of a superintending architect, especially if you are sure of your contractors. It would be wiser, perhaps, to have a general contractor; a man of whose integrity you are sure, and rely upon him to put the job through, if you are thinking of superintending the work yourself.

Day labor generally proves far more expensive in the end, in fact to the layman it is a snare and a delusion and to be cautiously avoided.

In any case, watch your work and your workmen. If you have any objections to make, go to the foreman in charge, and do not offer them to the men themselves. Try to look over the whole job after the workmen have left for the day and make notes of every point that you wish to take up. Give decisions in all small matters that are referred to you, check up the hardware and go over its placing with the foreman. When the electric fixtures are being installed be sure that they are located exactly where you want them to be, and in putting in the radiators that they are not set so as to interfere with the placing of large pieces of furniture. You will have to decide about installing shelves and clothes hooks and the hinging of doors. Watch the quality of your window glass, do not let them put in thresholds, except for exterior doors, and make them protect your floors and woodwork.

Allusion has been made in the text to the use of chestnut trim in the living rooms and cypress for other parts of the house. In the plans and specifications these woods are also mentioned as generally available and practical for the builder of the moderate cost house. The wood market on the Pacific coast differs distinctly from that of the Atlantic seaboard, and it should be left to the discretion of either the builder or the superintending architect to substitute a similarly priced trim, probably redwood or Oregon pine. Flooring of Oregon pine kiln-dried and smoothed up complete can be obtained as low as nine cents per square foot, a material saving on the Eastern allowance of sixteen cents per square foot on the parquet flooring specified.

As the Ideal Home is not designed for any particular climate, and as the local conditions existing in all parts of the country differ widely, there are certain substitutions that will readily suggest themselves. We have mentioned innovations that at a small additional cost would render the Ideal Home more elaborate, but it is hardly necessary to suggest the elimination of heating plant, cellar excavation, and deep footings for concrete piers in localities free from frost.

You will need to be eternally vigilant and moreover absorbingly interested in every phase of the work to have the patience it demands. But, when all is said and done, there is nothing more utterly fascinating to the average man and woman than the building of a Home.

~INNOVATIONS~

THE gas range is hardly an innovation, yet the use of the gas range alone in a well-equipped house is an idea that has come to stay. Its cleanliness, its prompt service and the solving of coal-carrying problems commend it. The flying ashes, struggles with slow draughts, low fires, the difficulty of securing the service of some man to carry coal up the cellar stairs several times a day, all point to it as a labor-saver. Gas companies will tell you that the price of gas is cheaper than the price of coal, and prove it to your satisfaction. In conjunction with the Rudd Heater which provides hot water instantly, you have an equipment that cannot be excelled by the big range with its blackening fuel, its house-he properties when the weather is more or less and its care.

The radiator of the dining room is fitted wi warming closet for heating the service plates.

THE clothes chute leading from both the b rooms to a slatted rack in the laundry solve soiled clothes problem, replacing the clothes bag so often hangs, a rather insanitary convenience the bedroom closet. Far better it is than the w hampers whose contents, emptied by the laund into a big sheet, are carried down the flights of s in a huge unwieldy pack at least once a week. sorting and piling in the upper halls that goes o that occasion might just as well take place i laundry.

The folding clothes pole has had its practical tested for many years. Why disfigure your yard the week by the four posts so commonly used one day out of the seven? This revolving clo rack sets into a little socket sunk in the turf, spreads out enough hanging area for the drying an average family washing.

In the owner's room is a cedar lined moth-p window-seat included in the specifications and th fore figured upon. Here too is the full-length m ror set in the closet door and the space arra within the closet for concealing a small safe.

THE passage between the living room and the h utilized as a telephone booth that can be rea from two directions, is a big advantage. The bu sideboard in the dining room is a novelty to the av age home builder. Its wide counter shelf will h large pieces of silver, the rail above it makes a s place for rare plate or silver platters. The drawers are all well adapted to hold flat silver a table napery, and its panelling helps lend dignity a finish to the room.

The electric switches for lighting both bathr are located just outside the door. This is a great c venience for guests who are not familiar with t location of the fixtures.

All the porches are electric lighted. When one d sires they may be used as out-of-door writing roo

The broom closet under the rear stairs is la enough to hold an electric vacuum cleaner with its a tachments, a carpet sweeper and all the necess brooms and brushes.

The linen closet in the second floor hall is equipp to contain all the bed linen of the household, with t exception of the towels in daily use.

As the bookshelves are placed in the Ideal Ho the arrangement seems perfect. They embrace t chimney and fireplace on each side, furnishing nook for easy chairs and the electric side brackets sh strong light on the book titles.

If you wish your icebox to be filled from t kitchen porch through the little outside window bu for the purpose — remove the lid hinges and hing the top the other way round, then backed up again the wall it can be filled from without by the icem and the lower shelves can be reached from the pantry Greatest of all innovations in building is the pre ent day scheme of constructing the house and laying out the grounds at the same time so that by the tim the house is completed the gardens are well start and the place never has the raw unfinished look th time softens so slowly.

HOW WE DECORATE THE IDEAL HOME

SOME one has told you, or you have always been convinced that plain color is the only acceptable keynote of interior decoration, but you have doubtless gotten tired of all green rooms and tremendously weary of cozy all red furnishings. It is very difficult to banish things you love merely because they have not any shade of green or blue or rose or whatever the color is, in their make-up. The bedrooms are always easily disposed of, a color note, generally a tint consistently carried out with white woodwork for cheerfulness and cleanliness, is simple enough. Flowered chintz of one pattern plentifully besprinkled about the room, and the rest of the furnishings reduced to their fewest numbers will give you instantly a room all violets, roses, cornflowers, or buttercups as the case may be, always dainty and inviting, charming afresh at every angle.

It is the living rooms that offer the more difficult problems. You want a room that will not only strike the stranger as harmonious and lovely, but one that will never cease to please you and your family. Beauty does not lie always in plain colors or in one strong shade carried throughout. While consistent and dignified, and safe enough, they are apt to pall and moreover necessitate such extensive weeding out and limited thought in selection as to be most discouraging. Care that each piece of furniture is good in itself (and by good, one does not always mean expensive or massive) and has a real use, is enough to start with. Period furnishing, when well and sympathetically done, is naturally delightful, but unless rightly incorporating many of the small home touches makes a lifeless and austere atmosphere to live in. Can you fancy the mother of the household doing her comfortable mending in a Louis XV drawing room, or the rest of the family of growing boys and girls at their ease in a sitting room of the Adam style, no matter how well appointed?

PRACTICABILITY comes first in the Ideal Home —comes first and yet not to the sacrifice of good taste or pleasure. So we have planned to give you, in the living rooms, first a neutral background of walls and woodwork that will lend good furniture its best setting and allow for a play of color harmonies that complete the whole. At your first glance into the living room, you would find it difficult to say whether the color scheme was grey-green or silver green and dull blue, or old gold and silver gray, or whether just grey and a touch of coppery color here and there. At any rate it will have all the palest woodsy colors of nature welded together in such a manner as to make a pleasing room. There is a touch of substantiality about the heavy reading table of mahogany, for mahogany so difficult to place with woodwork other than white, finds in the silver grey stain we are using a sympathetic setting. The davenport backed up against it and facing the fire, will, summer and winter, be sought by comfort-seekers. The chairs all comfortable, some of mahogany and some of grey stained wicker are brightened by the cretonne coverings and cushions. We are borrowing from our English cousins their touch of flowered cretonne or chintz, so used in their familiar rooms. A kindred color note that helps weld the whole into uniformity; these cretonnes and chintzs come in wonderful colorings, are inexpensive and costly appearing at the same time, have the unusual trick of changing the entire appearance of a room, and made into slip covers transform almost any old dingy or too garishly covered chair into a thing of beauty. Carried out into little over curtains, Dutch ruffed at the casement windows, they are quaint and charming. We have chosen chintz of a rare blend of grey, grey blue, dull green and faint coppery orange. It has an all-over pattern on a dark ground and is beautiful in itself. Each of its colors are repeated about the room, — in the grey of the woodwork, the grey green of the walls and the deep ivory of the ceiling, the dull blue green of the portieres, and the soft tones of the Chinese rugs. These rugs are a beautiful pale fawn or silver grey in some lights. There is a dull green, a tint of pale orange, and considerable old blue of a pale shade in their very simple design.

DULL blue-green portieres of heavy silky stuff hang between the living room and the dining room. This room of more formality carries out a similar color scheme, with the blue more pronounced. This gives the effect of greater space as well as greater harmony. In here the single large woolen rug, with its solid dark center and plain border of two lighter tones, sets off the simple colonial dining table of dark mahogany. The rush-bottomed and bannister-backed chairs are in charming accord. A serving table with the built-in dresser furnish the room. A plate rail divides the upper wall from the lower, which is paneled off with thin strips of grey-stained wood. The upper wall has a small motif stenciled in the corners — low near the plate rail — a shade darker than the wall color.

The long wide hall that runs back of the living rooms, has a warm golden buff stain on the rough plaster of its walls. This gives light and cheerfulness, and in combination with the ivory white woodwork, makes for great attractiveness. Homespun runners in golden tan and browns would be delightful here, and craftsman furniture would not be out of place, as the width of hall makes it possible to furnish it to some extent with cosy chairs, a chest of drawers and a davenport.

THE owner's bedroom has a pale silver grey color on the walls and the same ivory white woodwork. Flowered English chintz hangings frame the mullioned windows, where hemstitched muslin curtains hang close to the casement panes. The two low four-poster beds of mahogany have spreads and valances of the same pattern, a riotous blend of old garden roses in pinks and mauves with green tendrils and leaves. The window seat which is really a built-in cedar chest, has pillows and cushions of this stuff also. The old dresser is fitted with a top of plate glass over a bit of the chintz. This room has a full-length mirror fitted in the closet door, and a rose silk curtain hangs in the doorway connecting with the room beyond. The little table between the beds has a reading light with a translucent rosy shade. This light may be reached and switched on or off from a recumbent position. The table is large enough to hold a book or so, and a water caraffe. German color prints in soft greens, rose, creamy white and pale violet hang near each bed and are framed in dull mahogany.

Adjoining might be a dressing room or a boudoir, or more naturally, a nursery. In which case the color scheme is buff, a cheerful sunny color that goes very charmingly with the white painted woodwork and enameled furniture of this room. As a nursery, a stenciled frieze of ani-

THE WALLS AND FLOORS

THERE is no great problem in connection with wall treatment. There are myriad good ways of obtaining fine results. Some of the papers made now, are wonderfully beautiful, and cover a wide range of good taste. A wall left rough by the plasterer, is no great cross to live with for a year or so, especially if the plaster be slightly grayed; in which case it is rather a pleasing background. Only to be abhorred is the smooth hard white finish intended for papering and never covered.

The Ideal Home specifications call for a rough, slightly grey wall that will take a water color finish or an oil stain. We heartily recommend the transparent oil stain for walls of this sort as giving a softer, shaded effect, as contrasted with the opaque chalkiness of the other finish. The oil stain, too, can be obtained in greater variety of tones and values, while the shades of the water color wash are firmly set and very obviously pale, pink or pale green as the case may be.

You can mix your own stain, from oil paint well thinned with turpentine and apply it after the walls have had a thin wash of glue size. The glue, obtained from a local paint dealer in sheet form, is soaked over night, then dissolved with boiling water and cooked slightly. It is applied in a thin coat and left to dry several hours, after which the stain is applied freely. Rich effects can be obtained by a little practice in mixing or you can buy your color all mixed ready for application. One paint manufacturer makes a specialty of the material for this wall treatment.

We have used this transparent stain on the walls and ceilings of all the Decorations for Walls and Ceilings

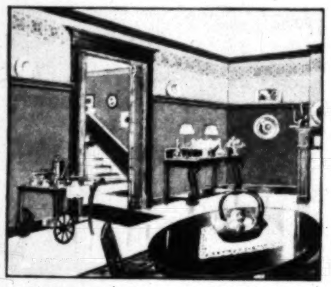
The use of Alabastine tints for ceilings and walls is becoming more popular. This popularity is due to three reasons:

First, the use of Alabastine permits of great variety of effects in different rooms. It is easy to give character to a room with water colors. Alabastine comes in a great variety of shades and tints, and by mixing these shades and tints an almost unlimited variety of color schemes can be procured.

Second, Alabastine is inexpensive, consequently each year it can be renewed, or the tints in the different rooms changed, if desired.

A third and very important reason is that Alabastine is very sanitary. Kalsomines are temporary, and when the action of the air begins to disintegrate the glue the tinting rubs off or "chalks." The pastes with which wall paper is applied to walls forms a breeding place for germs, and it is therefore barred from many schools and hospitals by Boards of Health.



Dining Room Interior

Alabastine, while applied in a similar manner to kalsomine, is chemically different and mixes readily with cold, warm or hot water. It will not rub off, and it is particularly well adapted for use on new walls, because after the walls have cracked, or settled, another coat can be put over it without washing it off. But it can be washed off readily if it is desired to change the tinting on the walls or ceilings.

Alabastine is made from alabaster, and it has been manufactured for more than twenty-five years. It has stood the test of all sorts of climatic conditions, heat and cold, moisture and dryness.

As a rule new walls should be treated with a coat of size, or otherwise prepared for the receiving of the finish.

In a new building there is almost certain to be a settling of the walls, which causes cracks more or less conspicuous, and it is a good plan to place on the new walls a coating that can be easily removed.

Alabastine, being a water color, can be easily removed when it is desirable to take the color all off down to the wall itself.

As Alabastine is not expensive it is recommended for use on walls and ceilings of new buildings. Any competent painter can use Alabastine effectively. It comes in dry powder ready to mix with cold water, according to directions which are on each package, and applied with an ordinary wall brush.

Flat paints on walls are all right, if the walls are in perfect condition, but should it scale in places to get the paint off of the wall it becomes necessary to burn the paint off, which is a very expensive operation. The cost of flat paints is considerable and when washed the results obtained are not satisfactory for living rooms. There are many places, however, where a washable paint is desirable, such, for instance, as bath rooms, kitchens, below the plate rail of dining rooms, along the stairways, or in other places where the walls are likely to be soiled by placing the hands against them, or brushing them with damp clothing. In such places a flat wall paint, such as Alabasco, which is made by the Alabastine Co., can be used in connection with Alabastine, using Alabastine for the upper walls and ceilings, and the color scheme maintained just the same as though the work was all done with Alabastine.

The manufacturers of Alabastine give free stencils to users of their goods and with the use of these stencils a great variety of attractive border effects are obtained.

Alabastine and Alabasco are made by the Alabastine Co., 80 Grandville Ave., Grand Rapids, Mich., and the company has just published a handsome book showing 40 color plans of interiors in actual colors. It is a guide to correct color schemes and up-to-date harmonious, water color effects. The booklet is sent free to anyone who writes for it.

FORMALITY VERSUS ~ INFORMALITY ~

DO you want your Home to express your individuality or don't you really care a rap about its individuality or expression one way or the other? There is the woman who said, "I want my house to express me!" and the woman who answered, "I don't care what my house expresses so long as it pleases." Both viewpoints are worthy, and both are natural. We have tried in the Ideal House to furnish fertile ground for expression; the seal of individuality is easily set upon it, while as it is, it is complete in pleasing qualities. If more dignity or formality is required, an iron gate in the hedge, a tiled roof, bronze leaders, and more severity in the garden will give the desired effect. Greater informality may be obtained by the use of a Dutch door, wooden shutters on the lower windows, settles on the porch, and less labor lavished on the upkeep of the grounds or more happily a slight disorder observed.

We believe that the Ideal Home strikes a happy medium between informality and formality, both in room arrangement, interior furnishing, and in the exterior where the slight conventionality of the street frontage blends off into the intimacy of the rest of the grounds. Indoors, the walls and woodwork of the living rooms are treated to give a rich and yet restful effect; a neutral and harmonious background for the accessories that make up a home. The bedrooms are designed to impress you with their dainty simplicity, and the porches with their great possibilities for open air comfort. The big room is all informality with its centering fireplace, its long table spread with books and magazines, and its easy inviting chairs placed so conveniently near the numerous lamps and lights. The dining room, on the other hand, has a slight air of formality, of dignified, limited use; its orderly remoteness as noted by the casual caller serving to give the formal note.

Porches should proclaim a decidedly unconventional stand. The covered porch of the Ideal House is reached through the central hall, and is cut off from any formal approach — clearly intended as a place of intimacy and retreat. Here should be the ever delightful Gloucester Hammock, a porch rug of woven grass, easy wicker or hickory chairs, and many pillows, a low table for tea or sewing, and large mouthed jars for flowering branches. The chairs should be of a sort that one could leave out in a rain storm without harm, and the other accessories easily moved indoors.

A suggestion of formality may be observed in the guest room (not necessarily the choice room of the house); but not to the loss of the personal touch that makes for homeyness, the true essential of every house.

~ THE GARAGE ~

THAT good-time car of yours will need a housing. You have learned ere now that you can avoid considerable expense by keeping it at home. You have seen how your neighbors have crowded in little portable shacks just back of their houses and you have felt, with us, that the garage should be part of the general scheme of things and considered at the start. Our idea is chiefly this: sightliness, economy of construction, utility and simplicity of up-keep.

The Ideal Garage costs, according to actual estimate, five hundred dollars complete. It is constructed of the same material as the house: stucco on metal lath and sheathing, mals, sailing ships, little Dutch figures or a Kate Greenaway design, might be placed, not too high, and yet high enough to be out of reach of tiny tracing fingers, not always over clean. Little shelves put up here would hold the favorite toys where they could always be seen and reached down by the elders to waiting hands. A mahogany high-boy to hold the crisp little garments stands near the window and opposite the other room door. The bed or cribs are of wood enameled white and slatted. A night stand, chairs, a chiffonier and a big closet complete the furnishings. A screen to cut off draughts would be an excellent addition and might be made very interesting by a repetition of the same stenciled pattern. The rug would be a large homespun affair in plain tones of buff with a giddy little border on each end, of cottages and windmills, clouds and green hills.

THE kitchen and pantry have a color scheme of delft blue and white, very simply carried out by means of blue cooking utensils and china against the white walls. A blue and white china clock, a few jars in the same ware, marked for dry groceries, dish towels of blue cross-bar and little white cheese cloth sash curtains give the desired effect.

The owner's bathroom has a pale green tint on the upper walls. The lower walls of cement marked off into tiles, is made washable and white with enamel paint.

THE front bedroom facing the garden boasts a color effect at once simple and exquisite. This room, dedicated to some member or members of the family, (possibly two boys or two growing girls) has a soft old blue wall treatment. The woodwork and furniture is creamy white enamel. The room is so large that the white bed, dressing table and chair or chiffonier, if the occupants be of the male sex, occupy an alcove, leaving the greater part of the room free as a sitting room, boudoir or study. A comfortable lounge is drawn across the foot of the bed, providing space for a chum over night possibly, and at any rate — a cosy loafing place near the window seat where one might also stretch at ease. A tea table stands here, or a smoking stand, as the case may be. A desk table beyond, gets the light from the big window. The dressing room or closet is an admirable place to tuck away nick nacks. Three easy chairs and a bookcase, hedging the chimney, complete the furnishings. The rugs are deep blue with white fringe. The hangings are a Japanese crêpy fabric in blue and white. The lounge is covered with plain blue with some pillows of the same, and some of the crepe. A lamp on the desk table has a shade of white rice paper — a blue blotter, blue cups and saucers, old blue sun-fast silky curtains at the bookcase, and a cast or two make up a dainty and utilitarian bedroom.

THE guest room in ambers and yellows has an inviting and cheerful effect. The yellow walls and white woodwork, the white furniture, the flower-sprinkled cretonne in a quaint little pattern of tiny roses and twining green leaves, bring a feeling of sunshine and happiness. The twin beds are heavy and simple, and spread with white. The arm chairs are natural willow. The couch under the slope of the roof is covered with flowered stuff. The low table near the window holds a dark bronze lamp with an amber shade and a book rack of reading matter selected to conform to the tastes of the guest. A dressing table of white enamel with a little stool to match, that slips under it, is grouped near the bed, as is also a tall white chiffonier and an easy chair near the window. The rugs are of dark green jute, preferably of a cottage weave that needs little care when not in use.

THE OWNER AS A HANDY MAN ~

IS there a man living who does n't like to think that he can do things with a hammer or a saw if necessity demands? Yet in truth how few there are who have even the ability to impress their credulous women folk with their skill. The average business man's life has taken him far away from any connection with artisan's tools. He feels that he can hire whatever labor he needs, having the brain to make sufficient money, his time may be used to better advantage than putting up shelves in the cellar for empty bottles or wiring for an extra light in the laundry. And he is right if he excludes the primitive satisfaction of working with the hands, the relaxation and the fascination of it.

There is hardly any branch of simple carpentry that a man cannot master by experience and self-teaching. If you are thinking of having bookshelves built in that front upstairs bedroom, if you will figure the amount of lumber necessary, carefully plan on paper its construction and go ahead with it in your odd moments, it is quite likely that afterwards in figuring your time at union rates, you will find that you have done a wise thing; you have enjoyed the work, saved half the price, gained in experience and secured a set of very interesting shelves. There are window seats you could build in The Ideal House, flower boxes, settles and garden benches for out of doors. You can seal with "compo board" that unfinished attic space over the kitchen making a second maid's room, or enclose with slats a little workshop for yourself in the cellar near an area light. There is the dove-cote you might erect in the hedged-in yard beyond the garage. As your own chauffeur many conveniences will suggest themselves. Hot frames for seed starting, trellises for vegetables and planking for celery, all will give the handy man something to do. A wood box for the living room, plant stands, porch furniture and even the putting up of curtain poles in the closets for dress and coat hangers will be interesting enough work and give endless satisfaction when in use. From the roughest of this work to the finest carving of a wood block for printing on curtain stuffs — all is absorbing to the handy man. The refinishing of furniture, repolishing and repairing and the restoration of old pieces, is an art not at all out of the reach of every man and woman and fascinating enough. Walls and floors can be done by home talent at a great saving.

The handy man should be his own plumber to a very small extent. He should at least familiarize himself with the different pipe lines in the house that he may know just where the cut-off valves are located, for in The Ideal Home the water supply to each fixture may be separately shut off without stopping service on the rest of the system. To be able to put in new washers is an accomplishment little thought of, but quite a saving in the plumbing account. The water closet tank is of simple enough construction and easily adjusted by the layman.

As an electrician, the field is interesting and expansive. A working knowledge and observation of the underwriters' rules and requirements and the willingness to have your work inspected by them is all that is necessary to the average man of brains and some constructive ability.

To be able to attach the necessary plugs and sockets and extend cords from electric fixtures over to lamps or electric fans, irons, cooking utensils, is a distinctly useful accomplishment and not difficult to acquire. In this age of numerous electric conveniences we cannot urge too strongly that the owner give his attention to the practical end.

It would be well to keep on hand a supply of the paint and stain used on the trim of The Ideal Home so that the handy man can touch up here and there, keeping up the appearance of the place with little effort. Learn to be your own handy man and know the great satisfaction that comes of manual labor and personal care of one's possessions. Any saving of professional labor is not to be scorned.

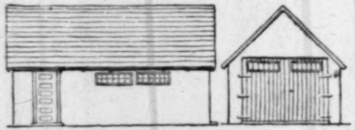
and the same paint used on the trim. It has a cement run and floor, (the latter converging in the center to a drain), a water tap, and steam heat carried from the house plant. The four transom windows and glass in the double front doors give natural light and ventilation, and electricity furnishes the artificial illumination. A partition separates a small shop from the car room, which can be moved back, or removed entirely to accommodate a larger car if necessary.



Side & Front Elevations of Garage

Located as it is, just across the drying yard, it is within easy access of the house from both the kitchen and the dining room. Facing on the side street it removes the necessity of a driveway — in itself a costly item — and is set back a sufficient number of feet from the sidewalk to protect the double doors from the devastating fingers of the passersby. The water and steam heating pipes are carried under ground from the house, and are, like every other item, included in the specifications and estimated upon accordingly.

Should the Ideal Home be located on a middle-of-the-block plot the garage would naturally have to be approached by a private roadway. We have shown on a diagram how this may be accomplished with the least amount of wasted space.

dark cedar. The olive and Japanese maple have their place, and in the early spring the flowering dogwood makes a fair white showing against the green. To the left, the poplars over the berry hedge and the trim rows of the vegetable planting, like the pattern of a rare rug, are spread before you. You can glimpse past the clump of shrubbery, the two twisted apple trees, the lawns, and the green arbor of the pergola leading up to the little house; on the right the long line of the annual flower beds, the evergreens, the shady court of the big tree and the masses of hardy flowers against the terrace background. Golden glow fills in the corner with a mass of yellow, that catches the sunshine beyond the shade. White Ten Week's Stock are banked against them, and then a border of sage green Dusty Miller. The two long beds edging the grass walk, will be wonderfully lovely if they too are planted in masses of color. Phlox in salmon pink and creamy white or the rare blue lavender that moonlight makes so elusive, and Larkspur (Delphinium) whose great blue spires mixed with the orange lily grows so riotously and so radiantly. Cornflowers with feathery foliage, or Sweet William, Columbine in yellow and white, pale blue and deepest purple, almost take care of themselves. Have Rockets, white and purple, and Chrysanthemums for later blooming. Peonies should have a place almost by themselves at the end of the walk near the clump of

So every week. This invention now is ending a million corns a month.

Think of that—you who pare corns, you who daub them, you who still use ancient methods.

Apply a Blue-jay plaster and the pain will end at once.

In two days take the plaster off. The corn will be loosened. Simply lift it out. There'll be no pain or soreness.

You will never feel that corn again. Others may come if you still pinch your feet. But that corn is ended forever.

You can prove this with one plaster, in two days.

A in the picture is the soft B & B wax. It loosens the corn.
B stops the pain and keeps the wax from spreading.
C wraps around the toe. It is narrowed to be comfortable.
D is rubber adhesive to fasten the plaster on.

IDEAL BATHROOMS

SANITARY orderliness in the bathroom eliminates everything not absolutely essential. The built-in medicine chest holds all the small bottles and toilet necessities while the moulding above the wainscot has enough width to carry larger articles. The shelves hold reserve towels always at hand. The laundry chute is a great convenience and the tiny partition chute for old safety razor blades will certainly appeal to the modern man. Nickel accessories and a white enamel stool, added to the necessary fixtures, would complete the bathroom's furnishings. A shower bath attachment at the head of the tub would leave nothing to be desired save a bath-mat of harmonious pale green and white.

The upper bathroom in white and nickel boasts also the laundry chute, all the necessary fixtures and a great deal of fresh air and light. The rug here should be delft blue and white.

The servants' bathroom in the cellar of the Ideal Home is a very desirable feature. The fixtures are plain and of the best quality. There need be no great outlay in connection with this room as it is more than likely to be appreciated by only half the average run of domestics.

A word about the care and cleaning of bathroom fixtures. When they are first installed see that they are well protected from the vandalism of the careless workman. Painters will set their paint buckets in the tub, tools will be stored there and planks will be laid across it to furnish a scaffold for the decorator, if you are not vigilant. Preserve the fine glossy finish from roughening and your intelligent care will be rewarded by lengthened service. With ordinary attention this surface will last a lifetime. Beware of sharp or pointed instruments, gritty powders or common scouring soaps to remove stains. "Porcela" is advised for cleaning all porcelain enameled fixtures. It is prepared for the purpose and will remove any stain that is possible of elimination. Strong acids should be avoided as these are liable to eat into the enamel and destroy its smoothness.

You can buy any number of interesting nickel fixtures, sponge racks and shampoo attachments, soap dishes, towel-racks, glass racks and bath seats, also glass shelves and rods, all of which go far toward making your bathroom more complete. Beware of over furnishing, however, and have only appliances necessary to the sanitary equipment of the room.

The selection and arrangement of the plumbing has received strictest attention in the plans and specifications of The Ideal Home. Inferior plumbing is not for a moment considered. There is nothing which gives more satisfaction to the housewife than fixtures that are handsome and sanitary, and which always retain their good ties. From an investment poi view the selection of the best economy, in that it enhances the of your property, and in case of brings back its extra cost long has paid for itself in gratificat

The very best sort of mirror this room would be one of heavy glass framed in nickel, either or oval in shape, and hang flat the wall. Place under it a glass supported by nickel brackets, a soap dish and towel bar of glass side and you will have a perfect appointed lavatory.

Your bathroom floors should carefully filled, stained, and oiled waxed to make them as nearly proof as possible.

THE MORE THAN PRACTICAL ~CASEMENT WINDOW~

WHAT do you ask for in a window? The free passage of the greatest amount of fresh air and sunlight, the best interior and exterior effect, and the securest protection from driving storms; so why not the casement window?

If you have ever lived in a house where the upper sash stuck fast and refused to draw down, where the window cords severed and dropped their weights, or where, in the dead of night, you have had to tug frantically at a balky lower sash in the midst of a pelting rain, you will instantly appreciate the practical points of a window of this character. Controlled by a lever, they can, with one thrust, be flung wide or pulled close. The screens are hinged on the inside and open with a latch, swinging from the side of the window, which allows for convenient cleaning of the panes, during the "screened-in" months.

The open casement has ever had an allure. Nothing about a house gives quite the feeling of hominess and charm as a window of this sort, opened out towards the garden. If roses nod about it, and a pretty girl leans out of it, there is romance and the beginning of a lyric for you.

Breezes, in the heart of the midsummer will wander in here unobstructed; there is no question of sliding sash taking up more than half the window space — it is all open to every vagrant zephyr!

The curtaining of the casement window is a delight in itself. It lends itself readily to the homey Dutch treatment of ruffled valance across the top and straight full hangings on each side. Fresh muslin, sheer hand made lace, gay chintz, or a soft sunfast material in rich silky coloring, all look equally well in a room with these charming windows. Translucent but not transparent this last material may be shirred close to the casement panes obviating all necessity for the awkward roller shade, a point well considered especially if the casement window be pivoted on center. It may be obtained in all tints from the deep soft raspberry red to the palest glinting gold. It combines delightfully with the vivid coloring of the new chintzes and cretonnes shown in such profusion, and it comes in all the rare metallic shades that match the new wall papers so well.

We have used the casement window in the Ideal Home, because we believe in it, because we have tested it and have not found it wanting, and because it is so eminently suited to this style of house.

principal rooms of The Ideal Home. Only the kitchen, pantry and bathrooms have the washable opaque finish. This may be of white or pale tints. It is sanitary, and inexpensive to apply. There are many trademarked mixtures that require only the addition of cold water to render them ready for use, but care must be taken in applying them that they do not streak or mottle. Their pale set colors are more adapted to use in a kitchen or a bathroom than in a livingroom, for their even tone grows slightly monotonous over a large surface.

ON either the transparent or opaque wall treatment, a stencil is easy to apply. We have used a small isolated motif in the dining room in a rather unusual and effective manner: just above the plate rail and only where an angle is formed by the rail and the trim making a corner. This motif is carried out in a darker shade and has the effect of wood block printing.

No two average opinions will ever agree on how to treat your floors.

A REALLY CONVENIENT KITCHEN

THE Ideal Kitchen is not large, but seems commodious compared with the average apartment kitchenette. We have arranged this room so that all the groceries received in their raw state, are placed near the door on one side where they can be put away with dispatch. On the other side of the room near the large triple window is the gas range and underneath the window sill is the white sink and draining board, in direct line with it.

We strongly advise the use of a tall stool that may be pushed under the table or sink when not in use. This often rests an aching back or weary feet, is easier to work from than a chair and takes up less room. Besides this stool have a plain chair of the most comfortable type you can procure. Your table might be one of the newer kinds with a porcelain enameled top, a finish as lasting as can be made, and easier to clean than enameled cloth, and infinitely more sanitary. The first cost may be greater, but the saving in the end makes them well worth while.

OIL your maple flooring with two coats of linseed oil, treat the counter boards in the same manner and have all the other woodwork finished with spar varnish. We have specified this marine varnish for the Ideal Home as being a satisfactory and well-lasting finish, not affected by water splashings, cheerful and clean.

The gas range is fitted with a roasting and a baking oven with a glass door and a thermometer to show the degrees of heat, a warming shelf for dishes, and four burners for cooking. The ventilating pipe overhead carries off all cooking odors. With this gas range there need be no lugging coal up from the cellar, no grime and dusty ashes, and in the summer days no coal range throwing off a great volume of heat.

An almost indispensable addition to the Ideal Kitchen of today is a fireless cooker. Possibly no other kitchen device of recent times has done as much to lighten the kitchen work and lessen fuel bills. These ingenious contrivances enable the busy housewife or the servant to bring all the meats, vegetables, etc., for the dinner to the proper heat on the stove or gas range and then let them "cook" themselves with their own heat in the fireless cooker, with no need of any further attention or heating until the family is ready to sit down to the table.

The hot water heater in the laundry furnishes hot water for all the house; at any time it is instantly on tap.

The triple windows give a splendid light, helped out by the panes of glass in the door. We have hung sash curtains of hemmed cheese-cloth of fine quality that may be whipped off and washed regularly.

HAVE everything about your kitchen in keeping with the sanitary fixtures, of materials that can easily be kept clean. It is a mistaken idea that white is more trouble to keep clean because it shows every mark so clearly. When white is clean, you may be sure of it, while dun-colored things go uncleaned for days and take finally more labor and time to restore to freshness than would be expended in the slight daily wiping of white utensils.

Electricity is a great labor saver. Try it! The electric iron is a vast improvement on the old stove heated kind. Ready as it is in an instant, moved about from one room to another, clean, and kept easily at a constant heat, its practicability is obvious.

The laundry tubs are located in the cellar room so that washing may go on without interfering with meal getting. A laundry stove can be set up there and attached to the chimney flue.

No matter what your idea may be for a winter coat, do not make your decision until you have examined the wonderful garments made of

SALT'S ARABIAN LAMB

The vogue these coats will enjoy during the Fall and Winter is well deserved, since in style and economy they are simply unequaled—in truth they possess all the beauty, richness and warmth of natural Black Persian Lamb. An expert can hardly perceive the difference. Furthermore, in Salt's Arabian Lamb you have a positive guarantee of quality and durability—the pile being absolutely fast.

Reject imitations said to be "the same as Salt's" or "just like Salt's." They are inferior and certain to bring disappointment. For your protection, every garment made of the genuine bears the Salt's silk woven label shown here.

Insist upon seeing this label

It protects you from inferior imitations

Ask your dealer to show you his line of garments made of Salt's Arabian Lamb. Be your own judge. Or we will gladly send you samples of the material and name of dealer who can supply just what you desire.

The Ideal Home

long line to the north and west of the vegetable garden increase the seeming length of the whole property and form an admirable background for the massing of the shrubbery. If you pause at the wicket gate which so invites your entrance, the curving gravel path, flecked with shadow and light, leads you on to the little low bricked stoop, past the rose garden and the latticed porch, with a glimpse of the low terrace and its approach guarded by two huge boxed hydrangeas. At the stoop, two little formal box trees, square cut, give a suggestion of urban conventionality, heightened by the wrought iron lanterns hanging on each side of the simple door.

THERE is a brick-paved pergola porch opening from the dining room and overlooking the gardens, completely screened from the street from every side. At the end of the brick path running along the terrace is a tiny tea house, quaintly named "Gazabo." This terrace divides the formal garden from the informal and overlooks them both. On the west side the brick steps lead down to the grass walk, bordered with flower beds. Around the corner is a shady court centering about a large tree which an old-fashioned seat encircles.

The garage across the kitchen yard belongs to the house in general design and finish. A pergola covered walk runs from the pergola porch along the south of the kitchen yard as far as the garage; and its continuation, a gravel path shaded by sturdy apple trees, leads directly behind the garage, past the rubbish yard to the vegetable garden terminating there.

The entire arrangement gives the feeling of almost limitless space; of a succession of gardens each complete in itself and each having its own particular charm and use. The formal approach, the house perfectly planned, with living rooms cut off from the sleeping apartments, and the service quarters likewise grouped, the kitchen and drying yard, the tradesmen's entrance and the complete garage, all make for practicability. All these and the screened-off rubbish yard for the collection of all the unbeautiful things that accumulate about a place, the vegetable garden located to the best advantage, having open sunny spaces to the south and the pleasure gardens, adequately arranged and yet capable of still greater development according to the taste of the owner, constitute unmistakably and not less practically the Ideal Home.

THIS is a home where every modern convenience for simple housekeeping has been considered; a real home where the delight of the out-of-doors blends unobtrusively into the satisfaction of the indoors; a home of light and air and warmth and creature comforts. Ideally appointed it is, to lessen housework. Steps are saved and the eternal cleaning minimized. Every woman will appreciate a home that she can take care of herself without undue labor; — a home not all up and down stairs, or stupid dust-collecting corners. If you are so unnaturally fortunate as not to be affected by the servant problem, to permanently have sufficient and willing service, the Ideal Home will make the regulation of routine even less arduous.

We have outlined the aims and scope of the Ideal Home, which are briefly: the designing of a complete country home on a city plot. Whether the general scheme fits in with your conception of what a home should be, or whether it fails to, there are ideas in room arrangement, interior decorating, modern convenience and economy that will interest you undoubtedly; for nothing so fittingly describes the place as Homey.

According to most, there is just one way of doing it; but there are endless variations of that one way. It is not only to be on the safe side, that we recommend the parquet flooring, — we believe it to be the best. It is laid by experts and the question of finish is easily settled. The actual cost of the floor laid and finished is so inexpensive that it seems hardly worth while to go through the agony of treating Georgia pine or any of the other makeshifts. In different localities one wood is more easily obtained than another, and as each kind of wood requires a separate treatment, the discussion would be almost endless. There are oak floors, floors of maple and pine, ash floors and red gum, floors shellaced and waxed, floors stained and waxed, aged floors filled and waxed, painted floors and varnished floors, oiled floors and floors that are only stained.

Nothing is accomplished with floors except by thoroughly hard and muscular effort, for floor finish is far more difficult than it seems. Therefore we recommend a dark parquet flooring with a wax finish, which is obtained by several different methods. In the pantry and kitchen we have specified maple floors to be oiled. The oil treatment, if done well and kept clean with scrubbings, is nicely suited to these floors. The wood dealt with in this manner is preserved, shows no great spottings and is easily wiped out.

The bathrooms and the closets where the parquet flooring is not used, we have specified a Georgia pine to be filled, shellaced and waxed. Be sure that the floor wax used is composed of real beeswax and turpentine. You may safely take the word of a reputable manufacturer on that score.

The absence of thresholds is a boon to the housewife. Rooms and closets may be swept out with ease — with no sill to catch the dust in its corners. One can sweep through two rooms at a stretch without the use of the dust pan and small brush.

When your parquet floors are being laid and finished see that their color is fairly rich and dark. This makes a better background for your rugs, and helps complete a more harmonious room.

Rose Gardens, Walks and Seats

trees; — the double pink and white are especially beautiful. Blue Monkshood and Foxglove in all its pale and delicate shades might be crowded into these beds. Mass your colors and plant for good effects and the result will surely charm.

IN the annual beds plant Salvias, so vividly flame-color, brilliant Cannas and Dahlias in all their varieties for cutting; the cactus variety in coppery tints being very decorative. Forget-me-nots (myosotis) in sheets of azure blue are lovely against the green. The spicy grass Pink makes a quaint edge to a walk, and Rosemary, lavender and heliotrope have their own enchantment.

At the more formal street side, flowering shrubs, conspicuous among them the Rhododendron Maximum with its dark glossy leaf and great masses of pale bloom, are placed within the hedge along the street walk, and Conifers of different shapes and color value are grouped against the warm tint of the stucco in well-balanced array.

IF you use your garden you will want to loiter in it, and rest there enjoying its charms. A garden to roam through is all right in its way — but when you are tired of roaming, why come indoors and sit down? Garden screens will seclude you and garden seats invite your lingering. By screens we mean a growth of

Quaker Oats
The Utmost In Oatmeal

Scotland's Favorite Oatmeal

You know the Scotch as connoisseurs on oatmeal, for this is their racial food. And you think, perhaps, that their rugged highlands grow the finest flavored oats.

But Scotland, for its best oatmeal, sends here for Quaker Oats. And the British Isles consume more packages of Quaker Oats than of all other brands together.

So in a hundred countries, most of which grow oats. Some are ten thousand miles away. But the people who want the best in oatmeal send here for Quaker Oats.

Yet some of you, surrounded by stores selling Quaker Oats, buy commonplace oatmeal. Let us tell you what you miss.

Quaker Oats

The Oats with the Matchless Flavor

Only the largest kernels of the choicest grains go into Quaker Oats. We select them by 62 siftings.

We get but ten pounds of Quaker Oats from a bushel of the finest oats that grow.

You get big flakes—get richness and flavor which the smaller grains can't yield.

And our process, which includes sterilization, brings you that flavor intact.

No need to tell you the difference if you'll taste a single dish.

You get here a luscious oatmeal. You get the cream of the oats made rare and inviting.

Why pay the same price for a lesser oatmeal? Why not have the enjoyable kind?

Oatmeal is the food for growth, the food for vim. It contains in abundance the elements of which brains and nerves are made.

It is immensely important to foster the love of oatmeal, and Quaker Oats supplies the way.

Yet it costs the common price. That is because we make enough to serve a thousand million dishes yearly.

shrubs so planted as to form nooks, or a trellis for rambling roses so placed as to screen the seats from the casual eyes over the hedge. There is no need to screen all your lovely garden from the passerby, it would be selfish to do so; but you want the part where you will sit and chatter and have refreshment, a little protected from the public.

At the street end of the rose garden, is a high lattice screen to hold the prolific and beautiful Dorothy Perkins rambler, a mass of blush pink in season, and giving thick foliage during all the other verdant months.

At the other end of this garden is a light painted seat against the terrace and surrounded by masses of hollyhocks. Grass-bordered gravel paths lead primly away in front of it to sundial and bird-path where all the paths converge and terminate in the midst of the fair roses.

THE tea house or "Gazabo" at the end of the terrace, of lattice construction for the entwining growth of the grape vine or honeysuckle, forms a hooded little recess for day dreaming or tea drinking. A trim maid could wheel a tea cart or carry a tray direct from the dining room, with little difficulty. The seat in the informal garden, across the pool is especially designed for its location, its slatted back charmingly defined and encompassed by the fruit trees and bushes. In the shady court, the big tree and its encircling seat are delightfully sheltered by a hedge screen of old-fashioned lilac bushes filling out the undulating line of the shrubbery as far as the wide annual flower bed.

You can buy garden seats of Old Hickory, well made and lasting, and oaken settles, painted, that stand the weather well; but the garden seat of individuality is one designed especially to fit its place.

This walk serves also as a portico and helps accentuate the long low lines of the house, tying the garage to the whole scheme of buildings in a compact and interesting manner. Its actual cost is seventy-five dollars. A cheaper substitution of rustic work might be made, though the even slight loss in the general appearance of the house would scarcely recommend it. Good, hardy, quick growing vines for the pergola are the silver vine (Actinidia arguta), the matrimony vine, the Kudzu, and the Japanese hop.

Altogether a pergola rightly used is a delight to the eye and a constant source of enjoyment.

HEATING AND LIGHTING

WHEN the house plan is decided upon a main subject for consideration is the heating and lighting. That the heat shall be sufficient to give comfort during the frostiest days and that the lighting shall be modern and adequate, are the chief requisites. The heating plant may be hot water, hot air or steam, and good results may be obtained with the proper fuel and care.

There are two governing conditions in deciding upon the apparatus—first, the size of the building, and second, the limit of first cost. As the Ideal House covers so many square feet of ground as to make other heating less practical, and as the item of first cost is important to consider, we have specified steam heat as giving greater warmth and better ventilation than any other system, as well as furnishing the garage with heat from the same plant at a minimum cost. In very cold weather it is doubtful if hot water heating is nearly as satisfactory as steam.

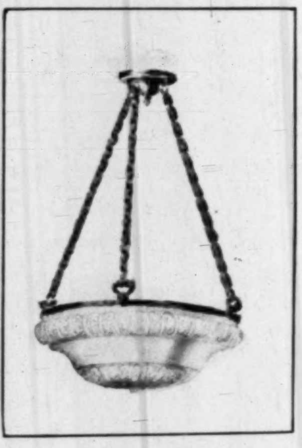
Direct radiation is specified for all the rooms, furnished by a heating plant which positively guarantees that every room shall be uniformly heated to at least seventy degrees in zero weather, thus ensuring comfort and an even temperature.

The radiators are of simple and unobtrusive design, fitting low under windows where possible, and colored to tone with the wall treatment wherever desired. We recommend from personal experience the use of pea coal as a fuel. Its low price per ton, and its quick response to draught are strong points in its favor. It is clean and thoroughly economical and when once given a trial proves its efficiency. Care should be taken that the gases are not allowed to accumulate in the fire-box on the top of the freshly shoveled coal. As long as the top slide in the furnace door is kept open this will not happen.



Dining Room Center Light

THE method of lighting specified is electricity, easily obtained nearly everywhere. It is cleaner, healthier and far more convenient for illumination. As a power it can be utilized to run innumerable household devices. For lighting the living-room lamps it is more secure and practical, eliminating the constant, unpleasant care that kerosene oil demands.

The old argument of electric power being cut off without warning carries small weight, as every well-equipped household can command candles in an emergency, and the trouble is never of long enough duration to cause any great inconvenience. The use of both gas and electricity together in illumination is an extravagance rarely indulged in although the house may be supplied with both systems. The piping of an entire house for gas is costly in the first price and expensive to keep up, gas leaks are dangerous, a serious menace to health and life. For these and many other apparent reasons we have installed electricity for illumination, introducing gas only into the service portion for the range and hot water heater.

The electric fixtures especially designed for the Ideal Home are charming and unusual. The new method of semi-indirect illumination is carried out in the dining-room. This fixture, an alabaster bowl of Florentine design, is swung from the ceiling by three wrought iron chains and gives forth a soft strong glow that has no unpleasant glare. The little porch lanterns are delightful and distinctive, and the living room brackets strike the same pleasing note. The side

The Keys that Lock the Plaster

Build Once and for All

Whether Bungalow, House, Garage, Barn or Factory

Let the first cost of your building be the only cost. Bishopric Stucco or Plaster Board used on the outside relieves you of after-expense. And that's a good thing to know before you build. You can use any outer material — ordinary plaster, cement, concrete or stucco. Whatever material you use cannot loosen, for the keyed laths lock it on, up, and in forever. Can't sag, spring or cause cracking like old-style backgrounds. Means a cool house in summer, a warm one in winter.

It has first a layer of strong fibre board, then one of weather-resisting, vermin-proof Asphalt-Mastic. In this are firmly imbedded the keyed laths that save half of the outer material and prevent it from falling down.

Comes in handy sheets four feet square, ready to nail to studding. One man, doing it all, can keep far ahead of the plasterers.

For interior woodwork there is nothing superior to Lowe Brothers Non-Fading Oil Stains, which give most beautiful and lasting finishes. Over the stains apply Little Blue Flag Varnishes, for either gloss or rubbed finish.

Lowe Brothers Durable Floor Varnish makes a most durable finish, proof against scratches and it won't turn white in water.

Mellotone—a most pleasing background, which brings out the highest artistic value of a picture

The effect produced by any kind of a picture depends very largely upon its setting.

On an inharmonious background the effect of the finest painting may be diminished fifty per cent; on a Mellotone wall the beauty of even the most ordinary picture seems greatly increased and the whole room is made more attractive.

Lowe Brothers
High Standard
Mellotone

—the only Mellotone—gives exactly the soft, quiet effect that focuses attention upon the picture itself, and brings out its beauty to best advantage.

The old methods of wall decoration are obsolete today. Unwashable finishes are unsatisfactory.

Mellotone is not only very beautiful, but is washable, durable, fadeless—more durable and economical than other finishes and does not easily scratch or mar.

PAINT—INDOORS AND OUT

IDEAL paint is not always easy to procure, nor is its choice and application always as simple a matter as it seems. We have faced this problem of painting from many viewpoints and feel competent to give you the benefit of our experiences.

It has not been very many years since we were tempted to leave this matter in the hands of a very talkative and convincing painter who had such vast experience to set against our own ignorance, as to quite overwhelm us. "Leave it to me," he would urge almost violently; and we fled from his presence quite subdued. Leave it to him, we did, and a perfectly harmless house emerged from his hands — of an extremely vivid lemon color; his enthusiastic interpretation of the colonial yellow we had mildly suggested. At a later period in our lives, a house under our hands needed a fresh coating, and we decided immediately upon white with green blinds; an apparently safe venture. The painter, this time, quite another man by the way, and one less honest as well as less voluble, mixed his white lead and zinc, we suspect, with considerable dosings from the kerosene oil can instead of the pure linseed oil that should have been used. We were on the spot this time, and though we were assured the paint would dry white, pure white, it never seemed to acquire the brilliancy and gloss we had hoped for. The blinds, too, faded to a thin watery dull green, and again we gained a costly experience.

Our next venture was concerned with a room that we decided to have tinted, and although we were shown samples galore, the weird robin's egg blue that resulted was a depressing sight. In between whiles, occasionally, we had quite encouraging results, particularly in wall papering, and one job of outside staining that we recall with satisfaction. Finally fate decreed that we take a hand in the game ourselves; and now we look back with pride upon a home that stands a monument to our handiwork, as far as painting goes. It is not a course we would recommend cheerfully to the average home builder, for the mere sight of a can of paint brings on a sickening sensation that is not unmixed with the thought of the four coats of white paint every inch of the bed room trim required, and the nail heads still unputtied in the brown stained chestnut trim of the living rooms. It was a long job and a tiring job, but we finished it and gained in so doing a vast deal of valuable information to which we have since then judiciously added. We know now that the paint should be the best obtainable, that the oils should be of only the finest quality, that shellac should be prepared in bulk and not bought in cans — and that the very be wax prepared by reputable ma turers, and only the best, is while using on the floors of the Home. All this we have learned most important of all, to know painter and be sure that he is ing the same language that you that his sense of color is really oped, that aged floors means to dark rich tone and not the vivid orange of the usual pine floor, laced, and that neutral shades neutral shades and not a party of a vivid color.

We have decided on a rich brown stain for the outside t the Ideal Home, with the exc of the window sash, as harm beautifully with the dark stucco and having wearing qu superior to green, which also a charming house. All the gard cessories, except the lattice o veranda, and the pergola beams matched the color of the rough stucco in the sunlight. This is lightful against the green grow the gardens. The shingled roofs the same brick stain that gives house a restful, unusual appea in among the prevailing red green or silvery weathered roo the present day.

In the living rooms we have a silver grey stain that comes prepared by one of the biggest makers. Four coat work in the last enamel, goes on trim of bed rooms, halls and bath rooms transparent wall color used where but in the bath kitchen, pantry and maid's roo merely paint of the required mixed and thinned well with tur tine and applied over a coating glue size; a process extremely to carry out once the color is to your satisfaction. The swirls in the plastering furnish foundation for this finish and an extremely artistic effect. other rooms, bath rooms, kitc etc., have an opaque finish th washable and sanitary.

Spar varnish is applied ov wood filler in the service quar as durable a treatment as has devised. Good quality paint in th coats is used on the porch floor any desired color, though we re mend the same creamy color th used on the garden accessories the little casement panes of glass outlined by the creamy tan p matching the stucco, while the a window frame about them, has brown stain. All outside doors stained a uniform brown and pergola beams likewise.

This will give you a house th in charmingly good taste and th oughly allied with its gardens surroundings as a home should b lights of the bedrooms and bathrooms are simple and good, and the more utilitarian fixtures of the service quarters are quite in keeping with the conservative good taste of the entire house.

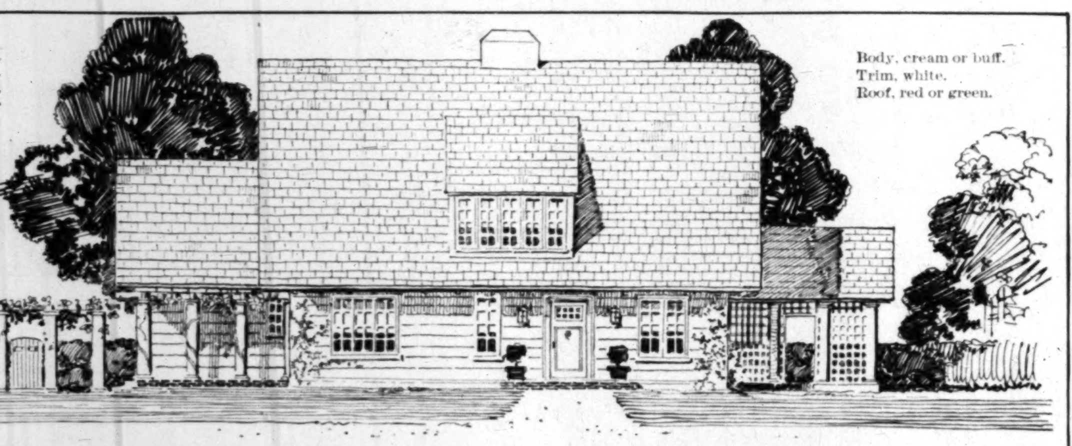
There have been many experiments made by clever people to color the electric light bulbs, that the harsh white glare common to all illumination be softened harmoniously, but it has yet to be successfully done. Possibly if the manufacturers would give more attention to this, the results might be well worth while. Meantime there is a substitute obtained from electric stage lighting supply houses, which comes in sheets about two feet square. It is a thin tran parent medium, employed to pro colored lights, ca gelatine film, which practically fire p and can be bought f few cents in soft tone as well as colors. This film be cylindrically held in place by paper clips, and about an illuminant without ing its shade or globe.

Porch Light

So is modern science constantly vancing with regard to lighting erties and the Ideal Home is step with in it every wise respect.

YES, any desired color with Dutch Boy white lead—either white or any conceivable shade of cream, gray, drab, buff, green, brown, etc. Simply add tinting colors.



Body, cream or buff.
Trim, white.
Roof, red or green.

THE way you paint your house is of vital importance in the making of your home. This principle is true, even with an ideal house like the one shown here. A house may be designed in excellent taste; it may be well built; it may be contrived for convenience; and, after all, if the decoration is faulty, it may be almost without charm.

Beautiful homes are today more nearly within the reach of us all than ever before. Good taste now demands only what is harmonious and simple, not what is costly and elaborate. Successful decoration is far less a question of cost than a question of knowing and choosing that which is best from standpoints of color and wear.

We have published a valuable but free booklet containing the latest and best ideas on home decoration. Read our offer below. This book will inform you fully about painting with and Dutch Boy Pure Linseed Oil. We earnestly advise you to insist upon having these known and tried materials, just as the best painters everywhere and discriminating house owners insist upon having them.

With a well-chosen color scheme the white-leaded exterior is uniformly beautiful. It doesn't crack and scale into ugly blotches. It wears smooth, keeps whole, protects the wood and needs no scraping before you repaint. It is paint efficiency at a low cost per year. For plastered or sheathed walls also use Dutch Boy White Lead, three coats at least, mixed with linseed oil or varnish if a gloss is desired, or with turpentine if a flat finish is preferred.

Such a paint coat, delicately tinted to suit the taste, dries hard and firm; it lasts indefinitely; it can be washed as often as required; it is altogether sanitary, and it is always ready for repainting when a change in color scheme is desired.

And the charm of such walls! With their soft, velvety colors, and with rugs and draperies that harmonize, it is easy to make any room not only restful and homelike, but attractive and rich. A few pictures and a piece or two of bric-a-brac placed against such a background are enhanced in beauty and interest, rather than robbed of their fine qualities.

If a bit of permanent decoration is desired, apply a well-selected stencil with soft colors, either to outline some feature of the woodwork or lower a high ceiling.

These are a few of the important facts to consider when one is planning to beautify a home. But there is much more worth knowing and we want to send you our book, "Painting, Protective and Decorative," with twelve beautiful plates, for interior and exterior color schemes, and perhaps the most useful and practical talk ever written about white-lead painting.

Use the coupon. With this book we will send our suggestions for decorating all the rooms of this ideal house, with full painting specifications and also our stencil catalogue with over 150 high-class stencil designs. If you will send 10c (coin or stamps) with your coupon, we will send you one of these stencils, cut ready for use.

Make the Day's Work Easier

3-in-One Oil is a labor saver—everywhere. It lessens the toil of keeping house and adds to the housewives' pleasure. Thousands of wise women now make regular and constant use of 3-in-One Oil.

Try this wonderful toil-easer yourself and see how it takes the rub and tug out of many domestic duties.

3-IN-ONE OIL

Your Sewing Machine, will be greatly benefited by regular oiling with 3-in-One. This oil has peculiar properties; it not only lubricates better and more lastingly than other oils, it also works dirt, gum and dust out of the bearings of the machine and this reduces wear to a minimum.

A sewing machine oiled with 3-in-One will wear longer and work easier than a machine oiled with so-called fish oil or mineral lubricant.

3-in-One for Cleaning and Polishing Furniture. Nothing in the world does it better or quicker. Easy too: Put a few drops of 3-in-One on a cloth wrung out in cold water and wipe a moderately small surface at a time. Dry and polish with a soft woolen cloth or a bit of cheese cloth. This will remove finger marks, smoke stains, grime and dirt, leaving the original color of the wood and a lasting lustre. Always rub with the grain of the wood, never in circles.

3-in-One Kills Friction Everywhere. It helps laundry machinery, takes the irritating squeaks out of rusty door hinges, makes a food chopper chop faster and an ice cream freezer freeze smoother. In fact, there isn't a place where wood or metal come together or turn on one another, that 3-in-One doesn't ease the turning. Try on all light mechanisms, tools, bolts, clocks, etc.

3-in-One Oil in the Bath Room. Keeps all nickel trimmings and fixtures bright as new. Prevents rust, tarnish verdigris. Also if used in preference to harsh cleaning or scouring preparations, will lengthen the life of the nickel. 3-in-One keeps your bath room absolutely sweet and clean. Try it once.

Dustless Dusting. Nothing in the world makes so fine a "dustless duster" as 3-in-One Oil. Make one yourself and see! Here's the way: Moisten a soft woolen cloth or cheese cloth with a few drops of 3-in-One. Let stand till the oil permeates the whole cloth. Wipe your furniture as in dusting. The cloth collects and holds every speck of dust, leaving the surface of piano, center table, chairs, etc., absolutely clean and with all the shine and lustre fully restored. 3-in-One is not greasy nor does it have an unpleasant odor.

3-in-One Oil is sold in hardware, grocery and general stores, drug houses and house furnishing stores in three size bottles: Trial size, 1-oz. 10c; 3-oz., 25c; 8-oz., (½-pt.,) 50c. Also in Handy Oil Cans, 3½-oz., 25c. If your dealer hasn't the Handy Oil Can we will send one full of good 3-in-One by parcel post for 30c. These handy cans fit any sewing machine drawer and are a great convenience.

Fill out the coupon below and send at once for a generous trial bottle of 3-in-One Oil. Also the 3-in-One Dictionary which shows its many uses.

"We're going to have a visit from my old Aunt Abigail.
She's eighty-nine, and failing fast—she may not last a year.
And—hem!—she's very rich, you know, so treat her well, my dear!"

2—"I'll meet her in my motor car," cried Mazie. "No, you shan't!"
Said Pa, in fear. "Her heart is weak! You'd kill my poor old Aunt!
She's scared to death of autos—she has old ideas, of course.
I'll meet her at the station with my slowest, oldest horse!"

3—The day when Aunty should arrive, a telegram there came:
"Will get there on an earlier train," and signed Aunt Abby's name
"I'll have to meet her," Mazie said. "There's nothing else to do, Since Pa's downtown." So, in her car, off to the train she flew.

4—She reached the station just in time. Aunt Abigail was there,
And Mazie helped her in the car with tenderness and care;
And, thinking of what Pa had said, she started like a snail.
"Don't be afraid," she said. "Of what?" exclaimed Aunt Abigail.

5—"That will go fast," said Mazie. "Fast?" Aunt Abby snapped. "My dear, I'll show you how to run a car. Change seats—get over here!"
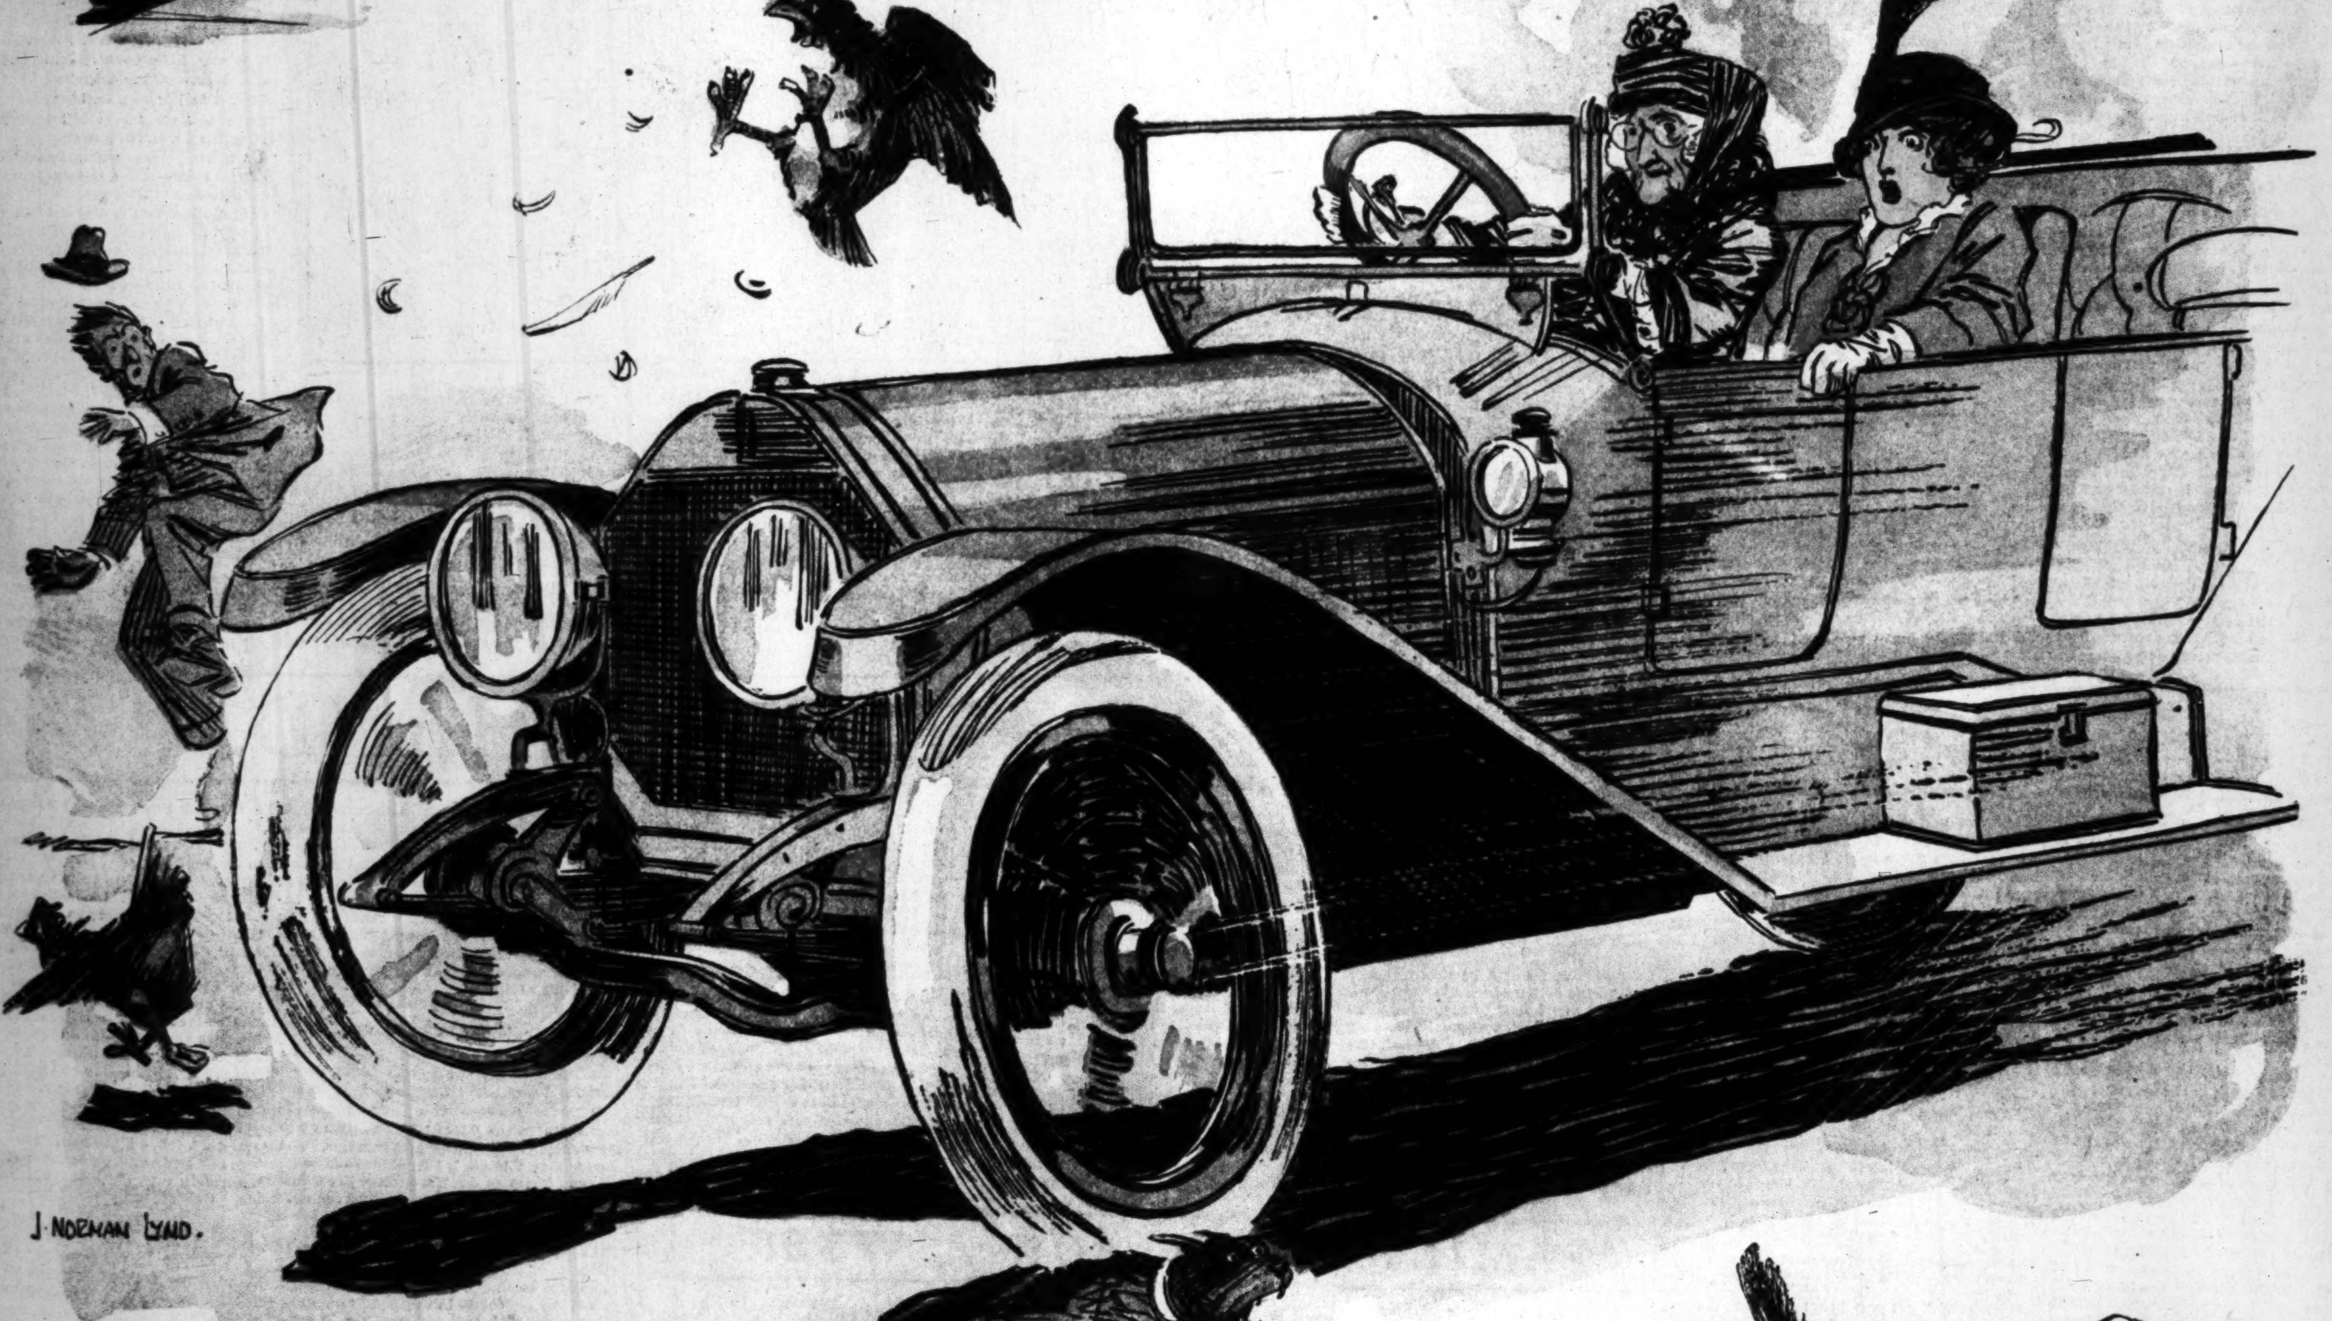
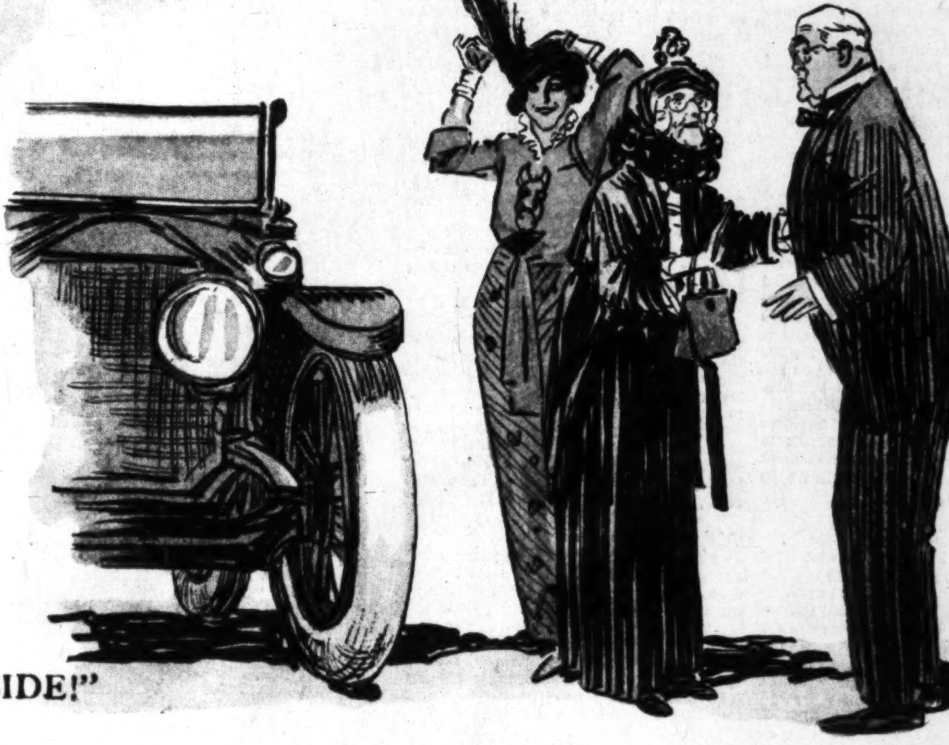
And, climbing over Mazie, who sat staring, dumb, at her.
She grabbed the wheel, and "opened up," and let the motor whirr.



J. NORMAN LYND.



6—"Hurrah!" the ancient Aunty cried. "This is the way to go!"
She ran down chickens by the score, at eighty miles or so.
And Mazie, frightened, held her breath, as on two wheels they sped
"Take care!" she begged. "Why, this ain't fast!" her reckless Aunty said.

7—Pa saw them coming up the drive. "Great Scott! What's this?" he cried.
"Hello!" laughed Aunty, hopping out, "We've had a dandy ride!"
"You run a car?" gasped Pa, "Of course," said Aunty, "but see here,
You ought to buy a faster one for Mazie, pretty dear!"

8—"But—at your age—!" cried Pa, aghast. "Age!" Aunty tossed her head
And Mazie laughed at both of them. "Age doesn't count!" she said.
Then out she took her little book, and this wise saw supplied:
"DON'T EVER JUDGE AN ENGINE'S SPEED BY HOW IT LOOKS OUTSIDE!"

COMMON SENSE in the HOME

EDITED by MARION HARLAND

A TALK ABOUT THE HABIT OF GOSSIPING.

"THAT is the third time Mary Allen has been by here today. I do wonder where she is going?"

I was spending a few days in a little country town and the remark I have just quoted was made by my landlady. From the corner where I had settled myself with my book, I could see, when I lifted my eyes, a lovely prospect of hill and forest; from her place at the window she could command a view of the village street. With the unconcern which marks those not especially given to reading she commented upon any passing which took her attention, apparently feeling that my absorption in my book was a matter of no importance and that I would prefer to any printed page an interruption which would tell me of the doings of the villagers.

My interest in humanity in general and in particular is deep and genuine, and many of the bits of information vouchsafed by my companion took my attention and prompted me to further questioning. But as the morning wore on her remarks palled upon me, and when the surmises as to Mary Allen's destination and business proved barren, I picked up my book and betook myself to my own room. I did not read, however. I sat down and thought again, as I had often thought before, on the prevalence of gossip in small towns.

The dictionary gives "scandal" as one synonym for "gossip"; "tattling" is another. When we are charitably disposed we are prone to discriminate between them and to look upon gossip as kindly and as opposed to the harsher terms. Yet the line separating them is almost imperceptible and easily crossed—the more easily because pleasing reports of our neighbors' conduct are far less interesting than statements spiced with something a trifle more startling.

No Thrill in Good Report.

Does this sound severe? Think about it for a minute. If Mrs. Brown tells you that Mrs. Black's husband is a good, sober, hardworking man, always regular in his homecoming, and of steady habits, you are naturally glad to hear such good reports of him, but you are not thrilled. Compare the effect upon you of this statement with a story from her lips of how Mr. Black comes home two or three nights out of the week in a state of fierce intoxication, or that he never fails to call on a neighbor's pretty wife when her husband is out of the way, or that he neglects his own wife and pays attention to some charming girl! Don't you know that you crave details of his shortcomings as you never would of the quiet round of domestic happiness?

Carry the idea a little further. Put yourself in the place of the one who supplies the news and think how much more attention you command when you can give a striking story of some little occurrence and you will appreciate the temptation besetting all of us to make the most of any small piece of gossip that comes our way, even if we have to approach perilously near to scandal to achieve this.

When we ponder upon this we understand why gossip, tattling, scandal—give it whatever name you please—flourishes in villages and small towns. The dweller in the big city has distractions which call her attention from the affairs of her next door neighbors.

"The fine thing about living in a city is that something is happening all the time," said a young man to me the other day. "Yesterday I saw a thief chased by a big crowd and three policemen; last night I went to a big fire; this morning there was an automobile collision near me and a horse ran away. Something is doing every minute."

This is felt by women as well as by men. They may not find the thrill experienced by my young friend in fires and smash-ups and thief-takings, but there are other absorptions—shopping, dry goods displays, concerts in department stores, sales—to mention a few of the less important events. For those with more intellectual tastes are picture shows, galleries, free musical events, lectures, museums, and when they wish to pay money for their diversion, theaters, opera, concerts, and moving pictures which are something more than mere amusement.

Visiting by Telephone.

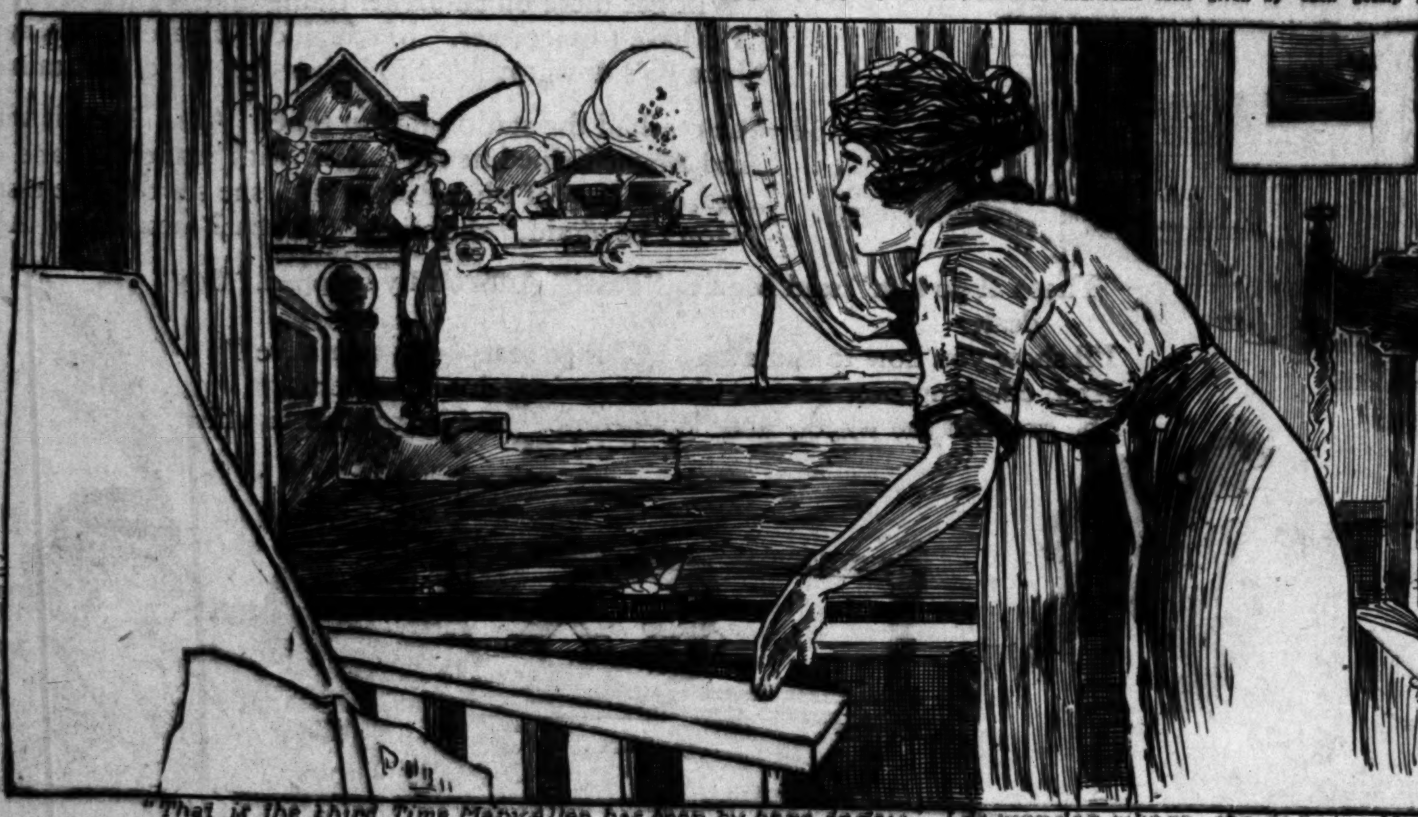
All these are lacking in the village. There the only relaxation which prevails all the year round is the discussion of the doings of others, and it is no wonder that after a while the question as to where Mary Allen—or any one else—is going, and what she will do when she gets there, rises to a point of disproportionate importance.

In the real country gossip has received an impetus by the introduction of telephones. The first summer I visited a locality where the telephone was the cherished means of long distance visiting, I was a good deal irritated by conditions.

"Every time I speak over the phone I hear the other receivers taken off the hooks all along the line," I complained. "I think it's abominable!"

"That's their daily newspaper and their afternoon promenade and their society reception," apologized another city visitor. "If you cut them off from listening over the telephone you would shut off their chief means of getting in touch with their neighbors and the news."

I acknowledge this, and yet I confess I don't like the thought that all I say over the telephone is listened to by strangers, even although my remarks are entirely innocent and might be printed in the papers with perfect propriety. To me it seems as though the telephone thus used is merely an extension of the gossip habit I deplore.



"That is the third time Mary Allen has been by here today. I do wonder where she is going!"

More Charity Needed.

Since we cannot change conditions and import city distractions into the quiet country life any more than we can revolutionize human nature and deprive us of interest in our fellow beings, what can we do to make the tendency to gossip kindly instead of cruel? For cruel it often is when the eagerness to make a striking story out of an innocent occurrence leads us to put the worst interpretation upon it.

Each of us can tell of shocking scandals, of heart breaking slanders started by the uncharitable repetition of some trifling item of news that in itself would be harmless, but that has been amplified and trimmed by each one who retells it until it has grown so from these additions that the orginal statement would not be recognised. Possibly not one of those who repeated the tale had a malicious meaning, but the story grew in the telling, and the individual color given by each gossip monger has blended into the manufacture of a monstrosity.

To my mind the first step to be taken towards modifying gossip is the acquisition of a more abundant charity. We should be badly off if we had no interest in the affairs of one another. The trait which leads you to try to make life easier for your poor neighbor, to endeavor to cheer the downcast and to comfort the afflicted, is an offshoot of this same attention to the concerns of others which if wrongly exerted tends to tattling and scandal. When your tendency to learn all you can of the habits and conduct of those who live near you is directed in the right way it leads to philanthropy, to helpful offices of all kinds, to the friendliness that helps make the earth more like the garden of the Lord than it would be without the exercise of these qualities.

We should be in a bad way if we could cut out of our makeup an interest in the daily lives of those who surround us. Only when this interest is mixed with malice or with a lack of charity does it become a menace to ourselves and to the community.

Of course if all of us had a full measure of Christian charity and of love for others the kingdom of heaven would be here, and there would be no need for seeking out any other methods of correcting unkind gossip. But so long as poor human nature remains human we require helps of other sorts, and one of the best of these is a common interest on which a neighborhood can unite and divert attention from individual shortcomings.

Neighborhood Societies Practical Aid.

There are many of these. Some of them are already known to you, and among Cornerites are those who are foremost in women's clubs for work, for study, for village improvement, for the discussion of public questions, for training in child culture and education. To such of you as already have your heads and hearts and hands full of these objects I do not have to talk. If you are doing your full duty by them you have no leisure time to spend in discussing your fellow townspeople, in spreading reports about this one or that, in running to earth some unpleasant tale of the past or the present that will sow wretchedness among those of whom it is told. I only wish I could turn some of you loose as missionaries in gossip infested quarters to preach a gospel that would mean reform.

Yet in the places where scandal is most plentiful there are always those who long to turn the energy and time expended upon aimless or harmful gossip to better things. I wish with all my heart that this little talk today could serve as a suggestion to you of the work awaiting you close at hand. I do not mean you are to set yourself upon a pedestal and condemn the habits of those about you, but that you are to seek out what you yourself can do to broaden and brighten the pursuits of those with whom you live.

Done by Village Women.

Here are some of the things I myself have seen done by women in small places.

A library started. This was done by a teacher whose health had forced her to return to a little country home, and who secured one of the traveling libraries and kept it in her own sitting room. It served as a nucleus for something larger, and now has a home of its own.

A sewing class among factory girls. One of the heads of departments began this to help two girls who were getting their wedding clothes ready, and the work grew.

A working girls' club. This started as a social club and developed into an aid society as well, organizing a camp for working girls' summer rest.

Three village improvement societies formed in different localities and all working for better conditions, clean streets, improved sanitation, and higher standards of morals.

I could tell of more, but these will serve as a sample of what may be done in small places without outside influence, where earnest women did the next thing and made a success of it. Gossip may not have been eliminated from any of these towns and villages, but it has been wonderfully lessened, and the new interests introduced by these organizations are bound to grow and to choke scandal mongering sooner or later. Try one of them and see. And if others of you can report similar efforts for the help of the rest of us, will you not do so and let us print them here where we can all learn from them?

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING HAND.

"I WISH to ask your advice about my little adopted daughter. She seems to be a peculiar child and I certainly have tried everything I could with her. Just a few months after she came here she told me when she came home from school that her teacher had said she was coming to see me, and added: 'I told her she would be treated awfully nice if she did, because I had a real nice mother.' Yet it seems no matter what one does, if she can't have her own way there is trouble, as she is so strong headed and self-willed.

"You will understand my feeling about her better when I tell you that many a time after she has been particularly trying I have gone to her bedside when she was asleep and with a heart yearning over her I have kissed her and with tears rolling down my face have prayed the Lord to help me.

"Perhaps I have not been so firm as I should have been with her, as my own little boy was born just a few months after she came to live with us, and I was not well and strong thereafter. When she was self-willed then and I was feeling weak and ill I simply could not stand it and would have to give in. I have not wished to send her to the house of correction, as I think there is a stigma attached ever after to a child who has been in such a place. Yet I do not wish to punish her all the time, and I want to do what is right for her. Cannot some one advise me as to the wisest course to follow with her? I would like counsel from the Cornerites.

"Can you also tell me what to do for a maiden hair fern which is growing brown and white on the edges? Mrs. G. H."

You have a difficult problem with the child and I hope most earnestly that some of our constituency can give you helpful advice. For myself I can only counsel patience and an effort to awaken the child's belief in you and to win her confidence so that she will try to govern herself for her own sake as well as for yours. If you can arouse her conscience half the battle is gained. As to the fern you might try repotting it or giving it some kind of fertilizer or plant food. It is rather difficult to advise when I do not know what treatment it has had hitherto—whether it has been overwatered or kept too dry.

Will Loan Invalid's Chair.

"I believe I know where there is a wheeled chair that will be gladly loaned to the sick man you mentioned in a recent paper. If you will let me have his address I will try to see that he has a chance to secure the chair as soon as possible. Also in reply to the inquiry of the woman who asked about lodges she could join. If she is near enough I will be pleased to call and see her and give her information. We are organizing a new order here which admits women on the same footing as men. This order, besides giving good social advantages, supplies a physician free in case of illness and a sick benefit of $10 per week to each beneficiary member, and pays funeral expenses. All white persons of good character, over 18 years of age, are eligible for membership. The initiation charge is $5, the members' dues are only $1 a month for full membership, and 25 cents a month for those wishing only social membership. Mrs. E. L. Y."

The kindness of another friend has supplied this special sufferer to whom you refer with the wheeled chair, for which request was made, but I print your friendly offer in the knowledge that it will receive early acceptance. Thank you also for the information about the lodge you are forming. I am sure the information you give will be welcome to others besides the constituent who asked for it in the first place.

Asks for Author's Name.

"Can you give me the author of the following quotation? If not, can some of your constituency help me out on the matter?

No one, I say, is conquered till he yields;
And yield he need not, while, like mist from glass,
God wipes the stain from Life's old battlefields
From every morning that he brings to pass.

"H. T. C."

I wish with all my heart I knew the authorship of the lines for my own sake as well as for yours. It is a bit of genuine poetry which I value highly, but I do not know who wrote it. I shall await anxiously a reply to the query.

Lining with Grape Leaves.

"In a recipe which you give for pickles you say to line the kettle with grape leaves. Is it necessary to use them? I don't know where I could get them. I have never tried to make pickles, but would like to attempt some. Will you publish a recipe for sweet mixed pickles without either onions or peppers? I have eaten good cabbage pickle, but I don't know how it is made. "Mrs. E. B. C."

The grape leaves are not absolutely essential in pickle making, although veterans in the art think they make the pickles a finer green. They may be omitted without injuring the quality of the pickle. I am sorry to say that I cannot give you a recipe for sweet cabbage pickle. Perhaps some one of our Cornerites can help you out. If you will double the quantity of sugar called for in the cucumber pickle recipe, to which I refer, it will serve for sweet mixed pickles.

Helpful Home Study.

"I am a married woman—a young one—and want your advice as to some helpful books to study. I never had a chance to get an education and sometimes when my husband takes me out I am much embarrassed in conversation. I have a card at the library and if I knew some good studies to take up that would teach me words and their meaning and to use them, etc., I would be only too glad to study them. Mrs. J. M."

An appeal of this sort always touches me, for I have met women like you so often. Sometimes they have not had the chance to study because of the circumstances of their families, which forced early work upon every member of the household; sometimes they have been careless in youth and did not appreciate until too late the advantages of education. I am glad to give you what advice I can and I will begin by saying that I am afraid the study of words and their meaning will not help you in the way you wish.

My own counsel would be that you read good magazine articles on subjects of every day interest and books of history or dealing with events which come near you. Take, for instance, the history of the interesting state in which you live. If you begin to study that—and your librarian should be able to tell you the best book on the subject—you will find a whole field of interest opening before you.

When you read of the early missionaries in California, for instance, this will lead you to Parkman and his accounts of the Jesuits in the eastern part of the United States; the Spanish occupation of the state will turn your thoughts to the history of Spain and of all that it stood for in years past, to the discovery of America by a Spaniard, to the reign of the monarchs who fought with the English, and by that to much thrilling English history and the beginnings of the story of the United States.

Don't confine yourself to this but, if you can, join a class in current events or go to lectures on these; find out the important matters in state politics; read the daily papers and see what is going on in the world. Read the writings of our great authors and copy such portions of their books as appeal to you. Read Stevenson's essays and stories as a good beginning.

As to the use of words, the best plan is never to let one go by you without understanding it. Keep a dictionary at hand and look up every word which puzzles you, writing it out with its meaning to impress it upon your memory. You write a good hand (I wish you had used a pen and ink instead of pencil!) and you express yourself well. With these beginnings you ought not to feel discouraged. I shall be interested to learn if my advice is of any help to you and I wish you success with all my heart.

Both Signatures Omitted.

"Kindly give me the address of the woman who is willing to exchange sewing for children's clothes. She can phone or call upon me. Mrs. S. S. L."

If you had given me the signature of the correspondent to whom you refer I might have been better able to help you, although your failure to sign your full name to your own letter would have stood in my way. We do not print addresses in the paper and the only method by which we can put one correspondent in touch with another is their adherence to the rule of giving the name signed to the letter of the one they wish to reach and also supplying their own correct names and addresses. Every week which passes sees chances of help lost because of the failure of the reader of the Corner to follow this simple plan. I am sorry I cannot help either you or the woman who wanted to sew in exchange for children's clothes.

An Overland Camping Tour.

"I am trying to get up an overland camping tour for the benefit of my wife's health. I want to spend the winter in the mountains between San Antonio and El Paso, where the winter is mild, then go to New Mexico for spring and summer. The doctor here told me if I would take my wife on such a trip as this the outdoor life would surely restore her health. Now, I am only a poor carpet layer, and what money I had when I came here is about gone, and I am not able to buy the outfit unless I could get some one to help me. It is hard to have to ask for any help, but I just cannot stand to see my poor wife in this condition when I believe such a trip will cure her. I gave up a good position to go south and I believe she has improved some, but the damp winters here will go hard with her and I must get her out. Work here in my line is not good, there being little carpet used and then negroes do it because they work cheap.

"If you cannot help me, you may know some one who has contracted lung trouble and would like to join me. I would be only too glad to do all the work in camp for their help in getting the outfit; then there is plenty of fish and game along the way, so after all the expenses would not be so much; the outfit could be sold afterwards. If you know of any one, please give them my address. J. R. M."

I print this letter as it stands in the hope that it may meet the eye of some one who can be of service to the writer. I do not make an appeal for money, but I trust that there may be portions of an outfit for camping in the possession of one of our constituents who would be willing to give them for the benefit of the woman who needs the change to a dryer climate, or, as the writer says, there may be others who would like to join his company and help him by defraying their share of the expenses. Even to me, a woman, there is an attractiveness in the thought of such an expedition with all it means of outdoors and freedom. I hope there may be others who feel as I do and who can prove their faith by their works.

Putting Baby to Sleep.

"Will you tell me how to get my baby into regular habits of sleeping? He has been spolled by the nurse who took charge of him and of me during the first month of his life and now he screams and cries when laid in his cradle and will not be quiet until I take him up and rock him in my arms. It breaks my heart to hear his cries, and I am afraid he will hurt himself. How can I get him to the point where he will go to sleep in his bed? A. L. M."

The only way is to be firm about it and let him cry it out. This sounds hard hearted, but the screams hurt you a great deal more than they do him. If he is a sound and healthy baby—and on this your doctor can inform you—the lung exercise will not injure him and after he has tried it a few times he will learn that crying does no good and will reconcile himself to circumstances. Be sure that he is entirely comfortable so far as clothing is concerned, that he is not hungry or in pain, lay him in his cradle in a quiet corner and let him alone. If he cries a long while come in and change his position and make sure that he is all right, and then leave him alone. You will save him and yourself trouble and discomfort by instituting regular habits as soon as possible.

Recipe for Grape Wine.

"Will you kindly print in the Helping Hand a recipe for making grape wine and one for grape juice, preferably the latter, although I would appreciate the former. Also can you tell me how to can pineapple, whether they should be cooked, the length of time, etc. Mrs. W. H. M."

The recipe for grape juice has just been given.

GRAPE WINE—Put the grapes, stems and all, into an open cask and mash them. Strain through a bag, pressing this to get out all the juice. To each quart of the juice allow half a pound of white sugar and put juice and sugar in a clean cask to ferment, covering the top or the bung hole with a piece of netting or cheese cloth. Let the juice and sugar ferment for three or four weeks, until it is clear and still, pour it off carefully, bottle it and seal. While the grape wine is fermenting it should be stirred up from the bottom frequently.

CANNED PINEAPPLE—Peel the fruit, cutting out the eyes, pick the fruit in pieces with a silver fork, holding in the left hand the stem with a cloth wrapped about it to protect your hand. Tear off all the fruit you can, leaving the core on the stem. Allow ten ounces of sugar to each pound of pineapple, put over the fire, and cook from ten to fifteen minutes. When the fruit is ready to can it should be clear. Turn into glass jars that have been rinsed out in hot water, putting the fruit in boiling hot and seal at once.

Tent for Tubercular Patient.

"Do you know of a kind person who would be willing to dispose of a tent for a tubercular patient? I am unable to work at present and also have a family to care for. I would be glad if any one could help me out. "A. J. E."

Is such a "kind person" as the tubercular sufferer seeks for somewhere within reach so that the need can be supplied at comparatively small expense?

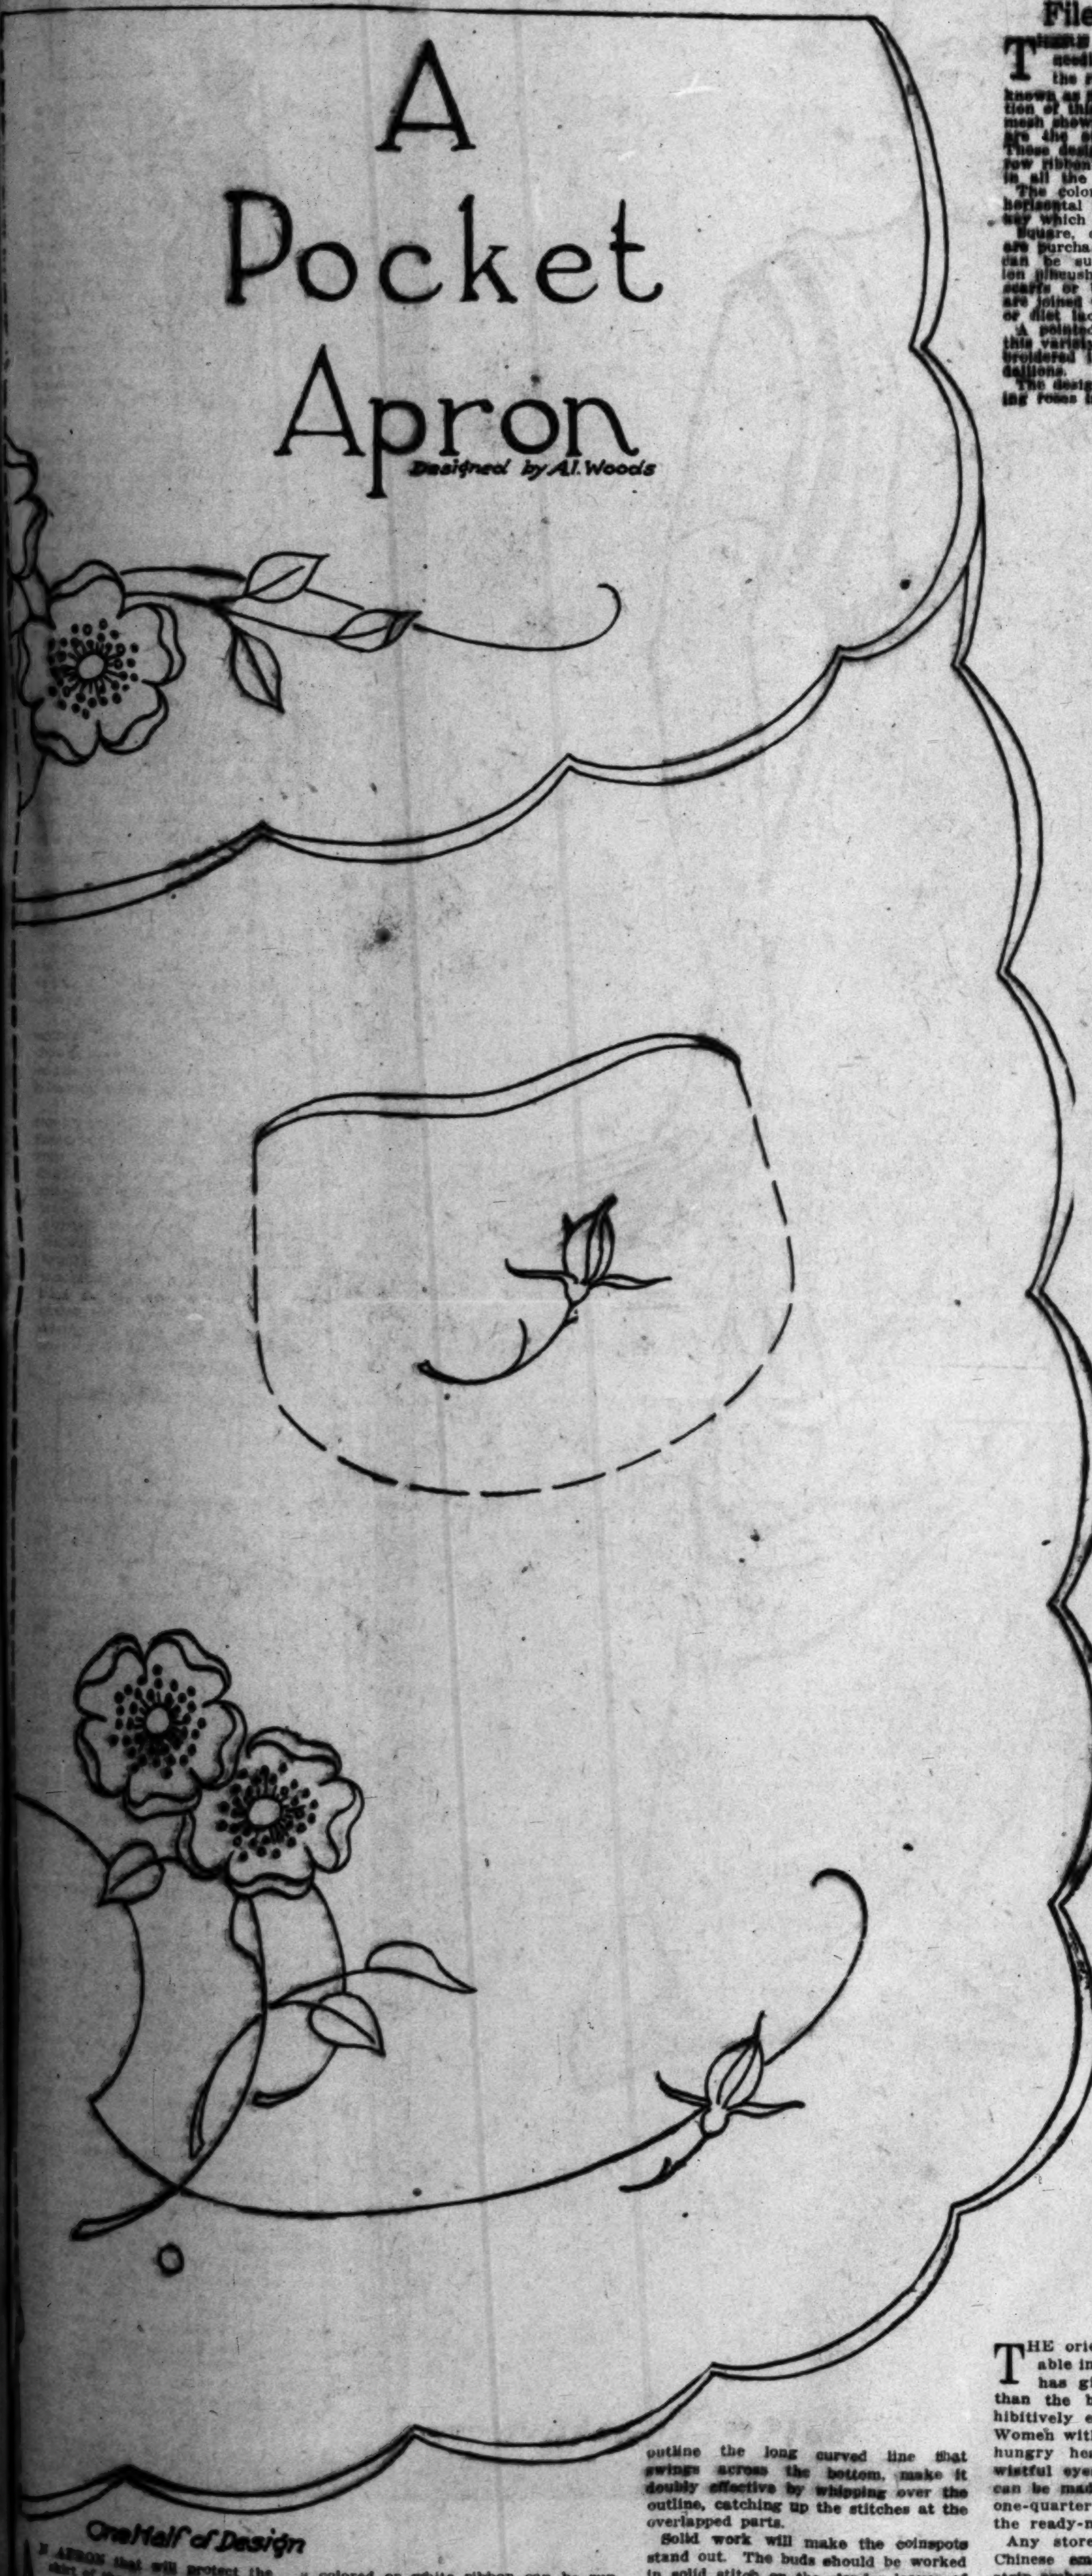
For the INDUSTRIOUS NEEDLEWOMAN

By ADELAIDE BYRD

A Pocket Apron

Designed by Al. Woods



One Half of Design

AN APRON that will protect the skirt of the worker and at the same time hold the unused silks, scissors and other helps in a [illegible] is here for your own enjoyment, or an appropriate gift for your en[illegible] friend, who will appreciate a useful and beautiful gift. One-half of this design [illegible] apron is given. You will notice that a flap at the top is [illegible]. This is an extension of the back, which is exactly the same shape as the front, only plain. The front and the back are attached together by [illegible] the scallops through the two thicknesses. [illegible] The top of the flap [illegible] halfway up under [illegible] it is a straight line, and is [illegible] narrow, hand-stitched [illegible] after being [illegible] to the front. If you wish, you can make the flap [illegible], finishing it at the top and [illegible] embroidery beading for the band around the waist. Through this a colored or white ribbon can be run, the extended ends serving as apron strings.

After tracing the design on the upper section, and marking the center of both front and back, so that they can be combined with a smooth result, select a soft darning cotton and pad the edges of the rose petals and one-half of each leaf.

Work the outline of the petals in over-and-over stitch, making a single line at the sides. This is very easily and quickly done. The centers of the flowers should be solid stitch, surrounded by French knots at the ends of straight lines.

Outline the stems with fine stitches, and make the leaves as the French do. Over the padded half work in solid stitch; then outline the other half and fill in with small back stitches in parallel rows. These are called seed stitches.

The lower part of the design is worked in a similar manner. When you outline the long curved line that swings across the bottom, make it doubly effective by whipping over the outline, catching up the stitches at the overlapped parts.

Solid work will make the coinspots stand out. The buds should be worked in solid stitch as the slender leaves of the calyx, and the other part can be outlined or filled in with seed stitches.

Match the central basting lines, baste together firmly along the edges and buttonhole the scallops after padding with darning cotton. The flap, of course, is single and buttonholed afterward.

This apron worked up in colors is exquisite. The ribbons should match the color of the cotton in the embroidery. I suggest any thin lawn, linen or batiste. Barred dimity is effective. The ties should be made the length of the goods, if you wish fabric ties, and hemmed on each side and end. A bud or rose can be placed on the end of the hemmed strip.

Pink, blue, yellow and lavender are the favorites, but the preference of the owner should be the guide. It is far better to be in advance of the holidays than too late. Why not begin to fill the gift box now?

Filet Embroidery

THERE has been a new variety of needlework recently introduced in the realms of embroidery; this is known as filet embroidery. The foundation of this work is a lace with a filet mesh showing attractive designs, which are the outlines for the embroidery. These designs are covered with a narrow ribbon-like silk braid, which comes in all the pastel tints.

The colored braids are applied in horizontal lines according to the color key which comes with each design.

Square, oval and oblong medallions are purchasable in this lace, and these can be successfully utilized to fashion pincushions, cushion covers, bureau scarfs or bedspreads. The medallions are joined with strips of torchon, cluny or filet lace.

A pointed lace edging also comes in this variety, and the design can be embroidered in colors to match the medallions.

The designs are greatly varied, showing roses in festoons, garlands or conventionalized designs.

A dainty pincushion is fashioned of three square medallions. In the center of each is embroidered a wreath of roses in tones of pink and green. To embroider these designs the needle is threaded with the braid, which is drawn in uneven lines up through one hole and down through the opposite.

When the three medallions are completed, join them with inch or three-quarter-inch bands of cluny. Fit this cover neatly and smoothly over a cushion covered with pale pink silk and finish with a ruffle of lace.

A square handkerchief case is made from one large medallion or four small ones joined with insertion. This square is stitched to the top of the foundation made by covering a single thickness of cotton wadding with white, pink or blue silk and scenting it with sachet. The rectangular strip when folded over should form a square eight or nine inches on a side. Finish the edge of the case with a scant frill of cluny or filet lace and adorn one corner with a bow of ribbon.

Filet embroidery is even more simple than cross-stitch, and for this reason it does not require an experienced needlewoman to obtain successful results.

Kimono Cord

THE long kimono seems to have been permanently adopted from Japan; it is so delightful a garment to slip on in a hurry. There is no adjustment, no hooking, no buttoning. But haven't there been times when you've longed for a girdle of some sort to confine its flowing folds to the figure? It gets so in the way at times! Yet how ridiculous any girdle would look upon it but the wide obi sash, which, of course, is a part of the real Japanese garment. And the obi, while appropriate and beautiful, is too elaborate and needs too much adjusting for people in a hurry.

But if girdles are out of the question, cords are not, and an ingenious woman recently took to making cords for her kimonos. The effect reminds one somewhat of the flowing, cord-bound gowns worn in the middle ages. The cord is brought from the back around to the front or side front, and is loosely knotted.

To make the cord, procure about eight yards of common cotton cording and cover it with silk the color of the kimono. To do this, make a silk tubing of bias strips and thread the cord through it with a bodkin, or join the flat bias strips together, turn the edges in well, place the cording in the center and whipstitch the silk about the cord. The eight yards of cording should be cut into three pieces. After they are covered with the silk, braid the three pieces into one. This will form a plait. Place a tassel on each end to cover the fastening of the ends. Attach the center of the cord to the center back of the kimono, and it is ready to knot about the waist.

An Exquisite Scarf

A BUREAU scarf suitable for a room in which the color scheme is either pink or blue, and very, very lovely, can be made from sheer white handkerchief linen. Ornament each corner with a butterfly design in cut work. Hemstitch an inch-and-a-half hem about the entire edge, and then on the very edge of the hem whip a half-inch valenciennes edge. In the center of the scarf place a large wreath of pink roses in relief, made of little swirls of heavy rope silk. In the center work the monogram in white. Two smaller wreaths can be worked halfway between the center wreath and the ends of the scarf at each end. The scarf, when used, is placed over a foundation of blue silk, of which a glimpse is obtained through the cut butterflies.

Chantilly Lace

IN THE cedar chests belonging to many who read this page are preserved the chantilly lace shawls and scarfs that once belonged to honored ancestors. Why allow them to lie unused through the years when you can utilize them in many ways without destroying their beauty or cutting the lace?

For instance, a lovely mantelet can be easily fashioned from a shawl of the three-cornered variety in this manner: Carefully line the lace with black, gray or white chiffon or mousseline de soie, slipstitching it to the lace by hand. Now place the shawl over the shoulders and allow the point to fall nearly to the knees, and draw the two pointed ends in front to a uniform length below the waist line. The kimono-like sleeves are formed by joining the edges of the lace beneath the arms, and the fullness is confined about the waist with a narrow girdle of twisted black ribbon velvet, which serves to fasten the coat in front.

If the shawl is a large, square one, line it with mousseline and place it over the shoulders. Drape the lace gracefully to form the sleeves and swathe it about the figure, pinning each fold in position.

When the desired result is obtained, take a needle and thread and sew the lace where the pins have been removed. Clasp the mantle at the left side with an ornament of jet.

Many of the handsomest evening gowns have tunics of black or white chantilly lace, and the heirloom may be used to advantage for this purpose.

After the foundation of white or black satin is completed, then drape the shawl to form the tunic.

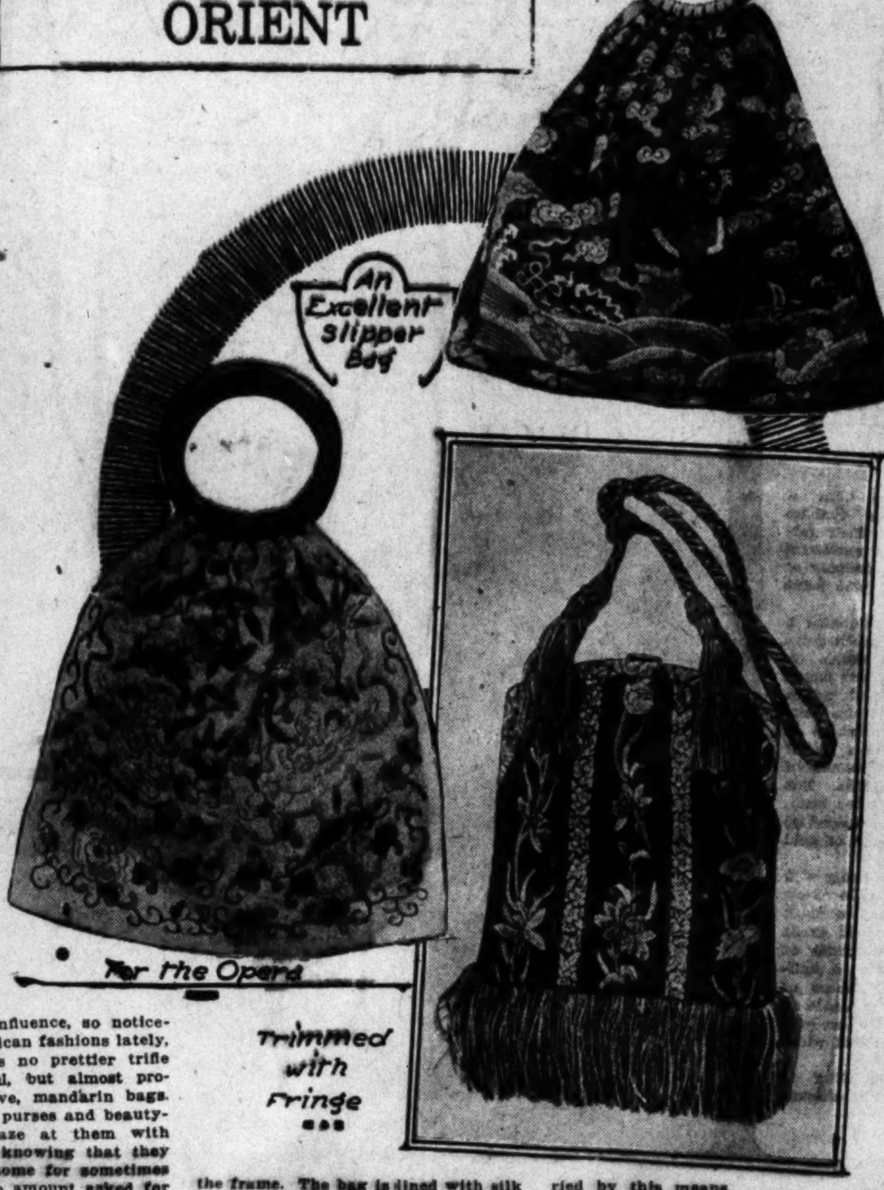
The wide scarf of lace can be successfully utilized to fashion the modish "hoop" or "lampshade" tunic. Gather or pleat the scarf along the upper edge and draw it about the waist line. A girdle of velvet or silk is then fitted about the waist, and if narrow, the lace is allowed to extend above the girdle to form a frill.

To make the tunic shorter in front than at the back, run several horizontal tucks across the front by hand.

If desired, a thin wire may be neatly slipstitched to the extreme edge of the tunic on the under side, which causes it to stand beyond the foundation in crinoline fashion.

Do not, in this season of lace tunics and wraps, consign your heirloom of chantilly to the dark depths of a cedar chest.

BAGS FROM THE ORIENT



THE oriental influence, so noticeable in American fashions lately, has given us no prettier trifle than the beautiful, but almost prohibitively expensive, mandarin bags. Women with slim purses and beauty-hungry hearts gaze at them with wistful eyes, not knowing that they can be made at home for sometimes one-quarter of the amount asked for the ready-made bags.

Any store carrying Japanese and Chinese embroideries can supply the strip embroidery similar to that used in the making of these mandarin bags. Such a store almost invariably supplies the cords, fringes and jade rings used, together with the embroidered material.

To make a small black-and-gold bag trimmed with fringe, use a strip of embroidery about five inches wide by twelve inches long for the bag proper. Run a seam up each side to within two inches of the top. The open two inches leaves room for the metal frame which is used. If the frame cannot be obtained in the oriental department, it can, perhaps, be obtained in the art-needlework department or at a leather goods store. Cover the frame with a strip of the embroidery before joining the bag to the frame. The bag is lined with silk in old gold color. Whip along the edge a row of gold-and-black silk fringe, and fasten to the little rings on a frame a gold-and-black silk cord. Black-and-gold silk tassels finish the ends of the cord.

The bag next in size is of an exquisite white silk embroidered in pink, white, green and lavender, the colors shading from deep tones to delicate pastel shades, with here and there a thread of gilt. It is lined with pale green silk and is fastened to the jade rings by a fine, twisted gilt cord. To make the bag, procure a strip of Chinese embroidery seven by eighteen inches. Double the strip in half, so that it measures but nine inches in length. Run seams up both sides to within two and a half inches of the top. Line the bag with pale blue satin. Fasten a jade ring to each side of the bag, which is carried by this means.

The dark bag is of maroon dull-finished satin, richly embroidered in peacock green, dull blue, subdued yellow and oxidized gilt. The lining is of plain green satin to match the green in the embroidered material. The tops of the bag are fastened to the jade rings in the same fashion as those on the bag in pastel shades, using oxidized gilt cord. It is somewhat larger, requiring an embroidered strip eight by ten inches.

The smaller bags are used as opera bags, and quite large ones are frequently used to carry evening slippers. There are a number of uses to which they can be put, depending upon the color and size. Any of the bags here given may be made in other colors. Pale green silk embroidered in cherry blossoms and fastened to green jade rings is exquisite, and the silk can be embroidered at home.

A Medieval Opera Bag

IT IS called "medieval" because it so closely resembles those beautiful bags almost invariably seen on ladies of rank during the middle ages.

Take an oblong of heavy, cream-colored moire silk, eight inches long by six and a half inches wide. Measure up from the bottom two inches on each side and place another mark in the center of the bottom. Cut from the side marks to the mark at the center bottom, and this will make a decided point. Cut another piece of moire the same shape and size. Place the two pieces one upon the other, run a narrow seam about the pointed bottom and two sides. Cut a lining from pale blue satin to fit the bag. Run two rows of stitching along the top to form a casing and run through it a gold cord, to draw the mouth of the bag shut. Now crochet, in simple chain stitch, an "overdress" of gold thread that will slip over the bag and come within two and a half inches of the top. The mesh covering will, of course, be pointed. Make it in square mesh, similar to filet lace, about two or three chain stitches forming each side of the squares. At the two lower corners of the bag and at the bottom point hang tassels of gold.

To further beautify the bag and give it still more of a medieval appearance, sew all over the gold "overdress," at the corners of each square, where the mesh forms a small cross, seed pearls or small pearl beads; but beads of dark blue glass are good imitations of sapphires and are more durable than pearls. Corals or turquoise-colored beads are most effective.

After the beads are sewed on with a fine gold thread, slip the "overdress" over the white moire and tack it to the silk along the tiny points which have been crocheted along the top edge of the overdress.

Winter Pillows

NO longer are we in search of cool designs in pillows for the porch. It is the cozy, warm-appearing pillows for the window seat and inglenook that now concerns feminine heads and workbags. These last need not mean, however, pillows of woolen stuffs or insanitary silks—unless, of course, one wishes it so. But the colors must be warm, either in the background or the embroidery.

And now what designs are best for the warm-colored embroidery? There are, of course, the conventional designs, which can be worked in any color that one prefers, and so it is that we concern ourselves more with a choice of floral designs. Shall we head the list with red roses? Surely nothing could be "warmer"; but they are beautiful only when used with discretion, like all flaunting decorations. Poppies, too, are appropriately used on winter pillows. Poinsettias are easily worked and are effective. Then there is holly and mountain ash. Fuchsias, too, make a graceful decoration. Instead of having the pillows covered with pale tans and greens, as were the summer pillows, select rich warm browns, with only an occasional green one among them. Yellow sunflowers upon dark brown are warm and bright. Nasturtiums will give one a chance to work in warm yellow and orange.

Cut work is effectively used in pillows. A dark brown pillow top ornamented with cut work is very beautiful where orange silk is placed under the cut-out design.

A Girl's Dance Frock

A PRETTY dance frock for the young girl can be made from one of last year's cast-offs with the aid of chiffon and a new girdle. We will presume that the old garment is pink—nearly any shade of pink will do. Buy chiffon in a very pale pink shade, almost white, for an overdress.

Before making it up you must have it pleated, that is, the skirt part. The waist may be draped in unpleated chiffon. Make a skirt of the pleated chiffon only sufficiently full to allow it to fall gracefully over the old pink gown, cutting it for a high waist line. Drape the bodice surplice fashion, filling in with cream shadow lace the V thus formed.

The sleeves should also be draped with soft folds of the chiffon over a plain undersleeve of shadow lace. About the waist place a wide flat, unpleated girdle in turquoise-blue silk. Some of the oriental stores have such bands embroidered or brocaded in silver, and these are particularly effective. A broad flat end should fall from the top of the girdle in the back, forming a sort of panel about eighteen inches long. This girdle end is, of course, of the same material as the girdle. A more charmingly girlish frock would be hard to find.

How to Transfer

HERE are suggestions for transferring the pattern before you to any material before working.

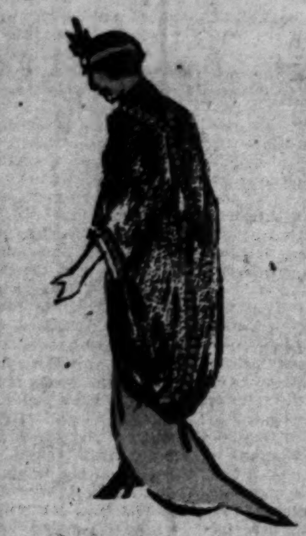
Perhaps the easiest way is the "window-pane" method. This is successful when the material is thin, like linen, batiste, etc. Pin the sheet of paper and the material together and hold them up against the glass of a window. With a sharp pencil draw on the material the design, which can be easily seen through the goods. If one-half of the design only be given, unpin the paper and turn the other side to the fabric.

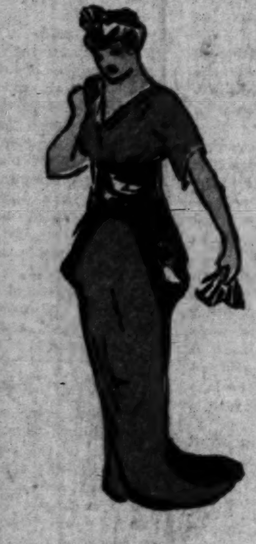
If you have carbon paper, you should place the sheet between your fabric and the newspaper. The latter is on top. With a sharp pencil go over the outline of the design. The impression will be left in fine lines and will last until worked.

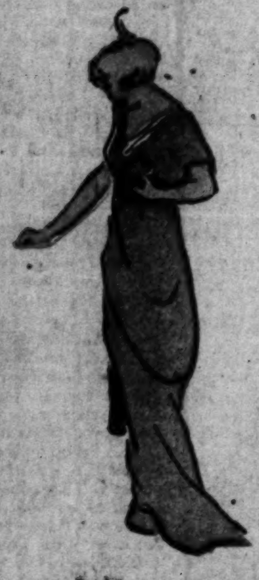
The last way is also easy. On wax paper or ordinary tissue paper trace the pattern before you. When the design is completed, turn over the paper and outline the pattern with a heavy lead pencil. Then place the design down on the fabric and redraw the outline, pressing hard with the pencil. The pattern will be transferred without difficulty.

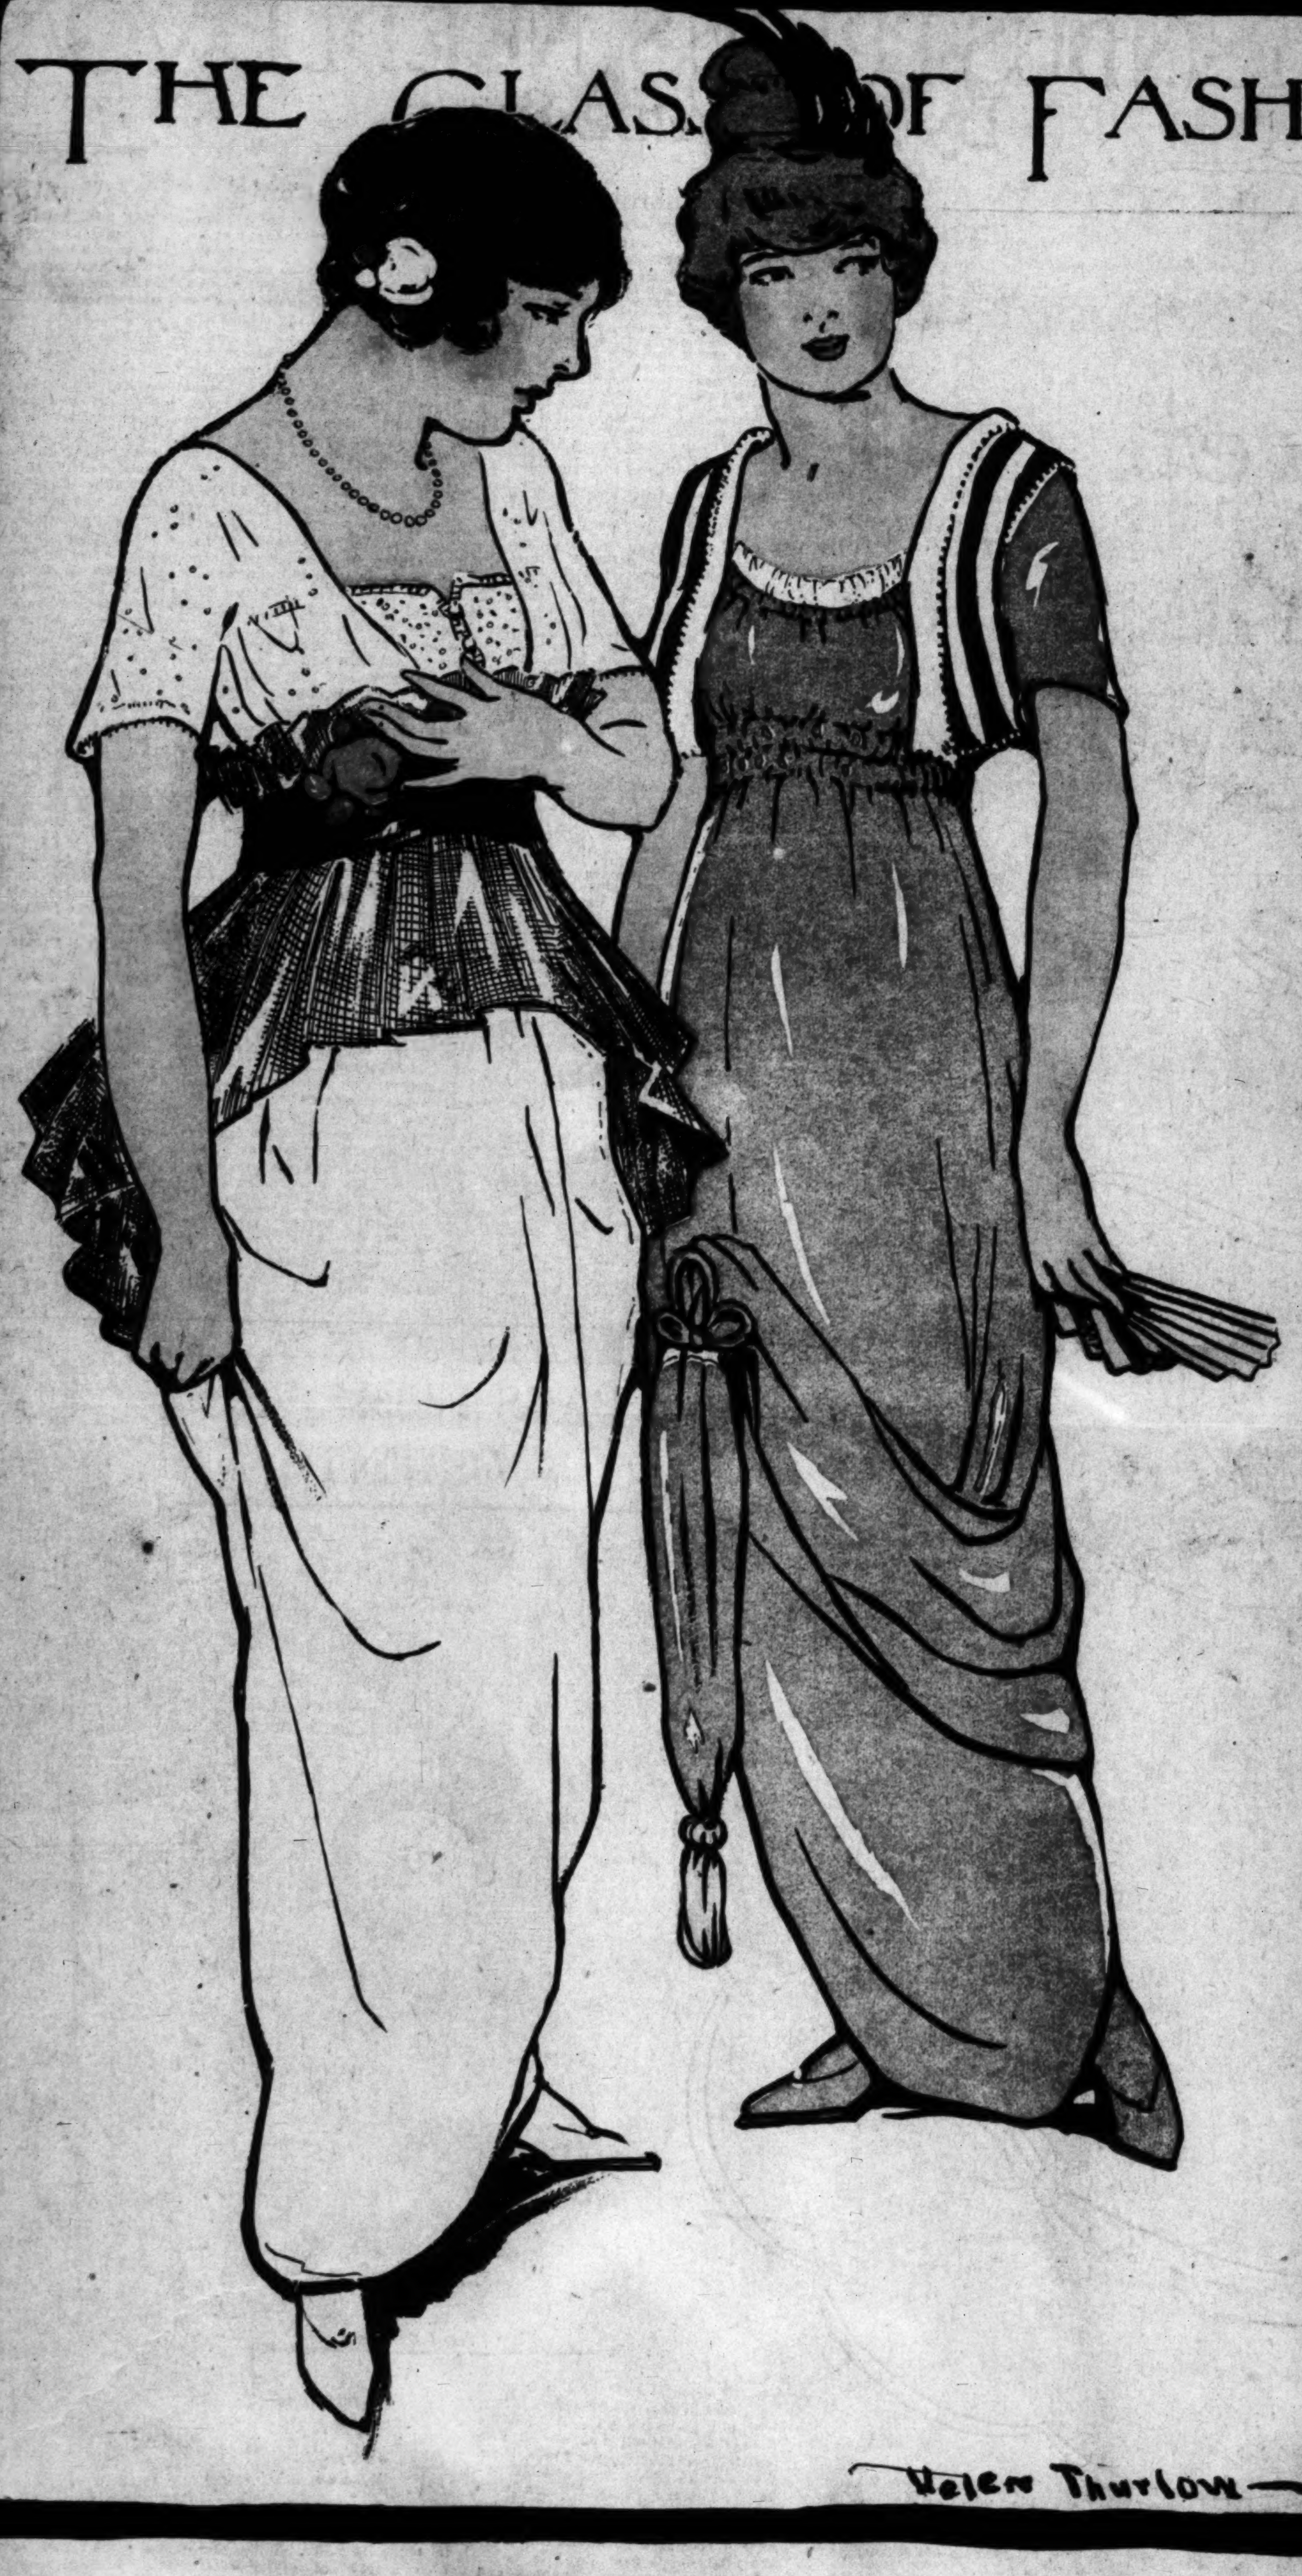
Surely the way is easy.

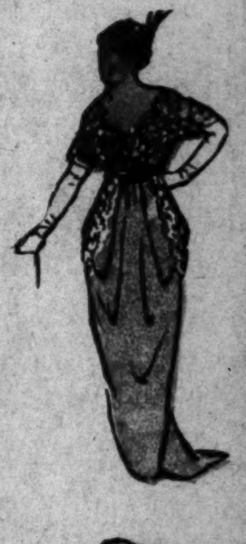
IN THE GLASS OF FASHION

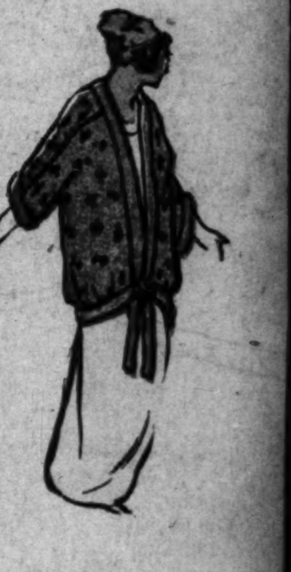


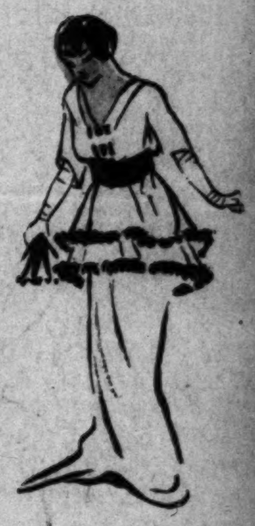












For Evening Wear

Evening costumes offer a great chance for fashion artists to display their talents. In the blending of wonderful colors and the graceful draping of fabrics they rival those who paint on canvas.

The empire modes are enjoying a strong revival, and the green gown shown is of crepe de chine. A unique feature is the bolero jacket of black-and-white striped taffeta with a rolled collar of white chiffon. The rounded decolletage is shirred and finished with a tucker of chiffon. Two puffed bands of the crepe form the girdle. The skirt terminates in a pointed train, and when dancing this is looped up in front with an ornament of gold braid.

Lampshade tunics are being well received. The gown of pale-yellow chiffon has one fashioned of black tulle. The fullness is held in at the waist line with a girdle of black velvet adorned with a dull-red rose. A single thickness of chiffon is drawn over each side of the bodice to form the sleeves. This veils the underbodice of white shadow lace.

The slightly draped skirt is trainless, and the greatest amount of fullness is at the top.

In the collection of small drawings is shown a three-quarter-length wrap of black velvet. It is cut on kimono lines, but draped closely about the knees. Bands of gold-lace insertion are used effectively to trim this handsome wrap.

The nile-green gown with a red rose at the corsage is of green silk crepe. Folds of white mousseline de soie finish the pointed decolletage. The upper portion of the skirt is draped and the underskirt terminates in a narrow train with square corners.

The smart costume of rose-colored chiffon has an oddly shaped tunic-girdle of black moire. A fold of white chiffon outlines the V-shaped top.

Notice the green gown with the bodice of black lace. This illustrates how a shawl of black chantilly lace can be successfully utilized. Draped over a plain foundation of green chiffon velvet, the shawl is caught about the waist with a girdle of black velvet, forming a peplum below.

The mandarin coat is of green velvet brocaded with black flowers. Bands of green ribbon velvet outline the wrap and are knotted in front.

White tulle is used for the double lampshade tunic on the pale-yellow charmeuse gown. Bands of skunk fur border the tunic, and a girdle of black satin confines the fullness at the waist line.
